During the cross-examination of Mr. Cook, as to the contents of the letter from Cartwright, Cameron showed witness at the Toronto station, Mr. Blake appeared to consult an open letter he held in his hand. The effect of this upon the committee was to give the idea that it was the identical Cartwright letter. When it turned out it wasn't, Mr. Cook grew indignant at the attempted ruse, and thumped the table with his fist, remarking that Blake had tried to fool him.

"I didn't say it was the letter or that a copy was taken of it," said Mr. Blake.

Asked as to his transactions with Mr. Preston, he said he knew Preston, and wanted nothing to do with him in the Senatorship matter, or any other, and they met in consequence of a letter from Mr. Preston asking for a meeting.

It was, he believed, after the meeting with Sir Richard, when they met, Mr. Preston said he had come from Ottawa, and they wanted $10,000 for the Senatorship, either the Government or Sir Richard. he could not be sure which. Mr. Cook said he would not give it. Mr. Preston said if he did not pay the money he would not get the Senatorship, and if he did not give it somebody else would, and witness asked if Mr. Preston really thought there were such fools, and Mr. Preston said: "Lots of them."

Mr. Blake—Looking hard at you.

Mr. Preston also said the money was needed for party purposes.

Had sent Biggs down to Ottawa to see Ministers about the Senatorship.

The committee adjourned until 4 p.m.

Afternoon Session.

In the afternoon session, Mr. Cook continued his evidence. He said Biggs, who had been his solicitor for several years, had not been such for about two years. They were not at the present time on very friendly terms. The interview with Preston, he said, was when the latter was librarian for the Ontario Government.

Mr. Ritchie—What was it led you to make the $10,000 offer public?

Mr. Cook—I was attacked by Dr. Horsey, member for North Grey, who said my letter was issued because I had not got a Senatorship. I had previously taken an active part against the Liberal Government.

Frank E. Macdonald of Toronto, son-in-law of Mr. Cook, was examined. He knew the late M. C. Cameron, whom he met in Goderich in April, 1897. The interview was in Mr. Cameron's house, where the witness was a guest. They were having a cigar in the conservatory after tea. Macdonald had been saying that Cook was badly used after what he had done for the party and Cameron remarked: "Well, I suppose you know all about it. If he had given that $10,000 he would have got it. He was foolish not to give it. His election must have cost him $6,000 or $8,000. That would have been only for a few years and this was for life."

To Mr. Blake this witness said no one else was present in Mr. Cameron's conservatory. At the time, Macdonald had not previously heard of the $10,000 matter. Cook had not said anything about it to him. He spoke of it to Mr. Cook shortly after, or within a year. They were walking on the breakwater, and Cook started to tell him about the offer, when witness said he already knew. He did not remonstrate at all about the dishonesty of the offer.

Mr. Ritchie said he intended on Thursday to call a witness named Hancock, now in Toronto. It was open to Mr. Blake to call Mr. Biggs and Mr. Preston, who were on hand.

Mr. Blake desired to have the case closed before he disclosed his defence.

Mr. Ritchie declared that he had not summoned Biggs and Preston to support the evidence of Cook. He knew these witnesses were hostile, but he had them brought down so that if any other person desired their evidence, they would be at hand.

Senator Kirchhoffer—"It has been reported to me by the doorkeeper that these two witnesses, who were ordered to keep away from this room, have been struggling to get in and have been listening. It shows great disrespect to the committee."

Senator Melvin Jones said a word of the alleged eavesdroppers.

Mr. Blake—"In regard to these two witnesses, I thought they would corroborate the evidence of Mr. Cook. The course I intend to pursue, was to examine first Sir Richard Cartwright, and next Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then to fill up any other branches of the case."

Mr. Ritchie—"I am given to understand that the evidence of these two witnesses would not be straightforward. So I have been instructed."

Senator Dandurand—"By whom?"

Mr. Ritchie—"I do not know that I should give it away in public. I have been so informed."

Senator Dandurand—"But it is immaterial to you. You are taking no side."

Mr. Ritchie—"I apprehend that my duty here is to get at truth. I am led to believe that these adverse witnesses would not tell the truth. I do not know that. I have been so informed."

Senator Baker moved that the committee adjourn till to-day at 1 o'clock.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell—"If no one has confidence in these witnesses, it is still competent for the committee to compel their evidence."

Mr. Ritchie—"But I shall have the right to cross-examine."

Sir Mackenzie Bowell—"Certainly."

The committee adjourned.

Old People

There is many a grandfather and grandmother who finds in Griffiths' Menthol Liniment the only remedy that does their pains and aches any real good. Whether it is Rheumatism, Lame Back, or an ache anywhere, this Liniment will cure it. It acts on pain just as water does on fire, it puts it out. See that you get Griffiths' Menthol Liniment.

IT IS THE WAY YOU USE IT.

Its the Method Employed Which Makes Success or Failure.

One man with pen, ink and paper can produce a landscape, another man with same pen and ink may not be able to write his own name legibly. It is all in knowing how.

It is equally true in the use of medicines. The same remedies we have to-day have existed for thousands of years, but if their existence was known the knowledge of how to use them was lacking.

They became valuable to the human race only when experiment and science showed the way to use them to get results.

The grip is an old disease with a new name; it is really catarrhal in character and the usual symptoms are those of acute catarrh, but the old time catarrh salves and sprays do not cure it, neither does the application of antiseptics through an inhaler give anything more than relief for a short time.

The antiseptics are all right; they will kill the germs of catarrh and grip if they are applied rightly, but their local application to the nose and throat avail little because the germs are in the blood and through the whole system.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain many of these same antiseptics, that are used in sprays and inhalers, but instead of applying them to the inflamed membranes of the nose and throat, they are taken into the stomach and thus reach the blood, the real seat of the disease and drive out the infectious germs through the natural channels of the bowels and kidneys.

In other words Stuart's Catarrh Tablets reach the CAUSE of the mischief instead of merely local symptoms.

The remarkable success of these tablets in curing grip, catarrh and throat and lung troubles is because they drive the catarrhal poison from the system and the nose and throat become clear of the excessive secretion of mucus, which causes the hawking, spitting and gagging, because the secretion is not supplied from healthy blood.

Two years ago, Stuarts Catarrh Tablets were unknown, but to-day have become so popular through positive merit that druggists everywhere in the United States, Canada and Great Britain now sell them.

No Use.

A young swell got into a Sheffield tram car the other evening and sat opposite to two respectably dressed girls.

He soon began to cast admiring glances at them, smiling, twirling his mustache, folding and unfolding his newspaper.

This went on for some time, till one of the girls, looking at him earnestly, said:

"It isn't a bit of use, old boy. We are both married."

Amid the laughter that followed he made his exit as quickly as possible.—London Spare Moments.

He has a way of shakin hands an sayin "How-dy-do!"
That jes' convinces you he thinks the world an all of you.
He doesn't keer fur money; he is such a generous elf,

The programme was excellent throughout, one of the most pleasing numbers being the fan drill, given by eight girls dressed in the graceful and picturesque costume of the Japanese women.

At the close of a delightful programme, refreshments were served, and during the evening fancy baskets of homemade candy were readily disposed of. The young ladies are to be congratulated on the excellent entertainment provided.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE C.G.E. CO.

Harry Beck's Life Crushed out This Morning.

CAUGHT BY THE PLANER.

Both His Temple Bones Were Mashed and When He Dropped From the Machine His Brains Protruded.

The first fatal accident ever occuring at the Canadian General Electric Works took place this morning at 9.45 o'clock, when Harry G. Beck was almost instantly killed while at work in the machine shop.

Beck was working on one of the planers and in watching his work he placed his head in such a position that it was caught between the piece being planed and the tool-head of the planer, crushing out his life, as stated, almost instantaneously.

The accident was first noticed by C. E. Adams, who called to a fellow workman to shut off the power from the planer, but any action however prompt, would have been too late to save the poor fellow's life.

A moment after Beck fell from the machine, he was under the care of the factory emergency staff and although his temple bones were both crushed in and his brain protruding he was kept alive for about twenty minutes.

Doctors Gray, Carmichael and McClellan were promptly on the scene of the distressing accident, but their efforts to revive the injured man were of no avail. He never spoke nor regained consciousness after receiving the injury.

Coroner Gray, on being acquainted with the facts of the case, at once decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The shops were immediately closed and the flag hoisted at half mast as a token of respect to the deceased.

The young man had been a resident of Peterborough for about a year, and was a member of the Murray Street Baptist Church as well as an active worker on a number of Y. M. C. A. committees.

At the time of the accident he was boarding at No. 145 Aylmer Street, but the remains have been placed in charge of Mr. D. Belleghem for the present. The deceased came to Peterborough from St. Thomas, and the management of the Canadian General Electric Company as well as the officers of his church are endeavouring to locate his relatives although it is considered doubtful if he has any residing in Canada, being of English parentage.

A telegram received during the afternoon from Mr. Schooley, a former friend of the deceased, residing in Dundas, states that Beck had no relatives in Canada.

LINDSAY POST DESTROYED.

Fire Damaged the Premises and Contents—Loss is about $12,000.

The premises occupied by the Lindsay Post were badly damaged by fire last night, together with the contents.

The cause of the fire, which started shortly after seven o'clock in the evening, is unknown. It originated in the press room and before it could be gotten under control, damage had been done to the amount of about $12,000. Two Gordon presses and a Typograph machine fell through the flooring into the cellar and of course, will be useless. A large amount of paper was destroyed as well as the type in a number of standing orders. The other departments were all damaged by water and the fact that the mailing lists were lost means more than is easily comprehended by those not concerned.

Insurance was carried to the amount of $6,000.

Mr. Wilson has the Examiner's sincere sympathy in his heavy loss. It is to be hoped that before many days the Post will come to hand as bright and newsy as ever.

GOT FIFTEEN YEARS WITH HARD LABOUR

The Jury Found Alex. Sharpe Guilty of Manslaughter.

THE DEATH OF WM. HULL.

Mr. F. D. Kerr Makes a Splendid Appeal on Behalf of Prisoner—Pathetic Scenes in Court—Mr. Justice Lount's Address to the Jury—Jury Forty Minutes Out..

After forty minutes' deliberation last night, the jury rendered a verdict of manslaughter in the Sharpe case, and this morning prisoner was sentenced to fifteen years in the Kingston Penitentiary at hard labour.

Such was the outcome of the trial at the assizes for the County of Peterborough, yesterday, of Alexander Sharpe, who was charged with the murder of Wm. Hull, in the township of Belmont, on the twentieth of last month. No trial of recent years has attracted so much attention, and throughout the proceedings the large court-room was filled with an anxious and inquisitive crowd of spectators. The audience was by no means made up of townspeople alone, for throughout the course of the trial many of the residents of the township of Belmont and other municipalities, were present. Additional constables were on duty to keep the crowd in check and maintain the silence necessary in a court of justice.

The case for the Crown was ably conducted by Mr. Hugh O'Leary, of Lindsay, assisted by County Crown Attorney Wood. Mr. O'Leary did not require a very searching examination of the witnesses, as their stories were invariably along the same lines, whilst his summing up of the evidence and his address to the jury was not lengthy, but clear, and to the point. The prisoner was represented by Mr. Francis D. Kerr, assisted by his brother, Mr. W. F. Kerr, of Cobourg. Mr. Kerr, considering the evidence he had to battle against, made a magnificent fight for his client's life and liberty. He was a young man to be counsel on a case of such moment, as he himself said in his address to the jury, but he explained the circumstance by the fact that the prisoner at the bar, crippled as he was physically, was crippled also financially, and unable to obtain counsel of more enviable reputation. However, in Mr. Kerr, prisoner was most ably represented and the best side of his case was splendidly presented.

PATHETIC SCENES.

The trial, too, was not without those pathetic sights, which are characteristic of trials of so serious a nature, and which often touch the heart of the onlooker. The prisoner, Alexander Sharpe, a cripple, sat in the box, charged with murder. His face gave expression to an appreciation of the awful predicament that he was in. His sister, a very respectable looking woman, sat in front of the prisoner's box and close to counsel for the defence, whilst also seated near by were two bright faced little boys, the children of the man who was undergoing his trial on the charge of murder. The younger, took in the proceedings in an unconcerned manner, but the elder sobbed at times to the notice of the crowded court room. When he was leaving the court room, he reached up to his father, who kissed him most affectionately and sobbed in unison with his child. There were tears in another person's eyes. Mrs. Sharpe, the wife of the prisoner, and who in a sense was responsible for all the trouble, sat in the north-west corner of the room and on occasions when her name was mentioned, which too, were not infrequent, gave vent to her feelings by weeping. Tears were in Sharpe's eyes almost continuously throughout the afternoon.

THE FIRST WITNESS.

The first witness yesterday afternoon, after the court assembled, was Francis Newell. Upon being sworn, he said that he lived in the Township of Burleigh, and knew Sharpe for quite a number of years. He remembered Sharpe having called at his place the evening of the tragedy, having tea there and having wanted witness or his son to drive him down to Stephen Norman Davis'. He had no particular conversation with prisoner. Sharpe and his son left and returned about seven o'clock. Sharpe produced a cartridge shell, saying that that was the thing that told the story. Continuing, he said that he had got Wm. Hull up at Stephen Davis' with his woman and had then, shot him. He said that he was then sorry that he had done it. Sharpe and the rest of them retired for the night, and prisoner took breakfast with them the next morning. It was also arranged that witness' boy should drive prisoner to the mica mines. He had no further talk with Sharpe on the matter nor did he in any way hear Sharpe discuss the same. He did not know what became of the rifle.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr witness said that in conversation, he understood that prisoner had come from John Hubbie's, on the Wednesday he visited witness' place first. He could not say that witness told him that his wife was at Davis'. He might have said that he was going down to trade guns. Witness became very forgetful at this juncture, and it was with difficulty that counsel could get him to admit anything. Proceeding with his evidence he stated that they sat by the fire, that night, prisoner appeared very down hearted and he had not much to say. Mr. Newell had known prisoner all his life, and he had a reputation of being kind and particularly so to his children. Prisoner talked about his wife and said that he wanted to get her back. When prisoner had returned from the shooting he told witness that he had heard that his wife was at Davis' and he wanted to go down and get her back, and see why she had left him. He said that when he saw them together he could not keep his gun down.

When Mr. O'Leary took witness in hand for his re-examination in chief, he reminded witness that he (witness) had told him all that had passed between Sharpe and himself, still he had told Mr. Kerr a great deal more. Witness then was subjected to a severe examination, but nothing material was elicited.

MR. COCHRANE.

Mr. George Cochrane, High County Constable, was called, and testified as to having taken Sharpe into custody at Magistrate Robb's house the day after the shooting. When Mr. Cochrane appeared at the door of the house, Sharpe sprang to his feet and said, "I have come here to give myself up." Mr. Cochrane replied, "I want to hear nothing about it, Alex."

A discussion between counsel as to whether statements made by the prisoner to the High Constable were admissable, then took place. The Court held that the evidence might be put in, inasmuch as the statements about to be made were uttered before the prisoner was under arrest.

Continuing, witness said that Sharpe replied "I can't help taking about it; I shot Hull and I have come here to give myself up." Constable Williams took no part in the conversation. In a subsequent conversation on the 20th of February, prisoner asked Mr. Cochrane if had received a letter from him. Witness replied that he had. Prisoner then said that after reading the letter that Wm. Hull had written to his, Sharpe's wife, if he ever got them together he would shoot both of them. He also said that had it not been for the child running in front of him, he would have shot his wife, and then shot himself. He was afraid to shoot at the wife for fear of shooting the child. He was pushed out of the house he said, by someone shutting the door. He had been driven to this, by his wife's action.

Mr. O'Leary produced a bullet which witness said was the one Dr. Holdcroft had given him. Continuing, Mr. Cochrane said that he told Sharpe that he had received his letter and had he been able to get up a few days sooner he would have done so. When arrested he was dressed in his usual manner. He had known Sharpe since he was a small boy.

To Mr. Kerr, witness said that he did not reckon on having any trouble in arresting Sharpe. The letter which Sharpe wrote to Mr. Cochrane as well as the one purporting to come from Hull to Sharpe's wife and which was enclosed in the same envelope as that which contained Sharpe's letter, were produced in Court. Mr. Kerr desired to have the same read, but the court ruled otherwise, holding that it was not proven who had written the letters in question. Mr. Cochrane could not say that he could identify the hand writing of Sharpe or of Hull.

This closed the case for the Crown and the evidence for the defence was then taken.

The Defence.

Rev. Mr. Peer, the Baptist minister at Norwood, was the first witness called by the defence. He lived about 22 miles from Mr. Drain's at the mica mines. He performed the marriage ceremony of Susan Harper to Alex. Sharpe on the 5th December. The marriage license was produced in court. Witness was qualified to perform such ceremony When he got to Drain's they were becoming very anxious, as he was over two hours late.

Mr. Kerr—Were the bride and groom apparently an affectionate man and wife?

His Lordship held that such a question was unnecessary.

Robert Crow, who lives at the back of Stony Lake, near Wm. Robb's, claimed to have known the deceased, Hull, for some time.

Mr. Kerr was proceeding to ask witness of a conversation that took place between the deceased and himself, but His Lordship would not allow it to go in.

Mr. Kerr contended that he wished to show that Hull had been planning to steal Sharpe's wife.

His Lordship remarked that that was no reason why he should be shot.

Continuing, witness said that Sharpe's reputation was that of a gentleman. He was kind to everyone. He saw Sharpe at Norwood some time previous to the shooting. He appeared to be in a troubled state of mind.

Mrs. Ellen Myles, a lady from Burleigh, testified that she had seen prisoner at her place with a rifle on the Friday night preceeding the shooting. Mr. Kerr was about to ask the witness of a conversation that took place between Sharpe and her husband regarding trading his rifle but the Court would not allow it. Mr. Kerr contended that he wanted to show that Sharpe was really anxious to get rid of his rifle. The Court held that any statements made by prisoner previous to the affair was not evidence. His Lordship said that he would allow counsel to attempt to prove that the rifle was left there for a certain purpose. Witness then was asked why the rifle was left at her place, and the reply was that it was left for the purpose of selling it, if possible.

Mrs. James Drain, the wife of James Drain, of the mica mines, gave evidence. Sharpe and his wife were married at her place. She has known prisoner for about two years, and saw him the day after the shooting, when he came in and sat down by the stove and started to cry. This was after the shooting. He was in poor health the most of the time he was at witness' place. Prisoner's reputation as to kindness and humanity was very good.

Asked by Mr. Kerr as to whether she knew prisoner's handwriting, witness said she did not know whether Sharpe could write at all or not. She had seen Hull's writing and could identify it. This, however, was just where witness was a little too quick. She was shown a document by Mr. Kerr, and said that she could identify the handwriting as that of the late Wm. Hull.

Cross examined by Mr. O'Leary witness said that it was about a month or two months since she saw Hull do any writing and this was only on one occasion. He was writing a letter at John Drain's, she herself was visiting at the latter place, and she did not look to read the letter, nor did she look at it very clearly.

To His Lordship, witness said that she did not observe the formation of any letter; did not stop to see what the characters were like at all.

His Lordship, said that he did not suppose that she intended to say what was wrong, but that she had said more than she should.

Mr. Kerr then proceeded to read the letter alleged to have been written by Hull to Sharpe's wife, but His Lordship would not allow it, holding that it had not been proven.

CHRISTY CROWE'S EVIDENCE.

Christopher Crowe, a resident of the vicinity of the head of Stony Lake and who had known prisoner for thirty-five years, gave him a good character as a kindly goodnatured man. He saw Sharpe on the Saturday previous to the shooting. He seemed to be in a troubled state of mind. I took him to the McDonald House, Norwood. The McDonald House is only a short distance from Mr. Sherry's law office, which was pointed out to prisoner by witness. Prisoner, as far as he knew, went to the law office. Sharpe, on that day, appeared to witness as a man out of his mind. It was nothing extraordinary for a man in that country to carry a rifle.

To Mr. O'Leary, Mr. Crowe said that Sharpe did not pay his fare from Stony Lake to Norwood, because witness would not take anything for it. He offered witness the pay. Sharpe left witness in Norwood to go to Sherry's. Prisoner did not drink anything that he was aware of that day. Sharpe had a fixed place of abode up until the time his first wife died.

William Eyres, J. P., of town, told of having been in the north country on business preceding the time of the shooting. On the Monday evening before the tragedy and on the following Tuesday morning he saw Sharpe, who gave him two letters. Witness gave the letters to Mr. Cochrane as directed by Sharpe. One of the letters he read aloud. He would not be positive that either of the letters produced were those he had delivered.

Terry Smith, the Havelock liveryman, said that he had known the prisoner for 8 or 9 months. He saw the prisoner shortly before the shooting and he appeared to be in trouble. He gave the prisoner an excellent character as to kindliness and humanity.

Mr. Cochrane was re-called in order to prove that the letters produced in court were those received by Mr. Eyres.

Mr. O'Leary then waived his objection to the letters going in, and they were accordingly put in as evidence.

This closed the case for the defence.

LAWYER KERR'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Kerr's address occupied something like an hour and a half, and was a grand effort to convince the jury that Alex. Sharpe, his client, did not commit the terrible deed with premeditation. In opening, he warned the jury of the solemnity of the occasion, and proceeded to explain very clearly the duties they had before them in passing upon the life of the prisoner at the bar. It was not a case where skilled lawyers were required to weigh the evidence, but such evidence was left to their own common sense and judgment. They might wonder why a young man like he, was before them on this occasion, but the reason was that Alex. Sharpe was unable to pay a more noted counsel in his defence. Alex. Sharp had sent for him and he has done all he could in his feeble way. Mr. Kerr then went on to speak of the misfortunes that had of late overtaken Sharpe, the loss of his wife, the loss of his leg and then placed in a dreary cell to await a horrible trial. The Grand Jury had presented a true bill of murder, but it was in their power to reduce it to manslaughter if they saw fit, and if they could not return a verdict, at least, such as that, they could not shelter themselves, but were responsible for sending the prisoner to the gallows, He asked them to return a verdict of "not guilty" and continued to draw a picture of the jury in a similar position, warning them particularly that the law states that there shall be only one punishment for murder, and that is to be hanged by the neck until one is dead. In the course of his remarks a most earnest appeal was made for sympathy for the man who had children to him, and who was robbbed of the wife he loved. There was something terrible in a bullet, but there was also something terrible in the moral seducer that enters a family and rends the marriage ties asunder. The protection of the families lies with the Jurors, as well as the salvation of the home and honour of the state.

Mr. O'Leary in his remarks asked them to give a judgment according to the evidence they heard in the box, and not to be swayed by pathos or sympathy. He made a careful review of the evidence, and asked his Jurors if Alex. Sharpe showed any sympathy for Hull when the latter threw up his hands and said "God save me."

His Lordship.

His Lordship, Mr. Justice Lount, addressed the jury at some length. The crime they were considering was the highest known to the laws of our country. Alex. Sharpe has been on trial for the murder of Wm. Hull, and the case has arrived at the stage when they were to decide whether he was guilty of murder, of manslaughter, or guilty of no crime whatever. With the consequences they had nothing whatever to consider, but the duty of the state was cast upon them, and they were not to be concerned about what will be the course of the prisoner, no more than His Lordship in passing judgment upon him. They had taken a solemn declaration that they would give a judgment according to the evidence before them and they should not let the result of the finding sway their minds one way or the other, but as a piece of the machinery of justice they are expected to fulfil the duties imposed in them. Appeals to sympathy are always made, particularly in crimes of murder, but they should not allow this to lead them from their duty. If it does they do violence to their obligation. If the prisoner be guilty, he should have thought of the distress he would bring on his family and those that are dependent on him before he launched a human being into eternity. He should have remembered that crime is followed by punishment, and that the taking of anothers life is followed by death. The learned counsel for the defence would have them believe that adultery was a terrible sin, and he quoted from the laws of Heaven and earth to show that it was, in olden times, punishable by death. Did not the Bible state too that "Thou shalt not kill?"

The learned judge then proceeded to deal with that which constituted murder and that which constituted manslaughter according to our criminal code, and continuing asked if the prisoner meant to cause the death of Wm. Hull before he went to Davis' house? If he did it was murder. If he went without that intention and on opening the door saw something which in the mercy of the law of this country constituted manslaughter, very well. An act in this event should be done without premeditation. There should be no doubt raised by sympathy, it should arise out of the evidence. The Jury had given a patient hearing and had been watchful in the discharge of their duties, may they continue so until the end. Reviewing the evidence, Mr. Justice Lount asked, "Did Sharpe go to Davis' to trade rifles? Was there not reasonable evidence to show that Sharpe knew that Hull and his wife were there? Prisoner knew that Mrs. Sharpe was there, and by his own letters we might reasonably suppose that he knew also that Hull was there, and further, from what Mr. Cochrane had said, it was his intention to shoot both of them should he find them together. Could they find a verdict reducing the crime to manslaughter in the face of such evidence? There was no other way to consider it than murder or manslaughter; a verdict of not guilty of either would be most lamentable and he might tell them that there was no evidence to warrant such. Because Wm. Hull was an objectionable man, and did a wrongful act, in no manner justified the taking of his life. If the laws of the country are going to be that each one of us may for certain reasons take the life of another, the laws of our country will soon lose their foothold.

The entire evidence was then carefully gone over by His Lordship, who asked the Jury to retire and give their verdict according to the evidence they had heard from the box.

In about 40 minutes the Jury returned with a verdict of manslaughter, and His Lordship reserved his sentence until Thursday morning.

THIS MORNING.

This morning Sharpe appeared in court to receive his sentence. The court room was crowded, as it had been all day yesterday, and the arrival of His Lordship was awaited most anxiously. Sharpe was once more brought in and took his position in the prisoner's box. He looked a great deal more composed than on the evening previous, and did not hang his head, but gased around in an unconcerned manner. His counsel, Mr. Kerr, approached the box and shook hands with him.

"Stand up, Alex. Sharpe," said His Lorpship.

"Have you any reason why the sentence of this court should not be passed upon you?"

Mr. Kerr—"May I say a word on behalf of my client, my Lord?"

His Lordship—"You may."

Mr. Kerr then proceeded to address His Lordship as to why a light sentence should be passed on the prisoner, pointing out the fact that the prisoner had always enjoyed an out-door life, his constitution is frail and his years advanced. A strong sentence would mean a life sentence, for he would soon succumb on account of his not very robust constitution.

The Sentence.

Mr. Justice Lount, in passing sentence upon the prisoner, said,—You have been tried by a jury of your countrymen and ably defended, and I have heard the further entreaty by your counsel for mercy. I have given this case great consideration and although it is a painful duty to perform it is one that compells me to not yield to the pleadings of your counsel. Society has to be protected and it would have been a more solemn duty for me to pass a sentence of death upon you. The Jury considered that there was provocation. Upon your seeing your wife and Hull together, you lost control of yourself and shot William Hull dead on the spot.

Continuing, His Lordship said that this was a crime. Punishment must be inflicted upon those who cannot control their temper. He had thought over his physical condition and former character, but these cannot prevail. He should have taken this into consideration, when brooding over the matter, as well as the fact that he had a family of his own. He then passed a sentence of 15 years in Kingston Penitentiary, at hard labour.

FOOD VALUES.

Garlic, leeks and olives stimulate the circulation of the blood.

Beets and turnips keep the blood pure and improve the appetite.

Too much meat and too few vegetables make up the average diet. Health depends on continuous variety.

Baked potatoes are digested more easily than boiled potatoes and should therefore be preferred by dyspeptics.

In cases of anæmia cabbages and spinach are distinctly beneficial. Spinach is also almost as valuable as lithia water in its effect on the kidneys.

Tomatoes are thought in India to be a preventive of cholera. Like endives and water cresses, they stimulate the healthy action of the liver.

A diet of nothing but celery is said by some physicians to be a sure cure for both rheumatism and neuralgia. Free use of this vegetable is always recommended to rheumatic patients.

Just after the battle of Fort Donelson General Grant is said to have telegraphed to Washington that he would not permit the army to move till 40 wagon loads of onions that had been promised to him should arrive. Onions are essential to the army mess to make pork or beef palatable, but they are also an admirable cure for sleeplessness and indigestion everywhere.

Colds and Their Treatment.

There is one other essential point to be remembered by those who would escape colds as well as drugs. By the free circulation of the blood much impurity is thrown off through the pores. It is therefore important when the presence of a cold indicates some impurity in the blood that the clothes worn next the skin should be changed frequently to prevent reabsorption to the skin. Of course clothing worn during the day should never be worn at night. Since it is impossible to take a cold unless the system is in a condition for it, it follows that whatever tones up the system and builds up a well nourished body is unfriendly to colds at large. The use of cold water as a preventive has many converts and followers. The treatment consists in a thorough rubbing with a brush before the morning bath and in sipping a quart of cold water night and morning. The cold water taken in this way simply washes the stomach, carrying off the injurious acids. After this the next step is to induce circulation. This is done by means of the vigorous currying, which brings the blood to the surface to resist external chill and opens the pores to allow impurities to escape. The brush used should be stiff enough to accomplish its work. In fact, a regular horse brush is recommended, used gently at first and until the sensitive skin becomes toned up to the pitch of endurance.—New York Sun.

Rheumatism . .

is Uric Acid in the blood. Unhealthy kidneys are the cause of the acid being there. If the kidneys acted as they should they would strain the Uric Acid out of the system and rheumatism wouldn't occur. Rheumatism is a Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made a great part of their reputation curing Rheumatism. So get at the cause of those fearful shooting pains and stiff, aching joints. There is but one sure way—

Miss Adams' Famous Hymn.

As a writer, as a poet, there were few in the literary world of London in the forties who had not heard of Sarah Flower Adams, the gifted woman to whom all Christendom today pays homage in its love for her immortal hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee." It was written in 1840 and had subsequently been set to music by Eliza Flower and included in a collection of hymns written and composed by the two sisters. Only within that year had their book of "Hymns and Anthems" been published, and the hymn that was destined to inspire the world had then been heard but once or twice and within the walls of a single church, South Palace chapel, London.

It was not, however, until after the year 1860, when the present well known tune was composed for it by Dr. Lowell Mason of New York, that the hymn attained its widespread popularity. Up to that time it had attracted but little notice. Through the spirit of Dr. Mason's sympathetic music it was quickened into glorious life and brought within the reach of every congregation and every Christian soul. But this was long after the author of the hymn had passed away. She died in 1848 without knowing of the triumph and the glory that awaited her work. Her grave in the little village of her birth is unmarked by any monument to her fame.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Holding Out Something.

Artists and professionals are not the only people who are jealous of the work of their brains. There are two bright women who live not far from New York who are wonderful housekeepers and also clever inventors of new and delicious things in the culinary line. They are the most intimate friends, and when one has made a discovery she immediately notifies the other, and the dish is served in its best style and receives due appreciation. The next thing on the programme as regularly as a new dish is invented is the presentation of the new recipe. Either of the friends would think it a breach of faith not to do this. But the part of it which outsiders consider amusing is the fact, which is generally known, that, while the recipe as given will make a fairly good dish, it is not given in its entirety. One or more of the ingredients is left out, and the originator can always prepare the dish with more success than her friend.—New York Times.

To Hold Small Photographs.

A pretty little affair for holding the numerous small photographs which all young girls possess nowadays is made from the snap clothespins which may be purchased for a few cents a dozen. These clothespins close with a spring which holds them fast when released.

Select as many as you choose and gild them, or silver them if you prefer. Take several yards of baby ribbon and make a bow with a cluster of loops and ends. Attach to this different lengths of the ribbon, and to the lower end of each fasten one of the clothespins.

The photographs are to be caught at the top in the clothespin, which will hold them securely. A very pretty cluster may be arranged by this means if the ribbons are cut in appropriate lengths, and one beauty of the arrangement lies in the fact that new photographs may be added as acquired by simply sewing new ribbons underneath with the pins attached.—Housekeeper.

Brisk Women In Little Shops.

Those little shops tucked away in the side streets, kept by women and ornamented with painted photograph frames, babies' shoes, sachets, worsted slippers and other pathetic symbols of impoverished gentlewomen's handiwork, are not mere fancy work bazaars. They are in many instances agencies for "social requirements," bureaus for governesses, companions, etc., headquarters for invalid delicacies and funds of general information on any topic under the sun.

The brisk little woman who presides over one of these birdcage emporiums on the upper west side was offended the other day because some one had taken the shop for a mere manufactory of cotillon favors and embroidered handkerchiefs. "This is an agency," she said proudly, "for supplying every kind of information and sparing lazy or busy people time and trouble. We are versatile. Among things we have done lately is to organize a dancing class, find a teacher for it, make arrangements about the place it will meet, etc. Every child in the class is under 10. It is a beginners' class only.

"We have supplied musicians for a country concert, a professional dancer for an amateur entertainment, a teacher of bridge whist, candy and other articles at wholesale prices for a charity fair, and we have ferreted out addresses for careless souls whose friends had been lost, strayed or stolen.

"In two instances we have private instructions about houses. A property worth $2,000,000 has been put into our hands, and until a genuine buyer turns up we do not know ourselves what property it is. We are also asked to look out for a country seat of about $150,000 in value with immediate possession. We are selling some opals for a lady, and we have been asked to get a really comfortable invalid's chair and more or less ornamental pair of crutches. We are also doing a brisk trade in little dogs.

"Yes, we supply servants, too, but we are not an intelligence office. We differ from them in several ways—we really know what we are sending our customers. A special feature of our work is looking up the characters of servants for busy housewives or bachelors. Oh, no, no detective work!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

Fleeting Flower Fads.

"Fads in flowers as well as in other things are subject to change, and a blossom which is a prime favorite with fashion's devotees one season may find itself superseded by another in the next," said a Brooklyn florist authoritatively.

"There are, however," said he reflectively, "a few kinds of flowers which are always popular and appropriate for all occasions. Roses, carnations and violets, for example, are always in demand and may therefore be classed as universal favorites. The call for them is not spasmodic, as it is in the case of most of the other kinds of flowers, and dealers, as a rule, find little difficulty in disposing of all that they can get at good prices. The rose would probably be pre-eminently the most popular hothouse flower were it not for the fact that roses are more expensive than either carnations or violets.

"But there is another point which purchasers of flowers are apt to take into consideration, and that is the lasting property. For this reason the carnation is favored by many. A bouquet of carnations which will last for eight days in a vase of water is considered by many buyers to be worth a great deal more than one made up of flowers which under the same conditions will remain fresh only half or less than half that length of time. A rose fades rapidly if worn in a corsage bouquet or held in the hand, but carnations used in a similar manner can be rapidly revived by placing them in water.

"Heliotropes, forgetmenots, japonicas and several other kinds of flowers are grown in the hothouses to meet special demands, but the calls for them are by no means as frequent as for the staples.

"Violets of all kinds are popular, but those which are perhaps the best known in Brooklyn are the California single and the English double violets.

"Florists do not, as is sometimes believed, ever attempt to augment the odor of the violet by the addition of some artificial perfume. As regards the value of a carnation, it all depends on its size, strength, fragrance and lasting qualities."—Brooklyn Eagle.

ALBERT NIXON, Vasey, Ont.: "I was troubled with scrofula for years all over my face. Tried everything, without any permanent relief. A neighbor told me to try BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS — after taking one bottle, was completely cured. I can recommend it as a blood purifier."

May 1, 1900.

"I have used BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS for purifying the blood, and found it can't be beat. I was covered with a terrible rash, but now am all right." MRS. JAMES KECK, Petrolea, Ont.

UPPER CUTS.

Pugilist Jeffries asserts that he is "a actor," but Pugilist Ruhlin claims to be nothing but a slugger.—Baltimore American.

Billy Madden, the star witness in the Cincinnati scrapfest proceedings, solemnly swore that there is no such thing as a prizefight and hasn't been since Sullivan whipped Kilrain. And the public is inclined to believe him.—Atlanta Journal.

The manager of Pugilist Jeffries was very frank when he testified in court the other day that there had not been a genuine prizefight since the days of Sullivan. That will not surprise those who have been taken in by "fake" fights.

ELECTRIC SPARKS.

Marconi thought of the wireless telegraph at 19 and had it working when he was 25.

Electricity is to be used as a separator. It is claimed that it will be an economical factor in dealing with metals.

The Sydney lighthouse has the most powerful light of any. It is electric and of 180,000 candle power. It can be seen for 50 miles.

Edison believes that the science of electricity should be taught in the common schools and should rank in importance with spelling and arithmetic.

POWDER AND BALL.

In our army 304 officers speak Spanish fluently, 224 are handy with their French and 136 are well up in German.

Some changes are about to take place in the uniforms of the German army, bright buttons being replaced by dark ones and the prussian blue of the tunic by a grayish brown tint.

Since the loan of $5,000,000 and the sale of guns to the Persian government by Russia the Persian army is being reorganized under Russian instructors, who are now urging a considerable increase to its numbers.

Outdone.

In almost every small town there is some person who is known and despised for his inquisitive habits. Even children delight in thwarting the purposes of such a man, as is shown by the following incident which a correspondent furnishes:

Mrs. Stocken wished a friend to share her cider vinegar and sent her 8-year-old son to deliver it. He returned quickly, his face wearing a satisfied smile.

"Mrs. White was much obliged, ma, but I met Mr. Perkins just before I got here. He said: 'Hello, bub! I wonder if you've got molasses in that jug?' And I said, 'No, sir, Mr. Perkins.' He said, 'Got vinegar?' And I said, 'No, sir, Mr. Perkins.' Then he asked, 'Got cider?' And I told him, 'No, sir, Mr. Perkins.'

"Last he said, 'Well, that's a jug in your hand, ain't it, Caleb?' And I put my jug on the ground and said, 'No, sir, Mr. Perkins.'"—Youth's Companion.

Remote Possibility.

"You have never had a wife, I presume," said the generous matron who had taken pity on him to the extent of supplying him with some cast off clothing and a plate of victuals.

"No, ma'am," answered Goodman Gonrong. "An I don't reckon I ever will have onless I run acrost some woman who wants to make the expeeriment of marryin a man to reform him. An that ain't likely to happen," he added, with his mouth full of baked beans, "'cause she'd hev to be young an harnsome."

The Squirrel's Arithmetic.

High on the branch of a walnut tree
A bright eyed squirrel sat.
What was he thinking so earnestly?
And what was he looking at?

He was doing a problem o'er and o'er;
Busily thinking was he
How many nuts for his winter's store
Could be hide in the hollow tree.

He sat so still in the swaying bough
You might have thought him asleep.
Oh, no! He was trying to reckon now
The nuts the babies could eat.

Then suddenly he frisked about,
And down the tree he ran.
"The best way to do, without a doubt,
Is to gather all I can."

THE DOMINIE.

President Harper of the University of Chicago in a recent lecture to his class in the study of the Old Testament said that ministers of the gospel are not and cannot be good business men, being too much like the prophets and thinking chiefly of the life to come.

The Methodist Episcopal church of Creston, Ia., claims the unique distinction of being the only church in the country that owns a bass drum. The instrument was presented to the Sunday school orchestra by John Gibson, a prominent member of the church.

The Rev. Dr. J. B. Graw, the presiding elder of the New Jersey conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, who died at his home in Camden recently, was probably the best known Methodist preacher in New Jersey, at least in the bounds of the New Jersey conference.

The much to be deplored "restorations" of Shakespeare's church at Stratford are at a standstill for want of money. No outsider will regret this. Mr. Shorter is protesting, by the way, against the verger who stands at the door of the church demanding an admission fee to see Shakespeare's tomb.

ITS WORK TELLS.

Malt Breakfast Food

Shows its Happy Results upon Every Member of the Family after a Week's Use.

Malt Breakfast Food is, according to the opinions of physicians and food experts, the best of the many breakfast grain foods now on the market. It has become the most popular of all foods simply because its work and results tell quicky and satisfactorily.

Malt Breakfast Food is the only grain food perfectly adapted for the requirements of the weak and strong. It is a perfect regulator of digestion, it tones the stomach, it never irritates the blood, producing skin troubles and eruptions, as does oatmeal; it builds up solid flesh, strengthens the nerves and clears the brain.

In addition to the grand nutritive qualities of Malt Breakfast Food, it is the most delicious and appetizing of all foods, something to tickle the palate of the most pronounced epicure.

After one week's use of Malt Breakfast Food, its good points are so clearly established that no one will give it up. At all retail grocers.

THE CAR OF JUGGERNAUT.

A Myth and the Events Upon Which It Is Founded.

Probably the grim story of the car of Juggernaut was brought home by the first European traveler who went to India. It has, at any rate, set the fashion for many later travelers, and no myth ever had a more successful career. Until recently the best informed writers of all countries have used Juggernaut and his victims as a stock figure, while every book about India has helped the tale along more or less. As a matter of fact it is nothing but a traveler's tale.

Jaggernaut Puri is a town in the Indian province of Orissa and contains a temple which is visited by thousands of pilgrims yearly—the temple of Jaggernaut, or Juggernaut. The god's name is a corruption of the Sanskrit Jagannatha, meaning "lord of the world." According to an old Hindoo legend, a certain rajah sent a learned Brahman out into the world to find a place suitable for building a city. When the wise man reached the present site of Jaggernaut Puri, he saw a crow dive into the ocean, wash its body and make obeisance to the water god. Luckily enough, the Brahman knew the crow language, so when the bird had finished his worship he approached him and struck up a conversation. The crow told the Brahman that if he would stay at this part of the coast the wonders of the place, whatever they were, would be taught him. Full of his news, the Brahman rushed to the rajah, and the latter built a city and a temple upon the spot. Eleven hundred and ninety-eight A. D. is the date of its building.

One night the rajah had a dream in which he heard a voice saying: "On a certain day cast thine eyes upon the ocean, and thou wilt see arise out of the waters a piece of wood 52 inches long and 1½ cubits broad. Take it up, keep it hidden in thy house seven days and then, whatever shape it shall assume, place it in the temple and worship it." Another legend says that Viswakarman, who was a sort of carpenter in chief to the Hindoo gods, fashioned it into the present idol of Juggernaut.

Every year this god is placed upon a large car and dragged to his summer quarters. This ceremony is called the car festival and doubtless gave rise to the stories of brown folk throwing themselves beneath the vehicle's wheels. In 1881 Dr. W. W. Hunter investigated the myth while compiling a gazetteer of India, and upon going over records dating from 1580 to 1870 he found nothing to indicate that any human beings had ever sacrificed themselves. Such worship is opposed by Juggernaut's teachings, so it is likely that the whole story arose from a few instances of persons being accidentally crushed in the crowds of pilgrims who come to the car festival.—Chicago Record.

The Money and the Egg.

A lady in Brazil was presented with a small monkey, which, after mishaps innumerable, she succeeded in bringing to New York. They had a long, slow voyage on a small sailing vessel.

One morning the lady got a fresh egg from the chicken coop.

"How would you like this, Max?" she said. Before she knew it Max had that egg. The lady wanted it for her own breakfast, but soon forgot that meal watching Maximilian. He passed it from right to left, then cracked it on the deck, and as the yolk ran out he licked it up; then he stuck a paw in and licked that, next he hugged it in his arms and let it run all over him, then he held it over his right eye to look into it and a good share trickled therein, then he tried with the other eye and a goodly quantity ran down his back. That monkey didn't stop till the egg was all distributed over his body. The rest of the day he spent picking the dried particles out of his coat and eating them.

THE REVIEWER.

It looks as if the handwriting experts would have to prove their claims all over again.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The southern cotton raiser has quit making cotton for the benefit of freighters and longshoremen and proposes to get the main profit himself hereafter.—Atlanta Constitution.

Every now and then some one suggests that the farmers form a trust. When crops are good, they are too busy for financiering, and when they are not there is nothing to monopolize.—Washington Star.

Speaking about an ideal tax law, one that will give satisfaction to all concerned, when did you say the millennium would poke its long looked for nose around the neighboring corner?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The new cup challenger has the bulk of the hull farther forward than its predecessors. The British difficulty in the past has been to have the bulk of the hull far enough forward when the race ends.—New York Press.

The Kansas City attorney who said that "nine out of ten divorce suits are traceable to a lack of money" probably got right at the root of most of the matrimonial mishaps which occur in the United States.—Rochester Herald.

The Warren county man who wants the money refunded that he expended for a substitute during the civil war is an example of modesty since he does not ask for a pension on account of his former substitute, who was killed.—Pittsburg Times.

The fad of a military drill saved the lives of nearly 3,000 New York schoolchildren the other day, the classes filing out in an orderly condition to the measured strains of martial music while the building was burning. Some fads are worth cultivating.—San Francisco Chronicle.

And now there appears a strong feeling of confidence in New York that the naval arch project, which has been taken up by the alumni of the Naval academy, is practically certain of success, and the probabilities seem to be that it will be located in that patch of ground known as the Battery.

Loss of Appetite.

A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigour, tone.

The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla—that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.

BRAKES AND COUPLINGS.

At least one-sixth of the locomotives built in this country last year were exported to England.

The "A" signal box situated outside Waterloo station, London, is one of the largest in the world. An average of 45 trains an hour are dealt with from this box, which contains 236 signal levers.

President A. J. Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad has not only a private car, but also a private engine. The locomotive is No. 937, has always been used for that purpose and has had the same engineers since the days of President Thomas A. Scott.

TALES OF CITIES.

St. Louis has named its newest and largest schoolhouse after Eugene Field.

Newport, Ky., has an ordinance requiring sufficient fire escapes on all houses over two stories high.

The extraordinary sum of $250,000,000 is being expended by the people of New York for public improvements.

The city of Birmingham, Ala., has already begun to make preparations for an exposition to be held there from Nov. 15, 1904, to May, 15, 1905. The charter name of the enterprise is to be the International Metallic and Industrial exposition.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

The Sybarite.

I don't care for leaving footprints
On the sands of time
That posterity may praise me
Oft in prose or rhyme,
For the man who leaves a footprint,
He must trudge along;
I would rather take a carriage
While I hum a song.

Let the future generations
Praise the toiler true,
Plodding on and leaving footprints
As we ought to do,
I would rather know wealth's splendor
While my cares relax;
I would not leave any footprints,
Only carriage tracks.

The Price No Object.

The swart corsair conducted his beautiful captive aft.

"This is the quarter deck," said he.

The child of luxury contemplated the rude appointments in dismay.

"Is there no 50 cent deck?" she faltered.

Her Righteous Indignation.

She—But I do. I've bought postage stamps there quite frequently.

The Wise Man.

He keeps a cat for exercise;
She knows what she's about.
To let her in he has to rise,
And then to let her out.

Soon he must let her in once more,
And so it goes all day;
That man gets muscle work galore
Who keeps a cat, I say.

OBITUARY.

Funeral of Miss Nellie L. Kennedy, of Smith.

The funeral of Nellie L. Kennedy, aged 19 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kennedy, of Smith, took place on Monday, 18th inst.

The procession left the house for Wesley church on the 16th concession of Smith, where an excellent and appropriate sermon was delivered from Rev. 7, 9—10 by Rev. J. Jenkins, to a large and sympathetic congregation. Not only was the sermon a touching appeal, but the hymn, the new "Rock of Ages" and "Beckoning Hands," chosen from Rev. Mr. Jenkins' evangelistic Salvation Melodies, were expressive of deep comfort and inspiration. The following is a stanza:

"Rock of ages cleft for me," sung above the coffin lid;
Underneath all restfully all life's joys and sorrows hid.
Never more, O storm-tossed soul! never more from wind or tide,
Never more from billows, wilt thou need thyself to hide.
"Rock of ages cleft for me, let me hide myself in thee."

Nellie was a beautiful Christian character, a willing and earnest worker in the Sunday School and faithful in attendance to all church services. Her last words, "Will you meet me there?" have left a joy in the hearts of parents, brother and two sisters, who survive, being confident that she was prepared to meet her Saviour.

Although Mr. Kennedy has been but a short time in the community, the respect which he and his family have won among the people was shown by the large crowd that followed to the Lakefield cemetery, where the body was interred.

MR. MULOCK LEAVES LONDON.

Gives Evidence Before Cable Committee —He Favors a State-Owned All-British Cable.

Montreal, March 28.—A Star special cable from London yesterday says:

"Hon. William Mulock, Postmaster-General of Canada, gave evidence yesterday before the Inter-Departmental Cable Committee. The proceedings were private, but it is understood that Mr. Mulock favored the expansion of a state-owned cable system by the construction of a Government cable between Canada and Great Britain; also the acquisition of a line from Australia, via Singapore and Hong Kong. The latter extension would be the greatest possible advantage to Canada, as thereby Canada would, via a Pacific cable, be in direct communication with China and Japan, to the great advantage of Canadians seeking trade development in the Orient.

Hon. Mr. Mulock, accompanied by Mrs. Mulock and their son, left London yesterday for Brindisi, where they will embark on the Himalaya.

Speaking of the fast mail service, Mr. Mulock said he favored Government control, and regarded Sydney, Cape Breton, as the Canadian port offering the best facilities.

I understand that one of the objects Mr. Mulock hopes to accomplish in his conference with the Australian Ministers is an improved Canadian-Australian service.

FARM IMPLEMENTS.

Manitoba Legislature Asks That They Be Placed on Free List.

Winnipeg, March 28.—The Manitoba Legislature yesterday passed a resolution unanimously asking the Dominion Government to place farm implements on the free list, and failing in this, to see that the duty is reduced to not more than five per cent. of the wholesale price charged by the manufacturers.

In the Law Amendments Committee the Act to amend the Municipal Act by reducing the term of aldermen from two years to one year was defeated.

Regarding School Lands.

The following resolutions were also passed by the Legislature:

This House is of the opinion that the Parliament of Canada should pass such legislation as will make the holders of school lands, under agreements for sale, liable to have their interests thereunder sold, and also that the Crown will recognise the party to whom said interests are sold as the party entitled thereto.

The House is further of the opinion that His Excellency the Governor-General-in-Council should patent at once all lands to which railways are entitled within the province which can be so patented.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Mr. Fortin's Bill Regarding Slow-Pay Civil Servants Talked Out.

Ottawa, March 28.—The House yesterday afternoon debated with some vigor Mr. Fortin's resolution in favor of making the salaries of civil servants attachable for debts. A vote had not been reached when the period devoted to the consideration of the motion expired, and the debate stood over. Before adjournment Sir Louis Davies announced that the intention of the Government was to adjourn for Easter at 6 o'clock on Thursday, April 4, until 8 p. m. on Tuesday.

The House adjourned last evening at 8.30, after going into committee on Dr. Horsey's bill respecting Victoria Day. The committee reported progress, to give Dr. Horsey an opportunity to consult the bankers in regard to making the day a bank holiday.

Mr. Davis introduced a bill to incorporate the Kettle River Railway Co.

The Premier brought down the Grain Inspection Commission's report.

THE DANISH WEST INDIES.

The Conditions Upon Which the U. S. May Acquire Them.

London, March 28.—The Daily News publishes the following despatch from its Copenhagen correspondent:

"I am enabled to state, on the very best authority, that Denmark has communicated to the United States the following conditions for the sale of the Danish West Indies:

"First. $4,000,000 to be paid to Denmark.

"Second. The population to decide by vote whether to remain Danish or to be transferred to America.

"Third. If the vote is favorable to the United States, then the inhabitants to become immediately not only American subjects, but American citizens.

"Fourth. Products of the island to be admitted to the United States free of duty.

"It is supposed here that Washington will not readily accept the third and fourth conditions."

AGUINALDO CAPTURED.

Gen. Funston's Scheme Successful With the Insurgent Chief.

Manila, March 28.—Gen. Frederick Funston's daring project for the capture of Aguinaldo in his hiding place in the Province of Isabella, Island of Luzon, has proved completely successful. Aguinaldo was captured there March 23.

The United States gunboat Vicksburg, Commander E. B. Barry, with Gen. Funston and Aguinaldo on board, arrived here this morning.

Spaulding Was Seen Run Down.

Gladstone, Man., March 28.—Geo. B. Spaulding, teller of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, who left on Sunday afternoon last and is suspected of appropriating upwards of $500 of the bank's funds, was captured at Regina, and Constable Downey has gone to Regina to bring him back.

HUMAN FACES.

An Artist Says They're the Easiest Things in the World to Draw.

"It is a very singular fact," said a local artist, "that the human face is the easiest thing to draw in the world. One who had never tried would naturally suppose that the exact reverse would be the case, for the reason that there is nothing in nature so mobile and in a sense of the word so varied. It is a trite saying, you know, that it would be impossible to find two men on earth who look exactly alike, and none of us need be told that there is always a mysterious something that differentiates the faces with which we are familiar from every other face we ever encounter.

"But for all that," the artist went on, "the human features in the abstract can be suggested with an ease that is astonishing. Scrawl a wavy line with a few irregular zigzags, made absolutely without purpose, and you have done the trick. Anybody with the slightest talent for drawing will transform it into a face in a twinkling by the addition of a dot for an eye and possibly a small quirk for a nostril. One of the zigzags does duty as a forehead, another becomes a nose, and two or three more form a mouth or a chin. It is very curious and makes a good game. More than once I have amused myself by covering a sheet of paper with aimless scrawls and then going over them and developing the faces. They would exhibit all sorts of characters—fierce, foolish, pompous, jovial, stupid, cunning, bland, scheming. No two were ever alike, and some of them were strikingly realistic. Several years ago a northern newspaper man made what he thought was a remarkable discovery—merely that a small wad of paper placed on a table near a lighted lamp would almost invariably cast a shadow that would form the outlines of a grotesque face. It was really next to impossible for it to do anything else, but he wrote several articles on the subject and fancied he had struck a big thing until some artist friend told him different. The readiness with which the vague patterns of old wall paper lend themselves to the forming of queer, leering faces is another bit of evidence to sustain my point.

"You will understand, of course, that I have no reference to portrait work. That is extremely, supremely difficult, and the ability to catch a likeness is pretty nearly a gift from the gods. I am speaking simply of more or less distorted lines that nevertheless promptly suggest the human face. It is not so with the lower animals. To make a picture that anybody will recognise at once as a horse, a dog or a cow requires a good deal of skill and technical knowledge. A cat is still harder. There are many eminent artists who could not draw a cat from memory to save their immortal souls.'

"Better out than in"—that humor that you notice. To be sure it's out, and all out, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The General and the Water Wheel.

One day the Confederate army was hurried off upon a forced march to intercept Grant. At the close of the day the soldiers were without rations, and Colonel Russell seized a flour mill which was run by a little stream emptying into the Tennessee river. The mill ground away for an hour or two, and then the water in the creek was exhausted. At this juncture General Wheeler arrived upon the scene.

"What's the toruble?" said Wheeler.

"No water," said Colonel Russell.

General Wheeler danced around in his nervous fashion. "Colonel," he said, "why don't you establish a line of men with buckets, as they do at a fire, and have them pass water up from the stream below and throw it upon the wheel?"

Colonel Russell did not laugh. He drew himself up, saluted his superior in military fashion and sneezed. If a phonograph had caught the sneeze, there would have been evidence that the colonel swore.—Washington Post.

CURIOUS NEW YORK TRADE.

Wild Animal Broker Who Imports a Variety of Animals.

New York's queerest occupation is perhaps that of the wild animal brokers. A great many men support themselves by such work. It requires little capital and experience and brings immediate returns. These brokers make it their business to meet all incoming steamers which hail from the countries which export wild animals of any kind. There is scarcely one of these ships but carries something of a menagerie. The special shipments of animals are of course consigned directly to the big dealers. The animal brokers deal with the sailors.

A surprising variety of animals are usually found in the sailors' quarters. The seamen have learned that they may turn an honest dollar by buying or trading them from the natives in foreign parts. They bring monkeys, parrots and rare birds, sometimes lion or tiger cubs, curious tropical snakes and other easily handled stock. In a large crew the stock is often considerable. The wild animal broker comes to an understanding with the sailors and buys their stock.

There are of course tricks in all trades. The broker must know the exact market value of each animal and be able to judge its condition. The animal broker then finds a market for his stock among the wild animal stores and wholesale dealers of the city. There is a certain well known department store which buys a large proportion of its stock in this way. Sometimes the broker can greatly increase the value of his stock by keeping it for a time and carefully feeding and grooming it.

Another market is found among private customers. The brokers often have a list of customers to whom they regularly show their wares. It is possible to build up a regular business in this way. The broker comes to have a regular understanding with the crews of many vessels and in turn to supply a regular set of customers.

The profits of the wild animal trade enable several of the largest dealers to keep agents in the principal wild animal markets of the world to secure them stock. One firm has several times equipped expeditions to search the jungles of India and capture elephants, lions and tigers. The profit on handling a single fine specimen frequently runs into the hundreds of dollars.

Once collected, shipments are made once a year, and a reliable keeper is sent with the consignment all the way to New York. The animals are then stored in the New York stores or, if they be too large for this, they are shipped to the farms kept by the larger dealers in the vicinity of New York. The circuses, museums and zoological gardens, which form their most important customers, usually make their purchases in the early spring. The present season promises to be a very busy and prosperous one.

LAW REFORM DEBATE

Attorney-General's Bill Receives Second Reading.

A PLEA ENTERED FOR DELAY.

Mr. Whitney Talks on High Court Reform—Measure to Be Pressed—Hon. Mr. Gibson Says He Has No Intention of Putting Off Action Till Next Year—The Proceedings.

Toronto, March 29.—The first half hour or so of the session in the Legislative Assembly yesteeday was occupied by routine business, a large number of private bills being put through committee and receiving second readings without discussion.

The House went into committee again on Mr. Stratton's bill to amend the Ontario Companies Act. Mr. Stratton introduced an amendment to the clause to which exception had been taken authorizing companies whose shareholders were non-residents to hold their annual meetings outside of the province. The amended clause provided that annual meetings of companies should be held within the province excepting where they were authorized to be held outside by supplementary letters patent. The clause as amended was adopted.

Col. Matheson objected to the section providing that if a company had made no return to the Government for three years its name might be given to another company.

Mr. Stratton said that the names of 5,000 companies were entered on the books of the department, of which 3,000 had ceased to exist, many of them having made no returns for much longer periods than three years. It was only reasonable that these names should be available for other companies.

Mr. Foy thought that this should not be done without notice being given to the parties concerned. The suggestion was accepted by Mr. Stratton and the clause amended accordingly, by providing that two weeks notice shall be sent by registered letter to the persons named as president and secretary of the defaulting company in the last return received.

Mr. Carscallen thought that the intention to give the name of the company to another concern should be advertised, so that the shareholders might be apprised of the circumstances. After some further discussion the bill was allowed to stand over and the committee reported progress.

Mr. Dryden's bill to further improve the Factories Act came up in committee. The clause providing that no boiler should be used that was not insured in an authotized company or had not been inspected within one year by a competent inspector excited a good deal of discussion. Mr. Carscallen advocating greater stringency and giving statistics showing the great losses of life due to boiler explosions, and pointing out that in the case of the larger factories the lives of hundreds were at stake. Mr. Whitney and Mr. Conmee contended that the provision would entail hardship on the owner of small saw mills and factories. Hon. Mr. Davis thought the bill went as far as it was possible to go in the direction of protecting life, without being so exacting that the smaller mills and factories would be closed up.

The bill was reported with slight amendments.

The House went into to committee on Hon. J. M. Gibson's bill respecting legal procedure and County Courts jurisdiction. The Attorney-General said that he had considered it inadvisable to extend the jurisdiction of the Division Courts. There had been no general demand for the increase of their powers. He had not thought it advisable to take any present action as regards the High Courts in view of legislation which might shortly be passed at Ottawa affecting the position of the High Court judges. The bill did not represent his own personal views, but the opinions of a large number who had been consulted. The centralization of the High Court was the best means of retaining the strong character of the judiciary for which Ontario had always been noted. Some features of the bill were in the direction of simplification. The inconvenience of jurors being obliged to attend court when there was no work for them to do had been greatly exaggerated, as such instances were quite infrequent. The bill, however, provided machinery for notifying jurors in such cases not to attend. In conclusion he expressed his thanks to the Law Society, the judges and others who had responded to the circular sent out and furnished suggestions which had been very helpful in framing the measure.

Mr. Whitney agreed with the Attorney-General's decision not to interfere with the Division Courts. He was also fully in accord with the proposition to have one Court of Appeal comprising all the Higher Court judges. If the increased jurisdiction of the County Courts was to imply increased salaries to the judges, the relief to the public would be doubtful. He had grave doubts, moreover, of whether the jurisdiction of the County Courts should extend the cases of libel, slander and some other actions for damages.

Mr. Foy also objected to the extension of the jurisdiction of the County Courts to the classes of cases formerly reserved for the High Courts. It was experimental legislation of a dangerous character.

Mr. Carscallen said the bill was disappointing to the Province at large and to the profession. There should be uniformity in the form of proceedings between the County Court and the High Courts, and the divergence created by the bill would result in confusion. He would permit lawyers to make bargains with their clients as to what a suit was to cost the latter. The fee system was one of the greatest abuses of legal practice. No man should have an interest in making fees or running up big bills of costs to increase his receipts. The greatest law reform ever accomplished in this Province would be the abolition of the fee system. There should be some much cheaper remedy under the Workmen's Compensation Act than existed under the present law.

Mr. Pattullo said one of the principal objects of the bill was to do away with the congestion of business in the Higher Courts. He would suggest that the bill should be left over until another session. He was sure the legal members of his constituency shared this view. The House had no second chamber and therefore it was necessary to proceed with caution in so important a matter. He did not altogether approve of the extension of County Court jurisdiction, as there was sometimes the suggestion of local influence in connection with County Judges, from which the Superior Court judiciary were free. If the bill were to pass he hoped the Attorney-General would see his way to establish a system of circuits by grouping several counties together.

The bill was given its second reading.

The Land Titles, Registration and Fisheries bills were read a second time.

On the motion to go into supply, Mr. Carscallen moved, seconded by Mr. Little, an amendment that, in the interests of colonization, settlers on free land grants should retain the pine, and in townships under timber license the whole of the timber remaining, on payment of reasonable dues.

The amendment was discussed by Hon. E. J. Davis, Premier Ross, Mr. Whitney and others.

The House divided at 12.15 a.m.

The amendment was declared lost on a vote of 31 ayes to 39 nays, majority against 8.

AGUINALDO CAPTURED

Funston's Story of How He Performed Self-Imposed Task.

INSURGENT CHIEF CHEERFUL.

Details of the Scheme by Which the Backbone of the Filipino Rebellion Has Been Secured by the Americans—The Victim of a Ruse—Success as Planned.

Manila, March 29.—Aguinaldo, who was captured by Gen. Funston and brought to Manila on the United States gunboat Vicksburg, was brought ashore at 3.10 p.m. yesterday and taken before Gen. MacArthur at the Malacanan Palace. He talked freely, but seemed ignorant concerning what had happened recently. He appeared to be in good health and was even cheerful. He lunched with the officers of Gen. MacArthur's staff and was then escorted to the Anda street jail. Aguinaldo's capture was attended with considerable difficulty, an insurgent major being killed at the time of the event. Twenty rifles and a number of important papers were captured.

Details of the Scheme.

In January, from his hiding-place in the Province of Isabella, Aguinaldo wrote letters anthematizing the sub-chiefs who had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States. A few days later he sent out one of his officers to the various rebel leaders still true to the insurgent cause, ordering them to gather at a rendezvous in Isabella Province. But the officer intrusted with the mission proved false to his leader and secretly negotiated with the Americans.

On hearing of the whereabouts of the rebel leader, Gen. Funston conceived a daring and ingenious plan to capture him. Securing the consent of Gen. MacArthur, he started from Manila two weeks ago with Surgeon-Major Harris, Capt. Newton of the 34th Infantry, Lieut. Admire of the 22nd Infantry, Lieut. Mitchell of the 40th Infantry, six veteran American and a number of native scouts, all of whom were selected for their bravery and extensive knowledge of the country. The little expedition was conveyed on the gunboat Vicksburg to a remote beach above Baler, near where Aguinaldo was said to be in hiding. It was arranged that Aguinaldo's emissary, with the native scouts, should pass themselves off as insurgent troops, who had captured Gen. Funston and others and were conveying them to Aguinaldo. At the right time, when brought before Aguinaldo, Gen. Funston was to give a signal, the Filipino general was to be seized and hurried off back to where the Vicksburg lay at anchor before the insurgents could gather to the rescue of their leader.

The plans turned out as expected. Aguinaldo was captured in the country near Casiguaran, nine miles from Baler, on the northeast coast of the Island of Luzon.

CANADA'S PREFERENTIAL TARIFF.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Says Recognition Has Been Given.

London, March 29.—Replying in the House of Commons yesterday to a tentative question put by Sir Charles Howard Vincent, suggesting reciprocity towards Canadian products for the preference granted to British goods by Canada, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, pointed out the difference between the Canadian and British tariffs, and suggested that reciprocity would involve the imposition of duties on goods from other countries for the benefit of Canada. He was not prepared to propose this, and was certain Canada would not expect it. Great Britain had already shown her appreciation of Canada's preferential treatment by assisting the steamship service between Canada and Japan, and by the assistance promised in the case of the Pacific Cable.

An Honest Tired Feeling

There is an "honest tired feeling," caused by necessary toil and cured by natural rest.

But very different is "that tired feeling," from which so many complain and which may even be classed as a disease.

That tired feeling takes you to bed tired and wakes you up tired.

You have no appetite, have bilious taste, dull headache, are nervous and irritable, blue, weak and discouraged.

In such conditions Hood's Sarsaparilla does a world of good.

It begins in the right place—in the blood, purifying it and imparting vitality, then its tonic effect is felt by the stomach, kidneys and liver; appetite comes back, all waste is removed naturally, headaches cease, that tired feeling departs and you feel like a new person.

This has been the experience of thousands.

It will be yours if you take

SANITATION OF THE SHANTIES.

(Montreal Daily Witness.)

There have been outbreaks of smallpox in some of the lumber shanties of Northern Ontario, and vigorous measures in the way of isolating the ill, vaccinating and revaccinating the well, and fumigating the shanty buildings have been enforced so that there has been no serious interference with lumbering operations and no such disorganization of the camps as was predicted by alarmists. The alarm caused by the outbreak has, however, stimulated enquiry into the general sanitary conditions of shanties and the results suggest the need of a thorough investigation by competent sanitarians under the authority of the law. The enquiries so far made have brought before the public the fact which was pretty generally known among these connected with lumbering that the personal habits of the shantymen are anything but careful or cleanly. From ill consequences which ordinarily followed some of the careless habits into which the fall, they are saved by the cold weather, the snow, and the pure air and outdoor exercise which their occupation force upon them during the day. Probably it is only owing to the break-up of the lumber camps early in the spring that the lumberman, in spite of the naturally healthful surroundings, escapes the fevers which result in cities and towns from unsanitary conditions similar to those which he creates.

The foremen of the shanties, who are responsible to some extent for the sanitary condition of the building and the wholesomeness of the food, and the healthfulness of the surroundings generally of the shanties, are inclined to lay the blame on the lumbermen. They say that some of the men never change their underclothing from the time they enter the camp, late in the fall, until they are about to leave in the early spring. They work all day and sleep all night in the same underclothes, and as they work hard, eat plentifully, and perspire abundantly, their bodily condition becomes bad. Their general health does not seem to suffer directly, but their skin becomes broken, and they are very liable to contract contagious diseases. The only matter of wonder is that such diseases where they obtain a footing in the camp, do not run through it as they do through Indian encampments, where the condition of the people is very similar. The foremen are inclined to excuse the habits of the men, who work from four or five in the morning until between six and seven in the evening, and become much exhausted, and are disinclined to bathing under uncomfortable circumstances. On Sundays the men sleep and smoke, and read the newspapers, and write home, as well as sharpen their tools or care for their horses. It should not be altogether a matter of astonishment that men should under such circumstances fall into such uncleanly ways of living. We know from the letters of our well bred youth in the Canadian contingents that they fell into just such habits during the South African war.

The practical question, and it is one which, in view of the smallpox outbreaks, interests the general public, as well as the lumber industry, is whether a radical change in the personal habits and general sanitary conditions of the shanties can be brought about, and how. It is said that one or two of the greatest lumber firms have well organized lumber camps, which are in perfect sanitary condition. In these there are bath houses for the men, with warm water, and laundries are operated, in which the men's clothes are washed and mended at cost. And it is said that the results are visible. The men are less irritable and quarrelsome, work more effectively, there has been not the slightest symptom of contagious disease, or, indeed, of any other disease among them. It is suggested that the provincial governments should make sanitary regulations for the lumber shanties and should enforce them by means of trained inspectors.

We do not see why lumber camps should be exempted from the sanitary regulations and inspection to which many other industries are subjected. There are probably fifty thousand men employed in the shanties in Canada. Their welfare is a matter of public concern. The essential moral and spiritual condition of these men should be a matter of concern to the churches and religious organizations. Sunday services, including musical service, and supplies of reading matter might easily, with the co-operation of the proprietors of the shanties and the foremen, be arranged in each of the camps, which average probably sixty or seventy-five men.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Why should the county councils act go? Have the councils or the people asked for it? This is a case in which the referendum has its place.—Kingston Whig.

Now that the rat is considered to be an important agent in the spread of plague, means are being adopted to lessen its numbers. For this purpose J. Danysz proposes to employ cultures of an organism, recently isolated by himself, which is pathogenic for the rat. The organism was isolated during an epidemic occuring among field mice. It is a short Bacillus coli, and at first is only slightly pathogenic to rats. By cultivation in broth and upon agar and successive passages through rats, its virulence toward these animals is much augmented, and they contract a fatal disease by ingestion of food contaminated with the organism. In one experiment 200 rats were fed on bread steeped in broth cultures of the organism, and in less than three weeks 80 of the animals succumbed. Tried practically in a store and in some stables, a great diminution in the number of rats was noticed, after a dissemination of cultures of the organism.

THE HEALTH HABIT.

Just as Easy to Form as any Other.

We do not deliberately form our pet habits but they are unconsciously acquired and grow as we grow, and by the time we learn they are hurting us, we find them too strong to be easily broken.

Then, why not form a good habit, a habit which will counteract the unfashionable habit of being always well.

The best health habit to get into is to have and keep a vigorous stomach; if you have a healthy digestion you can drink your beloved coffee, smoke your favourite brand of tobacco, with little or no harm; the mischief begins when these things are forced upon the faithful stomach, without any assistance.

Form the habit of taking after meals some harmless but efficient digestive which will relieve the stomach of so much extra work.

Nature furnishes us with such digestives and when they are combined in such a pleasant preparation as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, they give the overworked stomach just the necessary assistance to secure perfect digestion without any of the harmful effects of cathartics and similar drugs.

The habit of taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals is as necessary to the weak stomach as food itself, and indeed to get the benefit from food eaten, nothing better and certainly nothing safer can be used.

Many families consider Stuart's Tablets as essential in the house as knives and forks.

They consist entirely of natural digestive principles without the effect or characteristics of drugs; they have no cathartic action, but simply go to work on the food eaten and digest it.

Take into account your bad habits and the expense they entail and then invest fifty cents in a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and see if your digestion for the next month is not vastly improved.

Ask the clerk in any drug store the name of the most successful and popular stomach remedy and he will say Stuart's

HE USED THE SALT TEST.

An Old Apache Chief's Knowledge of the Human System.

In the early days of Union Pacific railroading Victoria, Nana and Geronimo, the three chiefs of the Arizona Apaches, with 100 of their best bucks, came through to Green River, Wy.

They had heard of the "heap wagon and no hoss" and had come to stop the train. They made a lasso of rawhide, and 50 men on each side held on to the rope as the freight came down the Wasatch divide. The engineer saw when several miles away what the Indians were up to, so he whistled "off brakes" and, opening his throttle, let her loose. The cowcatcher struck the rope and hurled the Indians in all directions, literally tearing them to pieces, headless, armless and legless. The three chiefs went south to their cactus plains very crestfallen.

Before they selected these men the old Chief Victoria had them all eat a piece of rock salt about as big as a pecan, run swiftly about 100 yards, sit down on a log or rock and cross their legs. Then he watched the vibration of the feet, which were crossed. The feet which vibrated the longest or had the longest strokes he declined to accept for a severe duty or a dangerous trip or for one that was at all hazardous, but he accepted the feet which vibrated short, distinct and regular strokes.

Now, what did the old chief know about pulsation of the arterial system or of heart action and indeed about salt in the system? I have lived near to Indian reservations and have had occasion often to survey over their lands for railroads and other objects, and I have wondered where old Victoria got his idea. Is not the child of the sagebrush plains better posted than his paleface brother?

A Love Letter of Prince Bismarck.

"On my window sill, among all sorts of crocuses and hyacinths, stand two camellias which always inspire me with strange thoughts. One of them, slender and pretty, with its ornamental crown (top) and soft, pale—very pale—pink blossoms, but little foliage and only two buds, transports me to Reddetin, holds itself rather stiffly and lisps English. The other makes far less impression of beauty as you look at it, and its stalk betrays in its guarded twisting lack of care in its pruning. From the midst of the foliage looks out a dead branch, but the crown is rich in leaves, and the foliage is greener than that of its neighbor. It gives promise of abundant blossoming in its eight buds, and its color is deep dark red and white in irregular gay variegation. Do you take the comparison amiss? It is a lame comparison, moreover, for I do not love camellias, because they are without odor, and you I love precisely on account of the fragrance of the flower of your spirit, which is white, dark red and black."

Luck and Pluck.

Two clerks named Thomas and Clarence were in the employ of a wealthy merchant. Thomas was always an industrious lad, but Clarence was much given to frivolity and was extravagant in his habits. In after years Clarence married his employer's daughter and was made a partner in the business. Thomas continued to be an honest, industrious clerk all his life, and his services were much appreciated by Clarence and his father-in-law.

MINISTERS TESTIFY.

Exploit Denials of Correctness of the Cook Charges.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER SWORN.

Sir Richard Cartwright the Chief Witness of the Day—Mr. Biggs, Evidence on the Cameron Interview—Did Mr. Cook Threaten to Slap Mr. Biggs' Chops?—Argument Adjourned.

Ottawa, March 29.—The evidence in the Cook investigation is all in, with the result that there has been a complete failure on the part of the accuser to substantiate in the slightest degree the charge that any member of the Dominion Government corruptly or improperly approached Mr. Cook with respect to an appointment to the Senate. Sir Richard Cartwright, who was the Minister directly aimed at by Mr. Cook, emerges from the inquiry completely vindicated and with an absolutely unsullied reputation. The same can be said of every one of his colleagues. It may be claimed perhaps by some that the evidence was such as to reflect to some extent upon the character of the late Mr. M. C. Cameron, who, Mr. Cook charged, made to him a corrupt proposition, but Mr. Cameron has long since passed over to the great majority. If the dead man were here to speak for himself he might doubtless be able to satisfactorily explain the conduct which Mr. Cook has imputed to him. But his remains lie mouldering in the grave, and such being the case no answer can come from him to the aspersions.

Yesterday's First Witness.

Ed. Hancock, bookkeeper for the Ontario Lumber Co., of which Mr. Cook is president, told the committee he remembered Preston visiting Cook's office in the fall of 1898. Preston entered the office and said, "Good morning, Mr. Senator," When Mr. Preston was shown out, Mr. Cook was in a rage, and said: "What do you think of that damn scoundrel, Preston? He wanted me to pay $10,000 for a Senatorship."

The Premier's Denial.

Mr. Blake called Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had been sitting beside Sir Richard Cartwright.

After Mr. Blake had read the charge, as embodied in the resolution of the Senate, Sir Wilfrid said: "It is absolutely untrue." He did not directly or indirectly suggest to anyone to ask Mr. Cook for money for a Senatorship. As to the appointment of Ontario Senators, he always took the advice of his Ontario colleagues, when they were unanimous; when, in disagreement, he acted on his own judgment. He denied positively that he ever thought of asking for money for a Senatorship.

Mr. Ritchie—I certainly think there was nothing adduced to show that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had anything to do with the matter.

Sir Richard's Denial.

Sir Wilfrid stayed while Sir Richard Cartwright was under examination. The Minister of Trade and Commerce answered the questions put to him without hesitation.

To make his long examination as short as possible, he declared the charge involved "Absolutely untrue."

Not directly, indirectly, or by suggestion, did he make the $10,000 offer to Cook through Cameron. Until he saw Cook's affidavit, prior to the election, he had no knowledge of such a thing. He told of his personal feelings towards Cook, pretty much as Cook himself had, but added that he considered Cook rather unjustly treated by political opponents—Sir John A. Macdonald, as he afterwards mentioned. He repeated his emphatic denial of ever having suggested in any way a money consideration for Cook's Senatorship.

To a question as to correspondence with Cameron, he said: "At this distance of time, I would not care to swear there had been no correspondence between Cameron and myself. To the best of my recollection, no correspondence was exchanged between us, except, perhaps, over Cameron's own appointment as Lieutenant-Governor. As far as I can remember, no correspondence passed between Cameron and myself about Mr. Cook.

Mr. Ritchie—What do you say about the special statement made?

Sir Richard—I have no recollection whatever of any letter at all. I don't believe that any such letter existed.

The examination was narrowed to the exact words used by Cook, but the denials of the witness were the same.

Mr. Ritchie—Did you ever employ M. C. Cameron as a go-between with Mr. Cook?

"Never."

Never Employed Cameron.

The evidence went on: Cameron came about Cook's claim to a Senatorship, as a number of others did. But Sir Richard was most emphatic in denying Cook's statements as to the interview in the office of the former, in the fall of 1897, or the spring of 1898. This was the interview in which Cook said he told Sir Richard that Cameron had demanded $10,000 for the Senatorship.

"Cook most assuredly never made such a statement about $10,000, or any sum at all."

Mr. Ritchie—Did he, in any way, refer to the letter or to the offer?

Sir Richard—Never, or to the Cameron interview.

Then ensued a number of questions as to Sir Richard's support of Cook. The substance of it was that Cook used to come once a month, at least, to Ottawa, pressing his claim. The delay in the appointment was that the vacancies to occur would be filled by Mills and Cox.

Mr. Marsh took up the thread from Mr. Ritchie, and Sir Richard added that, in Cook's descents upon him, he conducted himself in such a manner, and used such indiscreet and violent language, that he warned Cook that he was prejudicing his chances. Cook paid him 20 or 30 visits in all, and the Senatorship was always the subject of conversation. He was closely questioned about his interview with Cook in the Rossin House, and his letters to Cook, in one of which he said he hoped to be able to close up the matter.

Mr. Marsh—Was that the Senatorship?

Sir Richard—I presume it was.

Mr. Marsh—The letter goes on to say: "I may want to see you first,"

Sir Richard could not remember whether the interview which he thus suggested had ever been held.

Sir Wilfrid Again Questioned.

Sir Wilfrid was again questioned by the Senators about the method of appointing Senators and repeated that where Ontario colleagues did not agree, he took the responsibility himself. Sir Richard Cartwright, in such matters, was his chosen adviser.

To Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Richard said that if Cameron, at the Union Station, showed Cook a letter with his signature, it must have been a forgery. But he did not believe there was such a letter shown.

The committee took up the questioning and elicited the opinion from the witness that the expression in a letter from Cameron to Cook: "There is one way the matter can be made sure," might have had reference to Senator Reesor being induced to resign. The letter was on Aug. 29, 1896, but Reesor did not resign till six months ago.

Mr. Marsh quoted Cameron's letter: "You had the cards in your own hands. You refused to play them and so you lost the game."

Sir Richard—I don't know what cards Cameron and Cook, respectively, played. The only thing I know is I had nothing to do with it.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston.

On the notice of Senator Dandurand, W. T. R. Preston was called. His examination was a denial of the essential part of his interview with Cook, and an admission that on going into Cook's office, he addressed him as "Mr. Senator." He said there was no object other than the wish to get rid of Cook's attentions, in his own letter to Cook in which he said: "Let me know as soon as you arrive in the city. I want to see you confidentially in regard to your intimate political interests."

Mr. S. C. Biggs.

Mr. Samuel Clark Biggs, K. C., was then called and sworn, upon the motion of Senator Melvin Jones, and examined by Mr. Ritchie. Before giving evidence Mr. Biggs said he was solicitor for Mr. Cook up to within about two years ago, and that he had been in the habit of dictating letters for him from the notes and material which Mr. Cook furnished. Mr. Cook told him he had had an interview with Mr. M. C. Cameron. He knew that Mr. Cameron was aiding Mr. Cook to get the Senatorship, and had previously seen Mr. Cameron and solicited his aid. Mr. Biggs thought it was Mr. Cook suggested that he accompany him to meet Mr. Cameron at the Rossin House. He thought Mr. Cook met Mr. Cameron at the Union Station after the meeting at the Rossin House. There were more than two interviews between them. Mr. Cook did tell him at some stage that he had seen Mr. Cameron at the Union Station, and that Cameron wanted him to subscribe to the party funds; he thought he mentioned $10,000, and that he had refused to do so. He would not say that it was in connection with the Senatorship; the committee could take their own inferences. Mr. Cook, at the time, was pressing his claims for the Senatorship, and Mr. Biggs said he had been assisting Mr. Cook in his efforts.

He saw Messrs. Somerville, McMullen and Cameron. He did not get much satisfaction from the other two, but as Mr. Cameron was favorable, they dealt with him subsequently. He was not sure he knew that Cameron had asked for a subscription to party funds when he went to the Rossin House that night, but he learned it then at any rate. When Mr. Cook told witness Cameron wanted $10,000 for the party funds his recollection was that Mr. Cook came into his office and said: "They want me to give a subscription to the party funds, and I will get the Senatorship."

Mr. Biggs said he turned up the clause of the Act referring to the trafficking in public offices, and told him that it would be criminal to do so, but any man could make a bona fide subscription which was not colorable. Mr. Biggs said he did not think Mr. Cook told him he had refused to pay the amount asked for.

Mr. Ritchie pressed this point, and Mr. Biggs said he did not think any particular sum had been mentioned by Mr. Cook until later on, and he did not think Mr. Cook told him he had refused to pay it.

Mr. Cook Recalled.

In the afternoon Mr. Marsh recalled Mr. Cook.

Mr. Cook said he went to Mr. Biggs' office the day after the interview with Mr. Cameron, and Mr. Biggs read a clause from the criminal code, dealing with bribery and the sale of public offices, and said: "You've got those fellows now; you can force your claim." Biggs meant the Government.

Examined by Mr. Blake—After hearing the criminal law read, you did not place the papers in the hands of the Attorney-General the next day. You did not say anything about it until Oct. 9."

Mr. Cook—"I did not want to prosecute them."

Mr. Blake—"Did you offer to slap Mr. Biggs' face this morning on going out of this room."

Mr. Cook did not wish to answer, but on the question being pressed witness replied: "It wouldn't take me long to do it."

Mr. Blake—"We have heard lots of talking, but haven't seen you do anything yet."

Sir Richard Was Wrong.

To Mr. Ritchie witness said Sir Richard Cartwright was wrong in his recollection of what took place at the interview in his office after the request was made by Cameron for $10,000.

Mr. Blake—"Was Mr. Preston wrong in his recollection."

Mr. Cook—"Preston swore falsely all the way through."

Mr. Blake wished to state his appreciation of the fairness of the committee, which had shown favors to no one, and fair play to all.

Mr. Ritchie and Mr. Marsh concurred.

In reply, Sir Mackenzie Bowell said the members of the committee were gratified at the assurance of counsel. They had but one desire, and that was to ascertain the truth, and maintain the dignity of the Senate, and clear up statements derogatory to the honor of every Senator.

The committee then adjourned until after Easter recess, when counsel will deliver their addresses. Mr. Marsh will speak first and Mr. Blake will reply.

A PLEASANT DISAPPOINTMENT.

A Cheltenham Man is Agreeably Surprised---An Old Grudge Paid.

Mr. Turner After a Successful Effort to Get Rid of One Enemy, Finds That in Doing so he Has Put Away Another.

CHELTENHAM, Ont., Mar. 27. (Special.)—A fortunate man, indeed, is Mr. Charles Turner, of this place. For years Mr. Turner has been suffering with kidney disease. It gave him great pain, and for the last two or three years rheumatism has added to his already heavy burden of sickness, and he has seldom known an hour free from pain. Not associating the rheumatism with the old kidney trouble, and despairing of curing the former, Mr. Turner bought and used Dodd's Kidney Pills to try and dispose of the kidney trouble. He used a few boxes, and the pain in his back kept getting less and less, and finally went away. All the unpleasant systems of kidney trouble disappeared, and what was still more strange to Mr. Mr. Turner, he has not since been bothered with rheumatism.

He is so grateful for the miraculous results of the treatment that he has been cheerfully telling his friends and neighbours his experience. He says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured me of a long standing case of kidney disease. I was also a sufferer from rheumatism and although I took the pills for the kidney trouble, I was surprised to find that when this disease was cured the rheumatism also disappeared. This was over a year ago, and I have not been troubled since. I used in all six boxes. The first two boxes did not appear to do me any good, but I persevered, and the result is that I am now a healthy man."

Of course, to those who recognize rheumatism as what it really is, a symptom of kidney disease, there is nothing wonderful about Mr. Turner's experience. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Kidney Trouble, and with it Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease and any of the other many forms in which it may and often does appear.

SARAH AND THE "INDIANS."

Bernhardt Played Fedora For Them at 35 Cents a Head.

Sarah Bernhardt, the great French actress, once played in Sullivan, Ind., at 35 cents a head.

It was many years ago, and Bernhardt was making a tour of the country. On the way from Louisville to Indianapolis the train was stopped at Sullivan by the news that a serious freight wreck had occurred a few miles up the road completely blocking the tracks and making progress to Indianapolis impossible until the next day.

"Very well," said the manager in excellent French and with forced calmness. "Since we cannot leave town we will give a performance here."

"Impossible," said Mme. Bernhardt, also in French. "Quite impossible."

"Not a bit," said the manager, and he went about it. The divine Bernhardt, being under contract to play a certain number of nights, was induced to consent. There was no "opera house" in Sullivan, but the Masonic hall was rented, and some of the scenery was crowded into it. The local job office got out a lot of handbills in a hurry, and messengers were dispatched to the adjoining towns to spread the glad news that Bernhardt, the divine Sarah, was to play in Sullivan that night and that admission would be 35 cents.

"No use trying to charge metropolitan prices here," said the manager to the treasurer, and that gentleman sighed and said he supposed not.

In the early evening there began to come into town long lines of green farmer wagons, each holding a family party. When the house was full, the great Bernhardt cautiously took a peep at it from behind the flimsy curtain.

"Mon Dieu!" she cried, raising her jeweled hands. "Look at the Indians!"

But she played Fedora for them, and she played until 11 o'clock.—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

AT THE ASSIZES.

One Case a Day is the Rule This Time.

One case a day is the rate at which the calendar at the Assizes, now being held before the Hon. Mr. Justice Lount, is being cleared off. Murder cases, horse stealing cases, and civil actions move at the same rate. Yesterday the time of the court was occupied in hearing the civil action for damages, of Andrew Brotherson, a laborer, against Messrs. Corry & Laverdure, canal contractors, for damages to the extent of $1000. for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the plaintiff while in defendants' employ, by reason of the defectiveness of certain machinery.

The defendants denied any responsibility in the matter, or that their machinery was in any way defective. They also contended that the accident, if any, was caused by the plaintiff's negligence.

After hearing the evidence for both the plaintiff and the defendants, the judge would not allow the case to go to the jury but dismissed the same with costs.

D. W. Dumble for plaintiff; D. O'Connell and F. D. Kerr for defendants.

In the case of Wasson v. Douglas, the damages awarded the plaintiff were $1.89 —not $100 as was published a few days ago.

THE LATE HARRY BECK.

The Funeral Will Take Place To-morrow Afternoon.

Up until this afternoon no further information had been obtained regarding the relatives of Harry G. Beck, who met his death so suddenly at the Canadian General Electric Company's Works yesterday morning. It is generally believed that he has no relatives in this country. A friend of the deceased, in St. Thomas, will arrive here to-night to attend the funeral, which will take place from the Murray Street Baptist Church to-morrow afternoon, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The remains are now at Mr. Belleghem's undertaking establishment, Hunter street. They will be placed in the vault at the cemetery until the relatives of the deceased in England have been communicated with, and their wishes regarding the final disposal of the remains are ascertained.

Mr. R. E. Harding, representing the Murray street Baptist church, and Mr. McRae of the machine shop of the Canadian General Electric Co., are looking after the funeral arrangements.

This afternoon it was decided to convey the remains at 5 p. m., from Mr. Belleghem's, to the Murray street Baptist church, where they will remain until to-morrow. The pallbearers will be made up of three representatives from the Canadian General Machine Shop, of which deceased was an employee, and three from the Murray street church and Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Olmstead of St. Thomas, deceased's friend, is expected to-night.

FOUND DEAD.

Sudden Demise of Mrs. Thomas Weir, of Cavanville.

The sudden death of Mrs. Thos. Weir, of Cavanville, on Saturday, cast a deep gloom over the community, both on account of the noble character of the deceased and the peculiarly sorrowful nature of her departure from this life. She was alone in the house, and when Mr. Weir left in the morning, was in her usual good health, but on his return she was found dead in the kitchen, having expired from heart failure, it is supposed, before she could call for any assistance. Deceased was known throughout the neighbourhood for her kindly and noble life, and the bereaved husband has the sympathy of everybody. She was sixty-eight years of age, and was considered in fair health. The funeral took place on the Monday following to St. John's cemetery, Ven. Archdeacon Allen, Rev. W. C. Allen and Rev. Mr. Coon being in attendance.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Miss Addie Waterman and Mr. John Thorne, at Bailieboro.

On Wednesday evening, March 20th, at five o'clock there was solemnized at Christ church, Bailieboro, the marriage of Miss Adelaide Waterman, daughter of the late John Waterman, Esq., to Mr. John Thorne, of Otonabee. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. C. Allen, Millbrook. Messrs. W. E. and A. W. Smithson fulfilled the duties of ushers. While a beautiful wedding march was being played by Miss Allen, of Millbrook, the bridal party entered the church. The bride, who was escorted and given away by her brother, Robert, was assisted by her two nieces, Miss Ethel Waterman, and Miss Lillian Smithson. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. T. Thorne. The bride looked very becoming in a gown of India silk trimmed with chiffon and embroidered silk on sequin net. She wore the bridal veil and orange blossoms and carried a small prayer book in her hand. The bridesmaids wore very pretty dresses of white organdie with pink and blue trimmings and Flemish hats to match. The choir of the church, of which the bride was a member, was present and assisted in the service. Many guests and friends of the contracting parties assembled at the church to witness the ceremony. Afterwards a reception was held at "Wenhaston," the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. F. Waterman, where the happy couple received the congratulations and many complimentary favours from their friends, including some very interesting remarks by Rev. W. C. Allen, M.A. The bride was the recipient of very many beautiful and costly presents, showing the high esteem in which she was held by her numerous friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold watch. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne left via C.P.R. for Montreal, Que., midst showers of rice and good wishes, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will take up residence in Otonabee.

MISS DELANEY'S MILLINERY.

Beautiful Opening Display of Spring Novelties—The New Models in Pattern Hats, Etc.

The milliner rules this week. For the past two or three days especially, crowds of ladies were out "calling" on the milliners to get a view of the new spring creations in head wear. The reception days attendance at Miss Delaney's has been very large, showing an appreciation of her styles which was quite complimentary. Skilled taste and expert hands had decorated the store with captivating effect. Colours ran riot in the show rooms, and filmy laces, flowers and foliage, vie with the exquisitely trimmed hats in the strife for predominance. Everything is soft and dressy, and most of the hats still retain the low flat crown. Charming creations are brought out all the more strikingly by a back ground of Nature's most radiant blossoms and colours. The new hats still suggest the soft flat effect, and most of them are extended in front.

The pattern hats and toques are distinctly artistic this spring, and so varied in design that it will be easy to suit all tastes. Among the patterns from New York a large felt hat is shown with crown of flowers, and rolling brim, trimmed with roses. In materials there are many novelties, such as tucked chiffon and maline. Some exquisite laces are shown in jet and gold. Almost all the ribbons used are wide and soft in texture, and shot effect in colour. A large assortment of "ready to wear" hats are also shown, among the array being some very hansome ones of taffeta silk and chip in a modified walking hat shape.

TORONTO TO BUFFALO FAIR.

LOW RATES PROMISED BY TRANSPORTATION COMPANIES.

Bases of Fares From Points in Ontario—Convention of Passenger Agents Has Been Concluded.

During the months of May and June visitors to the Pan-American Exposition from Toronto will be granted a round trip fare of $2 on the railroads and $1.50 by the boat lines on certain days. After these months the rate will be single fare for the round trip. The lake and rail agents, who have been meeting at the Queen's Hotel for the past two days, concluded their business yesterday afternoon, and agreed upon rates from all Canadian points to Buffalo during the Pan-American Exposition. The general basis laid down was that round-trip tickets would be sold with a fifteen-day limit, at a fare and one-third, from points over 100 miles; a fare and a third, with a ten-day limit, from points less than 100 miles, and single fare rates from all other points, limited, according to distances. During May and June, however, specially low rates will be offered by the railways and steamboat lines. These will apply to dates to be named, and it is left to the lines interested to agree upon these dates, which will be announced later. They are expected to be in force twice a week, and, it is understood, will be the only specially low excursion rates offered, and will afford an opportunity for as many people as possible of attending the exposition before the bulk of the business moves. After June 30, there will be no specially low rates offered by any of the lines, other than the single fare and the fare and a third.

So far as Toronto is concerned, the round trip rates will be during May and June, $2 by rail and $1.50 by boat on the special excursion days. After that it will be the usual single fare and a third, according to the time limit, for the round trip on all trains and boats.

The reason that is given by the transportation companies for making the very cheap rates during May and June only is that they will be better able to handle the special business that is likely to go, for after that the regular tourist season commences, and apart from the Pan-American Exposition there will be in every direction quite as much business as the railways will be in a position comfortably to handle. Moreover, as was anticipated, the railway and steamboat companies will not this year run society and association excursions to the Falls and Buffalo. These are to be suspended this year, and they will have to hold their excursions to other points in the province.

BEWARE OF DUCK EGGS.

We take the following from the Leeds (Eng.) Mercury: We have always felt a little sceptical on reading in the papers the accounts of the fatal effects produced on some occasions by eating duck eggs; but a circumstance has recently occurred in this neighbourhood that must remove all doubts on that subject. A short time ago a duck belonging to Mr. John Cleminshaw, of Winmoor, near Leeds, laid an egg rather above the ordinary size, which was broken for the purpose of being cooked for dinner, but on examination the contents were found to consist of a dark, muddy slime, neither resembling the yolk nor the white of an egg, in the middle of which was deposited a young snake of the length of ten inches. When the egg was broken the reptile unfolded itself, and remained apparently in a healthy state for about twenty hours, when, having wrapped itself up again, it soon after died, and is now preserved in spirits by Mr. Cleminshaw.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES.

The Work Which is Being Done in North Smith.

Rev. J. S. Jenkin closed his services of revival in North Smith on Tuesday night, at the close of which he was presented with the following address:

DEAR BRO. JENKIN,—We the members and adherents of the North Smith Methodist church, desire in consideration of your labour among us for the past four weeks, in preaching the plain truth of the Scriptures and exhorting us to repentance, salvation and the higher life, that you by experience knew was for us, and also considering that you have spared no time nor effort to illustrate to us the whole truth, even in the face of much physical weariness; and in view of the fact that you have not only taught us the right principles, but by your life have shown us the possibility of putting your teaching into practice. We as a congregation of converts and revived members desire to-night to express our heartfelt gratitude for your services to us.

We fully realise that the most we could do would be small compared with the benefits we have received, but wishing you all possible success in your future labours, and hope that God may continue to make you useful in leading many souls to repentance, and praying that heaven's richest benedictions may ever rest with you and your family. It is with deep sincerity and best wishes that we ask you to accept as a token of our appreciation of your services this coat, and that you may be long spared to wear the same is the earnest prayer of your many friends at Wesley.

Signed on behalf of the congregation.

ROBERT NORTHEY,
ABSALOM NORTHEY,
JOHN J. NORTHEY,

Hall's Bridge, March 26th, 1901.

Mr. Jenkin replied at some length, thanking the people for the good wishes contained in the address, and the coat, and stated that he would ever look back to the time he spent at Wesley as most pleasant and profitable. The reverend gentleman offered his services next fall (should he be spared.) The offer was accepted unanimously.

After singing "God be with you till we meet again," the meeting was brought to a close with the benediction.

Mr. Jenkin goes to Lakefield to commence a series of services there, commencing Sunday, March 31st.

THE ROYAL VISITORS.

The Places They Will Visit During Their Tour.

The official programme, arranged tentatively, for the world tour of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, provides for the arrival of the royal visitors at Halifax on Nov. 15. The 16th will be pent in the old garrison city, and early the following day their royal highnesses will start for the west, spending the 20th November in Quebec city. One month will afterwards be spent in visiting the leading centres of the Dominion, the party going as far as British Columbia, where they will visit the coast cities. The principal towns along the route of the C.P.R. will also be honoured with a visit from the heir of the throne and his good wife. What a revolution has taken place in Canada since the Duke's father, then the Prince of Wales, now the King, visited this country in 1860. Then Sarnia was regarded as the extreme west of civilized Canada. The whole of the North-west was practically in the possession of the Hudson's Bay Company, and British Columbia was an isolated British colony, far more effectively isolated from the remainder of Her Majesty's possessions on this continent than the Island of Jamaica now is. Now the whole of the mainland of British North America and Vancouver Island are united under one government, with the closest possible alliance with the motherland. And we have a prospect in the near future of Newfoundland becoming a portion of happy, prosperous and contented Canada. Such is the vista that will be opened to the gaze of the royal visitors who come to these shores in the course of a few months. Their pilgrimage cannot but be beneficial to themselves, while it will give the greatest satisfaction to the people of this great division of the British Empire.

Our readers may be interested in the itinerary of their Royal Highnesses as officially promulgated:—

HOCKEY.

This is the way the Warkworth Journal gets after the Colborne Express for remarks made about a hockey match,—"Did the Sporting Editor of the Express say that a hockey match took place in Colborne between a Warkworth team and a Colborne team? Well, old fellow, was that what you called that little toy game that was played out there on the 2nd? We play hockey on a little more extensive scale. The boys, since they came home, have been trying to get "little sticks for a cent" to match Colborne's little cake of snow-covered ice. Now, my friend, the Colborne hockey team came out here where they could at least get a clean cake of ice 8x10 in size, and what did our boys do to them? Simply "skunked" them 12 to 0, duck-egg, nothing, zero, cipher, &c. Now Sir, what's the matter with Colborne team? They need courage! You bet! If Saturday, March 9th, would be a fine day what was Colborne going to do? It was coming out here to give the boys a game. What was the matter; the day was fine, the ice was excellent. What was lacking? Simply an injection of courage given to the Colborne team. Are they afraid the score 12 to 0, duck-egg, nothing, zero, cipher, &c. may be repeated? The boys did not wish to remind you of this ridiculout score, but when it comes to Colborne's blowing off steam about a little toy-game that children five years old would be ashamed to play, we think it is time to remind them that when it comes to "hockey," mind you "hockey," Colborne it not in it for half a minute, unless it would be to score "0," "duck-egg," "nothing," "zero," "cipher," &c. to 12. Now Sir, Warkworth may need practice for some hockey teams but for Colborne hockey team it don't need any. Come Colborne wake up, take a teaspoonful of essence of courage night and morning for a week and come out and face the puck on a large sized cake of clean ice. But always keep in mind the score:

Colborne—"0," "duck-egg," "nothing," "zero," "cipher," &c.—no goals.

Warkworth—1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1—12 goals.

BASEBALL.

That the Midland Baseball League was a great success last year, cannot be denied, although a few of the towns in the organization took advantage of the rather loose constitution and imported players at an alarming rate. The League will be reorganized this year on more extensive lines and should have the co-operation of all the towns interested in the game. Mr. R. A. W. Hay, the secretary of the local club, has matters nicely in hand and a meeting will be held in Peterborough on Good Friday for the purpose of getting matters into shape. The following letter has been issued:

Dear Sir,—There will be held in Peterborough on Friday, April 5th, (Good Friday), a meeting for the purpose of organizing baseball in the Midland District, and would like to urge upon you the necessity of having one or more delegates on hand. It is our intention to have two series (Seniors and intermediates) and to form the clubs into districts. In the north there will be Barrie, Sutton, Newmarket, Uxbridge, Port Perry and Beaverton to choose from. In the centre, Lindsay, Peterborough, Port Hope, Cobourg, Bowmanville and Oshawa. In the east Kingston, Gananoque, Belleville and Newburg. A Toronto League has been invited and may come in. You will see that expenses will be light and interest will be greatly increased. Answer this immediately and let me know if you will have delegates on hand, and much oblige.

Respectfully yours,
R. A. W. HAY,
Sec.-Treas. P.B.B. Club.

LACROSSE.

The Canadian players who will visit Australia during the coming summer will find that playing lacrosse at the Antipodes is synonymous with playing the game under difficulties. There are a number of rules which will be found hard to observe after the methods pursued in championship contests in Canada.

One of the most striking is that no force is allowed in using the body check, and if force is used it constitutes a foul.

Another one that will bother Canadian home players is that they are not allowed to check the goal tend. A goal scored under such circumstances does not count.

Players are not allowed to kick the ball, or even bunt it with their legs on penalty of a foul being called. A free throw is given for a foul.

A few other restrictions are made.

Bad language of any kind is severely sat on. On the first offence a player is cautioned, and if he should repeat it he is retired from the game and his side is compelled to finish short handed.

The matches are played in four quarter periods. At the end of the second half a wait of ten minutes is allowed but at the end of the first and third quarters the only delay is while the teams are changing.

THE ASTONISHING RESULT OF ONLY ONE DAY OF COUNTING.

An Investigator's Discovery of What an Enormous Bouquet of the Flowers of Fable Adorns the Daily Speech of the Average Mortal.

"Do you know that the average American is a hopeless and incorrigible and unmitigated liar?" said an amateur cynic of Baronne street. "I don't mean he lies viciously, but suave mendacity glides off the end of his tongue as easily as molasses flows from a spigot on a warm day in summer. He does it unconsciously, habitually, automatically—just as his lungs expand and his heart palpitates and his hair grows, without any special attention from the rest of his system. He does it because he can't help it. The thing has become a second nature.

"I had all this brought home to me," continued the amateur cynic, "by a very simple little experiment which I tried on myself and a few others no longer ago than yesterday morning. Did you ever see a pocket counting machine? Well, it's a little device shaped like a watch. Whenever you press the stem the needle on the dial jumps a point, and it registers in that way up to several thousand on the principle of a cyclometer. They are used by anybody making long counts and are very handy, because they never forget where they leave off.

"But to come to the point, something happened to remind me of our national vice of untruthfulness as I was getting up yesterday, and I determined to 'keep tab' on myself and ascertain, if possible, how many actual, out and out lies I put into circulation in the course of the day. I chanced to have one of the little counting machines I have just mentioned, so I slipped it into my pocket and started out.

"The first lie I told was right at the door. Smithson was passing and stopped to shake hands. 'Hello, old man!' said I. 'Delighted to see you,' when as a matter of fact I was deuced sorry to see him, because I owe him ten. I gave the counter a squeeze and hurried on, but before I got to the office I had jogged it nine times.

"What did I jog it for, did you ask? Oh, trivialities, mere trivialities, but at the same time point blank lies, every one of 'em. Whenever I opened my mouth out dropped some confounded hyperbole. I told Jones the joke he insisted in springing on me was the 'best I ever heard' and then made a double tally in assuring his wife she was looking remarkably well when she was looking exactly like a scarecrow. I told another friend I never laughed so much in my life as I had at something or other, I don't remember now what, and still another that I hadn't slept a wink for three nights when I had neuralgia lately—all lies, bald lies, in spite of their harmlessness.

"When I reached the office and looked at the dial, I was horrified. 'Good heavens!' I said to myself. 'It seems to be physically impossible for me to speak the plain truth in the paltriest matters. I'll just remain perfectly quiet for half an hour and keep check on Boggs.'

"Boggs is our head bookkeeper and a pillar in one of the suburban churches," continued the amateur cynic. "He wears rubber overshoes in wet weather, cultivates sandy side whiskers, carries a gingham umbrella, belongs to a building and loan association and has all the other marks of severe respectability. I had supposed him to be the quintessence of cast iron veracity, but when I sat down in cold blood to put him on record I was astounded at the blase fashion with which he frivoled with the truth. I pushed the button on him 15 times in 27 minutes; then he got into a whispered conversation with a caller, and I lost the thread of his remarks. But I am certain if I had been in earshot the counter would have had hard work keeping up with the procession.

"That relieved my mind somewhat, and later on, when I made a quiet test of several of the other fellows in the office, I came to the conclusion that I was no worse than the average, but the average was pretty tough. As far as my investigations went, the invoice clerk held the record. He is a guileless sort of chap, with modest manners and a freckled nose, and I never supposed he had any imagination concealed in his peg topped cranium, but he forced me to push the indicator up exactly 22 times in 15 minutes. During the last part of the stretch, however, he was trying to trade off a secondhand bicycle, and that naturally swelled the returns.

"Of course I soon realized that the idea of keeping count on my own mendacity was entirely impractical and abandoned the effort, but the other data has furnished me with abundant food for thought. My brother-in-law, by the way, insists that we would make a great mistake in trying to weed these flowers of fable out of our daily speech. He says we lie continually and systematically because everybody else lies, and a man who would start out to tell the plain, cold, raw, rectangular truth about everything in life would be little better than an anarchist. He would upset all established standards of value and make it necessary almost to recast the language. Besides, nobody would believe him. But my brother-in-law is a doctor," added the amateur cynic thoughtfully, "and maybe that makes a difference."

Catarrhozone Cures Child of Catarrh.

Perth, Ont.—"I cannot withhold my testimony as to the great value of Catarrhozone as a remedy for Catarrh, one bottle having cured my daughter of that trouble, and I heartily recommend it to all suffering from that disease. No house should be without it." Mrs. J. A. Morris.

So pleasant, babies use it; so safe, grandmothers employ it; so certain to quickly relieve and cure that doctors, lawyers, merchants and public speakers rely upon Catarrhozone as their standby for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Hay Fever. It is cheap because it lasts so long, and because it is so sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it. Every dollar outfit is guaranteed to cure, or your money back. Small size, 25c., druggists or by mail. A trial sent for 10c, by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Canada, or Hartford, Conn., U.S.

Hands and the Man.

The position in which you hold your hands will reveal your character to those who are versed in the art. If, when a married man clinches his hands, the thumb is nicely tucked away between the finger and the palm, he is under the dominion of his wife.

The mere clasping of one's own hands is an indication of strength or weakness of character. Interlace your two sets of fingers spontaneously and see whether the right hand or the left hand set are nearest to you. If your left thumb is in front of your right thumb, your left forefinger in front of your right forefinger and so on, then you are effeminate.

The ordinary woman clasps her hands in that way, and so does the weak man. The man with the strong character and the masculine female clasp their hands in the opposite fashion, so that the right hand thumb and fingers take precedence.

Rheumatism..

is Uric Acid in the blood. Unhealthy kidneys are the cause of the acid being there. If the kidneys acted as they should they would strain the Uric Acid out of the system and rheumatism wouldn't occur. Rheumatism is a Kidney Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made a great part of their reputation curing Rheumatism. So get at the cause of those fearful shooting pains and stiff, aching joints. There is but one sure way—

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada.

PUZZLED THE JEWELER.

He Wanted a Second Hand Watch and Finally Got It.

He was evidently a foreigner, and he walked into one of the big jewelry houses on F street and asked for a watch. He would be pleased to examine some "second hand watches," he said to the clerk who advanced to meet him.

"This isn't a pawnshop," observed the clerk haughtily.

"No?" observed the man inquiringly. "But you have watches?" And he pointed to the great showcase full of handsome watches.

"Certainly," replied the clerk. "Finest stock of watches in the city. How much do you want to pay for a watch?"

"How mooch?" asked the stranger. "Mooch as be is worth, so that be suits me. I have said that I desire a second hand watch—a good one that shall keep the time."

"See here, sir; you are off your base. We don't keep secondhand goods. You will have to hunt elsewhere for secondhand watches."

The stranger's eyes opened wide. "But you have him there, and there and there," he said as he began to gesticulate. "I have said s-e-c-o-n-d h-a-n-d watches," spelling it as though to make it plainer, "and they are here, everywhere, yet you say you have them not. I do not comprehend you."

"Well, I do you," replied the clerk sheepishly as he quickly got behind the counter. "Just a little mix up. No harm done, I hope. Certainly we have watches with second hands. All our watches have second hands. We handle no others." And the stranger got his second hand watch, for which he laid down a $50 bill.

Speculation and Theft.

Some statistician, in emulation of Lombroso perhaps, has been figuring out the habitual employment of convicts. He concludes that more men and women whose employers are the national, state or municipal governments fall into evil ways and come to untoward ends than those who work for private individuals or corporations. A very large proportion of the men and women who have been handlers of public moneys seem to yield to the constant temptation and begin to peculate, and some cynic avers that peculation is the corollary of speculation. As a matter of fact, most of the big and little thieves who confess how they were led to take money that did not belong to them declare that speculations of one sort or another brought them eventually behind the bars.

By Way of Suggestion.

"The trouble with me," spoke the young man who was on his way home with his best and loveliest from a party at the Kenhurst club, "is that I always feel embarrassed when I am out in company. I never know what to do with my hands."

"Suppose you just hold them up," said a hoarse voice in his ear.

The voice pertained to a large, rough looking man with a mask on his face and a large, rough looking revolver in his hand, and the youth lost no time in complying with the suggestion.

Does Country Life Age?

The day is gone when a married woman with little children was classed as a matron and left to sit on the shelf, to grow fat and order her household and her nurseries. A woman's occupations in these days keep her going all the time, and this preserves her vitality and youth. People in the country—not those who make their country house their pied-a-terre and spend two or three days of every week in London, but those who really live there—grow much more rotund and sedate and elderly.—Lady.

A MOUNTAIN LAKE.

Oh, limpid listener, in your placid soul
Are mingled all the songs that brooks have sung
When years and years, the shaggy hills among,
They babbled of their trials, with foamy tears,
Until, all wearied, having reached their goal;
You softly soothed their sorrows and their fears.

Like sentinels the stolid mountains stand
About you, dress'd in garb of gorgeous green;
At early dawn their mirrored shapes are seen
In shimmering outline, painted by the sun,
Upon your face, athwart the gleaming sand,
Nor fade from view until the day is done.

A fitting figure of eternal rest
You typify the changeless fate of man
When, having coursed mortality's brief span
Adown the hills of Time, his life shall end,
And all his doings, be they banned or blest,
Forevermore, with other deeds, shall blend.

—John A Foote in Rosary Magazine.

BUSINESS OF THE SOAKER.

An Expert In Pawnbroking Who Has His Regular Customers.

In the neighborhood where pawnshops abound the soaker flourishes. The soaker acts as middleman between the pawnbroker and his customers. He explains his mission and accounts for his usefulness thus:

"The people down here employ me," said he, "not because they are ashamed to be seen going into a pawnshop themselves, but because I can get more for the goods than they can. There's an art in pawning a coat or a ring, just the same as in everything else.

"I've known people to go into a pawnshop with some old article to pawn and to look the proprietor over with a supercilious air, as if they considered themselves so far above him socially that he couldn't touch them with a 40 foot pole. Naturally, for sheer spite, the broker offers them only about half as much as they would get if they approached him properly. Having had a wide experience of my own, I know how to avoid such difficulties. I am not servile, but I am polite and respectful, and as those two qualities touch the most generous chord in the broker's bosom I get all I want on the proffered chattels.

"As recompense for my services I charge my customers 10 per cent commission. I have regular customers, and then, of course, I do many odd jobs for occasionals. There are families down here for whom I pawn the same things over and over again, one week after the other. On pay day they take their things out of soak. Three days later they put them in again, and the next pay day they take them out again. And so it goes, month after month. I canvass the houses just like a book agent or corn plaster peddler or insurance solicitor.

"'Anything to be pawned today?' I ask.

"And if there is I take it around to some shop and raise the necessary dough and take it back and get my commission. Once in awhile I come across somebody who abuses me and calls me a shark, but I'm nothing of the sort. I'm earning a decent living at a legitimate business."

If your system needs toning up, take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill, druggist.

A Point at Issue.

Several of the lawyers had told their stories, some of which ridiculed the continued use of legal verbiage and the absurd lengths to which members of the profession sometimes go in taking advantage of technicalities.

"A rank outsider," announced the member of the profession who had been a good listener, "a client of mine, supplied the best instance of literal interpretation that ever came to my knowledge. He was executor under a will that, among other provisions, required the payment of an annuity to a venerable aunt of the testator. But proof of her being alive must be made before each payment, and this is the rock on which the executor struck.

"The old lady proved herself in the flesh, drew her money and went to California, where she spent two years without putting in her claim. On her return she went in person and demanded the double allowance due her.

"The conscientious executor got out the will, studied it, scratched his head and finally handed down his opinion:

"'Madam, you are alive now. There can be no reasonable question as to that, for I have the conclusive evidence of my own eyes. But I am possessed of no legal proof that you were alive a year ago. I am, as you know, within the restrictions of the will. I will pay the annuity for this year, but must insist upon satisfactory affidavits that you were not dead when the preceding annuity was passed.'

"It took me the better part of a day to convince him that he should settle in full."

His Good Wife.

Gilbert—I believe in a man being the master of the house. He should have the say in everything.

Mason—How about the naming of that baby of yours?

Gilbert—My wife gave way to me in a very proper and wifely manner. She said she didn't care what name I gave the little fellow so long as it was Henry. So that's the name I gave him. You know I felt, after the hearty manner in which she deferred to me, I ought to yield a single point merely out of appreciation of her humility.

Family Pride.

"I suppose you take a great deal of pride in your business."

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I used to take pride in my business, but ma and the girls don't approve of it. The only thing we take pride in now is my daughter's husband's pedigree.'

THE REVIEWER.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

A Misnomer.

He came at half past seven
To pay an evening call.
She feared about eleven
That he'd never go at all.

His style of conversation
Was innocently inane,
Showing lack of cogitation,
But his manner was urbane.

He smiled and kept on talking
In a cheerful, babbling flow,
While she spoke about the walking
And wished that he would go!

In vain her hints and yawning;
He staid and staid and staid.
It was really almost morning
Ere he left that worried maid.

She said she thought she really
Would have had to take a nap,
And she wondered why they called him
"Such an easy going chap."

Ready to Take His Turn.

"What are you doing here?" asked the policeman.

"Jes' loiterin aroun'," answered Farmer Corntossel. "I'm waitin fur a bunko man to come along an show me aroun' town an buy me a few refreshmets before I take the train. I've played the game so often that I think mebbe I can quit it this time quick enough to come out suthin ahead."

Continuous Performances.

Mrs. Nexdore—What sort of a piano player do you consider my daughter by this time?

Mrs. Pepprey—I should say "nonunion."

Mrs. Nexdore—How do you mean?

Mrs. Pepprey—She doesn't seem to consider eight hours of labor sufficient for a day.

A Spring Pattern.

Assistant—Madam, what shall be done with this bonnet which your pet dog chewed up?

Milliner—Put it in the window with a card reading, "Advance Parisian Novelty—$85."

When Sylvia Skates.

When Sylvia skates, my heart leaps high,
And o'er the winds cease rushing by,
But seem to stop as if to see
Her whirling, singing wild and free
With blazing cheek and flashing eye!

A hundred other maids may try,
With merry laugh or soulful sigh,
In vain to claim one glance from me
When Sylvia skates!

Ah, there is many, many a cry
Of terror as her tootsies fly
From under her rebelliously—
She weighs two hundred pounds! "Oh, gee!"
The ice groans out—and that's no lie—
When Sylvia skates.

The Difference.

Lady—I see you advertise homemade bread?

Baker—Yes, ma'am.

Lady—Does it taste like homemade?

Baker—No, indeed, ma'am. It's sweet and light!

Couldn't Shine In Fiction.

Blobbs—Youngpop is altogether lacking in imagination.

Slobbs—Why do you say that?

Blobbs—I've never heard him get off any of the bright sayings of his children.

A Matter of Doubt.

"Do you suppose we could take those people on the planet Mars into our best society?"

"I am afraid not. They are not in our sphere, you know."

Unpardonable.

He held her in his arms awhile;
She struggled to be free.
At last he let her go and said,
"I pray you pardon me."

He had not kissed her, had not made
Her struggle hard; she sighed!
"Ah, no, I cannot pardon you,"
She bitterly replied.

An Effect Spoiled.

"After the ceremony the bride wept."

"Grief at leaving her home?"

"No; she forgot herself and held up her beautiful long satin train going down the aisle."

Bringing It Back.

Clubberly—Old man, do you ever have any doubts about your love for her?

Castleton—Oh, yes; but when it comes on I get down a stack of unpaid bills and look them over.—Life.

Tawdry.

"He has built him what he calls a Queen Anne villa, but it strikes me as being a tawdry imitation merely!"

"Extremely tawdry! Why, the roof doesn't leak even!"

Her Strong Point.

The waitress who most men delights
Is not so fair to see.
The admiration she excites
Seems rather odd to me;
Yet this much own I in her praise:
She really has got fetching ways.

Greek Meets Greek.

"What do you think my husband does when my mother comes to see us?"

"I never guess."

"He writes for his mother to come too."

INDIAN SIGNALS.

The Long Distance Code by Which the Red Men Conversed.

The traveler on the plains in the early days soon learned the significance of the spires of smoke that he sometimes saw rising from a distant ridge or hill and that in turn he might see answered from a different direction. It was the signal talk of the Indians across miles of intervening ground, a signal used in rallying the warriors for an attack or warning them for a retreat when that seemed advisable.

The Indian had a way of sending up the smoke in rings or puffs, knowing that such a smoke column would at once be noticed and understood as a signal and not taken for the smoke of some campfire. He made the rings by covering the little fire with his blanket for a moment and then suddenly removing the blanket and allowing the smoke to ascend, when he instantly covered the fire again. The column of ascending smoke rings said to every Indian within 30 miles: "Look out. There is an enemy near." Three smokes built close together meant danger. One smoke merely meant attention. Two smokes meant "Camp at this place." Travel the plains, and the usefulness of this long distance telephone will quickly become apparent.

Sometimes at night the settler or traveler saw fiery lines crossing the sky, shooting up and falling, perhaps taking a direction diagonal to the line of vision. He might guess that these were the signals of Indians, but unless he were an old timer he might not be able to interpret the signals. The old timer and the squaw man knew that one fire arrow (an arrow prepared by treating the head of the shaft with gunpowder and fine bark) meant the same as the column of smoke puffs—viz, "An enemy is near." Two arrows meant "Danger." Three arrows said imperatively, "This danger is great." Several arrows said, "The enemy are too many for us." Two arrows shot up into the air at once meant "We shall attack;" three at once said, "We attack now." An arrow shot off in a diagonal direction said as plainly as pointing a finger, "That way." Thus the untutored savage could telephone fairly well at night as well as in daytime."

Gas on the Stomach.

Result of imperfect digestion—pressing up against the heart it excites alarming symptoms. Instant relief is afforded by the use of ten drops of Nerviline in a little sweetened water, half an hour after the meal. Nerviline aids digestion, expels the gas and imparts a sense of comfort. Nerviline is good for a lot of other things besides. Keep it in the house for Rheumatism, Cramps, Neuralgia, Toothache. Druggists sell it.

TOWN TOPICS.

New York owes $300,000,000 and is within $10,000,000 of the debt limit. Evidently the limit must be raised soon.—Baltimore Herald.

St. Louis is certain to have a world's fair, now that the United States has come to time with $5,000,000, and there can be no doubt that she will have a hot time, as has been the case in St. Louis every summer for 100 years.—Louisville Post.

Wisconsin has finally enacted a law taxing bachelors. Here in Boston we have got a school of housekeeping instead. And we opine that when it comes to encouraging matrimony the Boston idea is the more fetching and farreaching.—Boston Herald.

It is now charged that the stone out of which the postoffice is being constructed is bad and that granite blocks with holes in them have been built into the structure. The stone contractors, however, should not be harshly judged. The holes in the stone may be due to decay since the structure was begun.—Chicago News.

The new steel double decked ferryboat Chicago was launched at New York the other day. The new boat is the largest of its kind in New York harbor and will ply at Cortlandt street ferry. New Yorkers are doing well to have a daily reminder as they cross the ferry that Chicago is always getting there.

Rough on the Child.

A man in Haslingdean, England, who recently applied for a certificate exempting his child from vaccination, quite staggered the clerk with the Christian name of the child, whereupon he explained that the name would be found in "Hisahi," eighth chapter, second verse. The clerk looked up the Old Testament and in Isaiah found the name Maher-shalal-hash-baz. "That's it," said the applicant and thoughtfully explained that he and his wife had come across it in the Bible and thought it aristocratic and therefore chose it. The clerk suggested that John was a more popular name among the aristocracy, and the applicant accepted the suggestion so far as to say that "their next" should be named John, but this would have to be Maher-shalal hash-baz.

Alaska Not Barren.

It is a popular impression that Alaska is a frozen zone and that the soil is barren and worthless. This is a mistake. The sun is hot, the snow moistens and enriches the earth, and the soil in the valleys is fertile and productive. Wheat, corn, oats, barley, buckwheat, flaxseed and a considerable variety of vegetables and forage plants can be successfully grown in many parts of the territory.

VICTORIA, P.E.I., Sept. 26th, 1900.

From Mrs. P. H. Curtis: My daughter, aged 19, had severe pains in her back at times, also swelling of the feet and legs. I procured a box of Doan's Pills and by the time she had taken the one box she had gained 9½ pounds and was completely cured.

MIDGIC, N.B., March 22nd, 1900.

From Rev. J. W. Gardner: I think it is nothing but right to say that both Mrs. Gardner and myself have derived great benefit from Doan's Kidney Pills. They were used by myself for backache and lumbago with wonderful success.

Backache MEANS Kidney Ache

And it all comes from the same cause—sick kidneys—and sick kidneys mean Kidney Disease, Urinary Troubles, Diabetes, and Bright's Disease.

If you are wise you will always heed the first backache and procure Doan's Pills and save yourself further trouble.

Here are a few letters endorsing the virtues of Doan's Pills:

LUNENBURG, N.S., Sept. 26th, 1900.

From Mr. E. M. Smeltze: It affords me great pleasure to write you of the good Doan's Pills have done my father. He has been ailing for many years, and I consider it Providential that he ever got a box of your pills. Altogether he has used five boxes and is completely cured, and wishes to recommend them to all who suffer from kidney trouble.

AURORA, ONT., Nov. 22rd, 1900.

From Mr. Silas Millar: Some months ago, previous to procuring a box of Doan's Pills, I was badly troubled with backache, and the one box completely banished all pain from my back, and I take great pleasure in recommending them to others.

STANBRIDGE EAST, QUE., Feb. 8th, '99.

From H. C. Hall, ex-Mayor: I have been troubled with my back and kidneys off and on for some time, and not long ago I was taken with such a backache that I could not straighten up and could hardly lift a one pound weight. I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and was astonished at their effect, for in a very short time I was completely cured, and do not hesitate to recommend them to those who suffer from lame back or kidney troubles.

MIAMI, MAN., Nov. 14th, 1896.

From Mr. Alex. Fraser: Some time ago I procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills determining to give them a trial for lame back and kidney complaint which had become so bad I could hardly endure it. After using the box of pills I was cured and cannot refrain from recommending them to all persons troubled with kidney disorder.

KAMLOOPS, B.C., Sept. 26th, 1900.

From Mr. Matthew Drysdale: Sometime ago I was troubled with an aching pain in my back, and tired feeling after the slightest exertion. My urine was also discolored. I procured a box of Doan's Pills and after taking them my backache has disappeared and my urine has returned to its normal color. Altogether the Pills were a perfect cure. I consider them a wonderful preparation.

A GIRL AND A PORTRAIT.

An Instance of the Influence of Heredity at a Picture Gallery.

Doctors disagree as to the influence of heredity. Some hold that a great deal hinges upon it; others believe the contrary. Some of the authentic stories told to exemplify this mysterious bond between ancestors and descendants are very curious.

There was a loan collection of old portraits exhibited in London lately, and a young girl was among the visitors. She was an orphan and wealthy, but without near relatives and was often heard to complain of the loneliness of her position.

As she passed through the gallery one particular portrait attracted her attention, and she went back to it more than once. Her companion saw in it nothing but the commonplace painting of a middle aged man in the costume of the latter part of the last century.

"It is such a nice, kind face," said the girl rather wistfully. "I imagine my father might have looked like that had he lived."

As most of the pictures were ticketed the visitors had purchased no catalogue, but before going away Miss B. bought one at the entrance and made a last visit to the portrait for which she felt so strong an attraction. To her astonishment she found her own name opposite to its number and learned on inquiry that the original was one of her direct ancestors.

Another occult coincidence or psychological phenomenon happened a few years ago to a southern statesman and financier whose family has always been of rank in his native state. This gentleman was overhauling old documents and letters which had been stored in a musty chest for years and intended to publish whatever might be of historic value and interest.

To his surprise he unfolded a letter yellow and time stained which was written in his own peculiar handwriting, or seemed to have been written by him, although the date was two generations before his birth. The signature of the surname, which was the same as his own, was so markedly characteristic that he could scarcely believe his own hand did not pen the letters. So it sometimes happens that handwriting as well as features and character is handed down in families.

WISDOM OF THE HEN.

Something More Than Mere Sitting Required to Hatch Out the Egg.

A fresh egg has the yoke perfectly balanced in the middle of the white. Unless it remains thus balanced the chances are decidedly against its hatching. Brooding hens understand that. When filling the nest, a hen turns over all the eggs in it before she quits it after laying a new one.

She knows, too, that in hot weather the sun will addle her eggs, so she chooses a shady nest spot. But in winter a nest is often made where the fullest sunshine streams into it.

Brooding is throughout full of quaint surprises. Eggs will hatch if kept at blood heat, 98 degrees. But they hatch more certainly and turn out stronger chicks if the temperature is a degree or so higher. Just how it is done nobody knows, but mother hens some way contrive to raise the normal heat of their bodies to the requisite pitch. Further, they strip the whole breast of feathers, so the eggs may have the benefit of full heat. Twice a day they turn over every egg in the nest, cuddling them separately up underneath their beaks, making little soft half fretful chuckling noises the while.

Hens are most uncalculating egg stealers. All eggs in sight will be drawn into the nest, though the stolen eggs may crowd out those legitimately there. Still in a way hens take stock of what they brood. With few eggs they sit prim, with trimly folded wings. With too many they sprawl all over the nest, wings loose enough to let light between the feathers, and frequently turn themselves about reaching for uncovered eggs and drawing them underneath the breast.

A hen of average size cannot profitably cover more than 15 eggs. In cold weather 13 is a better limit, although in midsummer the same hen might brood and hatch 20. Left to themselves, the unchecked instinct of egg stealing with hens is apt to result in a nest full of spoiled eggs, with maybe one or two feeble chicks.

Twenty-four hours of brooding makes hardly a perceptible change in an egg. Sometimes in warm weather there is the least reddish tinge beside the whitish clot in which the germ lies. After 36 hours the clot shows a well defined drop of very red blood. In two days the blood drop has spread to veins and arteries. At the end of ten days the head is fairly well formed, though the trunk is still ragged. In two weeks the chick is recognizable as a chick, and if the shell envelope is broken will quiver all through and feebly move the head. It has, however, no vestige of the downy coat it will wear a little later. The coat forms rather rapidly.

The period of incubation for a chicken is 21 days, and for two days before leaving the shell the young fowl is practically perfect. Yet it would not live were the shell forcibly removed. It spends the last two days gathering vital force to make its own way out into the world. It lies snug within the shell, the head bent upon the breast in such a position as brings the beak full against the shell.

The beak is armed with a tiny detachable piece of horn, flint hard and set upon the very tip of the upper mandible. At full hatching time the chick presses this triangle against the brittle shell and breaks a triangle hole in it, possibly a quarter of an inch across. An hour later the chick, having turned itself slightly, presses the beak against a new spot and makes a fresh break. As more air comes in the little creature grows stronger. It writhes still more strongly in its prison, turning always from left to right. In two hours or ten it breaks the shell in two and slips out into the nest, a wet and weary sprawler.

Egg production varies enormously. A hen's capacity is about 400 eggs, divided pretty equally through the first three years of her existence.

SUSPECTED SOMETHING.

She Thought She Saw a Light After Reading Hubby's Letter.

The postman had brought a letter addressed in a singularly cramped hand to "George Ferguson, Esq."

"I wonder," mused Mrs. Ferguson, closely inspecting the penmanship, "who that can be from."

If she had suspected that the incident would find its way into print, she would have said "whom" of course, but the other way was easier to say, and besides, the language is changing.

"I never object to George's opening my letters," she continued, "and I think I'll open this. It may be family business anyhow, or it may be something that ought to be attended to right away."

The envelope was loosely sealed. It yielded readily to the careful insinuation of a darning needle under the flap, and in another moment she had opened it and was perusing the contents.

"My dear Ferguson," the letter began, "if you will meet me at my office tomorrow morning we will confer about that matter we were discussing yesterday and will come to some conclusion. In the meantime I may tell you in confidence that Ruggles will not come into the scheme at all. We shall have to carry it through ourselves. I may as well caution you in addition that whatever you write to me about it should be addressed to me at my office instead of my house, as my wife, though an excellent woman in every other way, has a habit of opening my letters, and I don't want her to know anything about it till we have all our plans perfected. Your wife, you tell me, never opens any letters addressed to you. Such a woman is indeed a jewel, and I do not wonder you are proud of her."

"H'm!" soliloquized Mrs. Ferguson in much perplexity. "How can I look George in the face after such a—such a—I do believe it's a decoy letter after all."

Then, with a firmly compressed lip, she carefully sealed it up again and sat down to think about it.

Getting Even.

"The poor old X., Y. and Z. railroad," wrote the editor of The Hickory Ridge Missourian, "declines to exchange courtesies with us this year, and we have taken its ad. out of our columns. It's a moth eaten old concern, anyway, and we never took a trip over it without kissing our wife goodby twice and taking out an extra accident insurance policy before we started. Last year we did $467 worth of lying for the X., Y. and Z., and all we got in return was $29.40 worth of traveling. We can stand it if the darned old road can. When you feel as if you would like to be seasick and don't care particularly how you get the sensation and have plenty of money and no better way to get rid of it and would just as lief risk your life as not and haven't any other way of spending your time, go and take a ride of five or six miles on the X., Y. and Z., and may the Lord have mercy on your soul!"

THE COOKBOOK.

Do not pat or smooth down mashed potatoes, as it makes them heavy.

A delicious cake filling is made from chopped figs mixed with crabapple or apple jelly.

Scraps of plain or puff paste trimmed from patties or pies may be sprinkled with grated cheese and made into cheese straws.

Chopped orange peel added to mince meat gives the meat a pleasant flavor. Two fresh peels will season about eight quarts of mince meat.

FIN, FEATHER AND FUR.

A kangaroo consumes as much grass as six sheep. There are but about 900,000 left in Australia.

Sparrows have a strange antipathy for robins, and sometimes they become actively antagonistic to them.

The rarest fish in British waters is the ribbon fish. Only 16 specimens have been recorded in the last century. It is an inhabitant of the great depths of the ocean.

STARTLING INFORMATION.

Found In the Examination Papers of Some English Pupils.

Absurd and amusing answers made by American schoolboys and schoolgirls who were struggling with examination papers have often been quoted, but mistakes of that sort are by no means peculiar to this country. The London Saturday Review recently collected some of the astonishing answers made by English boys undergoing examination for admission to the great public schools or to the army and navy.

One lad, in answer to the question, "What is a limited monarchy?" wrote:

"A limited monarchy is government by a king, who, in case of bankruptcy, would not be responsible for the entire national debt. You have the same thing in private life in limited liability companies."

Another answer was, "The diet of Worms is the grub that blackbirds and thrushes feed on."

A boy not as conversant with American as with English history wrote, in answer to the question, "Who were the pilgrim fathers?"

"They were the fathers of good young men who went on the crusades to the Holy Land."

Another made this interesting contribution to military history:

"Sir Philip Sydney is noted for giving the last drop of water in his jug to a dying soldier on the field of Waterloo. The Duke of Wellington mentioned him in his dispatches."

A papal bull was described as "giving you the choice of obedience or of being excommunicated from the church. So called bull from reference to the horns of a dilemma."

"Molasses" was defined as "the American word for the little mules used to carry provisions up the Andes mountains in California."

It may not be out of place to remark that molasses is hardly known by that name in England, the older word "treacle" being the one almost exclusively used.

"The northwest passage" was stated to be "a short cut to India through the Suez canal and isthmus of Panama. Now that America has been discovered, it is of little importance."

These blunders are amusing in themselves, but when it is considered that they are the result of faulty methods of education, by which the brains of young people are packed with a mass of undigested facts, they become serious warnings rather than mere laughable absurdities."

USING THE FRYING PAN.

One of the Secrets Not Understood by Every Cook.

A fair sized basin should be filled with good dripping for the cook's use when frying, but if the dripping be not available at the moment two pounds of beef suet make an excellent substitute.

When frying is required, put all the dripping from the "bath" into a large iron saucepan without a lid and let it melt. At first the fat will bubble and make a noise, but it is not fit to use until quite still and quiet, with a faint blue smoke rising from it. Put rissoles, cutlets, potato chips or whatever is to be fried into a wire frying basket and then plunge it into the fat, completely immersing the contents. This is the great secret of success. The basket has a handle by which it may be lifted up to see how long to fry.

A very short time suffices for the cooking of fish or meat like rissoles. They should be taken out when a golden brown, as they become a little darker afterward. Always put them on crumpled kitchen paper in front of the fire to drain and keep hot while the others are frying. Only a few can be cooked at once, as they must not touch one another in the basket.

If one is frying cutlets, it is better after cooking for a few moments, to draw the saucepan to the side of the stove, thereby lowering the intense heat. Otherwise the cutlets might not cook thoroughly through, but be overdone on the outside and underdone inside.

Orange, apple or any kind of fritters may be cooked as above. The moment the fat is finished with place it, if possible, outside the house to cool, as thus the fumes go off, no smell remaining to pervade the house. Then take a strainer and strain the fat back into the "bath," where it remains. This fat can be used over and over again and, with a little dripping added now and then, should last for a year. So there is no extravagance in using plenty of fat every time anything is fried.

Quantities of butter, lard and dripping are wasted by many a cook who throws all away every time she fries, whereas if the "bath of fat" be kept it is always ready for use in a short time and does its work well. It fries crisply and dryly instead of in the greasy manner so often seen. The faint blue smoke must be perceived and waited for. Without that and a complete absence of bubbling and noise success will not be obtained.

WHERE BRITAIN STANDS.

Lord Lansdowne Explains the Attitude Towards China—No Further Military Operations at Present.

London, March 29.—In the House of Lords yesterday Lord Lansdowne, the Foreign Secretary, announced that no further military operations by the British troops in China were contemplated for the present. When Field Marshal Count Von Waldersee recently ordered preparations for the recent expedition, the British Government instructed Gen. Gaselee to communicate with the home Government before participating therein.

The compliance of China to the demands of the powers was hardly of such a character as to justify the withdrawal of the allied forces, but the British Government hopes to be able before long to withdraw or reduce its forces in China. Negotiations were necessarily slow, with a refugee Government. On the broad questions, however, there was a practical unanimity among the powers. The allies had agreed they were not at war with China, and desired to derive no territorial advantage from the present events. They also recognized the binding nature of the existing treaties, and desired to maintain the open door on commercial and economical questions, while within the spheres where existed preferential rights, there should be equality of opportunity for all the powers concerned.

Milner Not to Be Recalled.

Whitney Works off Steam Over a Municipal Bill.

TAXING OF PUBLIC FRANCHISES

Premier Ross Gives an Explanation of His Bill to Amend the Municipal Act—Mr. Stratton Points Out That the Bill Would Commend Itself to the People—Law Reform.

Toronto, March 30.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday a number of largely-signed petitions were presented in favor of granting the suffrage to women and also several asking for the prohibition of trading stamps.

Hon. Mr. Stratton presented the report of the Ontario Game Commission.

Premier Ross moved that on and after Wednesday there should be a sitting of the House at 11 a. m. The resolution was adopted.

The House went into committee on the bill to amend the Ontario Companies Act. Mr. Stratton introduced an amendment to the clause providing that the names of companies defaulting in making returns for three years might be taken by other companies. The amendment provides for notice by registered letter to the president or secretary of such companies and provides that if no response is received within one month the company shall be considered as having ceased to exist. The bill was reported.

The bill to consolidate and amend the High School Act was considered in committee and reported with amendments.

Hon. J. M. Gibson moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Municipal Drainage Act, explaining that one of the principal objects sought to be accomplished was to prevent appeals in drainage cases going beyond the Court of Appeals in the province. The bill received a second reading.

Premier Ross moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Municipal Act giving to the councils of cities, towns and incorporated villages power to pass bylaws for the remission of taxes in whole or in part payable for any current year or for exemption in whole or in part from taxation for one or more future years, or for fixing the amount of assessment to be made for one or more future years in the case of persons exercising any public franchise for the supply of water, light, heat transportation or other public service. It provided that no such bylaw should continue in force for more than three years without re-enactment and that no such bylaw should require the assent of the ratepayers. He explained that it was frequently the case that leading capitalists of a small town or village subscribed liberally for public franchises rather with the idea of benefitting the community than in order to obtain dividends. Many of these enterprises were not directly remumerative and it was only reasonable that if the people desired to relieve them from the burden of ordinary taxes they they should be at liberty to do so.

Mr. Whitney denounced the bill in strong language as being introduced in the interests of the corporations, saying that never since Confederation had a measure so deserving of censure been introduced into the House. The objectionable feature of the bill was that a mere majority of the council could free the holders of the franchise from taxation without any reference to the people.

Hon. Mr. Stratton said that the bill contemplated giving the council and the companies power to make a bargain and agree as to terms, and it was one that would commend itself to the people of the Province.

Col. Matheson said the bill was evidently meant as compensation to the corporations for the tribute levied upon them by the Government to raise funds to carry elections, and for having to break faith with them in the matter of scrap iron assessment.

Dr. McKay said he was prepared to go even further than the bill in the direction of giving the municipalities the power of fixing their own rate of taxation.

Mr. Crawford urged that at least the question ought to be submitted to the people.

Hon. E. J. Davis was surprised at the arguments advanced in opposition to the bill, which gave to the municipalities power to act as they considered advisable in their own interest. He resented the statements of the Opposition that the Municipal Councillors were purchasable. It would be a moderate and reasonable arrangement that Municipal Councils should be empowered to fix the taxes on public franchises for a term of three years.

Mr. Carscallen said that the Legislature had been very careful in safeguarding the interests of the people in the matter of bonuses to industrial enterprises, and they should be equally particular in regard to franchise holders. The latter should be compelled to pay their just share of taxation.

After Mr. Conmee had defended the measure and Dr. Barr had opposed it, Hon. Mr. Latchford reviewed the circumstances which gave rise to the "scrap iron" principle of assessment, pointing out that that well-known phrase related to a judicial decision and not to any legislation. He contended that the corporations holding franchises in the smaller towns were not at all in the same position as those of the large cities and were not, as a rule, making large profits.

Messrs. Miscampbell, Morrison and Beatty (Leeds), having spoken against the bill, it was allowed to receive a second reading, Mr. Whitney explaining that the Opposition did not assent to the principle of the bill and would oppose it at its next stage.

Mr. Dryden's bill to amend the Ontario Shops Regulation Act received a second reading.

Deputations and Notes.

Hon. J. M. Gibson was waited upon yesterday afternoon by about 65 representative members of the legal profession from Toronto and many other points of the province. They unitedly urged that the law reform bill should stand over for a year.

The Attorney-General, in reply, said that he was disposed to drop from the bill the clauses giving County Courts jurisdiction over cases of slander and libel, and the quashing of municipal bylaws, but that he could not agree to withdraw the bill.

A deputation of officers and members of the W.C.T.U., accompanied by Rev. Dr. Courtice, Inspector Archibald and Mr. Alex. Mills, addressed Premier Ross in favor of the extension of the provincial franchise to women.

Premier Ross said the question was a large and difficult one. It had been impressively presented by the deputation. The agitation should be kept up to educate public sentiment.

A SHAME TO AMERICA

A Minnesota Orator Says Funston's Feat Was Treacherous.

TO LECTURE IN UNITED STATES.

Senor Lopez Suggests That Aguinaldo and Mabini Should Explain the Philippine Question to the People of the Republic—Other Leaders Surrender as Result of Aguinaldo's Capture.

Ionia, Mich., March 30.—At the annual banquet of the Albert Williams' Club last night, Charles A. Towne of Minnesota was the chief speaker. He declared: "The Filipinos will continue the fight, even though Aguinaldo has been captured. Funston's raid is the outcome of treachery, and a shame to America."

TO LECTURE IN THE STATES.

Senor Lopez Suggests That Aguinaldo and Mabini Come and Explain.

Boston, March 30.—Senor Sixto Lopez has sent the two following cablegrams to Aguinaldo and Mabini:

"Aguinaldo, care Gen. MacArthur, Manila: Request American authorities to send you, with Mabini, to America. (Signed) Sixto Lopez."

"Mabini, care Military Governor, Guam: Aguinaldo captured. I have cabled him to request American authorities to send you with him to America. I wish to apply to authorities in Guam. (Signed) Sixto Lopez."

In reference to the above, Senor Lopez issued the following statement: "I believe it is the wish of the American people to know the truth about many things connected with this war as well as to obtain an authoritative statement of the attitude of the Filipinos toward American sovereignty. I don't know of two men better fitted to give such information that Aguinaldo and Mabini.

"Almost all the statements that have hitherto been made are from American sources. It would, therefore, only be fair that two representative Filipinos should be allowed to give their opinions about the Americans and to speak on behalf of their fellow-countrymen.

"The bringing of Aguinaldo and Mabini to America can do no injury to truth and justice, and I assume that both desire to know the truth and to do justice. (Signed) Sixto Lopez."

HOW HE TAKES IT.

Aguinaldo's Conduct Before His Captors at Manila.

Manila, March 30.—When Aguinaldo was captured he wore a plain, dark blue suit, with the coat closely buttoned at the throat, and wide white helmet, with a leather band. He takes his capture philosophically. He is generally cheerful, but sometimes moody. His health during the past year has been very good. It is uncertain what attitude he will now assume.

Ceratin visitors are permitted to see Aguinaldo, but newspaper interviews with the prisoner are not allowed. Since Aguinaldo has been domiciled at the Malacanang Palace, persons not provided with special permits have been denied admission to the grounds.

Gen. Trias, the commander of the insurgent forces in Southern Luzon, who recently surrendered to the American authorities, visited Aguinaldo and told the latter why he surrendered. Trias said that a continuance of armed opposition to the United States was unjustifiable and ruinous. The independence of the Philippines was impossible, and the Filipinos had better accept liberty, prosperity and progress under American rule.

FILIPINOS ARE SURRENDERING.

The Capture of Aguinaldo Has Already Had a Marked Effect.

Washington, March 30.—Gen. MacArthur cables as follows:

"Manila, March 29.—Brigadier-Gen. William A. Kobbe reports the surrender of Sumulao, at Mindanao, 9 officers, 160 men, 187 rifles, 80 shotguns, Capistranso's command. This ends the trouble in Mindanao as far as Filipinos are concerned.

"Brigadier-Gen. Robert P. Hughes reports Alikpali and Ruiz, 34 guns, surrendered to Capt. David G. Shanks, 18th United States Infantry, at Mamburao; 206 guns, Fullon's command; surrendered to Lieut.-Col. William S. Scott, 44th United States Volunteers.

"(Signed), MacArthur.

Geronimo Also Gives In.

Manila, March 29.—(9.30 p. m.)—After being convinced of Aguinaldo's capture, Gen. Geronimo, the insurgent leader in the Province of Morong, Luzon, has surrendered, with 6 officers, 46 men and 50 rifles, to Col. J. Milton Thompson of the 42nd Regiment, at San Mateo.

PROMISES.

Of course an Opposition can afford to be more generous with promises than a Government, because an Opposition's words have not the authority of power behind them. Still, it must be admitted that such promises used in a bye-election in a close constituency are dangerously near a bribe to the electors. Consequently, there was much force in the taunt that Premier Ross flung across the floor of the House as to Mr. Whitney's speech at Niagara Falls during the Welland bye-election campaign, and Mr. Whitney's reply was but a lame one.

It was on December 11th that Mr. Whitney made his speech at Niagara Falls town, in which he declared that the water power of Niagara River should be as free as air, because, irrespective of every other consideration, that principle would be right. The question arises, what did Mr. Whitney mean? Would he spend the Ontario surplus three or four times over to develop power for whoever chose to use it, without money and without price? Although Mr. Whitney's words were very vague, it is reasonable to suppose that this is not the meaning he would put upon them. This interpretation excluded, Mr. Whitney must have meant that he would permit anyone to develop power there without paying rent to the Province for the privilege.

Where would such a proposition land Mr. Whitney and the Conservative party? Let us look back at the history of the Niagara Falls water power. The franchise, which was in the nature of a monopoly, was at first granted on a rental of $25,000 a year. As the Company were slow to begin operations, it was suspected that they were holding off to prevent competition with the company on the American side, which had spent something like $15,000,000 in developing the power. Consequently, two or three years ago the Government abrogated the monopoly clause of the contract and rearranged the annual rental on a sliding scale, proportioned to the quantity of power developed. This has led to the formation of another company, which is now preparing to develop power from Welland River. From the two companies the Government has collected $205,000, which has been applied to the acquirement and maintenance of the Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park, which otherwise would have had to be bought and supported out of the revenue of the Province. So at this writing the Province is ahead a fine park, which has cost the people nothing; it retains its hold of a valuable franchise; it has set up a competitive company; and if there has been a delay in developing the power, the Canadian companies will be able to profit by the experience of the American companies on the other side and produce power at a cheaper rate.

Under Mr. Whitney's policy—at least whatever policy is to be inferred from his spoken words—the Province would be out that $205,000 and that fine park, and the people would have been delivered over to a corporation or set of corporations who would have developed power without paying a cent for the privilege, who would be saddled on the country forever, and who would ultimately charge whatever rate they pleased. The policy of making this water power "as free as air" would have tightened into a perpetual, tyrannical monopoly. The implied argument that the town of Niagara Falls ought to exploit this great Provincial asset solely for its own benefit is as reasonable as to urge the town to build a high fence all around the cataract and to charge everybody a quarter to see the great wonder of nature. Similarly Mr. Whitney might go into the Rainy River district and tell the people there to keep Toronto capitalists out of their gold mines; or he might go into British Columbia and preach the doctrine that Ontario lumbermen ought not to be permitted to buy timber berths in the Pacific Province. It is a selfish and unreasonable argument, utterly opposed to the principle that our natural resources, wherever they may be located, are to be utilized for the benefit of the whole people.

This does not mean that the Ross Government will neglect the interests of the town of Niagara Falls. When the town asked the privilege of developing power for electric lighting it was granted. Speaking to the electors on December 4th, Premier Ross stated that if the men who now held the contracts were not prepared to develop the power when their two years had expired, the Government would then get somebody who would not wait 48 hours to start in.

The broad principle on which the Ross Government deals with the water franchises is that they shall be developed within a reasonable period, that they shall pay a decent toll to the Province, and that they shall be under Government control to withdraw and to re-lease. The regulations which now govern water power franchises were issued under an order-in-Council June 1, 1898, being in accordance with the Act passed at the previous session. Up to that time water powers had been granted outright along with the land on which they were situated. The patentee became the absolute owner, and could develop or not develop the power as he choose.

The new regulations made radical changes. They provide that in dealing with water powers they shall be leased, and not sold. The leases are made only on the condition of development; they are forfeitable if the power is not made use of. The leases usually require development within one or two years, though the time may be extended, where unusually big dams and sluices have to be built. Further, the leases provide that if the lessee develops more power than he requires for his own uses he must dispose of it to others who need it; in case the parties cannot agreee as to terms the Lieutenant-Governor-in Council may fix them, and his decision is binding. If there is more power in the fall than is developed by the lessee, and if there is a bona fide demand for the power, he is obliged to go ahead and develope it to its full capacity.

The leases are made for ten years, renewable for another term of ten years if the conditions are complied with—practically a twenty years' lease. At the end of the second period of ten years these leases are again renewable on terms and conditions then agreed upon. The rental charged by the Government under the lease is nominal for the first year or two, or until the power is developed. After that time the practice so far has been to charge on a basis of 25 cents per horse power per annum for the amount of power developed. The idea is rather to encourage the utilization of the water powers than to exact the highest rental they are capable of yielding. However, if a water power franchise granted under these conditions turns out after development to be highly valuable, the Government after the second term of ten years has the power of securing a proportion of the value in the public interest.

Altogether, these thrifty regulations for the public good would seem to be wiser and more profitable to the Province than Mr. Whitney's "free as air" policy, which he uses in bye-elections.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day was the largest of the season—1700 cattle, 1242 hogs, 759 sheep and lambs, with about 35 calves.

The quality of fat cattle was generally good, but not better than should be coming forward at this season of the year.

Trade in fat cattle was fair. And notwithstanding the fact of the large deliveries of Thursday, as well as to-day, prices were well maintained in nearly all the different grades. The main factor in keeping prices steady was that there were a large number of outside dealers on the market purchasing supplies for the approaching Easter festival.

Are You In The Grasp of The Grim Reaper Death?

YOU CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE BY USING PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

THE GREAT SPRING MEDICINE

A Resident of St. Hyacinthe, Que., Who Was Near Death Saved By The Wonderful Compound.

It certainly requires a medicine of great power and extraordinary virtue to save a man or woman brought near the dark grave by disease and suffering.

Paine's Celery Compound in the past has saved many a precious life at the eleventh hour.

Mr. A. Daignault, of St. Hyacinthe, Que., had become tired and weary of life owing to constant illness and pain, and looked forward to death as his only deliverer from agony and suffering. Happily those near him urged the use of Paine's Celery Compound after all other medicines had failed. Mr. Daignault and his friends were not disappointed. The marvellous compound banished his troubles and restored him to health.

The same grand results—health, vigor of body, general activity and happiness will be your reward, dear sufferer, if you make use of the same life-giving remedy. Mr. Daignault says:

"I desire to say, that had it not been for Paine's Celery Compound, I would not be living to-day. Five years ago I was taken sick, and suffered from dyspepsia and catarrh. For three years I was unable to work, and would lose consciousness several times a day. I was tired of life, and could realize that death was my only deliverer from suffering. At that time one of my friends urged me to use Paine's Celery Compound, as all other medicines had failed.

"After the use of six bottles I am as well as ever before in my life, appetite is restored, and I can do a full day's work. My friends say my cure is a miracle, as I was surely condemned to die. I cannot thank you sufficiently for your wonderful life-giving medicine."

The Inspection of Fruit—Hon. Mr. Fisher's Bill Discussed—Delays in Accounts—Criticism of the Auditor-General's Department—The Tuberculin Test of Cattle—Mr. Fisher's Explanation.

Ottawa, March 30.—Thursday's session of the House did not conclude until 4.10 a. m. yesterday, when, after the all-night session of debate on Mr. Borden's mutual preferential amendment, the vote was taken. The Government's majority was 54. The vote was:

Against amendment, 118.
For amendment, 64.
Paired, 24.
Absent, 2.
Vacant constituencies, 4.
Speaker, 1.
Total, 213.

The absent were Messrs. Godbout and Robinson (West Elgin). The constituencies not yet represented, although a Liberal and Conservative are elected for them, are North Bruce and West Prince. The constituency of West Durham is vacant, and Mr. Prefontaine representes two constituencies. The following are the pairs:

Dobell-Brock, Cartwright-Tupper, Angers-Bell (Pictou), Bourbonnais-Lennox, McCarthy-McLeod, Morrison-Hale, Charlton-Wilson, Maxwell-Seagram, Madore-Kemp, Mulock-Corby, Fitzpatrick-Casgrain, Gallagher-Robinson (Northumberland.)

YESTERDAY'S SESSION.

Ottawa, March 30.—The House, after prolonging the sitting which commenced Thursday afternoon at 3 until after 4 Friday morning, was not in the humor to undertake any heavy business yesterday. Numerous private bills were introduced, including the bills ratifying the agreement by the Canadian Northern Railway for leasing the Manitoba lines. After passing the Supplementary Supply bill, a formal proceeding, the remainder of the afternoon was spent in consideration of Mr. Fisher's bill respecting the inspection and marking of fruit packages. At 6 o'clock the House adjourned.

Bills Introduced.

The following bills were introduced:

Respecting a lease of certain railways in Manitoba.—Mr. McIsaac.

Relating to an agreement respecting certain railways in Manitoba made by the Canadian Northern Railway Co.—Mr. McIsaac.

Respecting the Kamloops and Atlin Railway Company—Col. Prior.

Respecting the South Shore Railway Company—Mr. Geoffrion.

Respecting the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Company—Mr. Dyment.

For the relief of John Aikin—Mr. Rosamond.

Respecting the Montreal and Southern Counties Railway Company—Mr. Lavergne.

Mr. Wright (Renfrew) moved the first reading of his bill to amend the Dominion Elections Act, 1900, by having portraits of the candidates on the ballot paper,

T. O. Davis reported that the Northwest returning officers and deputy returning officers had not yet been paid, and he blamed the Auditor-General.

Mr. McGowan called attention to delay and trouble in taking the tuberculin test of cattle for export to the United States. The test takes four days and results in loss to those engaged in the cattle trade.

Hon. Sydney Fisher said he had made an arrangement with the anthoritie at Washington, by which they would accept the certificates of permanent officials of the Department of Agriculture and no others. There was undoubtedly some congestion of the trade, but when this was past, the officials would catch up to the work. If they could not he would appoint a few additional "vets." But he could not appoint local "vets" under his arrangement.

The House in committee considered Hon. Sydney Fisher's bill to provide for the marking and inspection of packages containing fruit for sale.

At 6 o'clock the committee rose and reported progress. The bill will be taken up again on Monday.

The Manitoba Deputation.

Ottawa, March 30.—Messrs. Brock, Bole, Brown and Fraser, with Capt. Robson, accompanied by Senator Watson and Young, representing the Manitoban opponents to the railway deal, had a two hours' interview with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Mr. Sifton, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. Mr. Fielding, and Hon. Mr. Blair yesterday morning.

The Provincial bill was denounced and the Government was asked to veto it. The Ministers replied that very strong reasons would have to be adduced to justify intervention.

THE SENATE.

Ottawa, March 30.—In the Senate yesterday, replying to Hon. Mr. Bernier, Hon. David Mills said the Doukhobors came from Kars and Caucasus districts, and Cypress. They are at present exempt from military service under the act. They were loaned $20,000. They had cost the department about $60,000.

Hon. Mr. Primrose inquired whether it is the intention of the Government to remove, or allow to be removed, from the Geological Museum wood buffalo or bison, for the purpose of exhibition at Buffalo. The bison was given by Mr. Warburton Pike, on the condition that it should never be moved.

Hon. David Mills was not able to answer.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald, B. C., inquired if it is the intention of the Government to introduce a bankruptcy law this session of Parliament.

Hon. Mr. Mills—It is not the intention of the Government to introduce a bill on this subject this session, but to close the session as soon as possible.

Hon. Mr. Ferguson asked if it was in contemplation to hold a Dominion Exhibition within the near future. He referred to past schemes of Montreal and Toronto in this regard.

Hon. David Mills said it would mean a great expense to hold a Canadian Exhibition, which would possibly be unremunerative.

The Foresters' bill was read a third time and passed, as amended.

The Senate adjourned till April 10.

MANITOBA HOUSE PROROGUED.

Mayor Arbuthnot Is Thinking of a Municipal Telephone System.

Winnipeg, March 30.—The Manitoba Legislature prorogued yesterday. All the bills were assented to by the Lieutenant-Governor.

A meeting has been called to consider the advisability of submitting a bylaw to the people to recommend funds for the establishment of a municipal telephone system.

Mayor Arbuthnot, interviewd on the matter yesterday, said: "I have been collecting information on this subject, and Winnipeg could run a municipal system of telephones at a profit, if they only charged half the rates charged at present by the Bell Telephone Company. I shall do my best to push the matter," said the Mayor, "as it is expected that Winnipeg should have a telephone system on a reasonable basis."

The Earth and Man.

A little sun, a little rain,
A soft wind blowing from the west,
And woods and fields are sweet again,
And warmth within the mountain's breast.

So simple is the earth we tread,
So quick with love and life her frame;
Ten thousand years have dawned and fled,
And still her magic is the same.

A little love, a little trust,
A soft impulse, a sudden dream,
And life as dry as desert dust
Is fresher than a mountain stream.

So simple is the heart of man,
So ready for new hope and joy;
Ten thousand years since it began
Have left it younger than a boy.

TORTURED MR. PETHICK OF TORONTO, UNTIL TIMELY HELP CAME

In form of Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills—His affliction was Diabetes—Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills cured him, after all other Medicines failed.

Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Toronto.

Gentlemen:—"For Several years I have been a victim of that terrible affliction, Diabetes. All the special symptoms of this disease were present—urination caused severe cutting pain; the urine was unnaturally dark colored; I suffered with intense headaches and with twitching of the nerves. The quantity of urine discharged was greatly increased; my lips were always dry; I was tortured by a perpetual and intense thirst; carbuncles broke out on my body, and I wasted to a mere skeleton, in spite of what the doctors could do. In despair I resorted to patent medicines, and tried one after another—to be disappointed by each.

"My wife persuaded me, much against my will, to try Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills. I thank God, now, that she did so, for this wonderful, heaven-sent medicine has cured me completely. I am to-day enjoying perfect health, and every organ does its duty thoroughly, as the result of my use of Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills."

SUFFERING WOMEN.

A MESSAGE OF HOPE TO THE WEAK AND DEPRESSED.

A Grateful Woman Tells of Her Release From the Agonies That Afflict Her Sex After Three Doctors Had Failed to Help Her.

The amount of suffering borne by women throughout the country can never be estimated. Silently, almost hopelessly, they endure from day to day, afflictions that can only fall to the lot of women. The following story of the suffering and release of Mrs. Charles Hoeg, of Southampton, N.S., ought to bring hope and health and happiness to other sufferers. Mrs. Hoeg says:—"For nine out of the thirty-two years of my life I have suffered as no woman, unless she has been similiarly afflicted, can imagine I could suffer and yet have lived. Three weeks out of four I would be unable to move about, and, indeed, at no time was really fit to attend to my household duties. I consulted physicians—three of the most skilful doctors in the County of Cumberland at different times had charge of my case. These all agreed in their diagnosis, but the treatment varied; and while at times I would experience some relief, at no time was there any hope given me of a permanent cure. Many a night when I went to bed, I would have been glad if death had come before morning. I never had much faith in proprietary medicines, but at one time I took a half dozen bottles of a blood-making compound that was highly recommended. This, like everything else, failed to help me. There seemed to be not a particle of blood in my body. My face was absolutely colorless, and my appetite almost entirely deserted me. I often saw in the newspapers letters testifying to the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but nine years of suffering and discouragement had made me too sceptical to see any hope of relief, when doctors had failed to effect a cure. But at last I came across the story of a cure near home—that of Mr. Moses Boss, of Rodney. I knew that at one time he had been regarded as a hopeless consumptive, and his cure through Dr. Williams, Pink Pills, determined me to try them. I had not taken two boxes before I began to feel better, and grew confident of a cure. I kept on taking the pills, all the time feeling new blood in my veins, activity returning to my limbs, and the feeling of depression gradually wearing away. To many women it may seem incredible that the mere making of new blood in my veins could restore to a healthy condition misplaced internal organs, but this has been my happy experience. My pains have all left me, and I am now as healthy a woman as there is in this place. This health I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have rescued me from a life of suffering, if not from the grave."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are especially valuable to women. They build up the blood, restore the nerves, and eradicate those troubles which make the lives of so many women, old and young, a burden. Palpitation of the heart, nervous headache and nervous prostration speedily yield to this wonderful medicine. These pills are sold only in boxes, the trade mark and wrapper printed in red ink, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Must Pay Taxes.

Port Hope citizens are feeling good because the court has ruled that the town can assess the Midland Loan and Savings Company to the amount of $20,000 annually. The company claimed that they came under the new law that municipalities could not levy on income derived from outside sources. The company will now have to pay nearly $400 in taxes instead of an amount under $50.

J. Williams Macy.

A friend writing to Mr. J. H. Renwick, of Port Hope, about his concerts says: "I had the good pleasure of listening to Mr. Macy in Windsor Hall, Montreal, and was delighted. He sang "The Palms" with such pathos and soul expression that the memory of it has remained with me ever since. It could never be forgotten by anyone who has music in his soul." THE FIRST PARADE

OF THE 57th REGIMENT FOR THE SEASON.

The Duty of Every Young Man in Town.—The Non-Coms' Class.

On Tuesday evening, the first parade of the 57th Regiment will be held and there is considerable speculation as to the interest that will be taken in the local regiment this season. It is a well-known fact that the 57th aroused more enthusiasm in its ranks last year than it had for some time previous, which no doubt was due to the general wave of military ardour that passed over the country.

The prospects this season are even much brighter than they were at this time last year, and judging from the spirits of those in the ranks, the 57th may be rerecruited up to full strength before long. The non-commissioned officers' class which has been in full swing during the past several months under the capable instruction of Sgt.-Major Brittain, has given a great impettus to the martial spirit in town. About twenty-five non-coms. and those expecting non-coms. honours took advantage of the class and have made rapid progress.

There will be considerable shaking up in officers from last year, in consequence of the retirement of certain officers and the removal of others from town. A list of new men have taken commissions and have been attending the officers class for some time. The parade on Tuesday night should be awaited with interest, and those who belonged to the regiment last year as well as those who desire to join this year, should report at the drill shed on that evening.

In view of the probable visit of the Governor General to Peterborough in June, and also the probable visit of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall a little later on, it behooves every young man in town to rally to the support of the good old 57th, and make it one of the best regiments in the Canadian Militia.

All Saints' Church.

The last of the Lenten series of sermons will be delivered to-morrow on the subjects "The Merciful" and "Worshippers." Rev. W. L. Armitage will preach at both services.

To-morrow night the Rev. Mr. Potter begins a series of evening addresses on "Better Days for the People Who Toil." To-morrow's subject will be "What is Meant by Better Days." Seats are all free and strangers in town cordially made welcome.

Palm Sunday.

To-morrow being Palm Sunday, there will be special services held in St. Peter's Cathedral. The morning masses will be at 8, 9.15 and 10.30 o'clock. At the close of the last named mass palms will be solemnly blessed and distributed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. Vespers with sermon will take place at 7 o'clock.

Deer Killed.

Last Wednesday some village dogs ran a deer into the corporation limits, near the station, and were worrying it when Mr James Stevens appeared on the scene and killed the animal. It had probably been run down from the north country by dogs, and no doubt was exhausted travelling through the deep snow, when it was attacked by the village canines. It is some years since a live deer was seen so close to the village.—Madoc Review

March 28th, 1901.

TAKING OF THE CENSUS.

Some Information That Will Interest the Public.

The census enumerators for the district of West Peterborough will commence their duties on Monday, the first of April. The people should make it a point to assist them as much as possible by answering all necessary questions asked, and giving such information as may be required as correctly as possible. You need have no fear of answering the questions, as every enumerator has taken an oath not to divulge any information he may receive from you. Each enumerator is instructed to give as little trouble as possible, but he must receive the necessary information. You should be interested in the taking of the census just as much as the enumerators. The Government wants the information so that it can legislate accordingly to the best advantage of all classes of the community.

THE BAND CONCERT.

Another Large Audience Greets the 57th. Regiment Band.

The Peterborough public never grow tired of band concerts, judging from the very large audience that greeted the band of the 57th Regiment, in the market hall last night. This, however, is perhaps entirely due to the fact that Peterborough has a musical organization that is second to none in the Dominion. They appeared last night according to announcement, and the rendering of the exceptionally rich programmee was of the usual efficient style. The concerts in the market hall, have as a rule, been very well patronized and it is to be hoped that Prof. Gliddon will give the public another opportunity at least, of testifying to their appreciation of an organization that affords so much enjoyment to the public gratuitiously by their playing in the park during the summer months.

THE LATE HARRY BECK.

The Funeral Took Place From Murray Street Church This Afternoon—The Bearers.

The funeral of the late Harry G. Beck, who met his death in so shocking a manner at the Canadian General Electric Co's works on Thursday afternoon, took place from Murray street Baptist church at 3 o'clock this afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery, where the remains were placed in the vault awaiting further information from relatives in England regarding the final disposal of the same.

The funeral was very largely attended. The employees to the number of 300 or more assembled at the Odd Fellow's hall, corner Hunter and George streets, and marshalled by Mr. Frank Packenham, marched to the Murray street church, where an impressive funeral service took place, conducted by Rev. J. Bastow. The edifice was filled by not only employees of the Canadian General but by townspeople in general, who were anxious to pay their last tribute of repect to deceased.

The bearers were Messrs. R. B. Riekey, Robert Anson and A. A. Walsh, representing the Canadian General, and Messrs. Rolley Merrill, W. Cochrane, and A. J. Raddop, representing the Y. M. C. A. and Murray street Baptist church.

The Glee Club of the Canadian General took part in the services at the cemetery.

The only mourner to arrive in town to attend the funeral of the late H. G. Beck, was Miss Olmstead, of Ingersoll, who claims to have been engaged to deceased at the time of his demise. Miss Olmstead comes originally from St. Thomas, but has recently been residing in Ingersoll.

THE LOCAL MARKET.

Mr. Walter English's Term of Office Expires To-Day—His Views.

Mr. Walter J. English, to-day completed his term of office as market clerk, of the Town of Peterborough. Although, it is said that Mr. English's venture was not to himself very remunerative, nothing but the most flattering expressions are heard concerning the faithful manner in which he has discharged his duties, and the kindness and courtesy in which the public doing business on the market were treated by him.

Mr. English was asked to-day regarding the condition of affairs in general in connection with the local market. He said: "During the past year the Peterborough market has been considerably improved. It now possesses one of the most up-to-date live stock scales in the country, and the pens have been enlarged. Every convenience that it has been possible to extend to the market, by the market committee, has been so extended. There are one or two matters of importance now under consideration by the committee, which, when established, will make the market one of the best in the Province.

There is a feeling amongst the farmers, that it would have been much better, and in fact would still be much better, for the town to run the market themselves and put a capable man in charge, rather than place a man there, by reason of his having made the highest bid for the tolls. Hamilton, Brantford and other towns have found that where the town runs the market itself and employs its own clerk, the market is much improved and the best interests of the town and public served in doing so.

The American Cereal Company coming to Peterborough will no doubt have a beneficial effect on the market, as more coarse grains will be marketed, where there is increased competition, and there is no doubt that the buyers for the new company will cause the competition which is much needed on the Peterborough market.

In reference to the new market clerk, Mr. Hutchinson, he is well and favourably known throughout the country and will undoubtedly give every satisfaction to the persons who are obliged to use the market in any way.

It might be said that while Mr. English's term of office officially expires to-day, he will assist Mr. Hutchinson during the next few weeks.

For the graphic arts Toronto is fast becoming the Paris of Canada in this respect. The menu card used at Mr. Chas. Artistic, chaste and simple in its design it will be cherished as a souvenir of the occasion by the many friends of Mr. Hays.

THROUGH THE ICE.

Fred Stabler's Horse Broke Through on Chemong Lake.

This is the season of the year when accidents become frequent by reason of the decayed condition of the ice on the lakes that are used during the winter time for traffic.

On Thursday Mr. Fred Stabler, a local cattle buyer, was crossing Chemong Lake and his horse went bodily through the ice. He jumped himself and at once proceeded to extricate the animal from its awkward position. He was unable to accomphish this himself, but in about half an hour's time, with the assistance of several others, his horse was rescued.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY.

Held in the Y.M.C.A. Last Evening—The Programme.

A very interesting rally of Sunday school workers was held on Friday in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The president, Mr. M. W. Matchett, occupied the chair. Miss Agar, organist of the Murray street Baptist church, presided at the piano, and Rev. O. C. Elliott assisted in the devotional exercises.

The visitors to the different Sabbath schools presented their reports and in this way many helpful suggestions were brought out.

Mrs. (Dr.) Scott sang in excellent voice a very pleasing and profitable solo.

A "Round Table Conference" on several interesting questions was conducted by Rev. C. L. Thompson, but lack of time interfered with a full discussion.

The attendance was good, considering the number of counter attractions.

FOR WIFE BEATING.

S. W. Lowery Got 10 Days in Jail This Morning—His Conduct.

S. W. Lowery, a middle aged man of fairly respectable appearance, is behind the bars at the police station as a result of the rude manner in which he greeted his wife on his return from a protracted visit from Port Hope. Mrs. Lowery has been keeping boarders in Peterborough and thus maintaining her small family. Lowery, since last July has been living in Port Hope, and last night returned only to administer physical punishment upon his wife. She swore out a warrant for his arrest which was promptly executed, and this morning Police Magistrate Dumble sentenced prisoner to 10 days in jail. He feels his position keenly.

A Letter of Introduction.

I have much pleasure in introducing Mlle. Decrey, (pupil of Prof. Martin Krause, Leipsiz) who comes from Buffalo well recommended as a concert pianist, and also as a teacher. As a teacher Mademoiselle has had experience and has been most successful, having the power of arousing enthusiasm in her pupils, besides being herself so musicianly. The fact that she was chosen as solo pianist by the Buffalo orchestra, will in itself testify to her ability as a performer. I have every reason to believe that those who entrust to her the care of their music, may do so with the utmost confidence, being sure of most satisfactory results.

MR. BAKER REMEMBERED

BY THE PUPILS OF THE BUSINESS COLLEGE.

He Intends Leaving to Reside in Belleville—A Ring and a Cane.

Mr. A. C. Baker, who for the past two years and three months has fulfilled the duties of first assistant in the Peterborough Business College with the greatest satisfaction to all concerned, severed his connection with that institution yesterday, and intends removing to Belleville, where he will embark in a new line of occupation.

During Mr. Baker's connection with the local Business College he has won the esteem of all those with whom he came in contact, and the present pupils of the college could not allow the occasion of his departure from town to pass without expressing to him in some manner their hearty appreciation of his valuable services.

Yesterday afternoon at about 2.30 o'clock Mr. Baker was taken greatly by surprise when he was called to attention, and the following address was read by Miss Marion Best:

Dear Mr. Baker,—We, the students of the Peterborough Business College, having learned with regret that you are about to sever your connection with this institution, cannot allow the opportunity to pass without giving expression in a tangible way, to our appreciation of your services while we have been associated with you.

Your ability as a teacher, your kindly disposition and the genuine interest you have taken in our welfare, have caused us to consider you as our friend as well as instructor. We assure you that your many acts of kindness have been appreciated by us and will not be soon forgotten.

Whilst we are sorry to have you leave us we are glad too for your sake that you are about to engage in a line of work, which we understand, you have most wished for, and we hope that you may have that degree of success which you so well deserve.

We would also extend our best wishes to Mrs. Baker and Master Harold, and hope they may long be spared to brighten and gladden your home.

In conclusion we would ask you to accept of this ring and cane as slight mementos from the class of 1900-01, and trust they may always bring to you pleasant memories of the time spent at Peterborough Business College.

Again thanking you for the many favours received at your hands, and wishing you success in your new field, we are on behalf of the school.

GERTRUDE CORBMAN.
NELLIE O'BRIEN.

At the same time Mr. Baker was handed a beautiful cane by Mr. Ernie Wilson, and a handsome ring by Mr. Eva Tangney. Though expecting nothing of the kind, Mr. Baker made a suitable reply, expressing the deep interest he would always feel in the pupils of the Peterborough College.

The head of the cane was inscribed as follows: "A. C. Baker from students P.B.C. 1900-01" and the ring bore the letters "A. C.B." as a raised monogran.

Mr. Pringle, the Principal, then spoke a few words, testifying to the esteem in which he held the member of his staff, who was about to leave. He had, during his connection with the college, given eminent satisfaction, and he wished him success in the future.

Mr. Baker will be succeeded by Mr. Geo. Robertson, of Beamsville, who comes highly recommended in both commercial and general school teaching.

The address, it might be said, is a beautiful sample of penmanship, and is most artistically gotten up. It is the work of Mr. Pringle, and is in pamphlet form, with a dainty cover, on which are the words "Address, 1900—01."

The cane and ring were purchased from Messrs. Clarke & Gibson, and were beautifully engaged.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Day is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. Maude in Lakefield.

Mr. Kilbourn, of the Cement Works, Lakefield, was in town to-day.

Miss Ethel Richardson, of Millbrook, is in town, the guest of Mrs. (Dr.) Greer.

His Honour Judge Williams, of Goderich, is in town the guest of Mr. R. C. McHarrie.

Mr. George Stevenson has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness as to be able to leave the Nicholl's hospital.

Rev. J. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, editor of the Westminster, will preach in St. Paul's church to-morrow morning and evening.

Mr. A. L. Davis met with a severe accident on Thursday evening, through falling on some ice just after entering Mr. J. J. Lundy's gate. His wrist and shoulder were strained and his eye badly cut by coming in contact with the ice. He was in a semi-unconscious state for over two hours.

Toronto Globe: The ladies of the committee of the Home for Incurable Children have received with much gratitude from Mrs. George A. Cox, a gift of $5,000 towards the purchase of the home. Mrs. Cox, before her departure for Europe, also gave orders for the repapering and decorating of the Home for the Nurses of the Victorian Order, on Spadina avenue, which is an institution in which she is keenly interested.

The Campbellford Despatch says: "At the Baptist church on Thursday night quite a large company gathered to hear Rev. J. Bastow deliver his lecture entitled "From Coal Pit to Pulpit." In simple but graphic language he told the story of his struggles with poverty and described in eloquent and pathetic words his victory over adverse circumstances. The audience gave close attefftion and was greatly interested and very highly delighted with the lecture. To the young, the lessons to be derived from such a life have no other effect than that of inspiration, and the more lectures we have of such a description, the better it will be for the rising generation.

IT IS THE WAY YOU USE IT.

Its the Method Employed Which Makes Success or Failure.

One man with pen, ink and paper can produce a landscape, another man with same pen and ink may not be able to write his own name legibly. It is all in knowing how.

It is equally true in the use of medicines. The same remedies we have to-day have existed for thousands of years, but if their existence was known the knowledge of how to use them was lacking.

They became valuable to the human race only when experiment and science showed the way to use them to get results.

The grip is an old disease with a new name; it is really catarrhal in character and the usual symptoms are those of acute catarrh, but the old time catarrh salves and sprays do not cure it, neither does the application of antiseptics through an inhaler give anything more than relief for a short time.

The antiseptics are all right; they will kill the germs of catarrh and grip if they are applied rightly, but their local application to the nose and throat avail little because the germs are in the blood and through the whole system.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets contain many of these same antiseptics, that are used in sprays and inhalers, but instead of applying them to the inflamed membranes of the nose and throat, they are taken into the stomach and thus reach the blood, the real seat of the disease and drive out the infectious germs through the natural channels of the bowels and kidneys.

In other words Stuart's Catarrh Tablets reach the CAUSE of the mischief instead of merely local symptoms.

The remarkable success of these tablets in curing grip, catarrh and throat and lung troubles is because they drive the catarrhal poison from the system and the nose and throat become clear of the excessive secretion of mucus, which causes the hawking, spitting and gagging, because the secretion is not supplied from healthy blood.

Two years ago, Stuarts Catarrh Tablets were unknown, but to-day have become so popular through positive merit that druggists everywhere in the United States, Canada and Great Britain now sell them.

ODD FEES THEY GET.

LAWYERS DO NOT ALWAYS RECEIVE CASH FOR THEIR SERVICES.

Country Produce Squared One Case, a Souvenir Spoon Another and a Washerwoman Paid Her Divorce Costs In Laundry Work.

Even old lawyers do not always get cash fees, and the stories of queer fees that have been paid to Milwaukee lawyers alone would fill a volume. Burglars' loot, farm produce, labor of all descriptions, almost everything imaginable, would appear on the list.

The story of a fee told by one young lawyer is one of the kind where a lawyer does not like to have his name mentioned, but it probably wasn't his fault. A visitor was in the bachelor's den of the young lawyer, when he noticed an engraved spoon hanging by a ribbon among some photographs, as though it might be a relic of some sentimental collegian's love affair.

"That spoon is my fee for clearing a client one time," said the owner of the decoration. "I had that given to me after I defended old Bill Bradley, the burglar. Bradley had been arrested charged with having robbed a house in the fashionable part of the town, and among other things it was charged that he had made away with a set of silverware. He sent for me and from the way he told his story I thought he was right and had not mixed up in the burglary.

"Well, he told me he had no money, but said he would make it all right with me some day if I did get him out of his trouble, so I went in and worked hard, and finally cleared him. A few days after he had thanked me and had gone clear, without paying me, he drifted into my office and said he had been trying to scrape up some money for me, but couldn't. Then he reached in his pocket and gave me that spoon, one of the set I had just acquitted him of stealing. If I took the spoon back, I would convict myself of having defended a man I knew to be guilty, so I left it there where you can see it. I think something of it, too, especially as old Bill was killed while stealing a ride toward Chicago a few days afterward."

"When I was practicing up north," said Judge W. H. Halsey, "I had a fee in kind that I appreciated as much as I have $500 fees at other times. I had defended an old farmer in a small suit, though I did not expect to get any pay from him. The suit was decided in our favor, and the old farmer and his wife went home. Some months afterward the two came into my office with a package and bundle tied up in a handkerchief. The package was a roll of butter, the handkerchief bundle was hazelnuts, and from the old farmer's pockets came two big rosy cheeked apples. That butter, apples and nuts fee was as satisfactory to me as any I ever received."

"For ten years I have never paid to have an umbrella mended," said one lawyer. "The rich landlord of the story book style wanted the store the old crippled umbrella man was using for a shop and started to force the old fellow out. I fixed him so that he was allowed to stay, and ever since that I have taken my rain shields to him for free mending. That was all the fee I received for that case too."

"I had the secrets of my own lodge offered to me as payment for a service," said one attorney, who belongs to several secret orders. "I was sitting in my office one day when a well dressed woman came in and wanted advice. Her husband, to whom she was but recently married, was a member of a secret society.

"'I think it's perfectly horrid of him, too,' she said, 'to have secrets and not to tell them to me. When he married me, he said he would share everything with me, and the first thing I ask almost he won't do. Can't you make him?'

"I asked her to what lodge he belonged, and she told me the name of an order of which I myself was a member. Then she went on:

"'I tell you what, if you will make him tell them to me, I will tell them to you, to pay you for making him do what I want. That's fair, isn't it? I should think you would like to know such things; need them in your business, you know.'

"I didn't accept that fee."

"I had a good offer from one woman that I did accept," said another attorney, "for it was too good to refuse, although it was not in cash. I had represented her in an action for divorce, and after the suit had been won she wanted me to accept part payment in handmade lace. The samples of lace she showed me were exquisite, so I told her it would be all right. She gave me about ten yards of the lace, and it was worth every cent of what was credited to her for it."

"I was paid in washing for a divorce I secured," said a well known lawyer. "A woman came to me one time with a tale of woe about her husband, and wanted me to get a divorce for her. She said that she didn't want any work done for her for nothing, but that she was not able to pay money. She would do my washing for 25 weeks, though, if I would free her from her husband. She refused to let me act in charity for her, and as she wanted a divorce so that she could marry another man I accepted her offer, and she washed away, literally, her marriage ties."

"I'll tell you of one of my fees," said another legal light. "I was defending a man who was charged with having killed a dog out in Columbia county. The first action brought against him was defective, and while the plaintiff's counsel was writing out a warrant I took my man to the door and told him to get out of the county—the justice's office was on the border line—as quick as he could. In my hurry to get him out of the county I forgot to collect my fee, and I never saw him again."

MEN AT THE OFFICE, WOMEN IN THE HOME, CHILDREN AT SCHOOL,

Who are overworked mentally or physically derive great benefit from Milburn's Pills.

They supply the necessary elements for making good the wear and tear incurred by the present mode of life now prevalent in this age of business and social life.

Every day in the week and every week in the year men, women and children are suffering from nervousness brought on by their efforts to keep up to the modern "high pressure" mode of life necessary to this age.

Thousands find life a burden and others an early grave.

Overwork is often the cause, as it strains the Nervous System and causes Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Faint and Dizzy Spells, and General Debility.

The blood becomes weak and watery and eventually causes decline.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are indicated for all diseases arising from a weak and debilitated condition of the nerve centres.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific we are receiving letters from people who have used Milburn's Pills with great benefit.

Here are two. Others will be sent on application.

NORTONDALE, N.B., Jan. 2nd, 1901.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—I have suffered for a number of years with a smothering sensation caused by a weak heart.

My whole system was run down and I was very nervous and could not sleep.

I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and by the time I had taken them I was perfectly cured and can recommend them highly.

My mother was also subject to heart trouble and was so bad that the doctors said she could not live.

She took your pills and says they were the means of curing her.

Yours truly,
MRS. WM. CUMB.

INWOOD, Ont., April 2nd, 1900.

The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—Some time ago I was so run down that I could not do any work.

I had distressing shortness of breath, my stomach would be sour and I could scarcely eat anything.

My heart palpitated badly and caused faint and dizzy spells.

I felt weak and nervous, and gave up all hope of ever being cured until my husband procured two boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and since taking them I feel like a different person. I have been well and able to work ever since.

Yours truly,
MRS. EDMOND BROWN.

REMARKABLE GRAVEYARD.

In It Are Buried Only Men Killed by a United States Marshal.

Hec Bruner, a United States marshal of the Indian Territory in the early days, enjoys the rare distinction of having a cemetery named after him. And the strange part of it is no one is buried there except his own victims. There are 28 mounds in the cemetery. Under each lie the bones of some bad man who brushed up against Bruner and got the worst of it.

When Bruner was marshal, the territory was about as wild as a country ever gets. It was filled with horse thieves, cattle thieves, train robbers and desperadoes of all kinds. A law abiding, peaceable citizen didn't stand much show. Murders were so common that they were not considered news. Theft attracted no attention whatever except from the ones who suffered loss. The country was run as near along anarchistic lines as the most ardent anarchist of New York or Madrid could hope. Little attention was given to the "consent of the governed." The desperado with the quickest movement of his shooting hand and the most nerve ruled the roost.

That was the condition up until Hec Bruner was appointed United States marshal. When he took charge of the office, he decided to revolutionize things and make the Indian Territory "a good place to live in." His friends laughed at him, although they knew he had nerve. To go up against the notorious gangs of this country, they claimed, was foolishness. It might result in cleaning out a gang or two, but in the end would result in the marshal being wiped off the map. What was the use of endangering one's own life to make trouble for the desperadoes? they would ask. To this Bruner replied that he would drive the opening wedge toward civilizing the territory if it cost him his life the very first day.

He stuck to his resolution, and he didn't lose his life either, but he had several narrow escapes. He was punctured by bullets until his frame could be "used for a sieve," and he had his blood spilled in many a fight, but not enough of it at any one time to make him bite the dust.

While the desperadoes were making it interesting for Bruner he was keeping them busy. He was a dead shot, and whenever he pulled the trigger on his man it meant a separation of soul and body. There was no discount on that. Bruner began to hunt down the desperadoes. The first one he killed was buried in a grove south of his place. The second one was also laid there. And so it went until the carcasses of 28 bad men who had met death at the hands of Bruner while he was acting in the line of duty were buried in that grove. A rail fence was run around the graves, and the cemetery was named "Bruner's Graveyard." Only one grave in the yard is marked with a marble headstone. That is the grave of a noted horse thief. His pals chipped in and bought the tombstone because he was a "good fellow." All the rest of the graves are marked with wooden slabs. Many of them are inclosed with slab fences, while others are inclosed with rails laid in hog pen fashion.

After Bruner got his graveyard pretty well filled up the desperadoes began to realize that he meant business, and whenever one would hear that Bruner wanted him he would come into town and give himself up rather than run the risk of being the next one to occupy space in Bruner's graveyard. From that time on Bruner had an easy time. He had accomplished his object. He had driven the entering wedge in the civilization of the toughest country the sun ever shone on.

Catarrhozone Cures Child of Catarrh.

Perth, Ont.—"I cannot withhold my testimony as to the great value of Catarrhozone as a remedy for Catarrh, one bottle having cured my daughter of that trouble, and I heartily recommend it to all suffering from that disease. No house should be without it." Mrs. J. A. Morris.

So pleasant, babies use it; so safe, grandmothers employ it; so certain to quickly relieve and cure that doctors, lawyers, merchants and public speakers rely upon Catarrhozone as their standby for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Hay Fever. It is cheap because it lasts so long, and because it is so sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it. Every dollar outfit is guaranteed to cure, or your money back. Small size, 25c., druggists or by mail. A trial sent for 10c, by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Canada, or Hartford, Conn., U.S.

Romance of Cupid and Psyche.

The loveliest face in antique sculpture is that of the Psyche at Naples. Psyche was the daughter of a king and of such incomparable beauty that she aroused the jealousy of Venus, who charged her son Cupid to inspire the girl with love for some mortal.

But Cupid himself fell a victim to her beauty and carried her off to a fairy palace, where he, always invisible and requiring her to promise that she would not look on him with her mortal eyes, visited her every night. Prompted, however, by her jealous sisters and by her own curiosity, she one night took a lamp to look upon him as he slept. A drop of oil which she spilled wakened him, and he vanished. After suffering long persecution at the hands of Venus the wrath of the goddess was appeased, and Cupid was permitted to marry Psyche.—Woman's Home Companion.

THE PRESS.

If you do not like vice and crime, change the light. If you look into a mirror and see a dirty face, do you wash the face of the mirror?

I do not want a press which shows up the virtues of humanity and not the faults, but let us have more truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.—Dr. Lyman Abbott.

Despite the defects of the American press it holds up a mirror of the whole world's affairs. The mirror may not be the right kind, but its tendency is to lead the people to self consciousness.

"77"

A cold is usually caused by checked circulation, known by a chill or shiver. Dr. Humphryes' "77" starts the blood coursing through the veins until it reaches the extremities, when the feet warm up and the Cold or Grip is broken, while its tonicity sustains the flagging energies.

HE CURSED THE TOWN

END OF THE FIRST CAPITAL OF ILLINOIS PROPHESIED BY AN INDIAN.

The Destruction of the Town of Kaskaskia Was In Accordance With the Last Words of the Chief Who Died For a Woman's Love.

Since the waters of the Mississippi river washed away the last vestige of Kaskaskia, the first capital of Illinois, an old legend that contained the prophecy of the total destruction of the once flourishing little city has been recalled. Kaskaskia was situated on a peninsula at the junction of the Kaskaskia and the Mississippi rivers, and in 1882 the Mississippi river cut its way through the peninsula, leaving the remnant of the town on an island. The water continued to wash away the rich alluvial deposits on which Kaskaskia was built until, late in 1900, the last foot of the land where the town once stood disappeared. This singular ending of Kaskaskia's once splendid ambitions has recalled to the superstitious the story that the town was cursed in the eighteenth century by an Indian who had been wronged by one of the leading citizens.

Jean Benard came to this country from France in 1698, bringing with him his wife and his 10-year-old daughter Marie. The family settled in Kaskaskia, where Benard established a merchandising business. The Frenchman soon became one of the most prosperous and most influential men of the town. Marie, his daughter, grew to be a beautiful woman, much courted by the most eligible young men of the new country. She was in no hurry to accept any of them, and her fame as a belle spread from Lake Michigan to the gulf of Mexico.

A young chief of the Kaskaskia tribe of Indians, having become converted to Christianity after several years of study under the tutelage of the Jesuits, built himself a house in Kaskaskia and was taken into partnership in one of the trading houses there. He was prosperous, handsome and well educated and was soon received into the homes of the white settlers. One night at a ball he happened to meet Marie Benard.

The girl was at once fascinated by the tall, fine looking Indian, who fell in love with her at first sight and made no secret of his admiration. But Benard pere soon noticed the attachment and forbade his daughter from communicating with the young Indian. To make sure that there would be no more meetings Benard used his influence to prevent the chief from attending any of the social entertainments given in Kaskaskia.

But love always finds a way, and the young couple managed to see each other despite all the precautions of the girl's father. But Benard became aware of these meetings and again took means to prevent them. He was a man of wealth and influence, and he had the Indian forced out of his partnership in the trading company.

The Indian left Kaskaskia. For almost a year nothing was heard of him, and Benard thought that his daughter had forgotten her lover, for she appeared gay and careless, and she accepted with apparent pleasure the attentions of a young Frenchman. One night when a large ball at Kaskaskia was at its height Marie Benard disappeared.

Those who searched for Marie discovered that the young chief of the Kaskaskians had been seen that evening in the town, and the conclusion was at once reached that the girl had eloped with him. Benard at once organised a party to go in pursuit of the fugitives. As there was a heavy snow on the ground, their trail was easily discovered and followed. The Indian and Marie had crept away afoot, and as their pursuers were supplied with fast horses the young lovers were captured after a day's chase about 40 miles from Kaskaskia. Their destination had been the French settlement at St. Louis, where the Indian had provided a home for his wife.

The Indian surrendered without resistance, and the posse started on the journey back to Kaskaskia, taking the two captives. Most of the men who composed Benard's party wanted to kill the Indian instantly, but Benard would not allow it, for he said that they should leave him to deal with his daughter's lover.

When the party reached Kaskaskia, the girl was placed in the convent there. Then Benard took the Indian to the bank of the Mississippi and, binding him tightly to a log, turned him adrift in the river. As the helpless Indian floated away to his death he raised his eyes to heaven and cursed Benard, who, he declared, would die a violent death. The Indian's last words were a prophecy that within 200 years the waters which were then bearing him away would sweep from the earth every vestige of the town, so that only the name would be left.

The unhappy girl died in the convent. Benard was killed in 1712 in a duel. The last trace of Kaskaskia has been obliterated, and the superstitious declare that the Indian's curse has had something to do with the passing of the once flourishing town. On dark and stormy nights the ghost of the Indian is said to appear. The specter, with strong arms bound and face upturned, floats slowly by on the river where the stream sweeps by the site of the vanished city in which Marie Benard once lived and in which she died mourning the red man that she loved.

BRONCHITIS

may mean a mere cold or a chronic incurable inflammation of wind-pipes.

The quickest relief, for a cold, is also the most effectual balm for the worst condition of wind-pipes and lungs.

It takes the edge off a cold in a night, and relieves it progressively—one forgets it after a little.

An old bronchitis, however, is obstinate. Nothing restores the tissues, when once destroyed; and an old bronchitis has gradually impared and partly destroyed the lining of those small pipes between throat and lungs.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the balm; it sooths if it cannot restore.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

THE DOMINIE.

For the first time in its history the British Church Missionary society has passed the £400,000 point in its annual receipts.

A feature of some 50 Congregational churches are men's clubs which aim to keep up good fellowship and secure concerted action on matters of municipal reform.

"I was never in debt," said the late bishop of London, "until I came to be the head of this see." He then had to keep up two houses, and the act of 1819 forbids the letting of either of these.

A large staff of women is employed at the Vatican for the sole purpose of keeping the pope's wardrobe in perfect condition. No spot or stain may disfigure the garments worn by his holiness, and as he always appears in white one wearing, even of a few hours, deprives the robes of their freshness.

A PLEASANT DISAPPOINTMENT.

A Cheltenham Man is Agreeably Surprised---An Old Grudge Paid.

Mr. Turner After a Successful Effort to Get Rid of One Enemy, Finds That in Doing so he Has Put Away Another.

CHELTENHAM, Ont., Mar. 27. (Special.)—A fortunate man, indeed, is Mr. Charles Turner, of this place. For years Mr. Turner has been suffering with kidney disease. It gave him great pain, and for the last two or three years rheumatism has added to his already heavy burden of sickness, and he has seldom known an hour free from pain. Not associating the rheumatism with the old kidney trouble, and despairing of curing the former, Mr. Turner bought and used Dodd's Kidney Pills to try and dispose of the kidney trouble. He used a few boxes, and the pain in his back kept getting less and less, and finally went away. All the unpleasant systems of kidney trouble disappeared, and what was still more strange to Mr. Mr. Turner, he has not since been bothered with rheumatism.

He is so grateful for the miraculous results of the treatment that he has been cheerfully telling his friends and neighbours his experience. He says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured me of a long standing case of kidney disease. I was also a sufferer from rheumatism and although I took the pills for the kidney trouble, I was surprised to find that when this disease was cured the rheumatism also disappeared. This was over a year ago, and I have not been troubled since. I used in all six boxes. The first two boxes did not appear to do me any good, but I persevered, and the result is that I am now a healthy man."

Of course, to those who recognize rheumatism as what it really is, a symptom of kidney disease, there is nothing wonderful about Mr. Turner's experience. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Kidney Trouble, and with it Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease and any of the other many forms in which it may and often does appear.

A Funny Custom.

In southern Italy one of the peculiar customs of the peasants is the wearing of price marks on new suits of clothes. Whereas in other countries the dealer's ticket and tag are removed the moment a suit is bought in the sunny toe and heel of the European "boot" they are fastened on the tighter and worn until they fall off. The object of this, presumably, is to show neighbors that you have new clothes, bought on such a day and costing so much at So-and-so's.

THE PARTITION OF MR. HYKES.

"Studiums" of the South and How They Become Doctors.

Della, our southern importation, was at her duties when I went into the kitchen. A married friend living in New York at what Della called "One Hundred and Fifthy-seventh avenue" had invited our cook to pay her a visit. She accosted me with a shake of her woolly head:

"Miss Rufe, w'ile Ah'm in Noo Yawk Ma'y she wants Ah should go t' a doctah 'bout mah teef."

"Well, Della," said I, "why not? You have been planning to have them pulled."

Suddenly a gloomy black face was turned upon me. "Ah don' know." She gazed across the table, uncertain as to whether she should proceed. "Ah don' know. Ye see, Miss Rufe"—another pause and appealing glance—"they's doctahs 'n they's studiums. Ah might git in a studium's office."

"A studium?" I repeated dully.

"Yaas'm. Donche know? Ye has to be a studium 'fore ye kin be a doctah."

"Oh," I assented.

"An ye cain't tell 'em. Looks jes' like doctahs. Acts jes' like doctahs. Got bottles round an chairs an tables, jes' like doctahs. But, Miss Rufe"—in a burst of horror—"ef they's studiums they kills ye."

"Oh, no," I feebly gasped.

"Yaas'm. Down t' my home, down t' 'Gusta, they cut Mr. William Hykes all up."

"Well," I urged, "wasn't Mr. William Hykes dead?"

"Yaas'm," somewhat reluctantly. "An othah times they kills 'em. Once they was a studium, an he was fixin t' kill a man 'at was goin ovah a bridge. An th' man, he says"—in a sepulchral chant—"'Be suah ye kill me dead. Be suah ye kill me dead.' An th' studium, he was scairt, an he run away. Mos' times"—in a brisker tone—"they kills 'em."

"Oh, no," I foolishly insisted. "Why, no. If they did, Della, they would be hanged."

"Not down t' my home; not down t' 'Gusta," said she. "It's this way, Miss Rufe: They has t' kill 'em, or less they cain't be a doctah. They kills 'em an cuts 'em up."

So was revealed to me the medical test of courage. If they cannot "cut 'em up," they show too poor a spirit for a future physician.

Against ignorance the gods fight in vain. I cast about in my mind for arguments that should convince.

"But, Della," I finally repeated, "don't you know that would be murder? And murderers would be hanged."

She extended a pitying smile to my inexperience.

"Not down t' my home," the soft drawl persisted; "not down t' 'Gusta. They cut Mr. William Hykes all up."

I was dumb. I had no powers of persuasion to controvert the fact of the dismemberment of Mr. William Hykes.

A Domestic Disagreement.

They had been married three months and were having their thirteenth quarrel—always an unlucky number.

"You only married me for my money," he said.

"I didn't do anything of the kind," she retorted.

"Well, you didn't marry me because you loved me."

"I know I didn't."

"In heaven's name what did you marry me for then?"

"Just to make that hateful Susan Miller you were engaged to cry her eyes out because she had to give you up."

He fell down on the white bear skin rug at her feet and rolled over in it till he looked like a huge snowball.

"Great Cæsar, woman," he shrieked, "what have you done? Didn't you know I married you just because she threw me over?"

By the time dinner was ready their loving young hearts were once more so full of sunshine that aprons were absolutely necessary.

The troopers lined the big steamer's deck from stem to stern, and they were given an enthusiastic send-off as the steamer moved slowly away from the pier.

TESTIMONIALS

February, 1900.
"I cannot express in a letter how I suffered during the past five months with Salt Rheum. My face was covered with running sores, and my hands were in such a condition I could not do anything. After trying various remedies I at last took BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, which completely cured me." MRS. LUCY BRONTMIRE, Brinston's Corners, Ont.

February 22, 1898.
DANIEL MCNAMARA, Buckingham, Que., writes: "About a year and a half ago I was very much run down and was suffering from eczema. I tried several doctors, but instead of getting better I became worse, the disease gradually spreading all over my head and body. I went to the hospital, but the doctors there told me recovery was impossible. I came home, and was then told by a friend to try BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS, which I did. I took three bottles, when I was entirely cured; not a speck is left on my body or head, and I have enjoyed the best of health ever since.

MISS NELLIE FIELDS, of Bray's Crossing, Ont., says: "I wish to let the public know the good BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS has done me. Three years ago I was laid up for two months with Salt Rheum. MILLINERY OPENINGS.

Remarks on Some of the Styles Shown This Year.

A millinery showroom is a paradise for women, and however uninitiated a man may be into the beauty points of feminine headwear, he can hardly fail to appreciate and enjoy such beauty as is exhibited in Peterborough this year. It was the privilege of an Examiner reporter during the week to walk through some of the local millinery salons and view the delightful confections specially selected from the best of models of the London, Parisian and New York milliners.

Amongst the Parisian artists that are represented one finds such names as Louise Pujol, Madame Pouyanne, Linn Faulkner, Esther Mayer, Suzanne Blum, Caroline Reboux, and others of that scintillating firmament of stars. Side by side with these imported foreign ideals were creations, fashioned by the local millinery experts, and which were hardly distinguishable from the others, except by the price marks. The prevailing styles are built very low, but so well shaped and banded to fit the head, that once tried on you become assured of their becomingness. One particular feature that is apparent in all of this season's headgear is the lightness, both in weight and effect. Transparency prevails in all trimmings, such as all-over straws, crinoline braids, chiffons, malines, gauzes, lace, silver and gold ribbons, etc. The predominating colors are blush pink, wood browns, ciqu marine, and turquoise and also white and black, pastel and violet shades.

The showing of flowers is very extensive varied and beautiful. Roses and foliage prevail largely, some of the roses are greatly exaggerated in size. There was also some very natural-looking garden roses and sweet little June roses in clusters. Black, and black and gold flowers are some of the novelties that will be in vogue this season. They give the air of superiority to many of the gaily-coloured hats. Foliage evidently will be used very extensively, and looks natural either with or without the flowers that match. Large poppies and roses veiled over with chiffon are amongst the latest ideas. Another line that will figure largely in trimmings are fancy ornaments, such as buckles of various shapes, bars, slides and long pins in antique gilt, oxydised silver, rhinestones, jet, steel and enamel. Many untrimmed hats are shown. The very latest conceptions from the largest houses in England, France and America. Ready-to-wear hats include novelties in Alpine, Tourist, Sailor, L'Aigion, Turban and various other styles in straw and stitched silk and canvas hats. For children there are lovely little hats in Kate Greenway and Capaline styles, both in silk and muslin; Bonnets in Mother Goose, Normandy, Granny, and Bo-Peep styles; Tams, Sailor Caps in cloth, leather and pique: Scotch and Brownie Caps, and Straw Sailor Hats.

PORT HOPE'S ANXIETY.

Over the Southern Terminus of the Trent Valley Canal.

Here is what the Port Hope Guide has to say concerning the southern terminus of the Trent Valley Canal.—"What steps have been taken by those deeply interested in gaining the ear of the Government to the advantages of the above canal via Port Hope over the Trenton route? Come! Come! gentlemen, it will not do to sit down and dream about the building of a canal. This is no time for dreamers. "Up and be doing," is our watchword, and no stone should be left unturned to forward our views and place them before the minister who has this matter under his jurisdiction. Public meetings should be held, and our views iterated and reiterated until the ears of the minister tingle with our onslaught. Other towns are holding public meetings and sending influential delegations to lay their views before the Government. Port Hope should at the very least, take as much interest in this very, to us, important measure, as is taken in the old boys' re-union."

TWO LANDSLIDES.

Ottawa and Gatineau Railway Obstructed—Men Cleaning the Tracks.

Ottawa, March 30.—The biggest landslide in the history of the Ottawa and Gatineau Railway occurred Thursday night about a mile and a half this side of Chelsea. The whole side of a cliff, 188 feet in width, slid down on the railway tracks, and covered them over to a great height. A gang of 100 men, under Roadmaster Brennan, started work yesterday clearing the tracks. They worked all day, and just as they had made a clean passage for the trains about 4 o'clock in the afternoon another landslide took place. The men are at work again to-day. The landslide will not interfere with the train service. Trains in the meantime run to either side of the obstruction, and passengers are transferred across.

THE WAR OFFICE HORSE BUYER.

Partial Information As to the Plans of Lieut.-Col. Dent.

Montreal, March 30.—"We shall purchase 1,000 horses as soon as possible and ship them to England by way of Boston or Portland, the point to be decided later. I shall see to the establishment by the home authorities of the remount depots in various districts throughout Canada. My plans cannot be definitely stated until I confer with His Excellency the Governor-General, but I shall certainly pay a visit to the Northwest brfore my return." Lieut.-Col. Dent, appointed by the British Government to buy horses in Canada for the British army, spoke thus yesterday at the Windsor Hotel here. Lieut.-Col. Dent stated that he would proceed to Ottawa on Monday, where he will have an interview with His Excellency the Governor-General. Until this consultation took place it would be impossible to say what his movements would be. He would stay two days only at the Capital, and then would proceed to execute his commission. He had a roving commission and could not yet give definite information as to points to be visited and the dates of his arrival at each place.

SOME COMMON WORDS.

A Lecture on the Manner In Which They Are Misused.

Two correspondents who cherish a respect for this noble tongue of ours have written to us expressing a desire that we say something more about the misuse of common English words. One of them calls attention to the persistent use of "balance" for "remainder," and the other rightly objects to the employment of "lurid" to signify "brilliant" or "highly colored." These are fair specimens of the abuse of good words. The employment of "balance" for "remainder" is the outcome of the habit of business men in speaking of balancing their books. At the completion of the process they find either a profit or a loss, and they call it a "balance," and that is precisely what it is not. If there were a balance, there would be no profit, no loss, no remainder. It is an absolute impossibility for a balance and a remainder to be the same thing, and yet most persons speak of them as identical.

Now, will some one please tell us what a "helpmeet" is? We frequently read of men whose wives are helpmeets, but no one explains what a helpmeet is. The Bible, which is written in pretty good English, quotes the Creator as saying, "I will make an help meet for him," which simply means that God decided to produce a help suitable for Adam. But who made one word out of that noun followed by the adjective? And why? What is the matter with "wife?"

Who authorized the use of the word "experience" as a verb, and why? "John is experiencing a great deal of trouble," is only an affected way of saying that he is having trouble. True, the trouble is part of his experience, but it is only mental laziness of the worst sort that leads persons to turn all nouns into verbs. And it narrows one's vocabulary.

Who set the pernicious habit of speaking of earth as "dirt?" Why, some good mother, of course. She saw that when her son made mud pies in the happy days of youth he came home with a dirty face. But Lord Palmerston cleverly said, "Dirt is matter in the wrong place." The boy's face was dirty because earth was out of place on it. Good white paint would also have made his face dirty, yet the same thing would be used to make a door clean.

Who authorized the common use of "appreciate" for "enjoy." A man may perfectly appreciate something that he does not enjoy at all. To appreciate a thing is to value it at its true worth. If it is not worth anything and a man recognizes that fact, he appreciates it just as much as the lady appreciates the novel which is "perfectly lovely."

And, worst of all, why use "get" for "have?" "My son has got long arms." Nonsense! He did not get them; he has them, but there is no arm shop where he could go and get them.

These are but a few of scores of misused words.

To cure a cold in a night—use Vapo-Cresolene. It has been used extensively during more than twenty-four years. All Druggists.

Put Your Best Foot First.

People who habitually depreciate themselves, who keep their best stock on the top shelf and put their worst goods in the windows, may expect to be taken at their own valuation. One of the ingredients of success in this age of competition is an unwavering self confidence, and another is a habit of making the most of whatever talent or acquisition is one's own and therefore an element of advantage. This is very different from mere conceit, from vanity and blustering. For the carrying on of life agreeably, for intercourse with society and for daily happiness we should cultivate the accomplishment which puts the best foot first.—Collier's Weekly.

Willing to Oblige.

"Villain, do your worst!" hissed Marjorie.

Mondaunt bowed and lighted a cigar.

"My doctor, in whom I have great confidence, advises me that smoking is positively the worst thing I can do," he explained, observing the look of perplexity which had now come into the young girl's glorious eyes.

Loss of Appetite.

A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigour, tone.

The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla—that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and everybody says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.

THE WOMAN WAS MURDERED.

Verdict of the Coroner's Jury at Galt in Case of Mrs. Cowan.

Galt, Ont., March 30.—The adjourned coroner's inquest relative to the death of the late Mrs. William Cowan, who was found dead in her house on Pollock avenue, last Tuesday morning, was resumed at 1.30 yesterday afternoon before Coroner Radford of Galt and County Crown Attorney Bowlby of Berlin. Some evidence that would appear to support the murder theory was brought out.

Deceased was last seen alive at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Two men, who acted as if somewhat intoxicated, were seen at the gate of deceased's late residence at 11 o'clock Sunday night, one of whom was overheard remarking to his companion: "Now, be sure you don't say anything about this." To which the other consented. These men moved down the street on the approach of another man driving in a rig, but returned, and were seen leaving Mrs. Cowan's house in a hurry about an hour later.

Another suspicious circumstance was that a window large enough for easy ingress and egress was found open, something unusual in this case.

One of the medical men who assisted at the post-mortem examination gave it as his opinion that deceased was not intoxicated when she met death.

The jury brought in a verdict "that deceased came to her death by the hands of some person or persons unknown, and recommended that the Ontario Government be requested to take the necessary steps towards a further investigation of the matter."

Ontario Fruit at the Pan-American.

Toronto, March 30.—The allotment of space at the Pan-American has finally taken place, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been fortunate in securing 1,000 square feet. When it is stated that Ontario's exhibit will be placed between those of California and Florida, it will be seen at once how important it is to have an attractive exhibit of Ontario fruits. It is much to be desired that every part of Ontario shall be represented, so that we can show to the crowds of visitors that our fruit area is not limited to one or two small sections. Canadians will be as much interested as Americans, and will be looking for a first-class display. A comprehensive series of awards is now being arranged, and it is hoped that Ontario will do fully as well at Buffalo in 1901 as at Chicago in 1893. The Department has appointed Mr. W. H. Bunting of St. Catharines, superintendent, and preparations are now going forward. Fruit growers who have, or expect to have, fruit suitable to exhibit should at once place themselves in communication with him. The credit of our province is at stake, and everyone who can help to advertise the fine climate and productive soil of Ontario should lend a willing hand. The exhibit must be in place by May 1st, when apples from cold storage, fruits and vegetables in glass, and evaporated fruits will be placed on the tables. After that fresh fruit will be sent forward every week.

Boxing Bouts in Toronto.

Toronto, March 30.—The Crescent Athletic Club has just matched Ole Olson of Chicago and Jack McClelland of Pittsburg, two of the best living featherweights, to box 20 rounds in the Mutual street rink on Good Friday night, the date being selected on account of the presence there of the lacrosse and bicycle delegates in the city. Jack Road and Jimmy Smith will clash in the 10 round preliminary.

To Abolish Legislature Council.

Halifax, March 30.—The Government introduced a bill in the Legislative Council yesterday to abolish that body.

The motion for the first reading was lost, the Councillors refusing to abolish themselves by 15 to 2.

THE MARRIAGE VALID

Judge Archibald's Decision in the Delpit-Cote Case.

RELIGIONS EQUAL IN CANADA.

The Common Law of Marriage in the Dominion—Statement of the Case—Laws Are to Be Interpreted in Favor of Any Marriage Consummated—An Appeal Is Probable.

Montreal, April 1.—The long expected judgment on the inscription in law in the famous Delpit-Cote marriage was given by Mr. Justice Archibald on Saturday morning. The circumstances of the case are well known, and can be briefly summarized as follows: In May, 1893, the Rev. W. S. Barnes, a minister of the Unitarian Church, solemnized the marriage of Mr. E. Delpit and Miss Cote, and, after the parties had lived together as husband and wife for several years, three children having been born, Mr. Delpit asked the Ecclesiastical Tribunal of Justice to declare his marriage null and void, on the ground that, he and his consort being both Roman Catholics, the Protestant minister who married them was not a competent officer to perform the ceremony, and his act was of no effect. The Ecclesiastical Court granted Mr. Delpit's demand, and he then asked the civil court to confirm that judgment.

The Judge's Findings.

His Honor Judge Archibald delivered judgment in favor of the standing of the inscription in law, thus upholding the marriage. His findings in detail were as follows:

1. Considering that there exists in this province no established church, but that all denominations of Christians are perfectly free and equal;
2. Considering that marriage is a contract of natural law, that belongs to the whole body of the population, without distinction of religious belief;
3. Considering that our law relating to marriage was enacted without reference to the religious beliefs of any section of the population, but as a general law to secure the publicity of marriage, and the authenticity of its proof;
4. Considering that neither the code, nor the authority of England, since the cession of this country, nor of this country, under the French regime, required any religious ceremony as an essential of the validity of marriage;
5. Considering that marriage is a civil contract, the obligation of which, however, has, with most Christian nations, been enforced by considerations relating to religion;
6. Considering that in the interpretation of any law relating to marriage every presumption must tend towards the validity of marriage;
7. Considering that articles 128 and 129 of the civil code require that marriage be solemnized publicly and before a competent officer, and that all persons authorized to keep registers of civil status are competent officers, and that the literal interpretation of these articles would exclude any limitations such as that set up by the plaintiff;
8. Considering that there is no ground to limit the general application of the articles in question, except such as would be based upon the supposition that the law intended to confer upon the particular religious bodies an obligatory jurisdiction over their members, which is absolutely contrary to the complete freedom of religious profession prevailing in this country;
9. Considering, therefore, that the said Rev. William S. Barnes was not an incompetent officer to receive the consent of the parties to the marriage in question;
10. Considering that at the cession of this country, the function of all courts in previous existence absolutely ceased and determined, and could not be revived, or re-established without the expression of the will of the new sovereignty;
11. Considering that since the said cession the new sovereign authority has never constituted any ecclesiastical court in this country, and that no such court has existed, or does exist therein;
12. Considering that all the different religious organizations in this country are purely voluntary associations, free and independent of the state, with regard to all matters of faith and doctrine, but having no coercive jurisdiction over any of their members;
13. Considering that actions for annulment of marriage are civil actions and are specially confided to courts of civil jurisdiction;
14. Considering, therefore, the decree of the ecclesiastical authority pleaded by the plaintiff, as being null and void, and of no legal effect;
15. Considering plaintiff's action wholly unfounded, and defendant's demurrer well founded, doth maintain said demurrer and dismiss plaintiff's action with costs.

It is said Mr. Delpit will appeal from Judge Archibald's decision.

It is said Mr. Delpit will appeal from Judge Archibald's decision.

Aliens Sent Out of Canada.

Ottawa, April 1.—This year, for the first time, a census will be taken of the population of Anticosti Island.

The Department of Labor has been notified of the deportation on Saturday of six more United States citizens from Blind River, in New Ontario. They had been imported from Bay City, Mich., to work for the Edey Lumber Company of Bay City. A batch of five aliens had been deported on Friday from Blind River.

The Canada Gazette of Saturday contained the appointment of Mr. Firman McClure, ex-M.P., as chief census officer of Nova Scotia. Mr. McClure died on Friday. It is understood Prof. Oakes of Acadia College, Wolfville, N.S., has since been appointed in the late Mr. McClure's place.

Mr. Harris Relinquishes His Seat.

London, April 1.—As a result of the evidence heard at the trial of the petition alleging that agents of Mr. Frederic Rutherford Harris were guilty of corruption in the election at Monmouth, counsel for Mr. Harris, at the resumption of the hearing on Saturday, announced that Mr. Harris, under the circumstances, must relinquish his seat in the House of Commons. Mr. Harris was the confidential agent of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, and won for the Conservatives a seat which had long been held by the Liberals.

LORD SALISBURY SICK.

A Case of Influenza Which Has Now Run the Normal Case.

London, April 1.—The following bulleting regarding the condition of the Premier was issued last evening:

"Lord Salisbury was attacked with influenza March 28. The illness has run its normal course, and has been attended by the usual prostration. The temperature, however, has been almost normal for the last two days, and His Lordship's strength is improved, with increasing power of taking food. It is hoped that he will be able shortly to get a change to the South, which he had been contemplating at the time of the attack.

BOERS ARE GIVING UP

Gen. French Has Taken Fifty-One More Prisoners.

COM. PRINSLOO IS CAPTURED.

Com. Englebrecht, Another Boer Leader, Has Surrendered—The Clearing of the Eastern Transvaal Continues—Women Taken to Utrecht—Kritzinger Hard Pressed—Boers Profited by Armistice.

London, April 1.—The War Office has received advices from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, March 30, reporting the capture of 72 Boers in Orange River Colony, and officially announcing that General French has taken 51 prisoners and received the surrender of 93 Boers, as already announced in press despatches. Lord Kitchener also reports upon the recent wrecking of trains at several points.

COM. PRINSLOO CAPTURED.

Commandant Englebrecht, Surrendered—A Great Sweep.

London, April 1.—A special despatch from Standerton says the Imperial Light Horse have captured Commandant Prinsloo and a convoy of 28 wagons. Commandant Englebrecht, the despatch says, has surrendered. The British are sweeping the Eastern Transvaal clear of everything useful to the Boers. All standing crops have been destroyed, but the women and children are being cared for. Five hundred of them have been conveyed to Utrecht, where their wants are well attended to.

BOER REFUGEES FLOCKING IN.

Pretoria's Population Being Augmented Almost Daily.

Pretoria, March 30.—A considerable number of Boer refugees, men, women and children, continue to flock into the city daily from the outlying districts. They are being sent to the detention camp at Irene.

A train from Johannesburg was fired upon near the Kaalfontein station on Thursday night, but except for the wounding of two mules no damage was done.

A train going east was derailed by the Boers near Balmoral last night and four of the trucks were destroyed.

BRITISH CHASING KRITZINGER.

Three Columns Are After Him and Pressing Him Hard.

Cape Town, March 30. — The columns of Cols. Gorringe, Crabbe and DeLisle are still actively engaged in pursuing Commandant Kritzinger. It is said that this Boer commander had despaired of being able to cross the Orange River.

It is said that the negotiations for peace between Lord Kitchener and Gen. Botha have severely hampered Gen. French in his operations in the Eastern Transvaal. While the negotiations were in progress the Boers seized the opportunity to break through Gen. French's lines in small parties and steal to the northward.

It is believed that Gens. Botha and Viljoen practically agreed to accept the British terms of surrender, but when the Boer commandants met they were contemptuously rejected.

Boers Derail a Train

Pretoria, March 30.—The Boers derailed and plundered a freight train near Johannesburg last night.

Burnham Pleaded Guilty.

Stratford, Ont., April 1.—Z. Burnham, who pleaded guilty to obtaining money under false pretences from Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, will not receive his sentence from the police magistrate at present. To a subsequent charge of playing a similar game on Major Beattie of London he pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried by jury. He will therefore be remanded to jail to await trial at the June sessions of the County Court.

Fatal Explosion in a Mine.

Albuquerque, N. M., April 1.—A horrible explosion occurred Friday night in the Weaver mine at Gallup, operated by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. Three are known to have been killed outright and many others who were cut off in the mine are believed to have died from suffocation. Japanese laborers have been employed in the mines since the strike, but the killed were two white men and a negro.

Treachery at Gold Coast.

Accra, Gold Coast Colony, March 31.—Three hundred men of the British West African Regiment, who deserted at Coomassie, marched, armed, to Cape Coast Castle, where all business has been suspended owing to a fear that the deserters will loot the town. One hundred and twenty troops were despatched from Accra to Cape Coast Castle to-day to suppress the revolt.

ITALY TO JOIN FRANCE.

Would Break Up Triple Alliance and Tie Closer England and Germany.

London, April 1. — The next disturbance of the balance of power in Europe will be the withdrawal of Italy from the Triple Alliance. Italy is dissatisfied with the burdens imposed on her by the necessity of keeping up an armament proportionate to that of her two allies. Negotiations with France have been going on for some time. Austria's withdrawal of trade privilege is likely to hasten the union of France and Italy. The result will be the closer allaince of England and Germany.

Fenian Stephens' Funeral.

Dublin, April 1.—The funeral of James Stephens, leader of the Fenian movement of 1866, who died here last Friday, took place yesterday, the remains being interred in Glasnevin Cemetery, in the presence of a great assemblage of people, including delegates from the various national organizations. Michael Davitt was among the pall-bearers. The coffin was drawn by six horses with outriders, and covered by beautiful wreaths from political societies. An Irish flag floated over it. There were no speeches or demonstrations.

Goods Rotting on the Docks.

Marseilles, April 1.—In spite of the number of free dockers now working, quantities of perishable goods lie rotting on the docks. Twenty-one steams are awaiting discharge. The general strike, while it lasted, and the continuous suspension of most dock work, has done enormous injury to the commerce and industry of Marseilles. The calculations show an industrial loss of 25,000,000 francs, while the men have lost more than 2,000,000 francs in wages. Commerce here is almost at a complete standstill.

CAPTIVE AGUINALDO.

Filipino Chief Has Not Announced Future Policy Yet.

ADVERSE TO THE UNITED STATES

Gen. Funston Gets His Reward—United States Army Officers Defraud the Government Through the Commissary Department—A Quartermaster Already Arrested—Other Officers Suspected.

Manila, April 1.—In company with Col. Vellia, his chief of staff, and Dr. Barcelona, ex-Treasurer of the Filipino Government, Aguinaldo occupies one of the nicest apartments of the Malacanang Palace. He is closely guarded, but courteously treated.

Aguinaldo nervously paces the floor, and, deeply thinking, thrusts his hands through his hair. He smokes many cigars and cigarettes and has a hearty appetite. He speaks only a few words of English. He is conscious of his dignity but tries to talk pleasantly with his guards. He often praises the skill and audacity of Gen. Funston in effecting his capture, saying that only by strategy could he have been captured. It is said that Aguinaldo is very strongly adverse to reverting from his former attitude, but that he must regard the best interests of the Filipino people.

The sisters of Dr. Barcelona have called upon him, bringing a plentiful supply of linen. Aguinaldo is well supplied with money, and has ordered a supply of new clothes. He is careful of his personal appearance. He celebrated his thirty-second birthday the day before he was captured. The birthday festivities were prolonged, and only terminated upon the arrival of Gen. Funston.

Aguinaldo tries to read the American newspapers, and is anxious to learn the state of public opinion in the United States concerning Philippine affairs. He has again conferred with Gen. Trias and the Chief Justice Artellana, but his future intentions have not been announced. He spends much time seated by a barred window, watching the boats passing up and down the Pasig River.

The natives of Manila are undemonstrative concerning Aguinaldo's capture, and it is difficult to ascertain what the majority of them really think of it. It is certain that Aguinaldo's influence is less strong than formerly, though still great.

Funston a Brig.-General.

Washington, April 1.—The following important army appointments were announced at the White House Saturday:

To be Major-General, U. S. A.—Brig.-Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, vice Miles, promoted to Lieutenant-General.

To be Brigadier-Generals in the regular army—Col. Jacob H. Smith, 17th U. S. Infantry, Brigadier-General Volunteers, vice Dagget, retired.

Brig.-Gen. Funston, U. S. Volunteers, vice Wheaton, promoted.

A PHILIPPINE SCANDAL.

United States Officers Have Defrauded the Government.

Manila, April 1.—Interest in the capture and fate of Aguinaldo is well nigh overshadowed in Manila by sensational developments present and prospective of frauds in the Commissary Department. How widely these extend has not been ascertained, but enough is already known to justify the belief that they are far reaching.

Capt. Frederick J. Barrows of the 30th Volunteer Infantry, quartermaster of the Department of Southern Luzon, together with seven commissary sergeants, several civilian clerks, a prominent Government contractor, the assistant manager of the Hotel Oriente, the proprietors of three of the largest bakeries of Manila, a number of storekeepers and other persons have been arrested.

The investigation has scarcely begun, but thousands of sacks of flour, a quantity of bacon and wagon loads of other goods, all bearing Government marks, have been found in the possession of unauthorized persons.

It is alleged that the contractor in question, who has been doing a business of approximately $100,000 per month, has spent huge sums in entertaining officers.

A prominent commisary officer is accused of leading a scandalous and immoral life. It is ascertained that large quantities of stores have been lost or stolen in transit, and also that there is a shortage in the commissary depot.

New scandals are developed every day. Illicit transactions have been traced back to June, 1900, and it is possible that there are others of earlier date.

The exorbitant tariff on provisions makes the surreptitious sale of commissary supples immensely profitable.

It is understood that other United States officers may be arrested. Lieut. K. Sweet of the 46th Volunteer Infantry, is prosecuting the investigation under the direction of Col. Wilder, Chief of Police.

Oil Lamps in Paris.

Catarrh

The best authorities say, it is a disease of the blood.

Therefore local applications cannot cure.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

By thoroughly purifying the blood, this great medicine reduces the inflammation of the mucous membrane and stops all catarrhal discharges of the nose, throat, stomach, bowels, bladder and generative organs.

Catarrh is especially dangerous in persons who inherit or have acquired a predisposition to consumption.

In these and all other catarrhal cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla so thoroughly renovates the blood and restores strength and vigor that it permanently cures.

In fact, because of the character of the disease, and the peculiar merit of the remedy, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the common-sense treatment for catarrh.

"I was a sufferer from nasal catarrh, gradually growing worse. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla which completely cured me of that troublesome disease." MAUD DOAN, 1615 Arrow Ave., Indianapolis, Ind. Be sure to get

A WARNING TO RUSSIA.

England, Germany and Japan Unite on Opposing Manchurian Convention —New Triple Alliance.

Vienna, April 1.—The Allegemeine Zeitung, a newspaper which is in close touch with the Austrian Foreign Office, published the following note on Saturday:

"England, Germany and Japan have presented identical notes to Russia and China, warning them the signing of the Manchurian agreement will involve the partition of China. This combined action deters Russia from insisting on the signature of the agreement. France, while declining to co-operate with England, Germany and Japan, has intimated to Russia that she would regard the conclusion of the Manchurian treaty as an unfriendly act."

Will Be Signed in April.

London, April 1.—There is reason to believe, says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, that the Manchurian convention between Russia and China will be ratified in April.

The Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail, who records various indications of preparations for war on the part of Japan says:

Interviews have appeared with prominent statesmen, all breathing the war spirit, and expressing the general opinion that it is impossible to allow Russia a free hand in Manchuria. This is the gravest crisis from the point of view of Japan, since her war with China.

Cost of Clash at Tien Tsin.

London, April 1.—An English writer points out that trifling with the Anglo-Russian incident at the Tien Tsin railway siding will probably cost Great Britain at least £20,000,000 in hard cash. It was the news of this incident and the possibility of a conflict between Russia and Great Britain, which caused Gen. Botha's rejection of Gen. Kitchener's peace terms.

U. S. Gives a Hint to Russia.

Washington, April 1.—It is believed that the State Department has informally conveyed a hint to Russia that it might be well to furnish the powers copies of the Manchurian treaty to show that it is a mere modus vivendi and provides for Russian occupation of Manchuria only long enough to establish order so that the Czar's troops may be withdrawn.

Revolutionists Arrested.

London, April 1.—St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says: "A Revolutionary Committee composed of 72 members has been arrested after a desperate defence, the revolutionists firing at the police. Two secret revolutionary printing presses were seized in connection with the arrest.

"Altogether 3,600 arrests have been made. It is reported that some of the ministers now wear steel cuirassiers."

NEW ENGLISH BEAUTY.

Honorable Violet Vivian, the Heroine of Many Novels.

The world is blessed with so much feminine beauty to-day that a young woman must possess an uncommonly fair face in order to inspire widespread popular admiration with the adulation of poets and painters. Perhaps since Mrs. Langtry fairly startle London with her youthful physical perfection no like sensation has been known until the Hon. Violet Mary, sister of Lord Vivian and daughter of an ancient noble Cornish family, made her debut.

The house of Vivian, old and very honorable though it is, has not, in later times, known great wealth, so that the Hon. Violet and her twin sister, the Hon. Dorothy Maud, made a very modest entry into fashionable society. Almost at once the Hon. Dorothy was selected as a maid of honor to the Queen, and quite as promptly was her sister pronounced by competent judges to be the fairest nymph of every social gathering she attended. It was not very long before the opinion of the social powers was ratified by the artistic side of London, and the Hon. Violet very evidently supplied valuable inspiration for one of the most successful pictures that hung in the Royal Academy last spring. She has been compared to most of the famous beauties immortalized on canvas, and has been acknowledged as the heroine of more than one novel.

THE HONORABLE VIOLET VIVIAN.

Allied to her poetic beauty, Miss Vivian possesses as well a pretty wit softened by extreme sweetness of nature, and because of her very obliging disposition and the desire of dowagers to earn large sums of money at their charity bazaars, she is pursued with requests to serve as a flower vender, stall attendant — indeed, in any capacity where her beauty will serve as a conspicuous attraction, not only to appreciative swains, but equally enthusiastic women.

It is one of the charming features of this beauty's reign that little or no jealousy is excited by her superior perfection, and the attentions she everywhere commands. Women praise her, give place to her and admire her as generously as the men. By her sex she is conceded to possess the most wonderful head of hair in all England. Its golden chestnut color, rich natural wave and splendid abundance are all unrivaled, and yet, to the hand of the smart Parisian figaro it owes none of its splendor. It is inherited from her mother, who was a well-known Welsh beauty when she married Baron Vivian and made her home in Cornwall at stately and romantic Glynn House, which dates from the days of the seventh English Henry.

DIVISION OF CHINA.

THE PORTION OF TERRITORY THAT GREAT BRITAIN WOULD LIKE-

THE RICH YANGTSE VALLEY.

Lord Charles Beresford Gives the Reasons For This Preference—Britain's Enormous Preponderance in the Trade of Shanghai—Yangtse Valley the Best Territory in China—Some Speaking Details.

Should China be divided between the powers England wants the rich and populous Yangtse Valley. Lord Charles Beresford gives the reason for this preference in two lines at the head of a chapter devoted to Shanghai in his book on China. He says:

"The total tonnage of shipping entered and cleared in Shanghai in 1897 was 7,969,674, of which 4,591,851 was British."

English trade predominates in the Yangtse valley, and England naturally desires to control the territory for commercial reasons.

As the Yangtse river represents the best natural means of transportation to the interior, so also is the Yangtse valley the best territory in China from the standpoint of a trade-seeking nation. Beginning at Shanghai at the mouth of the river the best and most important cities of the nation with but a few exceptions lie along the banks of this great waterway. The large share of foreign trade of China which Shanghai controls is due largely to its position at the mouth of the great artery through which trade flows to and from China—the Yangtse-Kiang. Transportation in bulk in China up to the present time having been almost exclusively by water, and the Yangtse being navigable by steamers and junks for more than 2,000 miles, thus reaching the most populous productive and wealthy sections of the country, naturally a very large share of the foreign commerce entering and leaving that country passes through Shanghai, where foreign merchants, bankers, trade representatives, trade facilities, and excellent docking and steamship conveniences exist. The lines of no less than eight great steamship companies centre at Shanghai, where they land freight and passengers from their fleets of vessels which are counted by hundreds, while the smaller vessels, for river and coastwise service, and the native junks are counted literally by thousands.

ON THE YANGTSE RIVER ABOVE HANKOW.

The Yangtse from Shanghai westward to Hankow, a distance of 582 miles, is navigable for very large steamships that are capable of coasting as well as river service. Hankow, which, with its suburbs has nearly a million people, is the most important of the interior cities, being a great distributing centre for trade to all parts of central and western China, and thus the river trade between Shanghai and Hankow is of itself enormous, while the coastwise trade from Shanghai, both to the north and south, and that by the Grand canal to Tientsin, the most important city of northern China, is also very large. Prices of lands and rentals have increased with great rapidity in the past few years, rents having increased from 30 to 100 per cent., and the enhanced cost of living is placed by competent judges from 20 to 30 per cent. These advances are due it is said, to the rapid increase of manufacturing industries at that point, by which employment has been given to a large number of people at better wages than ever before. The local cotton mills during 1897 and 1898 were working night and day, the number of spindles having been increased to the full capacity of the various factories, while other manufacturing establishments were also pushed to their utmost capacity. The number of steamers entering the port of Shanghai in 1897 was no less than 2,888, with a tonnage of 3,805,440 while the sail vessels numbered 3,818 with a tonnage of 3,073,088. The total number of vessels entering and clearing during the year was 12,437, or more than 1,000 per month. The foreign imports which in 1891 amounted to 77,336,115 haikwan taels (value of tael in 1891, $1.27), amounted in 1898 to 131,114,307 haikwan taels (value of tael in 1897, 78 cents). The native produce imported amounted to 47,000,000 taels in 1891 and 55,000,000 taels in 1897.

Along the banks of the Yangtse river are the important commercial cities and treaty ports of Soochow, Chinkiang, Nanking, Wuhu, Kinkiang, Hankow, Yochau, Shasi, Ichang and Chungang. Of these by far the most important is Hankow.

It is 582 miles from the ocean, and is reached by lines of large seaworthy steamers. Designated as a treaty port in the treaty of 1858, it was not opened until 1861. It is splendidly situated, in the very heart of the country, in the centre of a network of rivers and lakes unsurpassed elsewhere, and, with its suburbs, has a population of nearly 1,000,000, while the province of Hupeh, of which it is the capital, has a population of 22,000,000: while Ngannhei, which adjoins it on the east, has a population of 20,000,000; Honan, on the north, 22,000,000; Kiangse, on the south, 24,000,000, and Hunan, on the southwest, 21,000,000, all of them accessible by the waterways, natural and artificial, of this section. The gross value of the trade of Hankow in 1897 exceeded that of any previous year by nearly 8,000,000 haikwan taels, the imports of foreign merchandise alone amounting to 23,000,000 haikwan taels, against 19,000,000 haikwan taels in 1895.

Practically all the imports of foreign goods reached Hankow from Shanghai and other ports of China, where they have been entered and duty paid, the value of that imported direct from countries being but 175,000 haikwan taels. The importance of Hankow is rapidly increasing by reason of the proposed construction of a railway line or lines to connect it with Pekin at the north and Canton at the south. A line has already been constructed from Pekin southward past Tientsin to Chinting by a Russian company, while another is projected from Chinting to Hankow by a Belgian company, and from Chinting to Hankow an American company is proposing to build a line. This will put Hankow in direct railway communication with Canton at the south of China and Pekin at the north, while it will at the same time be in direct water communication by numerous lines of large and swift steamers with Shanghai, the greatest port of the country, and lying almost directly east of it. At the west it is already in direct water communication with the largest and most populous province of China, Szechuan, which alone has a population of over 65,000,000, and is one of the most productive and important of the sections of interior China.

Gallant Man Lost His Life.

Washington, April 1.—The Navy Department yesterday received this cablegram from Admiral Remey, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station:

"Cavite, March 31, 1901.

"Fire discovered sail room Petrel 7 this morning. Roper, commanding, after going below once, went again against advice. Attempted recover men below. He suffocated, died at 7.45. Twenty-two other officers and men entirely prostrated. All recovering. Fire out. Damage immaterial. Send Roper's remains by Buffalo. (Signed) Remey."

Oxford Defeated Cambridge.

London, April 1.—Oxford's coxswain snatched a victory from Cambridge on Saturday in a boat-steering race after the latter had led by a length and a half at Barnes' Bridge—an advance which, at that point, is supposed to mean a sure victory.

The crews were so evenly matched that clever steering meant everything. In this alone the Oxford crew had the advantage.

The weather could hardly have been worse.

Landing Place For the Cable.

Victoria, B. C., April 1.—The Dominion Government steamer Quadra, which is surveying for a landing place for the Pacific cable, was reported Saturday evening at Cape Beale. The landing place will be somewhere along the southwestern shore of Vancouver Island, Port San Juan being considered the most likely place.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CENSUS MAN.

He Will Ask Questions Which Must be Answered Under Penalty.

When the Enumerators Start Out on Their Rounds—Will Count Almost Everything.

Midnight on Sunday marked the passing of the third month of the twentieth century, and was a signal for all Canada to look out for the census enumerator, and all over this country, from Halifax to Vancouver, north, south, east and west, in cities and villages, in mansions, in hovels, in the plains, in the mountains, in the mines, at the fisheries, everywhere there is life, men with questions will now be busy. They will even invade the presence of death, for everyone that dies after the hour of midnight of March 31st will be counted as a living subject in this Canada of ours.

The enumerators will ask many questions. The Government has laid down special legislation to govern them. Many of these questions will be of a private nature, and they are bound by their oath of office to keep the secrets inviolate. The enumerator is not permitted to show his schedule to any other person, or to make or keep a copy of it.

The enumerator will want to know, besides your age, colour, nationality and religion, how much money you make. He will be a bundle of interrogation points, and if you don't answer him he can summon you before His Majesty's court, and the aforesaid Majesty's court has the power to fine you as high as $40.

According to the instructions laid down for the enumerator, he is to enter and act with civility, and state his business in as few words as possible, ask the necessary questions and make the proper entries, and leave the premises as soon as his business is transacted. His conduct, the instructions further state, must be judicious, and it is only when persons refuse to answer questions that legal proceedings may be taken against them. And when the enumerator or census commissioner does take action against the close-mouthed or uncivil householder, he gets half the fine, that is, providing he doesn't have to go into the witness-box to prove his case. If he does, the Crown gets the whole business.

For the benefit of the man of large income and great properties, the enumerator is instructed to give him positive assurance that the census information will be kept as secret as the grave, and will on no account be used for taxation or other objects.

The enumerators will enter at the front door and finish at the back, and if there is a stable they will go through it and count the animals. They will count the trees in the orchards, take an estimate of the grain, fruit and root crops regarding their values. They will count the shade trees and keep their weather eye open for domestic animals.

The unfortunates at the asylums, the criminals in the prisions, the sick in the hospitals, the great manufactories will all be looked after by special agents.

When the door-bell rings and you see a determined looking man out there, with a schedule in his hand and a pencil behind his ear, open and he will ask:

The name of each person in the house, the sex, the color, the relationship to the head of the family or the household.

Are you married?

Are you single?

Are you widowed?

Are you divorced?

Then he will delve deeply into a question that concerns the ladies.

Your age last birthday?

The year of birth?

The month and date of birth?

He will also want to know the country in which you were born, when you came to Canada, what tribe you belong to, what race, and what your religion is.

Then he will get more personal. He will want to know what your profession is, whether you are living on your own means or not, whether you are an employer or an employee, if you are working on your own account; if you are working at a trade, if you are working at a factory or at home. He will want to know how long you are employed in the factory and how long you are employed at home. He will want to know if you have any side lines, or any other occupation.

Then the man with the pencil will touch your purse; he will ask:

How much do you make?

Do you earn any extras?

But this is not all. The enumerator will want to know how many months you have attended school, if you can read, if you can write, if you can speak English, or if you can "parlezvous Francais?"

In another schedule the man with the pencil will enquire about the churches, about the public buildings about the schools, about the seating capacity, and their dimensions. He will ask you about the dead within the past year, and they will be kept on a separate schedule.

Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating, remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

BERT HUBNER GONE.

The Horse Thief Taken Back to Belleville on Saturday.

Bert. Hubner, who was found guilty at the recent local assizes, of having stolen a horse from Mr. Westlake, of town, and Mr. Scott, of Norwood, and who was sentenced to two years less one day in the Central Prison, Toronto, was taken down to Belleville on Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Fred Hall. Hubner was first sentenced from Belleville, to the Central it will be remembered, but was held there until the charge against him of horse stealing here was disposed of. He was taken back to Belleville from whence he came to stand his trial, and will go from there to the Central. Hubner is quite a young man and very little is known of him previous to his present trouble. There is scarcely any doubt that he was the same person who stole the butter from the factory near Westwood.

ARE THEY ON STRIKE?

The Carpenters' Union Said to be Making a Demand.

To-day the Carpenters' and Joiners Union movement for a 20-cent-an-hour rule and a nine-hour-a-day scale, went into effect, or at least, was so intended, as far as the union men were concerned.

Whether the employers of union men agreed to this or not, is not exactly known, but it is stated on the street to-day that a number of men of Mr. A. McDonald's saw mill were out. Mr. McDonald himself admitted that some of his men had quit work but he claimed to know nothing about what they wanted. This is the only case reported in which there is any difficulty, and as stated before it is not generally known whether or not other employees stood firm to their demands.

THE ORGAN RECITAL.

Held at St. John's Church Last Night—The Programme.

At St. John's during the offertory last evening, Mr. Morphet rendered Rodney's "Jerusalem" with proper spirit as well as in his usual excellent voice. Assistance was also given by him in the last hymn in solo part.

At morning service during offertory Dr. Mason, who is in town on business, rendered "The Palms" by Faure. This well-known number was rendered in excellent form by Dr. Mason, who is possessed of a bass voice of good quality. His singing is marked by many evidences of musicianly form and careful interpretation.

The congregation of St. John's have been thus favoured on several occasions recently, and notably after the evening service of yesterday, when an impromptu recital was arranged by Mr. Rodgers, the organist, during which Dr. Mason rendered two numbers—"The Holy City," by Adams, and an extract from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul." Mr. Rodgers furnished several organ numbers, and the event was enjoyed by a good-sized congregation.

HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

Pastor Zimmerman Severs His Connection with Bethany Tabernacle.

There were large congregations at Bethany Tabernacle yesterday, the occasion being the farewell of their pastor, Rev. R. Zimmerman, who is removing with his family to Toronto.

That Pastor Zimmerman's pastorate has been fruitful, is evidenced by the fact that when he came here eight years ago the handful of members worshipped in a small upper hall, whereas now they occupy the commodious brick building known as Bethany Tabernacle and are now comparitively strong numerically.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Zimmerman was presented with an address, expressive of the warm regard in which he was held, and a well filled purse.

His successor has not yet been appointed, but Pastor John Salmon, of Toronto, will preach the next two Sundays.

At the service last evening special reference was made to the death of Mrs. George Duncan, who had been received into membership but a few weeks before her death.

A MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD

FOR THE LATE HARRY G. BECK, LAST NIGHT.

Delivered by Rev. J. Bastow in Murray Street Baptist Church—Very Large Congregation.

The announcement of a Memorial Service for the late Mr. H. G. Beck who met with such a tragic death at the Electric Works on Thursday last, drew a large crowd to the Murray Street Baptist Church last evening. Long before the time for commencing the service, the building was crowded in every part, and the ushers were taxed to the utmost to find accomodation by the aid of drawseats in the aisles, and chairs whenever possible for the throng who thus testified their esteem and respect for their late friend and comrade. During his residence in Peterborough Mr. Beck was an active and strenuous supporter of the Y. M. C. A., and it was therefore quite fitting that Mr. G. H. Williamson the secretary, should assist the Pastor, the Rev. Mr. Bastow on this mournful occasion.

After the Doxology and an appropriate opening hymn had been snng, Mr. Williamson read the Scripture lesson. Mr. George K. Martin then sang "I will sing you a song of that beautiful land," and it was easily seen from the attention of the audience that they were fully in sympathy with the sentiment of the solo. Prayer by Mr. Williamson in whice he beautifully commended to the loving kindness of God the suddenly bereaved mother and friends in England, was followed by the offertory.

The choir then sang Abt's setting of "He giveth His beloved sleep" in a way which, touched all hearts. Mrs. Dr. Scott rendering the beautiful solo passages very effectively. It was sad to remember that the last occasion on which this anthum was sung the late Mr. Beck himself was amongst the singers.

THE SERMON.

After referring most appreciatively to the sympathy shown by the superintendent in closing the works on the day of the accident, and the respect of Mr. Beck's fellow-workmen, as testified by their large attendance at the funeral as well as at that service, Rev. J. Bastow took as his text Proverbs 14-32; "The Righteous hath hope in His death."

The rev. gentleman pointed out that unlike the distinctions of this world the Bible knows only two classes of people, i.e. the righteous and the wicked. We divide men into the distinguished and ignoble, intelligent and ignorant, rich and poor. The bible makes light of all such distinctions and divides men in accordance with their attitude towards God and the future life. It speaks of saints and sinners, believers and unbelievers, the righteous and unrighteous. The preacher then went on to point out that the time was fast coming for all present when these distinctions would be final and absolute. In the hour of death all earthly distinctions vanish, and before the Great White Throne of God mankind stands for final judgment, as righteous or unrighteous.

Turning to the application of his text, Mr. Bastow emphasied the statement that the righteous only "had hope in His death." He could calmly face the great King of Terrors, secure in the knowledge that death was swallowed up in victory for all eternity.

Briefly, then, in eloquent and most touching language the preacher referred to the various hopes of the Christian believer that would be fully satisfied in the presence of the Eternal and Omnipotent God.

First. "There is the hope of perfct purity of life and perfection of character.' Here we are frail and notwithstanding the restraining power of the grace of God, fall and stray. Yonder there shall be no spot or wrinkle, no conflict or strife, no temptation or sin.

Second. There will be "perfect knowlege." After long lives of study and appli cation how little we know. What mysteries meet us on every hand. How strange that an apparenty young and active life shonld thus be cut off, while older men, nearer the grave, are left to suffer and wait. All the questions of life and all its doubts will be solved and answered yonder.

Third. There is the hope for the full satisfaction of our social natures. Here at the best and amongst our most intimate friends we are strangers and pilgrims. In heaven there will no longer be misunderstanding, envy, jealousy or gossip. We shall know as we are known, and all our natures will be fully satisfied.

Fourth. There is the crowning hope of likeness to Christ. Referring to the he told how nine years ago he came from London as a member of the Baptist church and a professed Christian. Very tenderly his mother's Christian character was touched on—and the mystic influence of the mother's love and prayers for the boy away in a distant land described. He was a total abstainer, and noted amongst his fellow for his truthfulness and sincerity. He never indulged in slang or strong language, and the pastor of the church at St. Thomas, with which he was connected for several years before coming to Peterborough, wrote that he was sure "He was ready for His Master's call." People are asking "Where is he now." He is with his Lord, fully satisfied with an existence forever complete in all its attributes and relations. The reverend gentleman brought his remarks to a close with a touching appeal to all present to be ready for death, so that they might have hope and not despair in their final hours.

Taken altogether the service was very solemn and memorable in all its parts. The choir, especially, seemed to feel the occasion, and many could not forget that it was only the previous Sunday he had sat with them in his accustomed seat and joined in the service of praise.

After the closing hymn and benediction the large congregation slowly dispersed. Many were unable to gain admission to the building who desired thus to pay a last tribute of regard and esteem to their late friend and fellow-employee.

FOR PULLING WHISKERS.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE BOYS GET INTO TROUBLE.

They Assault and Insult a Prominent Citizen—Case Came up in the Police Court this Morning.

A rather extraordinary case was on at the police court this morning, and it proved to be as interesting to the spectators as it did costly to the accused young men. It was in short, a whisker pulling case, the out-come of an act committed by a certain number of the whisker pulling society of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. When the case came on at the police court this morning there was a very large attendance. It differed materially from the general audience that attends the mill of justice, to witness the general routine proceedings; they were mere boys, beardless inquisitive boys, which no doubt led them to form the society that had caused the immediate trouble. They were students at the Collegiate Institute, and while Crown Attorney Wood called the attention of the court to the fact that they should be at school, Mr. O'Connel one of the accused boy's solicitor protested, holding that they might be witnesses. So the boys stayed.

The case was that of Robert Harrison against a certain young man who was charged with assaulting the complainant. Mr. Harrison, who is one of Peterborough's most highly respected citizens, claimed to have been assaulted on Thursday, while coming down Water street, in front of Dr. Halliday's residence. The defendant pleaded not guilty. From what could be gathered in court the circumstances of the case are about as follows.

A certain youthful attendant at the Collegiate Institute came to school one day minus the scraggery down upon his chin, quite noticeable the day before. He had shaved, and for the first time at that. Eventful day! His chin was rubbed by the other fellows, who could not boast of such manly, yet necessary facial treatment, and the rub was accompanied by the shouting of the word "Hawes." The origin of this expression was not made plain in court, but thereafter the members of the Collegiate that "crushed in that particular bunch," carrying their practice out of school, planned deliberately to toach the whishers or rub the chin of any particular victim that might be singled out, and then, perchance, make a boast of it to the other members of the flourishing whisker pulling society.

Whether Mr. Harrison had been marked for some time as a probable victim is not material in the case but on Thursday afternoon while he was coming down Water street two of the whisker-pullers, on their way to school, "stumped" each other to administer the dose to him. This was done, but apparently Mr. Harrison did not understand the meaning of the insult cast upon him, nor did he know the names of the two boys, or in fact which one of the two was the guilty party. He himself was not in a state of reciprocative combativeness, or the whisker-pullers might have been walloping around in the slush, but he proceeded back to the school where he ascertained, as he thought, the name of the boy who assaulted him. In this Mr. Harrison may have been slightly mistaken, as the boy accused swore positively that he did not do the deed, while admitting that he bluffed the other fellow into it. Boy No. 2, a witness, admitted having touched Mr. Harrison's whiskers, but would not swear that his chum did. The result was that an information was sworn out against the chief witness for the defence, and he pleaded guilty.

The young man originally accused was also found guilty by the court, the Magistrate holding that he was a party to the deed, inasmuch as he agreed with his friend to carry out a certain proposition, and because he backed down at the last moment, was no reason why he should go unpunished. He fined them $5 each and gave the boys a gentle yet timely lecture on their impolite conduct. He told them of the insult that pulling a person's whiskers in some countries is considered, and stated that there there had to be some safeguard against such conduct. They should have known better, and should have received better training both at home and at at school.

It is not known whether the whisker-pullers are going to continue their freakish tricks or not, but it is to be hoped that the society will formally disband.

REV. J. A. MACDONALD'S SERMON IN ST. PAULS.

He Delivered Two Very Interesting Sermons on Sunday—The Evening Service.

The services at St. Paul's Church, yesterday, both morning and evening, were very largely attended, when excellent sermons were preached by Rev. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Westminster, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Macdonald is a most able preacher and his discourses were intensely interesting.

In the evening, he took for his text the story of the Book of Genesis, of Ishmael, the son of Abraham, being cast aside for his younger brother Isaac, and wherein it is said, "In Isaac shall thy seed be called, etc." Ishmael, the speaker said, was the elder and there was nothing very interesting about him. He was looked upon as a freak and a fit person only as a social outcast, and it was thought that there was nothing of importance cast aside, when his inheritance was passed over. However, he belongs to ourselves. His story is as new as the latest story reported in the latest newspaper, for to look at him we will find that his "face is our face." He stands for all those of ourselves, who are cast out into the world, handicapped and hampered by no fault of our own but compelled to go through life in this dreary way, when we should be head men in our occupation or profession. But the blood of what was wrong was in Ishmael, although it was no fault of his, and he was crowded out for his younger brother, while he himself went to the hills to hunt for the rest of his days.

The speaker thought that this was suggestive of what was happening the world over at the present moment. Think of the many that are to-day cast aside handicapped and hampered through no fault of their own. Their inheritance is against them, as they have been born with disease in their blood, and in fact how many there are in this world to-day who should never have been born at all, but because their forefathers proved traitors to what was best and right? Not only need this be applied to the physical aspect, but to the moral side of the subject as well. We are as a rule born with a tendency toward sin, and to go down grade, as it were.

After fully demonstrating this fact, the reverend gentleman proceeded to point out that the handicapped and hampered man was not entirely forsaken, the life of such man would be terrible indeed if there was no relief. If that were the only life? Is life good or is there a God? This question is always forced upon us when we see life as it is lived to-day. But the same voice which said that he would make a nation of Ishmael, has something better in store for us. It is a good word for us and tells us that in the last and worst act, there is a God that knows all our despair, has a personal knowledge of our lives and a personal interest in our handicap. God is the God of the man who is down and when he promised that he would make of Ishmael a nation he has done so in the Arab race that traces its decent back unto the handicapped son of ancient times.

In his concluding remarks Rev. Mr. Macdonald pointed out that God will not judge all alike, but will take into consideration the circumstances and advantages of all. Earths judgement is superficial, we must know the very blood in the adjudged's veins, and this will only be known on the final day of reckoning.

FORESTERS' CONDOLENCE.

At the regular meeting of Court Littlejohn No. 92, C.O.F., a resolution of condolence was passed to Bro. Robt. Mulligan in sympathy with his recent losses by death, which have occurred in his household:

Bro. Robt. Mulligan.—Your Brethren of Court Littlejohn No. 92, C.O.F., desire to express their heartfelt sympathy for you in the recent double affliction which has deprived you of a devoted mother and an affectionate mother-in-law. We realize that two such bereavements as those, coming as they did within a short week of each other, cannot be otherwise than of a particularly painful character, and calculated to place a load of sorrow upon you difficult to bear. We earnestly trust that in your hours of adversity you have enjoyed the sustaining grace of Him who knows best how to soothe our afflictions and speak words of solace to our wounded hearts.

Your Brethren wish to place on record this testimony of their fraternal sympathy for your losses, and to convey to yourself and Mrs. Mulligan and the bereaved members of your family the comforting assurance that something far better than the hand of sympathy from the Court Room is the blessed promise that "Earth has no sorrows that Heaven cannot heal."

Signed on behalf of the Court.

MR. RICHARD SEDDON

PEN PICTURE OF THE REMARKABLE PREMIER OF NEW ZEALAND.

Head of the Socialistic Movements in That Far-off Land Where Railroads Are Run by the Government for the People, With Free Trains for School Children.

The celebrated correspondent Frank G. Carpenter, writing from Wellington, New Zealand, says: I have had an interview with Hon. Richard Seddon, the Premier of New Zealand. The Premier of New Zealand is the head of the Government; this means he is the head of everything. Think of a country where the railroads, the telegraphs, the telephones, the savings banks, the chief life insurance companies and a score of other things are run by the state. Let there be large carshops and machine-shops filled with government employes. Let the Government have stock in the biggest banks; let it put its fingers into the management of the farms, the factories and the mines, and do a dozen other such things that no other Government has ever attempted, and you have some idea of this institution in New Zealand.

The head of this Government is Hon. Richard Seddon. He is the leader of the House, and he almost controls Parliament. He can to a certain extent make his own laws, and he is pushing forward new schemes of all kinds without regard to precedent or history. It is he who for years has been the head of the socialistic movement in New Zealand. He is the man behind the new laws which relate to capital and labor, and at the head of the party which is now cutting up the large, unproductive land holdings of the rich and dividing them at the lowest possible rates of ownership requirement among the poor.

New Zealand prides itself on being the workingman's country, and Richard Seddon prides himself on being its representative. He is a man of the people. He was born in England, the son of a Lancashire farmer. He learned the trade of an engineer, and when as a boy, about 56 years ago, he first came to Australia he worked in the railroad shops. Later on he went to the gold fields of Bendigo, and there dug in the mines with his own hands. His friends sometimes call him "Digger Dick," though all traces of the roughness of his mining life have long since passed away. Mr. Seddon worked in the Australian mines for three years, and then came to New Zealand to try his luck on the gold fields of the west coast. It was there that he first engaged in politics. He was elected mayor of the town, and more than 20 years ago was sent to the New Zealand Parliament. He has been in Parliament from then until now. He is the father of the House, as well as its leader.

It was in the Parliament House that I met Premier Seddon. I had letters of introduction and came there to present them. I was presented to him by his private secretary, and he made me at home.

The subject of the federation of New Zealand and its islands and of the Australian colonies came up, and I asked Mr. Seddon whether he thought that such movements would not eventually dissolve the British Empire.

He replied: "I think not. I believe that the empire will grow stronger. I look, in fact, for union rather than dissolution. I believe that we will eventually have a federation of all the English-speaking peoples. The time will come when Great Britain and her colonies and the Americans and their colonies will be united in almost every movement. Our interests are the same. We have the same language and the same ideas as to God, man and the universe. We are of the same race, and blood is thicker than water."

"What will this union be?" I asked.

"It will be a union upon broad lines. Each government will manage its own local affairs, but we will all work together as to matters humanitarian and commercial."

"New Zealand showed its love for the mother country in the Boer war," said I.

"Yes," replied the Premier. "We sent them men, money and supplies. Some of our best boys crossed the ocean to fight the Boers, my son among the number. We also offered to send troops to China, and we are always ready to fight for old England whenever she needs us

"How do New Zealanders feel toward us, your excellency?" I asked.

"The New Zealanders are very friendly to the Americans. Sometimes I think we are more friendly to you than you are to us. I have been in the United States several times, and I find considerable anti-English sentiment there. This is natural because of your large immigration from other parts of Europe, some of which is inimical to the English. You are, however, an English people, and the predominant elements among you will always be for England."

After some talk upon trade between New Zealand and the United States, the conversation turned to some of the new movements in New Zealand, and I asked the Premier about the Government control of the railways. Said I:

"Your Excellency, you have been a railroad man from the ground up

You have worked in the shops. You have run an engine and you have had to do with all sorts of railroad construction. You are now the chief manager of a Government which has built its own railroads and to which the railroads belong. Do you think it best for the Government to own the railroads?"

"Yes, I do," said the New Zealand Premier. "It is the only way in which the railroads should be owned and operated. We believe the railroads are for the people, and we are managing them in the interests of the people and for the development of the country in that way out of them, and, as our revenues which will best help all the people. We are not trying to make a profit out of them, and, as our revenues increase, we steadily reduce freight rates and passenger fares. We are already giving an excursion rate of a penny a mile to parties, and we expect to cut down the fares right along. We give reduced rates to workingmen going to and from work. We use the trains to bring the school children to and from school free of charge, and we have excursion trains to take the children now and then out over the country and give them practical geographical lessons. We send out such trains which give excursions of 100 miles for 36 cents per child. This is just about the extra cost of running such trains, and any school can be taken off on a vacation or on an instructive excursion at that rate upon the request of the teacher.

"It is my idea," Premier Seddon continued, "that the railroads are the servants of the people, and that they should be run entirely in their interests. We want to bring every farmers' produce to the markets at the lowest possible cost and make it so that our people in all parts of New Zealand can compete with those of other countries in the markets of the world. If we can build railroads so that the man 100 miles from seaboard can send his produce to the ship at the same cost as the man who lives only ten miles away, we raise the value of the first man's land to that of the second. We get that much more taxes out of him and he becomes a more prosperous member of the community. We are now devoting the roads largely to opening up new country. We are pushing them out into the public lands and settling them."

"How much railroad have you in New Zealand?"

"We have now more than 2,000 miles, the total cost of which has been a little more than £16,000,000, or in the neighborhood of $80,000,000. Nearly all the roads are making money. The cash revenue for 1899 amounted to more than $7,000,000, while the expenditure was less than $5,000,000. The earnings of some of the lines ranged from 5 to 13 per cent. The matter is very closely figured, and, the railroads belonging to the Government, there is no incentive to give anything else but the best service at the lowest possible cost."

"But how about using such large bodies of men in government employ? I should think that your service on the railroads, in the telegraph offices and in your many other public institutions would be largely affected by the fact that it is governmental. Do not the clerks vote to keep your party in power, and can you not make them do so?"

"I don't think there has been any attempt to do anything of that kind, and I doubt if it could succeed. We have rigid civil service rules, and we maintain them. The people can see that we are bettering the country, and they will keep us in omce as long as we are working for their good."

"Do you think the United States can ever have a successful control of the railroads?"

"I don't see why not," replied Premier Seddon. "Congress might take over the railroads at their market value, paying for them with Government bonds. Much cash would not be needed, for the holders of the railroad bonds would be glad to exchange them for Government bonds. I think your Government could run the railroads with much more benefit to the people, and that the time will come when your people will demand that it do so."

While the piano is in use it is well to close it on ceasing to play and at night. If in disuse, it is better open, as less moisture would thus be retained. Moving the piano does not spoil the tone. The general belief that it does has a natural foundation in the prevalent ignorance of the strength of the instrument.

Borax is one of the best things for the removal of grease spots from woolen goods. A cleaning mixture of which it forms an important part is made by dissolving one ounce of powdered borax in one quart of boiling water and setting it aside to cool. THE GAIT OF THE MAN

ONE PLACE WHERE IT BRINGS OUT HIS CHARACTER.

An Old "Chair Warmer" Says That Watching Men as They Cross the Lobby of a Fashionable Hotel Is a Great Study of Human Nature.

"You can tell with probable certainty a man's character, disposition and station in life when you see him cross a hotel lobby," said an old lobby lounger the other day as he sat down in a chair in one of the big hotels.

"Did you ever sit and watch the people pass? It's an interesting study in human character and the result of human experience. Pride, timidity, assurance, weakness, concentration—all walk before you. They say that these things can be told by a man's manner of walking on the street or anywhere else, but start him over the marble corridor and see how all his traits are emphasized and accentuated."

Just then two buds of manhood entered the lobby where the lounger sat. They wore high white collars. They walked hard and laughed loud. One of them stopped at the cigar stand to light a cigarette and called to his comrade to wait. Then they deliberately walked directly toward the bar. They did not try to conceal the fact that they were going toward the hotel's barroom. They did it openly. They even advertised it. Probably they were going to get a very wicked drink.

"Do you know," mused the lounger, "that there is a certain atmosphere that can be found only in first class hotels? It is an atmosphere of what might be called sporty gentility. It makes men feel ill it case unless their clothes are good. To enter the lobby of a fashionable hotel causes some men to talk in words and on subjects that are unusual to them—to put on airs, as it were. Men never hesitate to say:

"'I was in the —— hotel, you know, when I met So-and-so, and he told me,' etc.

"Those two young gentlemen that you just saw enter the bar feel all this. They feel that they would acquire a certain position in the social scale by appearing to be at home in this lobby. But their noisy manner makes it apparent that they wish to advertise their presence, and thus they destroy the impression which they try to create.

"To cross a hotel lobby is something of an event to a man who isn't used to it," continued the lounger, "and that is why personal characteristics stick out all the stronger when he does. Now, the gentleman who is proud of his looks is sure to give a free exhibition of himself as he walks across the smooth floor. He will square his shoulders and hold out his chest and throw back his haughty head and strut like a proud, plumed thing. You can almost imagine that you see hot flames bursting from his nostrils. He glances from right to left to be certain that he is being closely observed. He acknowledges the smile of the cigar girl with a sweeping salute. He raises his hat and bows grandly to the telegraph girl, and when he has reached the counter where the clerk stands there is a feeling in the lobby not unlike that in the street after the circus parade has passed. It is a feeling that all is over.

"Not so with the timid, modest gentleman. He will walk hurriedly, as though glad to have the ordeal past. He does not dare to look about him, but he will probably rub his nose or stroke his chin as a shy man does who walks down a long church aisle. He is ashamed to be making himself so prominent. If you speak to this man afterward, you will find that his voice is mild and his manner self depreciative.

"After all," continued the "chair bowrder," "the most interesting sight is that of a man whose feet are at home on grass or plowed ground making a voyage over the marble floor of the hotel lobby. Such a one is impressed with the awfulness of the thing. He is panic stricken to begin with, and, then, the stone is so solid that it gives a shock to each foot as he puts it down, so that he lifts it high with each step, like a chicken walking in the wet grass, and, then, there is the constant peril of slipping. The distance across the lobby seems miles. I have seen a man take it by easy stages—walk first to a chair and sneak into it, and then rise gingerly and grit his teeth and start out again full of grim determination. Such a man is sure to be noticed. Just because he longs to be unobserved unkind fate fastens every one's eyes on him.

"There is one type, however," mused the lounger, "that no one notices. He is the man who lives in hotels. He walks across the lobby with as much unconcern as he would into his own house. In fact, I believe that men who have been guests year after year at the same hotel grow to assume a sort of ownership.

"There is another set of individuals whose habits and character are unmistakable when they appear in the hotels. I belong to this class myself. They call us 'chair warmers,' 'lobby loungers' and other things. In the summer time we fill the row of chairs on the sidewalk in front or sit with our chairs in the street in front and our feet on the edge of the sidewalk. We are always on the shady side of the building and in the path of a breeze, if possible. In the winter time we are in the lobby, where it's warm. You can tell us by one certain sign. We are always sitting.

"And the panorama of the lobby goes on—men who strut fiercely and show that they are petty and vain; men who shy and hurry and show that they are timid and nervous; men who walk anxiously and uneasily, showing that they are new and green; men without concern or thought of themselves, showing that they have had experience in such affairs and have business ahead; men who have a hunted look, as though they hadn't paid their laundry bill; young men, who want to be as 'blooded' as the older men; idle men with nothing else to do; bold men, timid men, busy men, vain men, modest men, prosperous men and ne'er do wells—it's a picture that is before me daily as I sit here, an interesting picture that I study and muse upon."

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box.

may mean a mere cold or a chronic incurable inflammation of wind-pipes.

The quickest relief, for a cold, is also the most effectual balm for the worst condition of wind-pipes and lungs.

It takes the edge off a cold in a night, and relieves it progressively—one forgets it after a little.

An old bronchitis, however, is obstinate. Nothing restores the tissues, when once destroyed; and an old bronchitis has gradually impared and partly destroyed the lining of those small pipes between throat and lungs.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the balm; it sooths if it cannot restore.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Last Shall Be First.

There came along, too, a poor little maid, hunchbacked and lame. She was amazed that such delight should welcome her, since none had ever taken delight in her on earth. She held her crutches tight, thinking she could not walk without them, and wondered much to feel her feet so light.

"Am I really in heaven?"

"Aye, in heaven, where thou hast so often longed to be."

"How was that known to thee?"

"All things concerning thee are known to me. I was thy guardian angel in thy lifetime, and whatsoever thought of gladness was ever thine 'twas I who whispered it."

"But how did I come here?" she asked, bewildered. "I am not good enough. I have done nothing to deserve reward."

"Nothing?" The angel's voice was low and tender. "I watched thee when thy little fingers stitched untiringly from morn till night for thy poor old mother's sake. I saw thee bear the sharpest pain in silence that others might not grieve. I know that in thy direst poverty thou always hadst thy mite to spare for those yet poorer than thyself. If none else knew or understood, I at least know how well thou hast deserved."—"A Festival In Heaven," by the Queen of Roumania, in Woman's Home Companion.

Tommy Miller.

Laughing, ruddy Tommy Miller,
A blithesome boy is he;
I scarcely think it's been my hap
A better lad to see.

His sister Annie loves him well,
For when to school they go
He shelters her quite snugly
From the driving rain or snow.

And when each happy evening's gone
Tom softly says his prayer,
And, tucked into his cosy nest,
He sleeps full sweetly there.

I wish all boys had such a home,
For other lads, you see,
If they were trained as Tommy is,
Might be as good as he.

Animal Differences.

W. Long tells in his "Ways of Wood Folk" about a little girl who, when asked how she knew her own "chickie," as she called it, replied: "How do I know it? Why, by its face." And, sure enough, on looking at its face there could be seen a difference that made it easy to distinguish it from the rest.

No two animals of a species are alike in feature or in disposition any more than are two human beings. Any boy who keeps rabbits or white mice will soon learn this by experience. People generally are far too apt to forget that animals are individuals and that each requires individual treatment.

Boy's Good Time.

A mother sent her boy into the country, and after a week of anxiety received this letter:

"I got here all right, but forgot to write before. A feller and I went out in a boat, and the boat tipped over and a man got me out. I was so full of water that I didn't know anything for a long time. The other boy has to be buried after they find him. A horse kicked me over, and I've got to have some money for fixin my hend. We are goin to set a barn on fire tonight, and I should smile if we don't have some bully fun. I shall bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get him in my trunk."

THE TWO A. B.'S.

He led his class in college, and he took
The degree—
The respectable degree—
Of A. B.
There was something in his look—
His refined and gentle look—
That enabled men to see
At a glance that he had studied and was wise.
He had carried off a prize
For an essay on Elizabethan art!
He was deep in all the lore
That professors may impart;
He had learned a score or more
Of the ologies by heart!
She
Was a beautiful "coed,"
With a head
As full as it could be
Of the knowledge that professors in their wisdom pass around.
She was pretty and profound,
Yea, bewitching and profound!
She was all her anxious parents ever hoped that she might be, and she boasted the degree
Of A. B.—
The distinguishing degree
Of A. B.
They loved and wedded, he and she,
He, with his proud degree,
Took the beautiful A. B.,
And in time it came to pass that another, sweet and wee,
Dropped from heaven down to add to all the gladness in their hearts,
Came to bless the sacred union of those bachelors of arts,
And he
And she,
Each with the fine degree
Of A. B.,
Each distinguished and profound,
All unstrung, would run around,
Spilling things and falling blindly over chairs,
When the everlasting pin
Would begin
Mixing in
The protesting little sufferer's affairs!
And they'd whoop,
Wildly whoop, for help from others if it showed a sign of croup
Or grumbled at the ache
That a little wind may make,
And, panting, they would sit—
Full of wonder—they would sit
When the nurse would quiet it—
The nurse who didn't even know the meaning of A. B.,
Didn't know what alma mater meant and didn't care at all,
And he
And she,
Each with the proud degree
Of A. B.,
Would crawl
At her feet,
Overpowered by the wisdom she possessed,
And, with confidence, resigning to her tender care the sweet
Little sum of all their hopes, behold it cuddled on her breast
And bow shamefaced when she Told them they didn't know a, b, c—
Each with the proud degree—
The dignifying degree—
Of A. B.

A PLEASANT DISAPPOINTMENT.

A Cheltenham Man is Agreeably Surprised—An Old Grudge Paid.

Mr. Turner After a Successful Effort to Get Rid of One Enemy, Finds That in Doing so he Has Put Away Another.

CHELTENHAM, Ont., Mar. 27. (Special.)—A fortunate man, indeed, is Mr. Charles Turner, of this place. For years Mr. Turner has been suffering with kidney disease. It gave him great pain, and for the last two or three years rheumatism has added to his already heavy burden of sickness, and he has seldom known an hour free from pain. Not associating the rheumatism with the old kidney trouble, and despairing of curing the former, Mr. Turner bought and used Dodd's Kidney Pills to try and dispose of the kidney trouble. He used a few boxes, and the pain in his back kept getting less and less, and finally went away. All the unpleasant systems of kidney trouble disappeared, and what was still more strange to Mr. Mr. Turner, he has not since been bothered with rheumatism.

He is so grateful for the miraculous results of the treatment that he has been cheerfully telling his friends and neighbours his experience. He says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills have cured me of a long standing case of kidney disease. I was also a sufferer from rheumatism and although I took the pills for the kidney trouble, I was surprised to find that when this disease was cured the rheumatism also disappeared. This was over a year ago, and I have not been troubled since. I used in all six boxes. The first two boxes did not appear to do me any good, but I persevered, and the result is that I am now a healthy man."

Of course, to those who recognize rheumatism as what it really is, a symptom of kidney disease, there is nothing wonderful about Mr. Turner's experience. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Kidney Trouble, and with it Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lame Back, Neuralgia, Heart Trouble, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease and any of the other many forms in which it may and often does appear.

IN QUEEN'S PARK

The Toronto Star correspondent in the Press Gallery writes: "Mr. Stratton's distinguishing quality is geniality. The Provincial Secretary has an off-hand, slap-you-on-the-back, old-college-chum manner which makes him very popular on both sides of the House, and with the electors generally. This bonhommie is quite irresistible, and it is not surprising to hear his opponent say, "Well, Stratton may be a Grit, but he's a good fellow." This being a good fellow goes a long way in the business of Parliament, and I myself have seen the Provincial Secretary make use of it very adroitly to banter some sharp-tongued advocate on the other side or to turn the edge of his comments. Mr. Stratton is the youngest member of the Cabinet. He is the handy-man of the building in Queen's Park. When his colleagues are at a loss what to do with any department or how to rearrange work, the practice is just to tack in on to the Provincial Secretary's business. He rather likes it than otherwise, and a little extra work means only an extra pound of steam. Mr. Stratton always travels with a full head of steam. He makes good speed, never wastes his fuel, and always has plenty of force to direct toward any of his multifarious activities. H. F. G.

BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless it is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manuel labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

COUNTY WEDDINGS.

FERGUSON—McMILLAN.

A very pretty wedding took place on the 13th., at the residence of Mr. Duncan Ferguson, 8th line of Dummer, when his daughter, Mabel, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. George D. Mc Millan, of the same township, by the Rev. Wm. Peer, of Norwood.

The bride was given away by her father; Miss Jeanette Ferguson, sister of the bride, acting as bridesmaid, while Mr. John McMillan performed the duties of groomsman. The bride was tastefully attired in pale blue cashmere, trimmed with white ribbon and lace.

There were about fifty guests present to witness the happy ceremony and to take part in the pleasures of the occasion and who gave the bride many costly presents, which would be useful to her in her new home. May long life, full of joy and peace, be theirs.

McILMOYL—HILLMAN.

On Wednesday evening last the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McIlmoyl, Selwyn, was the scene of an interesting event when their only daughter, Miss Millie, was united in marriage to Mr. James Hillman, of Smith. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. Nichol, in the presence of about forty guests. The bride, who was charmingly gowned in a costume of white organdie, trimmed with lace and insertion, was assisted by Miss Annie Elliott, attired in a dress of pearl gray ladies' cloth, with white satin and pearl trimmings. The groom was assisted by Mr. Frank McIlmoyl, of Smith. After the ceremony the assembled guests sat down to a very inviting wedding repast, the evening being then spent in a social manner. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents. The happy couple take up their residence in Smith, having the best wishes of a large number of friends for their future prosperity and happiness.

AN OLD DISPUTE.

The Charges of Fraud against the Scott Estate.

At the last session of the Legislature, on motion of Mr. German of Welland, a select committee was appointed to decide as to what should be done in regard to the charages of fraud against the estate of the late W. A. Scott of Peterboro'. The question is an old one, dating back to 1871, when it was alleged that for five years Mr. Scott had made fraudulent returns to the Government of the timber dues for lumber cut on limits in north Peterboro'. An investigation followed and Mr. Scott was fined $26,000. Later, $6,000 of this was remitted and the Scott estate claimed that another $13,000 should be refunded. This contention was pressed, and last session, on Mr. German's motion, Messrs. Foy, Pardee, Miscampbell, Charlton and Auld were the committee appointed to deal with the question. They recommended that the whole question be submitted to two judges of the Court of Appeal. This recommendation was acted upon and the Government appointed Mr. Justice Osler and Mr. Justice Lister, who held the first sitting at the Parliament buildings on Saturday. Mr. Amelius Irving, K. C., was present for the Government, Dr. Kennedy for the Crown Lands Department, and Mr. G. H. Watson, K. C., for the estate. No evidence was taken and it was decided after a brief discussion to commence the case a fortnight hence.

HON. MR. FISHER'S BILL

Inspection of Fruit Discussed in the House of Commons.

PRIVY COUNCIL CONSTITUTION.

Imperial Authorities Consult Canada With Reference to the Proposed Change—Mr. N. Clarke Wallace Protests Against Mr. Tarte's Answer and Is Answered Effectively by the Premier.

Ottawa, April 2.—In the House yesterday afternoon Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in reply to a question by Lieut.-Col. Hughes, stated that the Government of Canada has been invited by the Imperial authorities to send a representative to England to consult with them in reference to a change in the constitution of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. The Guelph Junction Railway bill was passed, and a number of Government measures, including the bill providing for the marking and inspection of packages of fruit for export, were advanced a stage.

Mr. Heyd introduced a bill in respect to the subsidiary High Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters. Its object is to protect the interests of members of the provincial court.

In answer to Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, Mr. Sifton said the language of the ordinance was clear, that the decision of the Yukon Court of Appellate jurisdiction, consisting of two judges, should be final.

The Guelph Junction Railway bill was passed through committee, and the bill was read a third time and passed.

The following bills were also read a third time and passed:

Respecting the Atlantic and Lake Superior Railway.—Mr. Marcel (Bonaventure).

Respecting the Hudson's Bay and Pacific Railway Company.—Mr. Oliver.

Several other bills were referred to the Standing Committees.

Mr. Wallace asked: Whether the Government have yet selected a site for a public building in Toronto Junction. If so, at what cost; where located, and what the dimensions of the lot.

Mr. Tarte replied: In regard to questions one and two, no site has yet been selected. To question three, my answer is $5,000; to No. 4, the amount was voted last session; in regard to questions five, six, seven and eight, I am glad to say that the matter is now engaging the attention of the Government.

Mr. Wallace moved the adjournment of the House over the matter, and proceeded to charge the Government with having voted the money only as an election influence.

After Mr. Bennett and Mr. Borden had spoken, Sir Wilfrid Laurier maintained that the greatest latitude must be allowed Ministers in answering questions, and that "under consideration" was a sufficient and adequate reply. He reminded the House of the practice under the former Government.

The Premier moved to take Wednesdays for Government business for the remainder of the session, but, upon the suggestion of Mr. Borden, agreed to leave Wednesday next for private members.

Sir Wilfrid also moved that when the House adjourns on Thursday next it stand adjourned till Tuesday, April 9. But, in deference to the wish of members, he said, he would consent to adjourn from Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Mr. Fisher, in reply to questions by Messrs. Brodeur and Charlton, said the Canadian section of the Pan-American Exhibition would be closed on the Sabbath.

Col. Hughes was informed that the Government had been invited by the Imperial authorities to send a representative to England to consult with them in reference to a change in the constitution of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; but no representative had yet been appointed.

Bill Respecting Fruit Packages.

Mr. Fisher's bill to provide for the marking and inspection of packages containing fruit for sale was under discussion in committee for three hours, and several important amendments were made of it.

The clause defining "closed packages" was altered to mean "a box or barrel, of which the contents cannot be seen when such package is closed."

Another amendment obliges fruit in packages for domestic consumption as well as for export, when branded "A No. 1, Canadian," to consist of well-grown specimens of Ontario variety, sound, of nearly uniform size, and not less than 90 per cent. free from blemish, the packages to be marked with the minimum size in inches, measured across the case of the fruit.

Clause 8 was amended to admit of fruit marked "first" or "best" or "extra good" quality. This was to suit the Nova Scotia growers, who, it was claimed, have no well-defined brands of their own.

Another new clause forbids fruit packages to be marked falsely, namely, if they contain more than 15 per cent. of fruit of a smaller size or inferior grade to that designated by the marking.

The bill will be re-printed as amended before the third reading.

The following Government bills were read a third time and passed:

To amend the Inland Waters Seamen's Act.

To further amend the act respecting the safety of ships.

Further to amend the Canada Evidence Act.

The House adjourned at 11.20 p. m.

Suddenly the fly-wheel of the sawing machine burst, and pieces flew in different directions, one of which struck Lindsay on the head, almost severing the top and exposing the brain. No other person was injured, though several around had miraculous escapes. Before medical aid arrived the unfortunate young man breathed his last.

THE DIVIDED OPPOSITION.

Mr. Whitney Opposes Mr. Carscallen's Nickel Policy Move.

THE USUAL RESULT FOLLOWS.

The Largest Majority Against an Opposition Motion This Session Greeted Mr. Whitney—Crecalion Voted With His Old Friends—Government Majority on the Main Motion Was Ten.

Toronto, April 2.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday Hon. J. M. Gibson introduced a bill to amend the Insurance Act. Among other matters it deals with the position of Friendly Societies under the act. The bill made it clear that such societies were not on an insurance basis and provided that in case of their being wound up those who had paid asses ments were not entitled to rank as creditors as would be the case in a regular insurance company. Hon. E. J. Davis introduced a bill to amend the act respecting the driving of sawlogs.

A number of bills were read a third time, including the Government bills to provide for the better auditing of Provincial Accounts, to amend the Land Titles' Act, and to amend the act respecting the licensing of extra-Provincial Corporations, with several private bills. Mr. Harcourt's bill respecting Technical Schools received a second reading.

Premier Ross' bill to facilitate the purchase of Toll Roads by Municipalities was reported from committee with amendments.

The House went into committee on Premier Ross' bill for the improvement of the Public Highways. The Premier introduced a number of amendments which he explained were intended to give County Councils the first opportunity to construct the highways as county roads before they were undertaken on any other basis and to provide for the will of the ratepayers being heard. Great care, he said, had been taken to give the greatest elasticity possible to the system. Villages and towns belonging to the counties would be obliged to contribute their share pro rata. The money to be paid by the Government would be divided among some 400 township municipalities, exclusive of those receiving money for colonization roads.

Col. Matheson urged that the amount which a county was empowered to spend on a road without the consent of the ratepayers should be limited to 2 per cent. of the assessment.

Mr. Pattullo agreed with the suggestion as if counties were given unlimited powers even with the consent of two-thirds of the townships the ratepayers would be afraid of the system and road building would be discountenanced.

The Premier fell in with the suggestion and amended the bill so as to provide that no debentures issued under the act should exceed in amount 2 per cent. of the equalized assessment.

Mr. Pattullo spoke of the importance of having a standard laid down as to what constituted a legal road and if this were done in connection with the highways constructed under the bill a great deal of litigation would be saved.

Mr. Whitney did not see that in view of the difference of local conditions any general standard could be laid down. Even were a road in good repair it would not prevent litigation.

Hon. J. M. Gibson thought that such a provision would be hardly in place in the bill and would be more properly introduced as an amendment to the general municipal law.

The committee reported the bill with amendments.

Mr. Carscallen moved a lengthy resolution which, after setting forth the nickel policy of the Government providing for a tax on nickel ores and the remission of the same on ores refined in Canada subject to the provision that the enactment should not come into force until made effective by proclamation, concluded as follows:

And whereas, although nearly a year has passed since the act was assented to, no such proclamation has been issued, it is the opinion of this House, that the taxation of nickel ores, and of copper and nickel ores combined, as provided for in section 7 of the act should be imposed, and that sections 7 and 10 of the act should come into force from and after the first day of January, 1902. And further that the revenue accruing from such taxation, or a portion thereof, be used to encourage, by bounties, the manufacture of nickel steel in the Province of Ontario.

He urged that there was no just reason why nickel matte should be shipped to the United States, instead of being worked up into nickel steel in Ontario. He contrasted the protective policy of the United States with the manner in which Canadians permitted their raw material to be exported for manufacture abroad. The Canadian Copper Co. practically controlled the situation. They shipped all their matte to New Jersey to be refined there. They had under their control 20,000 acres comprising the richest deposits of nickel and copper ore in the Sudbury district. He had no fear that any importation of nickel from New Caledonia into the United States could compete with the Ontario supply. He gave the Government every credit for a desire to promote the industrial interests of the province in adopting the amendment to the Mines Act, under which an export tax could be put on nickel ore. If it was advisable to prevent the export of sawlogs it was equally desirable to have our nickel refined at home. The Canada Copper Company concealed the real extent and value of the product of their mines, as they did not wish the public to know the extent of their profits out of which the people received but a small pittance. The value of the refined nickel and copper made in the United States from Ontario matte during the 8 years, 1892-99, was given at $17,353,000. In these refining operations over twelve million dollars were paid out in wages to American workmen. He read extracts from U. S. reports showing that their imports of nickel ore from Canada were far more extensive than appeared by the Ontario mining reports, and gave figures showing that the annual value of the refined product amounted to upwards of eight million dollars. In conclusion he urged that the law should either be put into execution or repealed.

Hon. E. J. Davis agreed with the last speaker that the matter should not be regarded from a party point of view. He was glad also that he had expressed appreciation of the useful work of the Bureau of Mines. When the law was placed on the statute book last session it was stated that it was not intended to bring it in force until a refinery was in operation and it could be shown that their process of refining was a commercial success. The key to the whole situation was the possession of a successful refining process. If that difficulty were solved the way would be clear. Experts knew of three processes, but there were obstacles in the way in some cases. The New Jersey company claimed that their process could not be successfully operated at Sudbury. Experiments were, however, being made. Mr. Clergue was spending a large amount at the Sault and hoped shortly to have a refining plant in operation there. In the city of Hamilton also experiments had been made for some time in the hopes of perfecting the Hepburn process and another method was also being tried by them. If it were a demonstrated success they would be in a position to compete with the world. The English and continental markets would be open to them. The Canadian Copper Co. had done a great deal to advance the interests of the province. They employed last year 1,500 persons—who drew $521,000 in wages and their freight bills were heavy. It was only a few years ago since their operations began and now in Sudbury and Copper Cliff there was a population of 6,000. He denied that they had anything like a monopoly of the nickel area.

Mr. Conmee went into figures to show that Mr. Carscallen's figures were not beyond dispute. It was 8 minutes to midnight when he sat down.

On the members being called in, a division was taken and the figures on Mr. Whitney's amendment were announced as 19 for, 35 against. It proved that Mr. Bowman, who was present, voted by mistake, and the actual majority against Mr. Whitney was declared as 15. In this vote Messrs. Carscallen and Colquhoun, Conservatives, and Mr. Tucker, Patron, voted with the Government.

On the Government amendment a straight party vote was taken, 31 for, 21 against. Governement majority, 10.

The House adjourned at 12,30 this morning.

IT IS IMPORTANT.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

TRIUMPH.

I hear the world scoff while he strives away,
I see men smile when he has turned to go,
And even pity, but he does not know.
He has no ears to hear the things they say,
And so goes boasting on from day to day,
And in his eyes there is a happy glow,
Denoting an exulting heart below,
And in his visions pleasing fancies play!

Aye, let them laugh, since, happier by far
Than they who understand his frailties are,
He hurries on with triumph in his heart,
For what is triumph but a glad conceit
That lifts one o'er the rabble in the street
And makes some common course a noble part?

WRITING ON THE SKIN.

A Trick of the Davenport Brothers and How It Was Done.

The conversation of a little group in the hotel corridor had turned on spiritualistic seances, and one of the party was reminded of a story. "Some of you, no doubt, remember the furore created by the Davenport brothers thirty odd years ago," he said, "and their famous manifestation of blood red writing on their arms. I saw the same thing done at Washington at about that period under circumstances that made it deeply impressive. Spiritualism was a national craze at the time, and among the well known mediums at the capital was a man named Webster, who affected to be ultra exclusive in regard to the people he admitted to his seances and who was reputed to have done all sorts of miraculous things. I heard so much about the man that my curiosity was highly excited, and I endeavored to arrange for a sitting, which was a matter of considerable difficulty.

"At last, however, I succeeded in making an appointment and called at his house early one afternoon. I was shown into a handsome parlor, and after keeping me waiting long enough to get my nerves thoroughly on edge Webster himself suddenly appeared. He was a dark, dramatic looking man, somewhat of the Edwin Booth type, and without any preface he seated himself by my side and said abruptly, 'I have a message for you from some one in the spirit land, some one who was very dear to you.' 'Who is it?' I asked. 'It is Captain John ——,' he replied, naming my younger brother, who had been in the Federal army and died about three weeks before at one of the military hospitals. I was momentarily startled, but on reflection it did not seem very wonderful that he should have known the name.

"My brother had been well acquainted in Washington, and very slight inquiry when I made my request for an appointment would have developed the fact of his death. This was passing through my mind when Webster surprised me by pulling off his coat and rolling up his shirt sleeve. The white and muscular forearm he extended to me was without a spot or stain, but as I looked at it strange red marks began to appear here and there and joined themselves together in connected script. In a moment my brother's full name was written in crimson characters. We were near a window, in broad daylight, and, although I was considerably unnerved, I examined it closely. The writing seemed to be formed by a congestion of blood directly under the surface of the skin. In fact, the letters were raised a little, like embossing. In a few moments the characters began to fade, and presently they had entirely disappeared, leaving the arm as spotless as before. The remainder of my seance was not especially interesting," continued the speaker, "but the writing incident perplexed me deeply and remained a mystery for several years.

"Meanwhile Webster, who had made a fortune, ruined himself by gambling, took to other dissipations and became a common gutter drunkard about Washington. One night he met me at Willard's and begged for a small loan. When I refused, he took me aside and offered to show me how the arm writing trick was done if I would give him a dollar. I accepted, of course, and he took the blunt end of a match and scrawled his initials on his wrist, pressing down hard, but not enough to abrade the skin. For several minutes nothing was to be seen, then gradually the letters appeared in raised red lines, exactly as had been the case with my brother's name. It was merely a matter of temporarily arrested circulation, followed by temporary congestion. Anybody can do it who has a fairly sensitive skin and a blunt piece of wood. He had written the name just before entering the parlor on the day of our seance."

Japs Do Not Originate; They Copy.

The Japanese are not originators, but imitators. The Chinese can originate, but cannot bring to any degree of perfection; the Japanese cannot originate, but are clever at adapting and improving. Their classical books are of Chinese origin, as is also their religion. Their navy is British, their army German, their legal code French, their educational system American, and their various industries are taken from all over the world. They are not simply copied, however. The borrowed ideas are eaten and digested, as it were, and so stamped with the imprint of the art and life of the Japanese as to become their own. But the products of Japan lack the strength and durability of those of the countries from which they have been imitated, hence are not likely to disturb the equilibrium of the world's trade for many years.—Munsey's Magazine.

Another Way of Looking at It.

"I suppose you feel the usual regret at not having further improved your opportunities as a student," said the young man just out of college.

"Yes," answered the hollow chested man with a slight cough. "I kind of wish I had paid less attention to books and more to football and rowing."

Usually Has Help.

"A man," said the corn fed philosopher, "usually realizes at middle age that he is a good deal of a fool, though sometimes he needs the assistance of some young person to aid him in finding it out."

Pat's Beginning.

Pat suffered from indigestion, so he went to see the doctor. The doctor's advice was "to take walks on an empty stomach."

As soon as he came out of the surgery a tramp asked him if he could spare a copper, as he had not had anything to eat for a week. Pat knocked him down and walked over him, and of course the tramp wanted to know what he meant by such treatment.

"Well," said Pat, "the doctor told me to walk on an empty stomach, and I'm only obeying his instructions."—London Spare Moments.

GUARDING AGAINST FIRE.

Every Precaution to Be Taken at the Pan-American Exposition.

There are two fire houses upon the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., which are fully equipped with the apparatus and men necessary to fight any outbreak of fire upon the grounds.

In addition to this there are chemical fire extinguishers in all of the buildings. These are of the same type used at the World's fair at Chicago and are attached to the wall on the interior of the building. A cog on the bearing of the reel releases a valve which turns on the water in case of fire. It is only necessary to unreel the hose and thus turn on a stream which can be directed upon the blaze without a moment's delay. In this way every precaution is to be taken to prevent the occurrence of any fire and consequent destruction of valuable property.

Excursions to the Pan-American.

All over the country the people are planning to make excursions next summer to the Pan-American Exposition. Clubs are being organized whose members are saving money for the trip in this way. Pan-American study clubs are also being organized. Some large business firms are planning to give excursions to their employees, and in many manufactories the employees are organizing to go in a body to the Exposition. In the large shoe manufacturing concern of Hanan & Sons of Brooklyn the employees, who have organized themselves into an association called the Mutual Aid society, have decided on a five days' excursion to the Pan-American and Niagara Falls and have engaged a special vestibuled train for the purpose. The trip will be made during Independence week, and it is expected that at least 1,000 persons will participate in the journey.

Firemen to Attend In a Body.

The Hill Hook and Ladder Company of Rensselaer, N. Y., will attend the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next summer in a body.

NORWOOD-APSLEY RAILROAD.

DISCUSSED AT THE BOARD OF TRADE LAST NIGHT.

Representatives of the Board Will go to Ottawa To-Night—Other Business Transacted.

"Shall we assist the village of Norwood in whatever way we can in the promotion of the Norwood-Apsley Railroad?" was a subject that was fully determined at a meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade last night. The meeting was called by the President, Mr. D. W. Dumble, in order to obtain if possible the permission of the Board for the President to go down to Ottawa to-night with the Norwood delegation to press the advantages of such a line upon the Dominion Government.

There were present Mr. D. W. Dumble, President, in the chair, and Messrs. Peter Campbell, W. G. Morrow, H. LeBrun, R. Harrison, T. A. S. Hay, W. H. Bradburn, F. D. McKay, R. McWhinnie, T. E. Bradburn and R. C. McHarrie.

The minutes of the last two meetings were read, and on motion of Messrs. Bradburn and Hay, were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

A communication was read from Hon. Geo. A. Cox, acknowledging the receipt of a complimentary resolution that was passed at a recent meeting of the Board, and forwarded to him.

A like letter of acknowledgment was received from Mr. W. H. Cluxton in reference to his father's death.

A number of communications were read from secretaries of various Boards of Trade regarding technical education.

The correspondence on motion of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, seconded by Mr. Hay, was received.

Mr. Dumble explained the object of the meeting. Norwood wanted backing from the town of Peterborough in some manner in their railroad scheme, and the town had refused to assist them. He thought that perhaps the Board might look at it in a different light, and if he thought fit he would go down on behalf of the Board.

Mr. Campbell moved, seconded by Mr. Morrow, that Mr. Dumble and Mr. LeBrun be a deputation to go down to assist in pressing Norwood's claims in the matter.

Mr. Hay pointed out that they should go slowly. It would not be well to have the Board do anything that would in any way hamper Peterborough in getting a more direct line in time to come. If we endorse the Norwood project now, and some time later on there is a chance of obtaining a more direct road, the Board's present action would work against them.

Informal discussion then ensued, the general opinion being that it would not be wise to block the Norwood project.

Mr. Bradburn wanted to know if there ever was any effort made to induce the C.P.R. to build such a road from Peterborough. The line, he understood, had been surveyed one time.

Mr. Hay explained that the line, true enough, had been surveyed, but shortly after that time, the C. P. R. ceased constructing branch lines in the Province.

Mr. Harrison asked if he might go down representing the board also. He had been asked by Mr. Pearce, the president of the new company, to accompany the deputation, and he would like to go down representing the board if possible. He had rendered the promoters very valuable service when interviewing the Ontario Government.

Mr. Harrison's name was then included in Mr. Campbell's resolution, provided the Board was not asked to pay his expenses.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn suggested that the deputation when in Ottawa interview the minister of railways and canals, and ascertain if it would not be possible to have the canal opened as far south as Smith street this summer.

The meeting was unanimously in favour of this idea.

Mr. Hay reminded the meeting that at the annual meeting of the board it was suggested that there should be some literature got out setting forth the advantages of Peterborough. He asked if it would not be well to have a committee take hold of the matter.

The chairman considered that something on the same lines as had been gathered several years ago should be issued.

The matter was left with the Manufacturers Committee to be prepared and their report submitted to the board to deal with.

The committee is as follows:—

Mr. J. W. Garvin, chairman and Messrs. H. C. Rogers, T. A. S. Hay, F. H. Dobbin, T. Barrie, W. Scott, W. Salisbury and R. Fair.

MR. TROTTER'S BIRTHDAY.

What the St. Catherines Star Has to Say—Presentation.

The St. Catherines' Evening Star has the following to say concerning Rev. J. E. Trotter, formerly pastor of the Murray street Baptist church:—

"Last night when Rev. J. E. Trotter entered the class rooms of Queen street church for the usual Monday service, he was greeted with an unusual number of happy faces from miles around, bright decorations and music, and found himself at once the cynosure of all eyes. Completely taken by surprise he was led to the platform when a splendid musical programme was given by the choir and their friends, interspersed by complimentary addresses by Deacon McTavish, on behalf of the church; Superintendent Kerr on behalf of the Sunday school, and Mr. T. B. Campbell who acted as chairman, on behalf of the B. Y. P. U. All wished Mr. Trotter very many returns of his birthday, for such it was, and showed the degree of regard, as far as words could, in which their dear pastor and his gentle wife were held by the whole congregation. The four and a half years of his pastorate has bound them closely together each year as pastor, adviser and friend. Mrs. Trotter was asked to come forward, and as a large table was being uncovered Mrs. Parnell, on behalf of the Ladies' Aid, read a beautifully worded address, congratulating Mr. Trotter on his birthday, and as their 20th wedding anniversary had but recently passed, presented them with a complete china dinner et."

A FLOURISHING SOCIETY.

The Sunshine Society, and what it is Doing—Work During March.

Considerable progress has been made by the Society during the month of March and the outlook for the future is very encouraging. The weekly meetings have been very well attended, and much interest taken in the work by the active members and others. The first three weekly meetings were spent in making quilts, which are to be given to the needy poor. At one of these meetings refreshments were served by Miss Collings, the Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., which were thoroughly appreciated and enjoyed.

The fourth meeting was one that will not soon be forgotten. Miss Carson of New York, kindly gave the members a parliamentary drill, and a "mock" meeting was carried through which proved of great interest and profit to the members. At the close Miss Carson gave a talk on how to increase interest in the work, and through the kind help of Miss Roberts it was arranged to hold meetings in the Y. W.C.A. rooms every Sunday from 4.15 to 5.15, to which all girls are invited. The last meeting of the month, on the 29th, was one of special interest, as it was the date set aside to close a ten day term for raising fifteen dollars to buy a sewing machine for the use of the Sunshine Society and members of the Y.W.C.A., as well as girls without homes. Circulars were issued to a limited number of persons, and responded to heartily, the desired amount of $15 being on hand and $3.85 over. The balance will be used in sending flowers to the sick.

The following persons who are not members, contributed to the sewing machine fund: Mrs. James Wood, Mrs. A. Morrow, Miss Roberts, Mrs. Byers, Miss Winnett, Mrs. (Rev.) Symonds, Mrs. Dumble, Miss Chamberlen, Mrs. E. A. Peck, Mrs. W. J. Green, Miss Lundy, Miss Burnett, Mrs. P. Campbell, Mrs. R. S. Davidson, Mrs. Robt. Williams, Mrs. Wm. McClelland, Mrs. H. Waddell, Mrs. (Dr.) Halliday, Mrs. Vernon, Mrs. Dennistoun, Mrs. Weir, Mrs Conroy, Mrs. Brisbin, Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Davies, Miss Smith, Mrs. Mercier, Mrs Carruthers, Mrs. (Rev.) Wilson, Mr. Sutcliffe, Mr. Geo. H. Noble, Mr. George Gowland, Mr. Jas. Windrom, Mr. Geo. H. Williamson, Mr. J. H. Burnham, Mr. A. N. Clarke, Mr. Doupe, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. James, Mr. Hennessy, Mr. M. Carton.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wes. Milburn is home from college for a few weeks' study prior to taking his exams.

Mr. W. Kelsey Hall has returned from a trip to Colborne and Brighton on insurance business.

Mrs. H. Falkner, of Havelock, was called to town through the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. A. Dunsford, Sherbrooke street.

Captain H. C. Mackie, of Pembroke, recently returned from South Africa, is the guest of Mr. C. B. McAllister for a few days.

The many friends of Miss Lena Melrose will be sorry to learn that she was unable to leave on April 1st for Montreal to take her course in nursing, on account of her recent illness.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There will be a baptismal service at the close of the prayer meeting to-morrow evening in Park street Baptist church.

—Mr. Kerr had all his enumerators in last night and reviewed the work, and in every case it was very satisfactory. Very few errors were made and those that were made were of so trifling a nature that they can be easily rectified.

PIG.

By RUDYARD KIPLING.

Go stalk the red deer o'er the heather,
Ride, follow the fox if you can,
But, for pleasure and profit together,
Allow me the hunting of man—
The chase of the human, the search for the soul
To its ruin—the hunting of man.
—The Old Shikarri.

I believe the difference began in the matter of a horse, with a twist in his temper, whom Pinecoffin sold to Nafferton and by whom Nafferton was nearly slain. There may have been other causes of offense. The horse was the official stalking horse. Nafferton was very angry, but Pinecoffin laughed and said that he had never guaranteed the beast's manners. Nafferton laughed, too, though he vowed that he would write off his fall against Pinecoffin if he waited five years. Now, a Dalesman from beyond Skipton will forgive an injury when the Strid lets a man live, but a South Devon man is as soft as a Dartmoor bog. You can see from their names that Nafferton had the race advantage of Pinecoffin. He was a peculiar man, and his notions of humor were cruel. He taught me a new and fascinating form of shikar. He hounded Pinecoffin from Mithankot to Jagadri, and from Gurgaon to Abbotabad—up and across the Punjab, a large province and in places remarkably dry. He said that he had no intention of allowing assistant commissioners to "sell him pups," in the shape of ramping, screaming country breds, without making their lives a burden to them.

Most assistant commissioners develop a bent for some special work after their first hot weather in the country. The boys with digestions hope to write their names large on the frontier, and struggle for dreary places like Bannu and Kohat. The bilious ones climb into the secretariat, which is very bad for the liver. Others are bitten with a mania for district work, Ghuznivide coins or Persian poetry, while some, who come of farmers' stock, find that the smell of the earth after the rains gets into their blood and calls them to "develop the resources of the province." These men are enthusiasts. Pinecoffin belonged to their class. He knew a great many facts bearing on the cost of bullocks and temporary wells, and opium scrapers, and what happens if you burn too much rubbish on a field in the hope of enriching used up soil. Nafferton watched him and thought about the horse. Nafferton said, "See me chase that boy till he drops! I said, "You can't get your knife into an assistant commissioner." Nafferton told me that I did not understand the administration of the province.

Our government is rather peculiar. It gushes on the agricultural and general information side, and will supply a moderately respectable man with all sorts of "economic statistics," if he speaks to it prettily. For instance, you are interested in gold washing in the sands of the Sutlej. You pull the string and find that it wakes up half a dozen departments and finally communicates, say, with a friend of yours in the telegraph, who once wrote some notes on the customs of the gold washers when he was on construction work in their part of the empire. He may or may not be pleased at being ordered to write out everything he knows for your benefit. This depends on his temperament. The bigger man you are, the more information and the greater trouble can you raise.

Nafferton was not a big man, but he had the reputation of being very "earnest." An "earnest" man can do much with a government. There was an earnest man once who nearly wrecked • • • but all India knows that story.

Nafferton cast about for a peg whereon to hang his earnestness and for a string that would communicate with Pinecoffin. He found both. They were Pig. Nafferton became an earnest inquirer after Pig. He informed the government that he had a scheme whereby a very large percentage of the British army in India could be fed, at a very large saving, on Pig. Then he hinted that Pinecoffin might supply him with the "varied information necessary to the proper inception of the scheme." So the government wrote on the back of the letter, "Instruct Mr. Pinecoffin to furnish Mr. Nafferton with any information in his power."

Nafferton had not the faintest interest in Pig, but he knew that Pinecoffin would flounce into the trap. Pinecoffin was delighted at being consulted about Pig. The Indian Pig is not exactly an important factor in agricultural life, but Nafferton explained to Pinecoffin that there was room for improvement.

You may think that there is not much to be evolved from Pig. It all depends on how you set to work. Pinecoffin, being a civilian and wishing to do things thoroughly, began with an essay on the "Primitive Pig, the Mythology of the Pig and the Dravidian Pig." Nafferton filed that information—27 foolscap sheets—and wanted to know about the distribution of the Pig in the Punjab and how it stood the plains in the hot weather. From this point onward, remember that I am giving you only the barest outlines of the affair—the guy ropes, as it were, of the web that Nafferton spun round Pinecoffin.

Pinecoffin made a colored Pig population map, and collected observations on the comparative longevity of Pig (a) in the submontane tracts of the Himalayas and (b) in the Rechna Doab. Nafferton filed that and asked what sort of people looked after Pig. This started an ethnological excursus on swineherds and drew from Pinecoffin long tables showing the proportion per 1,000 of the caste in the Derajat. Nafferton filed that bundle and explained that the figures which he wanted referred to the Cis-Sutlej states, where he understood that Pigs were very fine and large and where he proposed to start a Piggery. By this time, government had quite forgotten their instructions to Mr. Pinecoffin. They were like the gentlemen in Keats' poem who turned well oiled wheels to skin other people. But Pinecoffin was just entering into the spirit of the Pig hunt, as Nafferton well knew he would do. He had a fair amount of work of his own to clear away, but he sat up of nights reducing Pig to five places of decimals for the honor of his service. He was not going to appear ignorant of so easy a subject as Pig.

Then government sent him on special duty to Kohat, to "inquire into" the big, seven foot, iron shod spades of that district. People had been killing each other with those peaceful tools, and government wished to know "whether a modified form of agricultural implement could not, tentatively and as a temporary measure, be introduced among the agricultural population without needlessly or unduly exacerbating the existing religious sentiments of the peasantry."

Between those spades and Nafferton's Pig, Pinecoffin was heavily burdened.

Nafferton now began to take up "(a) the food supply of the indigenous Pig, with a view to the improvement of its capacities as a flesh former; (b) the acclimatisation of the exotic Pig, maintaining its distinctive peculiarities." Pinecoffin replied exhaustively that the exotic Pig would become merged into the indigenous type, and quoted horse breeding statistics to prove this. The side issue was debated, at great length on Pinecoffin's side, till Nafferton owned that he had been in the wrong and moved the previous question. When Pinecoffin had quite written himself out about flesh formers and fibrins and glucose and the nitrogenous constituents of maize and lucern, Nafferton raised the question of expense. By this time Pinecoffin, who had been transferred from Kohat, had developed a Pig theory of his own, which he stated in 33 folio pages—all carefully filed by Nafferton, who asked for more.

These things took ten months, and Pinecoffin's interest in the potential Piggery seemed to die down after he had stated his own views. But Nafferton bombarded him with letters on "the imperial aspect of the scheme, as tending to officialize the sale of pork, and thereby calculated to give offense to the Mohammedan population of upper India." He guessed that Pinecoffin would want some broad, free hand work after his niggling, stippling, decimal details. Pinecoffin handled the latest development of the case in masterly style and proved that no "popular ebullition of excitement was to be apprehended." Nafferton said that there was nothing like civilian insight in matters of this kind and lured him up a bypath—"the possible profits to accrue to the government from the sale of hog bristles." After Pinecoffin had wondered a little at Nafferton's rage for information, he sent back a monograph, 51 pages, on "Products of the Pig." This led him, under Nafferton's tender handling, straight to the Cawnpur factories, the trade in hogskin for saddles—and thence to the tanners. Pinecoffin wrote that pomegranate seed was the best cure for hog skin, and suggested—for the past 14 months had wearied him—that Nafferton should "raise his pigs before he tanned them."

Nafferton went back to the second section of his fifth question. How could the exotic Pig be brought to give as much pork as it did in the west and yet "assume the essentially hirsute characteristics of its oriental congener?" Pinecoffin felt dazed, for he had forgotten what he had written 16 months before, and fancied that he was about to reopen the entire question. He was too far involved in the hideous tangle to retreat, and, in a weak moment, he wrote, "Consult my first letter," which related to the Dravidian Pig. As a matter of fact, Pinecoffin had still to reach the acclimatization stage, having gone off on a side issue on the merging of types.

Then Nafferton really unmasked his batteries! He complained to the government, in stately language, of "the paucity of help accorded to me in my earnest attempts to start a potentially remunerative industry, and the flippancy with which my requests for information are treated by a gentleman whose pseudo scholarly attainments should at least have taught him the primary differences between the Dravidian and the Berkshire variety of the genus Sus. If I am to understand that the letter to which he refers me contains his serious views on the acclimatization of a valuable though possibly uncleanly animal, I am reluctantly compelled to believe," etc.

There was a new man at the head of the department of castigation. The wretched Pinecoffin was told that the service was made for the country and not the country for the service, and that he had better begin to supply information about Pigs.

Pinecoffin answered insanely that he had written everything that could be written about Pig, and that some furlough was due to him. Nafferton got a copy of that letter and sent it with the essay on the Dravidian Pig to a down country paper, which printed both in full. The essay was rather high flown, but if the editor had seen the stacks of paper in Pinecoffin's handwriting on Nafferton's table, he would not have been so sarcastic about the "nebulous discursiveness and blatant self sufficiency of the modern competition wallah, and his utter inability to grasp the practical issues of a practical question." Many friends cut out these remarks and sent them to Pinecoffin.

I have already stated that Pinecoffin came of a soft stock. This last stroke frightened and shook him. He could not understand it, but he felt that he had been, somehow, shamelessly betrayed by Nafferton. He realized that he had wrapped himself up in the Pigskin without need, and that he could not well set himself right with his government. All his acquaintances asked after his "nebulous discursiveness" or his "blatant self sufficiency," and this made him miserable.

He took a train and went to Nafferton, whom he had not seen since the Pig business began. He also took the cutting from the paper and blustered feebly and called Nafferton names, and then died down to a weak protest of the "I say, it's too bad, you know," order.

"I'm afraid I've given you a good deal of trouble, haven't I?" said he.

"Trouble!" whimpered Pinecoffin. "I don't mind the trouble so much, though that was bad enough, but what I resent is this showing up in print. It will stick to me like a bur all through my service, and I did do my best for your interminable swine. It's too bad of you, on my soul it is!"

"I don't know," said Nafferton. "Have you ever been stuck with a horse? It isn't the money I mind, though that is bad enough, but what I resent is the chaff that follows, especially from the boy who stuck me. But I think we'll cry quits now."

Pinecoffin found nothing to say save bad words, and Nafferton smiled ever so sweetly and asked him to dinner.

THE RELIEF OF LUCKNOW RECALLED.

MR. WM. JOHN TRAINER, 12 Bond Street Toronto, age 55 years, endorses Burdock Blood Bitters. He says:

I served in the British army eleven years, and was through the Indian Mutiny under Sir Colin Campbell and Gen. Havelock.

I had the bone of my left leg shattered by a splinter of shell at the relief of Lucknow.

The wound never healed up properly and was continually breaking out and discharging matter.

It was of such a size that two fingers could be laid in it.

In the year of 1881 I took Burdock Blood Bitters and used Burdock Ointment as a dressing. This treatment gradually healed up the sore until at the end of six months it was completely cured.

The cure has been a permanent one to this day (Jan. 15th, 1901), the sore has never broken out. The skin is perfectly smooth and clear and only a slight scar remains. WM. JOHN TRAINER.

CANADA'S BEST.

Arrangements Completed for Exhibiting at the Glasgow Show—Unique Display for the Canadian Building.

All arrangements for the Canadian exhibit at the Galsgow Exposition are now practically completed. One hundred and fifty manufacturers of the Dominion will display their wares at Glasgow and the representation of the natural resources, food products and industries of this country will be one of the most varied and comprehensive ever brought together. Canada has 9,000 feet of space in the main building, which will be devoted to musical instruments, furniture, food products and flour and leather products, textiles, etc.

The Canadian building will be a handsome structure costing $10,000, and will give 12,000 feet of space. It will have three entrances, facing to the south, east and west. The main entrance will face south on Kelvin Grove street, and will be flanked by ornamental towers rising to a height of 65 feet. In the centre of the building will stand an octagonal Canadian trophy to be built of cereals and grasses. This will be of handsome design and 32 feet in height. Space in the Canadian building will be devoted to agricultural implements and agricultural products, horticultural display, carriages, canoes, forestry and fisheries exhibits.

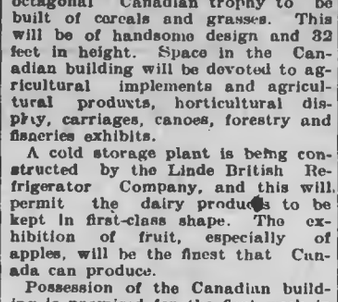
A cold storage plant is being constructed by the Linde British Refrigerator Company, and this will permit the dairy products to be kept in first-class shape. The exhibition of fruit, especially of apples, will be the finest that Canada can produce.

Possession of the Canadian building is promised for the first week in March. Mr. W. D. Scott, Canadian Commissioner, left for Scotland on the 22nd Feb., to assume the personal direction of affairs in Glasgow in connection with the Dominion exhibit. A staff of six men will assist him.

ELECTRICAL EXHIBITS.

Wonderful Collection and Grand Display of Electric Lighting.

It is the plan of the management to make the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next year the greatest electrical Exposition ever held. In view of the wonderful advance in the electrical science since the World's fair there will probably not be a single duplication of an exhibit seen at Chicago in 1893. Nearly everything in the electrical line then exhibited has been superseded in the market by new machinery and appliances constructed upon a better understanding of the wonderful force. The discovery of the Roentgen rays, the invention of wireless telegraphy and the development of the electromo-



THE MINES BUILDING.

bile are among the well known new and useful applications of electricity unknown at the time of the Columbian Exposition. Electricity is to be extensively used in making attractive displays at night. For this purpose a steel tower 375 feet high has been planned which will face the Court of the Fountains. Upon this great tower and in this broad and beautiful court there will be seen at night fantastic and beautiful displays in electrical illumination. More than 200,000 electric lamps are to be used for this purpose, it being the intention of electricians to have all the large buildings surrounding this court outlined with a fringe of brilliant electric lamps. These wonderful electrical displays are made possible by the nearness of Niagara Falls, from which nearly all the power used for the Exposition will be drawn.

MATRON AND MAID.

Edna Lyall is the pen name of Miss Ada Ellen Bayly.

The Duchess of Newcastle is a lover of dogs and has taken many prizes with her wire haired fox terriers.

Mrs. Lizzie Sargent of Ellsworth, Me., recently saved a lumber camp and all in it from burning by holding a fire in check, fighting the flames for nearly two hours with an old fashioned mop dipped in water until help arrived.

Fraulein Isolde von Bulow, daughter of Dr. Hans von Bulow, the celebrated pianist and conductor, has married an instrumentalist in the Baireuth orchestra. Some of her friends were displeased, but it was a love match, and in such cases it is of little use for friends to protest.

It is said the recognition of Lady Frances Hope, known on the professional stage as May Yohe, by the members of her husband's family is to be made complete as soon as the actress-lady can get abroad to be received by her aristocratic sister-in-law, Princess Doria, at her Italian home.

Mrs. U. S. Grant has been writing a book of personal reminiscences for her children. Mrs. Grant also has just put the finishing touch to a journal which she kept in California in 1894 while spending a year with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ulysses Grant, which is designed as a gift for her.

Lady de Rothschild is one of the best known and most practical women farmers of today. She has a model farm at Aston Clinton, Hertfordshire, which is kept in a most businesslike way, a strict system of accounts being carried out. The dairy at the farm is quite a sight, the cattle and poultry are admirably housed, and the sheep are of prize breeds.

Mrs. Langtry's new house in Tedworth square, London, promises to be a very beautiful one when the decorations are completed. The dining room will be finished in the Gothic fashion, with rough oak beams on a scarlet ceiling. There will be a great open fireplace with an oak beam. The drawing room is decorated in pure Italian fashion, with a marble floor, and the walls are hung with green velvet.

The Decision That Was Rendered by a Basuto Solomon.

Law is a complicated thing, and some of its decisions seem not to be founded in equity. Probably most readers will pass that criticism upon the case recorded below:

Basutoland, being broken and mountainous, was until recently the resort of lions, leopards and other wild animals. Now, however, the hillsides which were once the resort of these savage creatures are the pasture grounds of tens of thousands of cattle. Nearly all dangerous animals have been driven away from Basutoland, but not long ago a leopard appeared on the outskirts of a village. The animal soon became as badly frightened as the villagers and sought safety in flight.

The next morning the inhabitants turned out for a hunt. One of the hunters was climbing a steep rock when he suddenly found himself face to face with the leopard, whose retreat was cut off by the rock itself. Neither the man nor the animal could escape the encounter.

The dilemma was an awkward one, for the climber was unarmed. Realizing his danger, he put forth his hands and in desperation caught hold of the leopard on each side of its jaw, holding it at arm's length and calling for help. The leopard clawed and tore his captor, but the man held on till help arrived, and the beast was speared.

Now came a question of law. By Basuto law the skin belonged to the chief, who must reward one of three claimants—either the man who speared the leopard or the man who held it so that it was possible to spear it or the man who, being warned by the barking of his dog, first discovered the animal in the village.

The Basuto Solomon decided the case as follows: The man who speared it could not have done so but for the man who held it, and the man who held it could not have known of its existence if the dog had not first warned the village; therefore the credit for the killing belonged to the dog, whose owner was entitled to the reward.—Youth's Companion.

Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

LIFE SAVING STATION.

One Is Being Erected by United States Government.

Work was recently begun on the United States life saving station upon the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y. The site of the station is on the north side of the lake in Delaware park, in one of the most beautiful portions of the Exposition grounds.

The life saving station will be fully equipped with apparatus and men and will be a most attractive as well as novel exhibit. Life saving exhibitions will be given every day during the progress of the Exposition. The apparatus in use by the government for this purpose will be shown and a crew of ten picked men will be employed in giving the exhibitions. The station is to be modeled after one of the regular stations along the coast of the United States.

A LOWER JORDAN BAY LADY

Has nothing but good words for Milburn's Pills.

From every town and village in the Dominion comes the same story.

People everywhere have and are testing the merits of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

People everywhere have weak, palpitating and throbbing hearts.

Troubled with Faint and Dizzy Spells, Nervousness and Sleeplessness.

Tiredness, Shortness of Breath, Cold Hands and Feet.

Anæmia, Pale and Sallow Complexion, and General Debility.

And are making known to the public the means by which they were cured.

Here is one of many letters we are receiving daily:

LOWER JORDAN BAY, N.S.
March 25th, 1900.

MESSRS. THE T. MILBURN CO., LIMITED.
Toronto, Ont

DEAR SIRS,—"About a year ago I was feeling very poorly, my system was all run down. I could not sleep at night, and felt very weak and nervous. My heart palpitated badly and gave me great distress and shortness of breath, and made me feel tired and listless all the time.

"I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and found that one box was all that was necessary to cure me, and I can recommend them to all suffering as I did."

Yours truly,
MISS G. M. LOCKE.

Hoping to Make Their Fortunes.

The thousands of people who visit the grounds where the buildings of the Pan-American Exposition are rising like a city created by magic see many things which indicate that the value of the vacant lots surrounding the Exposition grounds for money making purposes next summer is duly appreciated. For instance, one real estate dealer advertises like this: "Can you keep a boarding house? Can you run a lunch counter? If so, here is your chance to make the most money." Another advertises, "Choice lots for hotels, boarding houses, saloons, summer gardens, restaurants, souvenir booths and other things by which you can make your fortune at the Pan-American Exposition." All the vacant property in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds is staked off and placarded by signs indicating its value for purposes in connection with the big Exposition to be held in Buffalo next summer, and many buildings are already going up which will be used for accommodations for Exposition visitors and all sorts of purposes connected with their entertainment.

STARVED HIMSELF.

A Toronto Moulder who Tried to Cure His Dyspepsia by the Starvation Method, which is never a Satisfactory or Successful Treatment—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Him.

Toronto employs hundreds of moulders. As everyone knows, the extremes of temperature in which these men labour, has often caused the strongest among them to break down. Stomach troubles is many time the cause.

George Arthurs, of 122 Argyle street, is an example of a moulder, who by the timely use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets retained his good health. He says:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia for six years. It has been a great inconvenience to me for after eating a hearty meal the pains would almost double me up. I have tried several remedies, and have also tried going without my meals, until I was very weak and run down, but no treatment seemed to give me any relief.

"I read of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and concluded to try them. I am very thankful I did so, for I am now completely cured."

Among other things Mr. Arthur tried the starvation plan. Many hope to cure stomach troubles in this way. The stomach certainly does need rest but the system also needs food. How can a man or a woman who has to toil from morning till night, six days in the week, get along without a full share of good food?

How then may the body receive the strength and nourishment of sufficient properly digested food, and at the same time, the stomach enjoy the needed rest?

Science has answered, by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest the food without the aid of the stomach, thus furnishing nourishment to the body and rest to the stomach.

You may eat what you like if you are careful to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

Mr. Arthur is well known to the moulders of Toronto and his experience has been the means of pointing a great many others to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the only sure cure for Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles.

Queer Facts About Colors.

Many deadly poisons are blue in color, such as bluestone or the deadly nightshade flower. The color stands in our slang for everything miserable and depressing.

Each kind of light has its own special uses. The red rays of light make the leaves of the trees to grow, and hasten all rotting and decay. Moreover, if you cut off the red rays plants will grow with golden brown leaves instead of green.

Blue light has a curious effect on plants. They will neither grow nor die; they languish, and yet remain alive. The blue makes them sleep. The effect is exactly that of moonlight and starlight, when all plants take their natural rest

Under red glass nearly all plants grow four times as quickly as under white light, grow to four times their usual height, and throw out a fine display of green leaves. This is clear proof that the red rays of sunlight cause the green leaves to grow.

The sea is blue because the water reflects the blue rays of light, but shallow seas are green because the blue light is mixed with the yellow reflections from sand and stones at the bottom. In this green light of shallow water all seaweeds grow, and for want of the red rays they have golden and tawny leaves. Green and red seaweeds are the exception, and blue seaweeds are as rare as blue leaves.

The Men's Chapter of the Guild will meet in the vestry this evening at 8 p.m. It is expected that the following representatives of Canadian contingents to South Africa will be present and will give short addresses: Messrs. SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

A general meeting of all members of the Golf Club is called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson's office.

BASEBALL.

There is reason to believe that Peterborough will witness a pretty brisk baseball season during the coming summer. There has not been a great deal of gossip going on in the newspapers, but Mr. Danny McCabe and R. A. W. Hay of the local club have been doing sledge hammer work towards the formation of a league to comprise the best clubs in Eastern Ontario. The league will be composed of three sections, the old Midland league of last year forming the central portion of the same. Letters of a very encouraging nature have been received from many clubs and the success of the affair is now a foregone conclusion. The meeting for the organization of the league will be held on Good Friday in the Oriental hotel.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough club is called for Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Oriental hotel, when matters pertaining to the formation of the league will likely be discussed.

FIGHT ON A TRAIN.

R. McCullough, Ontario Recruit, Pushed Off Platform and Badly Hurt.

Moncton, N. B., March 31.—Richard McCullough, who has been one of the garrison at Halifax, was a passenger on the Maritime train last night, with three other soldiers, who had been discharged, and were going home to Ontario. At Moncton several men, said to be from the lumber woods, boarded the train, and a row ensued. McCullogh was standing on the platform, and claims he was pushed off while acting as peacemaker. The train was then at full speed. McCullough managed to reach a farm house, where a doctor was summoned. McCullough had two ribs broken and was internally hurt. Arrests will likely follow.

The Dregs of Grippe and Poison Germs Keeping Thousands in Poor Health.

Paine's Celery Compound

PURIFIES THE BLOOD, RENOVATES THE SYSTEM, BRACES THE NERVES AND KEEPS PEOPLE IN GOOD HEALTH.

If the dregs and poisons of Grippe are still lingering in your system, causing weakness, debility, sleeplessness, headache, nervous prostration, rheumatism, heart trouble or blood diseases, the use of Paine's Celery Compound for two or three weeks will completely banish the poisons of death, purify the life stream, brace the weak and unstrung nerves and build up the entire system.

Mr. J. Irvine, Heckston, Ont., who was brought near the grave by troubles arising from poisonous Grippe germs, was marvellously restored to health by Paine's Celery Compound after several doctors had failed in the work. Mr. Irvin says:

"After a severe attack of Grippe I was left in a weak and very debilitated condition. My health was almost wrecked, I had no strength and felt tired all the time. I was so weak that my legs would not support my body, and I have often fallen to the ground when trying to attend to my work, and would be compelled to lie where I had fallen until I could master sufficient strength to rise. My appetite was all gone and when I would try to eat in order to gain strength I would suffer untold misery for hours. It seemed to me that I was slowly starving to death.

"Doctors could not benefit me by their treatment. My friends thought I was going to die, and I verily believe I would have died had I not used Paine's Celery Compound. I bought six bottles and received more benefit from it than I had ever dreamed of. From the first, I began to improve in health, and to-day I am completely restored. I can do as good a day's work as I ever could and can eat any kind of food and sleep as well as when I was a boy. I send this testimonial unsolicited."

BEAR'S THREATS VAIN

Russia Could Not Hold China Against Powers' Protests.

CHINA REFUSED TO SIGN TREATY

Both The Times' and The London Mail's Correspondents Agree as to the Facts—Negotiations Still Go On—Time Expires Wednesday, and Russia Explains Her Interest in China.

Washington, D. C., April 2. — Information has reached here to the effect that the Russian Government, being seriously perturbed by the course of China in not signing the Manchurian agreement, largely because of the protest made by the several powers, has conveyed a distinct and unmistakable indication to China that if this course is persisted in there may be an interruption of the diplomatic relations between Russian and China and a termination of the present intercourse between them. This is little short of an ultimatum that China must sign or take the consequences of a termination of her friendly relations with Russia.

China Refuses to Sign.

London, April 2.—The Chinese Emperor, I am officially informed, has instructed the Chinese plenipotentiaries, says the Pekin correspondent of The Daily Mail, not to sign the Manchurian convention even in a modified form.

This Is Good Confirmation.

London, April 2.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Pekin, March 28, says: "The Yangtse viceroys have carried the day. Li Hung Chang, who wired Tuesday urging Emperor Kwang Su to reconsider his decision, received an answer that the throne's decision, in the presence of the unanimous advice of the chief provincial officials, was irrevocable, and that the Manchurian convention could not be signed.

"In spite of her threats, Russia seems disinclined to slam the door. Negotiations between Li Hung Chang and M. de Giers were certainly proceeding yesterday, when M. de Giers agreed to several formal amendments of the text. Russia's cynical and bold diplomacy appears for once to have overreached itself."

Time Expires Wednesday.

St. Petersburg, April 2.—The new term within which the signature of the Manchurian agreement is demanded, will expire Wedeneeday.

The Russian Government publicists do not cease to emphasize the radical difference between the Russian position towards China and that of the other powers. The Novoe Vromya, developing this, says: "For others, China is merely a market which they can leave to see a better one if it becomes unprofitable. Russia cannot leave China, because of their immense common frontier."

The Nova Scotia Budget.

Halifax, April 2.—Premier Murray brought down the financial returns in the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon. The probable revenue is placed at $1,034,906.42, and expenditure at $1,026,965,89 The sum of $460,000 is estimated from mines royalties, and $30,000 from succession duties. Crown lands are expected to yield $35,000. The expenditure embraces $258,000 for education, $141,000 for roads and bridges, $148,000 for debenture interest and $35,000 for agriculture.

Tobacco Factory Bylaw Carried.

Cornwall, Ont., April 2.—The bylaw granting a bonus of $1,500 to purchase a site for a tobacco factory to be erected and operated by H. C. Ward of Pontiac, Mich., was carried here yesterday by a vote of 324 for and 29 against. The factory will cost $20,000, and will employ not less than 100 hands, and will prepare tobacco for cigar purposes only.

Conductor France Hurt.

Niagara Falls, April 2.—The chair car on the Lehigh Valley New York express went into the ditch at the Suspension Bridge last night. Conductor France had his arm crushed and was injured internally. He was picked up unconscious. The chair car came from Toronto, and was crowded with passengers, none of whom were hurt.

Capital Stock $1,100,000,000.

Trenton, N. J., April 2. — The United States Steel Corporation yesterday filed with the Secretary of State articles amending its charter and increasing its capital stock to $1,100,000,000. The States fee for the filing of the papers was $220,000.

Thirty Thousand Scotch Miners Idle.

London, April 2.—Reports received at a mass meeting of the Lanarkshire Colliery Engine Handlers at Hamilton, showed that 30,000 miners were idle in Scotland, owing to the strike for an eight-hour day.

Twenty Turkish Soldiers Drowned.

Jiddah, Arabia, April 2.—The Turkish transport Aslan has been wrecked near Yembo. Twenty soldiers were drowned.

MANITOULIN RAILWAY

The Ontario Government's Bargain For Its Construction.

GIST OF THE TERMS SECURED.

Control of the Right of Way and Rates—1,000 Settlers a Year to Be Located—Land Grant of 2,500,000 Acres But No Cash—Other Grants to Railways.

Toronto, April 3.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday supplementary estimates to the amount of $182,884 were submitted, the principal items being Public Buildings, $64,050, of which $50,000 was for the School of Practical Science; Public Works, $24,666; Colonization Roads, $20,750; Temiscaming Railway surveys for 106 miles, $10,000; and Pan-American Exposition, $16,000.

Premier Ross introduced a bill to amend the Act respecting arbitration on the accounts between the Province and the Dominion which he explained permitted an appeal from the award of the arbitrators.

The House went into committee on Mr. Harcourt's bill respecting the University of Toronto. Mr. Harcourt introduced an amendment providing for the change of the name of the university to that of the "University of Ontario" on proclamation by the Lieutenant-Governor, provided that at any time the change were authorized by statute of the University Senate passed by at least three-fourths of the members. The proposed change was deprecated by Messrs. Whitney and Pattullo, but the Minister of Education pointed out that the clause provided ample safeguards against hasty action and no such alteration could take place unless there were an overwhelming public sentiment in its favor. After some further amendments had been made the committee reported progress.

The Municipal Amendment bill introduced by Mr. Davis, comprising all the amending bills introduced this session which escaped being slaughtered in the Municipal Committee, boiled down into one measure, got a second reading and was considered in committee. One of the principal provisions of the measure enabled the owners of farming lands which had been included within the limits of towns and villages to apply to the County Council and obtain an arbitration as to the terms on which they would be entitled to withdraw and become attached to the adjacent township. Mr. Whitney opposed the clause which was upheld by Mr. Dryden and Hon. J. M. Gibson. After a protracted discussion the clause was adopted.

The ninth clause provided that in cities and towns where wards had been abolished and aldermen or councillors elected at large, the principle of "one man one vote" should apply instead of the electors being allowed as at present to vote in each ward where he held property. Mr. Stratton expressed some doubt as to whether the bill did not go too far in depriving property of its influence, but the section was passed.

Section 18, authorizing mayors to administer oaths in connection with investigations for breaches of trust, etc., was struck out.

The remaining sections were passed and the committee reported progress as it was proposed to incorporate some further matters in the bill.

The House went into committee on Attorney-General Gibson's bill to amend the Registry Act, providing that the Inspector may authorize the Registrar to provide fire-proof or metal fittings for registry office vaults, or the proper heating and ventilation of the vaults. The Attorney-General explained that this was strictly necessary, as in some cases the records were simply rotting for lack of proper accommodation. Mr. McLaughlin protested against the matter being taken out of the hands of the County Council. The bill was reported.

Hon. Mr. Dryden's bill to amend the Ontario Shops Regulation Act was taken up in committee and reported with verbal amendments.

The Government bills to amend the Statute Law and the Succession Duties Act received a second reading.

Notice was given of the following railway grants: Bracebridge and Trading Lake Railway, 16 miles, $48,000; Bruce Mines and Algoma Railway, 13 miles, $39,000; railway from Bolton Creek, Oso Township, to iron mines in Lanark Township, 25 miles, $75,000; Norwood and Apsley Railway, 25 miles, $75,000; Port Arthur and St. Joe, 30 miles, $6,000, and a land grant of 5,000 acres per mile.

Premier Ross moved the first reading of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway bill. The whole length of the road to be subsidized was not to exceed 300 miles. By connecting with the C. P. R. at Owen Sound and with the G. T. R. at Collingwood, Wiarton and other points it would place the points accessible by those roads in closer connection with Manitoulin Island, the North Shore and the Sudbury district. The bill gave the C. P. R. and G. T. R. running powers over the line, which would not be exclusively under the control of any system. A large amount of money could have been saved in the past had such a provision been embodied in previous charters, which would have prevented the building of parallel lines. The bill would give a quicker route and a shorter route for traffic with equal running privileges to all. No money subsidy would be given, but a grant of land, but the pine would not be included. The subsidy would be divided among the divisions of the road. For a section of the road 10,000 acres per mile would be given and for the remainder 7,400 acres per mile. The land would be laid out in alternate blocks on each side of the railroad, extending for 12 miles from the track. The line had not yet been located. It was hoped that this road might form a portion of a transcontinental line, which would greatly benefit Ontario. The export of spruce or of ore in an unmanufactured condition from the company's land was prohibited and the company was bound to construct a public smelter within two years, with a daily capacity of 300 tons. The company also guaranteed the establishment of a steamship service in connection with points on the road, which would greatly aid the development of the west. A steam car ferry costing $300,000 was to be established to Manitoulin Island. The company also agreed to put 1,000 settlers on the land every year for 10 years. The charter reserved an option to purchase the road from the company within 15 years at the actual cost of construction with 6 per cent. interest. The Government would retain control of the passenger and freight rates of the road.

Mr. Whitney said that the road was evidently in the interests of the province, and he would reserve any criticisms until the second reading.

Premier Ross continued the introduction of new Government bills, with one respecting arbitration of accounts between the Dominion Government and the province to give power of appeal from decisions on legal points.

This bill is not to become law until after legislation by the Dominion Government.

The House adjourned from 10 o'clock last night until 11 o'clock this morning.

Mother Died to Save Her Babe.

Chatham, Ont., April 3.—About 11 o'clock Monday morning Mrs. Geo. Arnold, who resides near this place, her baby boy, aged two years and another son, aged 10 years, were driving towards the village of Louisville, the elder boy driving. As the party were approaching the bridge, the horse, which was attached to a light buggy, took fright and ran away. They were now going swiftly over the bridge, when the boy, in the confusion, pulled steadily on one rein. The horse instantly swerved to one side, and the whole party pitched headlong over the side of the bridge to the embankment 40 feet below. The baby received only a few scratches, the boy escaped unhurt, but the mother received internal injuries, from which she died at 5 o'clock the same evening. The horse escaped unhurt. The mother gave up her life in trying to save her child, who was found tightly clasped in his mother's arms. The husband is frantic with grief.

British Trade With China.

Pekin, April 2.—Sir Robert Hart, Inspector-General of Chinese Customs, has sent to the legations customs comparisons for the past five years. These show a great increase in American trade, particularly in flannels and sheeting, and a corresponding decrease in British trade. They also show a great falling off in the American kerosene trade. Russia has a greater part of the business in oil, and the merchants fear Russian competition, especially in cotton goods, and oil, while owing to the "closed door" policy, Manchuria will be lost entirely to international trade.

Leader of Mutineers Shot.

Cape Coast Castle, Gold Coast Colony, April 3.—The leader of the men belonging to the West African Regiment, who recently mutinied because they had not been returned to Sierra Leona at the time they understood they were to be sent home, has been court martialled and publicly shot. The rest of the mutineers have been shipped to the Island of Sherbro, 40 miles from Sierra Leona.

French Premier Operated Upon

THE ALIEN LABOR LAW

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Explains the Proposed Amendment.

C.P.R. LAND TAX EXEMPTION.

Two Discussions on the Same Question and Two Amendments to Go Into Supply—Mr. Davis' Motion Was Carried—Mr. Maclean's Was Lost —Amendments to the New Alien Labor Law.

Ottawa, April 3.—Yesterday's session of the House sat until nearly an hour after midnight, the chief topics of discussion being Sir Wilfrid Laurier's alien labor law and the amendments to supply moved by Mr. Davis and Mr. Maclean upon the exemption clauses of the C. P. R. charter. Mr. Davis' amendment was carried, and Mr. Maclean's lost. During the last two hours of the sitting the Ontario public buildings estimates, amounting to $217,000, were passed, and the House rose at 12.45.

The New Alien Labor Bill.

In moving the second reading of the bill "To amend the act to restrict the importation and employment of aliens," the Premier said the present act names uniform penalty of $1,000, which, because of its inelasticity had been found inconvenient, so the bill was modified to read "not more than $1,000, but not less than $50."

The second point of the bill relates to the recovery of the penalty. Under the present law, suits for the enforcement of the act can only be brought upon the authority of the Minister of Justice, or Attorney-General of Canada. The bill amended this by providing that suits may be authorized, not by the Attorney-General of Canada, but by the Attorney-General of any province, or by a judge of the court which has the jurisdiction in the matter.

The third amendment is to prevent employers from advertising for labor in the United States. But since the measure was introduced representations had been made by manufacturers that employers should be allowed to import special classes of skilled labor, which cannot be had in Canada. The labor organizations had been consulted as to this, and had not objected to the permission being given.

After a long discussion Mr. Clarke moved to amend the clause to read that any person, upon conviction of having imported alien labor into Canada, shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $1,000, nor less than $50, "recoverable in the name of His Majesty in a summary manner with costs, under the provisions of clause 58 of the criminal code of 1892, before a magistrate, a stipendiary magistrate, judge of the sessions, or county court judge, having jurisdiction where the offender is to be found, or where the offence was committed."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said, that as a good deal of valuable information had been elicited, and as the concensus of opinion on both sides seemed to be that jurisdiction of the court should be more distinctly settled and conferred upon the county courts, he would ask that the clause stand.

Mr. Ralph Smith then moved to amend the present law, which permits the importation of skilled workmen to establish new industries in Canada, to make it read: "Provided that this section shall not apply to skilled labor now obtainable in Canada."

Mr. Smith's amendment was adopted, and after some further discussion the committee rose and reported progress.

C. P. R. Taxation.

Mr. Davis of Saskatchewan, moved in amendment, that a test case be brought before the courts to obtain an interpretation of the contracts with the C. P. R., under which the land grant of the company is exempt from taxation, and that the Government issue patents to the C. P. R. and other companies forthwith.

He explained that in the Northwest, settlers had been looking forward to March 15 last as being the date from which the railway lands would become liable to taxation. But the C. P. R. contended that the exemption extended to 20 years from the time they took out patents on the land.

Mr. Sifton explained that the reason why the patents for the railway lands had not been issued was on account of the accumulation of work on the Department of Interior. He expected that before the close of the session all the patents for the lands along the main line would be issued, and that within eight or nine months all the railway lands would have been covered. As to a test case, to decide about the taxation of the C. P. R. lands, as soon as any municipality was in a position to enter suit the Government would come to the financial assistance of such municipality to press the suit.

Mr. Maclean held that Parliament, not the courts, was the body to settle this question.

Mr. Borden asked if it was intended to proceed with a test case between a particular municipality and the C. P. R.

Mr. Sifton replied that the method which had been found most satisfactory in the Northwest was this: Where the question of taxation was at issue, the municipality was told to go ahead and levy taxes upon the railway company's lands, advertise the lands for sale, and put the railway in a position of either bringing a bill to set aside an action for sale, or pay the money under protest and sue to get their money back. Either way the case would come before the courts on the direct question of the liability of the land to taxation. The Government would tell the municipality that as soon as it was ready to proceed the Government would appoint a counsel to take charge of the case.

Mr. Borden pointed out that this might work and it might not. If the last court was not reached the object desired would not be obtained. It might not be carried beyond the first court, and in that case such a decision would not be an estoppel as between the C. P. R. and any other municipality. Unless both parties agreed to make a test case and carry it to the highest court it would not settle the question at all.

The amendment was carried.

In the evening, on motion to go into Supply, Mr. W. F. Maclean, in a long speech, moved That in the opinion of the House the 20-year exemption provided for the land subsidy in clause 16 of the C. P. R. contract, 1881, begins as of a date even with the payment of the money subsidy."

After discussion at some length, Mr. Maclean's motion was defeated by 100 to 7.

Those who voted yea were Messrs. Wallace, Maclean, Blain, Cargill, Broder, McGowan and Boyd.

The House then went into supply, and after passing an item, adjourned at 12.50.

THE MANCHURIAN CONVENTION.

Chinese Expect Ratification — Southern Viceroys in a Fury Over It.

London, April 3.—"The Chinese expect after all that the Manchurian convention will be ratified in the course of the next few days," says the Tien Tsin correspondent of The Standard, wiring Monday. "The Southern Viceroys and Governors are incensed, and threaten rebellion if the court yields. The Northern Chinese are more ignorant and indifferent."

The Morning Post publishes the following despatch from Pao Ting Fu, dated March 31:

"Chinese officials here profess to have received information from Li Hung Chang that the Manchurian convention has been signed."

Japan Is Not Satisfied.

London, April 3.—"Russia's reply to Japan's protest against the Manchurian convention," says the Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail, "is regarded as unsatisfactory, and further vigorous representations will follow." The reply was tantamount to refusing to consider the question with a third power.

BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless it is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manuel labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

The Steel Trade in England.

London, April 3.—Presiding yesterday at a meeting of the Barrow Hematite Steel Company, the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council, took a pessimistic view of American and other foreign competition. He said the total orders for rails given to British makers in 1900 had not reached 50 per cent. of the orders given during the preceding four years. Competition did not account for the whole decrease. Either less rails were required or buyers were waiting in expectation of lower prices.

A GOOD SUBJECT NOW.

Aguinaldo, the Captured Filipino Leader, Takes the Oath of Allegiance to the United States.

Washington, April 3.—Secretary of War Root announces that Aguinaldo has taken the oath of allegiance to the United States.

Following is the cablegram received at the War Department yesterday morning, telling the news:

"Manila, April 2.—Since arrival at Manila Aguinaldo has been at Matacanan investigating conditions in Archipelago. He has relied almost entirely upon the instructive advice of Chief Justice Arellano. As a result to-day he subscribed and swore to the declaration on page 11 of my annual report. (Signed) MacArthur."

The oath referred to is as follows:

"I ....., hereby renounce all allegiance to any and all so-called revolutionary governments in the Philippine Islands, and recognize and accept the supreme authority of the United States of America therein; I do solemnly swear that I will bear true faith and allegiance to that Government; that I will at all times conduct myself as a faithful and law-abiding citizen of the said islands, and will not, either directly or indirectly, hold correspondence with or give intelligence to any enemy of the United States, nor will I abet, harbor or protect such enemy; that I impose upon myself these voluntary obligations without any mental reservations for purpose of evasion, so help me God."

Will Not Go Free at Once.

Notwithstanding the taking of the oath by Aguinaldo, he still will be held as a prisoner by Gen. MacArthur. It is possible he may be granted more liberty of action, but he will not be afforded complete freedom for the present.

The action of Aguinaldo in taking the oath, it is believed at the War Department, will have a far-reaching result in the pacification of the islands.

Lopez Wants Particulars.

Boston, April 3.—Sixto Lopez was informed yesterday that Aguinaldo had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States. Senor Lopez asked for the particulars. Upon being informed that only the bare fact had been cabled over, he said: "I think there must be some conditions attached to it. The announcement that Aguinaldo has taken the oath is very important. You must give me time to think it over."

That is just what they say of Vapo-Cresolene. The vaporizer is practically indestructible, and the Cresolene is certainly not expensive. This way of treating affections of the throat is most economical, and is also most effective. Our little picture illustrates how it's used. You put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light lamp beneath, and then breathe-in the soothing, healing vapor. For whooping-cough and croup it's a perfect specific. 6

WOMAN AND HOME.

A PHASE OF SETTLEMENT WORK IN A CHICAGO SUBURB.

A Frenchwoman's Dot—The Essentials of Beauty—The Frivolous One's Cakes—Spoiled Children—Girls In Business Life.

In Neighborhood House, a social settlement at West Sixty-seventh and May streets, Chicago has an example of a new phase of settlement work. The first condition which awoke efforts of this nature was the congested state of districts in the central parts of the great cities, the second is the stage which anticipates the need of such a social center in the future. Social settlements are hereafter, if the hopes of their promoters are realized, not to wait the coming of such conditions as prevail in the river wards of Chicago, but are to take their place in advance of dense populations and grow with the neighborhood.

Indirectly, Neighborhood House began in 1895 as a day nursery. Professor Fulton B. Ormsby of the Perkins Bass school suggested to the young people of the Stewart Avenue Universalist church of Englewood that a creche was needed in the locality of West Forty-seventh and Halstead streets. A small cottage was rented and furnished for this purpose. Soon the demands on the nursery grew to such proportions that a kindergarten was started in West Forty-seventh street, just west of Halstead street. The Perkins Bass and D. S. Wentworth schools co-operated with the young people who had begun the work in its support and have since worked in conjunction with the settlement.

MRS. HARRIET M. VAN DER VAART.

Soon afterward a mothers' class was formed, and this has grown into one of the most successful woman's clubs in the city. It is in the Federation of Women's Clubs. The cottage in which the movement was first given an impetus was opened in the evenings for a reading room and clubs were organized for boys and girls. The cottage was outgrown that winter, and in 1896 a larger house was rented in West Sixty-ninth street, near Bishop street.

This was the real beginning of a social settlement. Mrs. Harriet M. Van Der Vaart took charge and has since that time been head resident. In 1898 a new and still larger building was secured. Two more residents, both young women, joined the settlement, making the total four. Mr. S. S. Van Der Vaart, husband of the head resident, devoting his evenings to the work.

While the principal support of the settlement has always come from the Stewart Avenue Universalist church of Englewood and its members, the settlement is now gradually assuming an independent position and without losing the assistance of the church, whose pastor and members are among its teachers and lecturers, is becoming the common heritage of all religions and nationalities in the district and is drawing on all for its moral and financial support.—Chicago News.

A Frenchwoman's Dot.

John Strange Winter has contributed to the London Telegraph an interesting account of the Frenchwoman's dot. Probably, she says, few English people realise to the full extent how fixed an institution the dot is in France. We in England do sometimes speak of the dot, often rather as a joke than otherwise, but I doubt whether the average English man or woman fully understands that just across the channel the marriage portion is universal and omnipotent.

With very few exceptions every French girl has her dot. Indeed, from the day of her birth a French girl is saved for, and her dot is the object of her parents' most self sacrificing endeavors. A girl who has none is looked upon as an object of pity, forsworn to St. Catherine, with no better prospect in life than to enter a sisterhood or to hang on to the outskirts of the family in the capacity of a useful relative.

Not many women, be they young or old, like this kind of existence, and this is the reason why so many women in France enter the religious life. As a good sister, no matter of what order, the portionless girl acquires a position of dignity and usefulness.

Marriage in France is quite a different institution from marriage in England. It is entered into from different motives and in a very different fashion. Inclination scarcely affects the bargain at all. In the first place, no young Frenchman actually proposes to the girl he wants to marry, perhaps, for one thing, because he never gets the chance. Friendship between the sexes is sternly discouraged. In fact, before marriage no girl of respectable class is ever allowed to be alone in a young man's company for one single moment. "My son lives his vie de garcon, but my girl lives in my pocket," is the motto of the prudent French mother. So, when a young Frenchman wishes to settle in life he looks around for a suitable partner. According to his own position and his fortune, so does he demand a dot of a certain sum. Perhaps two or three girls of his acquaintance may have the desired sum. The approximate amount is always known. So, fixing on the one he admires most, he sends his lawyer or his uncle to some trusted friend to make inquiries and to open up proceedings.

If the proposal is not disagreeable to the young lady, her family name on their side a lawyer or trusty friend, and arrangements are very soon made, money is carefully tied up, and the engagement is an accomplished thing. Then the wedding day is fixed, and preparations for the wedding are hurried on as fast as may be. Long engagements are almost unknown in France.

The Essentials of Beauty.

There is a distinctive something—a manner of dressing or a correct carriage—that makes the American girls head the list by their natural right to precedence. They have their faults, to be sure, but such faults as are easy to correct. Loud voices are the commonest lapses into the unbeautiful and simple. I never realized this so much as I did on my last voyage from the other side of the Atlantic. On shipboard there was a crowd of girls who had been finishing their educations abroad. They sat on deck and chattered like magpies, their voices rising shrill and high and grating fearfully on the nerves of any listener blessed with fine sensibilities. They were pretty girls, charming, stylish, in splendid health, robust and athletic. But their voices were something fearful to listen to. A low, sweet voice, carefully modulated, always bespeaks the lady. A voice that is rasping, quick of action, high strung, nervously pitched, will undo the beauty ambitions of many years.

The matter of eating forms a large part in one's beauty rules and regulations. To my way of thinking, we Americans eat too much and do not eat often enough. We wait for our dinners at night until we are ravenously hungry, and we overload the stomach. The result is a florid, unbeautiful complexion, dull eyes, languid movements and wits that, if not exactly wool gathering, are certainly not as bright as they should be. In the old country meals are lighter. In the morning it is toast and tea and a bit of fruit, later a little chop, again a cup of tea, with bread and butter—always just enough to satisfy the stomach, not enough to cause it to overwork and to bring on dyspepsia, that surest complexion wrecker of all. The time between meals is too long with us. We are so hungry that we are sure to overeat. And overeating is deadly. There is no mistake about it.

Fresh air is a beautifier that is not appreciated by the average woman. Good health is, of course, the first principle of all beauty ambitions. Without it your foundation for everything is gone. Fresh air enlivens the wits, stirs up circulation, brings encouragement to the lungs and instills one with new life.—Amelia Bingham in Chicago Times-Herald.

The Frivolous One's Cakes.

It was a progressive euchre party, and she was the prettiest and most frivolous looking person present. How could any one who looked like a doll and dressed like a fashion plate be anything but frivolous? The members of the club, which met around from house to house, felt sure that the pretty and frivolous one had not an idea in her head that was more practical than her own gowns. There did not linger a thought in their minds that the refreshments, served at every meeting of the club, would be any less inviting at her house than theirs. In these days of caterers a lack of household knowledge does not count. But when the eventful day came there was a little gasp of surprise when there was served the most delicious cake any one had ever eaten, and it bore the unmistakable evidence of being homemade. No caterer could make such cake; neither could a maid. Cakemaking requires a cultivated hand on the spoon.

"I made it all myself!" cried the frivolous one when the exclamations of delight reached her ears.

This is one cake. It was a layer cake, and between the layers was a chocolate filling made much like an ordinary filling, with chocolate, milk, sugar and the white of an egg, but into that was beaten a little whipped cream, and the same cream covered the top and sides of the cake. The cake itself was very light and delicate, freshly put together, and the result can only be surmised by those who did not try it, for the cake was too good to describe.

Another cake was made in the same way, only maple sugar was substituted for chocolate and melted with as little water as possible, whipped cream beaten into it and the whole cake covered with the cream. Another way of using the maple sugar is to add a little to fruit layers in cake, as date cake, and the little flavor given is perceptible and excellent.—New York Times.

Spoiled Children.

Spoiling children consists in letting one's darling have its own precious way on all occasions, and the way is such a pretty, cunning, winsome way nobody can see any harm in it. But grown up willfulness is quite a different thing from baby willfulness. It has claws and teeth, so to speak, and is not nice to contemplate.

Spoiling appears to mean a great many different things. One of its mild forms is a total disregard for the feelings and convenience of others. If you notice a disagreeable, unaccommodating woman on the car or elsewhere you may know that she was a spoiled child.

Although poor people do contrive occasionally to spoil their children by indulgence, by making great sacrifices, this business is not carried on wholesale, as it is among the rich. Poverty is a severe yet kind stepmother. In a large family, not very well to do, the older children care for the younger ones and exert more influence often in their own way than their parents in teaching self denial and common sense.

Self control is the one thing spoiled children never learn. They must have everything they want and have it without delay. The child who kicks his nurse, bullies his mother and his younger brothers and sisters develops into the passionate, dissipated young man.

The spoiled girl becomes an exacting, disagreeable woman. The world must wait upon her, she makes everybody around her unhappy and all because she was a spoiled child. Her husband is a martyr to her whims and caprices, and her children are made wretched by her irritable and fretful disposition, and all because her early training was not what it should have been.—Bouquet.

Girls In Business Life.

Because a girl takes a position of service in a store is no reason why she should proclaim a personal declaration of independence to every customer by her deportment toward her. She simply cannot afford to do it, and the sooner she realizes it the better it will be for herself. Let me whisper a secret to you girls who expect to take some similar position by and by. It is this: You will find that courtesy, self respect and an interest in the business in which you are engaged are the conditions of ultimate success, and no girl need fear failure if she has added to these a natural ability to do the work she has undertaken. Tranquility of spirit should be cultivated. And if in addition to this the mind be habitually occupied with elevating thoughts, to the exclusion of the petty, the ignoble and the sordid, the girl will not only succeed, but she will win friends whose friendship is worth having and retaining, who will regard her with respect and admiration and make her in their own minds the pattern upon which other women in her line of business may model themselves. Remember that love is a magnet that attracts the best in everybody, because it consciously or unconsciously seeks the best. Is this method not worth a conscientious trial?—Sallie Joy White in Woman's Home Companion.

Principles For Public Life.

Senator Hoar once gave five points of advice to young men about to enter public life which are well worth remembering. They are:

First.—Do not trouble yourself to court public opinion. People like independence.

Second.—In the second place believe in the strength of righteousness as a powerful political force.

Third.—Learn to judge of men in public as in private by their merits and not by their defects. Eight of the greatest villains in the world were presidents, so the critics said.

Fourth.—Never think you can gain favor of people by departing from the arena that belongs to you as educated men.

Fifth.—Set yourselves strenuously against evil, but do not go out of your way to reform. Remember that faith, hope and charity are the three supreme virtues.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Origin of Baseball.

The origin of baseball, "our national game," is not definitely known, but the first club organized to play it was in New York in 1845. Singularly enough, this club, like the one first organized to promote rowing, was called the Knickerbocker club. After 1851 other amateur baseball clubs began to organize, including the Atlantic, Mutual, Union, etc. In 1857 a convention of delegates from 16 clubs in and around New York and Brooklyn was held. About ten years later, at the annual convention of the National association in 1866, 202 clubs from 17 states and the District of Columbia were represented. The college baseball associations were started about 1862 or 1863. Amateur baseball throughout the Union was at its height in the years 1865, 1866 and 1867. Professional baseball was recognized in 1868, and the first games were played in 1869.—Harper's Weekly.

He Knew Better.

"Oh, John," she cried, "baby's cut a tooth!"

"Aw, go 'way!" broke in little Willie, who was playing on the floor. "You can't cut a tooth! You may break it, but you can't cut it!"

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Report as to Condition of the Schools.

THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

Inspector Walker Makes a Verbal Report as to the South Ward School—Accounts etc.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, there being present, Mr. W. H. Hill, chairman; and Messrs. W. B. Bampford, Robert Fair, Wm. Langford, W. H. Wrighton, V. Eastwood, and J. J. Hartley.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A communication was read from W. G. Miller, Prof. of Geology, Kingston, drawing the attention of the Board to the fact that on page No. 271 and other pages of the last report of the Educational Department, it will be noticed that Mr. Seath, one of the High School Inspectors, makes the proposal that minerology and geology be placed on the High School curriculum as optional subjects, in Form 5, and referring to the advisability of adopting such a course. An expression of opinion from the Board was asked on the matter.

The matter was referred to the Supervision Committee and Principal with power to act.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

An extract from the report of Inspector Hodgson on his visit to the Collegiate Institute on March 7th, was received from the Education Department of Ontario, of which the following is a summary:

The water closets in the building are rated as Class II, ventilation I, and teaching I; provision is made for a full course in all the departments of studies; division of duties among teachers is satisfactory; staff, legally qualified; discipline, excellent; all pupils have been regularly admitted; text books are in accord with the regulations; registers are properly kept; for supplementary reading in English literature good provision is made. The general remarks of the report embodied the following: "I beg to report that I found the Institute in its usual thoroughly efficient condition. More commodious quarters would of course afford opportunities of increasing the scope of its influence: we are not permitted, however, to expect an immediate improvement in this direction."

Upon motion, the payment of the above accounts was confirmed.

The matter as to whether the board should send a deputation up to attend the trnstees' convention on April 9th, at Toronto, was then taken up. Mr. Stevenson spoke strongly in favour of sending up representatives. There was more need of taking such a course than ever before, as technical education was becoming a more important question every day, and was needed in all branches of life. Canada is behind in this direction and surely we should do what ever we could to promote the matter. He thought that it would be wise policy to send a deputation to visit technical schools now in existence.

Mr. J. J. Hartley thought that it might be well to have the board represented at the convention. There was a great deal to be learned on technical education, and there was much information to be obtained on the matter at the convention of trustees.

Mr. Wrighton moved, seconded by Mr. Langford, that the entire board be a delegation, the members to pay their own expenses This was not carried.

The chairman favoured a delegation going, as technical education was bound to come to the front.

Mr. Fair thought technical education was forcing itself upon us—we should investigate.

Mr. Hamilton moved that Mr. Hill and Mr. Langford be a delegation to attend the convention. Mr. Hill said that he would agree to this provided it was understood he could appoint a substitute if he could not go himself.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Finance Committee, through its chairman, Mr. W. B. Bamford, reported reported as follows:

Your committee beg leave to report and recommend the payment of the following accounts:

Peterborough Canoe Co	80
J. Sutcliffe & Sons	75

Miss Evelyn Morrow	8 10
Miss Ethel Gillepie	10 65
Miss Maggie Denne	2 50
Miss Margaret Lewis	2 50

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was, upon motion of Mr. Bamford, seconded by Mr. Fair, adopted.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Mr. Robert Fair, chairman of the Property Committee, submitted the following report:

Gentlemen,—In compliance with the resolution of the Board passed at the last regular meeting relating to the sanitary condition of the public schools in town, your committee beg leave to report:

That they have made a thorough examination of each building and all the appartments in the West Ward, North Ward, George Street and Central Schools, and as far as your committee was able to judge found the sanitary arrangements generally satisfactory and no conditions existing that would, in their opinion endanger the health of the pupils.

In the West Ward School some improvements were suggested and which your committee have caused to be put into effect.

In the matter of the South Central School your committee find public sentiment very strong in criticism of this building and its sanitary conditions. Nearly every member of your committee, as well as your chairman and the members of the Board, together with an expert, made a very careful examination of the premises and concluded if any unsanitary conditions exist it is due to the closets, and acting on this supposition your committee at once gave instructions to have the pits cleaned out and properly disinfected each week, and directed the janitor to keep continual fire in the vent flues.

Your committee would recommend and strongly urge that this building be connected with the sewer during the coming summer, and that steps be taken to request the town council to have the street sewer so extended that such connection can be made.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Mr. Bamford expressed the belief that there should be some steps taken at once to obtain sewer connection with the South Central School.

Informal discussion followed in which all of the members took part. Finally, upon motion of Mr. Robert Fair, seconded by Mr. Bamford, the secretary was instructed to communicate with the Town Council, asking them to extend the street sewer so that connection could be made with the South Central School.

In the discussion that occurred as to the sanitary condition of the South Central school, Mr. Hamilton moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the Property Committee be instructed to have plans prepared immediately for the installing of closets in that building. The motion was carried.

School Inspector Walker was asked as to the attendance, and sanitary conditions of the schools. He explained very carefully the dropping off of the attendance at the North Ward School, as a result of several pupils being taken down with diphtheria. He could not imagine how the disease could have possibly originated in the school building. As to the South Central School the rooms in which the greater number of cases had been reported, had not the slightest connection with the closets. They were in the new portion of the building. However, he would suggest that the rooms be thoroughly ventilated during Easter vacation, and the wood work freshly painted.

Mr. Hartley did not think that the small attendance at the schools was a criteron of how afraid the parents were to send their pupils to school. There was a great deal of mumps, measles etc., which necessitated children staying home.

The Property Committee will look after the matter of having the rooms thoroughly ventilated.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Mr. J. Davis, of Otonabee, Married to Mrs. J. R. Mitchell, of Omemee.

A quiet but interesting event took place at the rectory early this morning, it being the occasion of the marriage of Mrs. J. R. Mitchell, of Omemee, to Mr. Jefferson Davis, of Lang, Otonabee. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. J. C. Davidson, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel English, of Keene, acted in the capacity of groomsman and bridesmaid respectively.

The newly married couple will take up their residence at Lang. Mr. Davis is the well-known brick maker of that place, and his host of friends will join in wishing him a happy wedded life.

ST. LUKE'S GUILD.

Messrs. Johnston, Price and Turner Addressed the Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Chapter of St. Luke's Guild was held last night, and proved to be of more than ordinary interest to those who were present. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. J. Turner, jr., the president of the Guild, and the feature of the evening was the speech-making by Messrs. Percy Price, Robert Johnston and 'Chill Turner, the three dragoon representatives with the Second Canadian Contingent to South Africa. The addresses were intensely interesting, and the trip to South Africa and back was given in detail.

Refreshments were served, and altogether a successful evening was spent.

THE FIRST PARADE OF THE SEASON OF 1901.

Many Recruits Join the 57th Regiment and the Prospects are Bright for the Season.

The first parade of the season of the 57th Regiment took place last night, and if the enthusiasm displayed by the officers, non-commissioned officers, and men counts for anything, the local regiment will have a very successful season. There were about 80 non-coms and men answered to their names, and a surprisingly large number of these were recruits. For some time the officers and non-commissioned officers have been making a careful survey of the young men of the town, with the result that a large number of excellent men will this season, for the first time, be found in the ranks.

No. 4 made a great stride last night. This was formerly Capt. Ritchie's Company, and now in command of Capt. Hounsell, with Lieut. Gordon Cameron and second Lieut. Jim. Hamilton. The non-coms of this company are exceptionally enthusiastic, and presented nine or ten recruits for enlistment. Liet.-Col. Edwards complimented the company upon their strength.

No. 5, Capt. Bennett's crack contingent, who, of course, think there's no man in the world like their captain, was the strongest of any last night. They had about thirty on parade.

At the conclusion of the parade, the following orders were read:

Headquarters, Peterborough, Ont., April 2nd, A.D., 1901

Orders by Lt. Col. E. B. Edwards, Comm'd 57th Reg't P.R.

No. 1.—Detail of duty for week ending April 13th. Captain of the week, Capt. Hayes; next for duty, Capt. Bennett; subaltern for the week, Lieut. Matthews; next for duty, Lieut. McPherson.

No. 2.—Leave of Absence from parade on April 9th is granted to Lieut. McPherson.

No. 3.—The Regiment will parade for drill as heretofore, at 8 p.m., on Tuesday of each week. In order that the full number of drills may be put in before the 1st of July, and that company drill may be carried on without interfering with battalion drill, captains of companies will array for company drill of their respective companies on another evening of each week.

No. 4.—Captains of companies will as soon as possible prepare and hand to the adjutant, a nominal roll of their companies, showing the date of enlistment of each non-commissioned officer and man.

No. 5.—All non-commissioned officers and men whose term of service has expired, and who desire to re-enlist, for a further term, may do so. Those whose term of service has expired, and who do not desire to re-enlist will be struck off the strength of the regiment, and will return their uniform and equipment.

By order,
D. WALKER, Lieut.,
Acting Adjutant.

Mr. Clark removed to Toronto and has since been with the Imperial Oil Co. He was a man well posted in his business and of the utmost kindliness and good nature. BIG DEPUTATION WENT TO OTTAWA

Regarding the Norwood-Apsley Railway.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S PETITION

The Peterborough Board of Trade Represented on the Deputation—What They are Asking For.

A large deputation went down from Peterborough County to Ottawa, last night, to press upon the Dominion Government the advisability of aiding in the construction of the Norwood and Apsley Railroad. The deputation consists of the County Council, representatives of the various municipalities interested and Messrs. D. W. Dumble, H. LeBrun and R. Harrison of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

Warden Fitzgerald on behalf of the County Council will read the following petition to the Minister of Railways and Canals:

To the Honourable A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals.

The petition of the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the County of Peterborough, humbly sheweth:

That this council most respectfully submit that for forty years they have been desirous of securing railway communication with the north easterly portion of this county, which was opened for settlement by a colonization road. For a time the district attracted a large number of settlers who settled on the lands and commenced extensive lumbering opperations, and received a ready market for their farm prodicts, for which good prices were paid, and the pioneer settlers were prosperous. But so soon as the forests of pine and other floatable timber became deplete, lumbering ceased leaving the settlers without a market, excepting by hauling over very rough roads to Peterborough, a distance of over fifty miles. Though large portions of these townships are fertile and fit for farming, and well adapted for dairying and cheese making (for which there are now six factories) this portion of our county cannot become prosperous without railway accommodation, and the young men from our frontier townships, or immigrants, will not be induced to settle upon the lands, of which there are about two hundred and fifty thousand acres belonging to the Crown. Without railway access these lands are of little value, but as soon as this facility is afforded the land would be taken up and cleared for farming, and in doing so large quantities of excellent and valuable unfloatable hardwood timber, suitable for sawn lumber required in manufacturies and for other purposes, would be taken out and marketed at remunerative prices, and thus revive the lumbering business of this district.

This council concurs, entirely approves of the wisdom of your government in granting aid to assist in the construction of railways to open up and develop the agricultural and mineral resources of our country, by so doing conferring indirect benefit on the community at large infinitely greater than the direct benefits accruing to those whose private means may be invested in such undertakings. Though the general policy of your Government in assisting railways is approved, we most respectfully submit that railway development in this county has heretofore received but a meagre share of the public moneys granted to railways.

This council are gratified to know that by their efforts a company has been formed and a Provincial charter secured, to build the Norwood and Apsley Railway through the townships of Dummer, Methuen and Burleigh to the village of Apsley in the township of Anstruther, a distance of thirty miles. This railway will open up a section of our county which has been discovered, only in recent years, to be exceedingly rich in large quantities of valuable mineral deposits. It is an established fact that in the township of Belmont there is one of the largest and most modern equipped gold mines in the Dominion, operated by the Cordova Mining and Exploration Company of English capitalists. This company employs nearly two hundred employees, and the work goes on there day and night continuously, with such success, from small beginnings, as to warrant the expenditure of a large sum of money to utilize the power from a large waterfall of 90 feet. By this hydraulic power, compressed air will be conveyed through steel pipes from the falls to the mines, a distance of three miles, and will furnish motive power for the entire plant.

The section of country through which this railway will run is situated in the mineral belt of Central Ontario, as shown on the maps of the Government's geological survey. The northern and eastern portions of the county of Peterborough lie within this great mineral belt. At the base of the Blue Mountains in the townships of Burleigh and Methuen, on the direct line of the railway, corrundum and mica have been found. The development work of the Crown Corrundum Company, and the Madill Bros. mines give promise of large deposits. In this district gold, copper and iron have been found, also marble and granite for monumental and building purposes. The finest quality of syenite (granite) has been discovered in large quantities on the line of this railway, almost identical, but of a finer quality, with the famous Egyptian quarries, out of which for centuries the finest monumental stone has been obtained. We are informed that if this railway is built an American Company, having an idle quarry valued at over three hundred thousand dollars, would like to ship in their whole plant.

By opening up this mineral district it would greatly enhance its value, and home and foreign capital would be largely expended in developing and working the mines. The mining industry promises to become a large factor in the prosperity of the country, and if fostered we have no doubt large revenue will be derived by the country.

In order that these vast mineral deposits lying dormant at our very doors, for lack of railway facilities, may become a benefit to the country, your petitioners earnestly hope that your Government may deem it incumbent to grant the usual subsidies of three thousand three hundred dollars per mile to the Norwood and Apsley Railway Company.

This Council assumes the onus and responsibility of asserting that this railway project originated with this Council and is in no sense a speculative undertaking by which any member directly or indirectly will derive or expect to derive any personal benefits or advantages other than the general good to the district as a whole. We are confident that if the subsidies now asked for are assured and confirmed by your Government, it will confer general and lasting benefits to this remote section of our county and assure its future agricultural prosperity, and more particularly the speedy development of its many mineral deposits of great value, and would establish beyond the question of a doubt the construction of the railway. But by withholding the grant our most sanguine hopes must be blasted beyond any future success.

Although of secondary importance, it is nevertheless true, and your petitioners consider worthy of reference, the fact that this railway will give direct communication with that popular summer resort, Stony Lake, which is dotted with hundreds of beautiful islands, on which are built handsome summer cottages, and would be a direct route to the chain of navigable lakes known as the Kawartha Lakes, which abound with fish and are surrounded by rugged lofty hills and mountains, (affording sportsmen abundance of large and small game) with picturesque and romantic views unsurpassed in the Province. With commodious and modern equipped hotels, such as this railway company purpose erecting, thousands of tourists, seeking health, rest and recreation, not only from our own cities, towns and villages, but from the more populous cities of the United States, would frequent these lakes as a resort on account of the pure atmosphere recuperating many thousands during the heated summer months.

Your petitioners therefore pray that your Government will aid in the construction of the Norwood & Apsley Railway as hereinbefore stated.

And your petitioners as in duty bound, will ever pray.

GEO. STEWART, County Clerk. G. W. FITZGERALD, Warden.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT A. W. CRESSMAN'S.

PRISMS INTRODUCE A SOFT LIGHT INTO THE STORE.

A Modern Front Introduced to Peterborough.—More Room in the Interior.

Mr. A. W. Cressman undoubtedly carries off the palm as Peterborough's greatest modernist—he admires the modern in everything with which he has any connection, and for this reason his premises are being continually improved, until from the standpoint of the purchasing public, as well as from Mr. Cressman's own view of the case, his store can lay claim to being the most up-to-date of any in the district, in respect to modern conveniences.

The first and second flats of the store have just been undergoing many changes at the hands of the carpenters, the painters and the paper hangers.

The front presents an entirely different appearance and conveys a most citified impression, as the changes which are being made in the city stores are all of the same nature. The interiors of the windows are surrounded by magnificent plate glass mirrors, and the ceiling is lowered, permitting of the insertion of prisms above the window proper. The ceilings of the windows are of prettily coloured fancy glass, but although the changes greatly modernize the appearance of the store front the primary object of the alteration was to obtain more light. This may seem paradoxical, inasmuch as by the new arrangement fully seven-eighths of the window front is enclosed and it would naturally be supposed that through the relation of cause and effect, the interior of the store would be darkened in the same ratio. This would undoubtedly be the case if the remaining space at the top of the window had not been fitted up with prisms, through the medium of which the darkest corner of the premises is flooded by a soft mellow light, which has already found great favour in the eyes of the ladies. The windows in the rear have also been fitted with prisms and the department immediately adjacent is reserved for the dress goods. This department is raised several steps above the rest of the store, giving it the advantage of semi-privacy, a fact which is much appreciated by the ladies, who are desirous of concentrating their attention on shades and colourings.

The premises have been greatly enlarged by the removal of a large stair case from the rear of the store, and through the fact that through the use of the prisms the sky well, in the ceiling of the first floor, could be dispensed with.

The counters, shelving and fixtures generally all bear the bright appearance which newness imparts, and the light oak graining and pretty colouring of the walls and ceiling all add to the effect produced by the changes made.

A great deal of additional room has been secured on the second flat, also, by the removal of the old enclosed staircase, which formerly stood in the rear of the millinery department. It has been replaced by a more modern structure, which also allows much additional light to gain admittance from the rear, which fact is much appreciated by purchasers of millinery and mantles. The additional room obtained has made it possible for Mr. Cressman to open out a much larger suite of apartments for millinery workrooms, and to double his staff in this department. Handsome new carpeting as well as the repapering and painting of the millinery and mantle departments, contribute towards making these show-rooms more than usually attractive in appearance.

Mr. Cressman is indeed to be congratulated on the foresight and energy which he has displayed in modernizing his store to suit the convenience of the public to such a nicety.

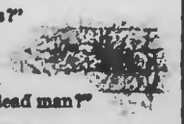
WRECK OF THE ALONZO CHILDS

A Story of Steamboat Life on the Mississippi.

"Believe in ghosts?"

"No."



"Never see one?"

"Never."

"What, not of a dead man?"

"No; never."

"Wait till I pass this bar. I'll surprise you with a fact about a ghost. Yes; the ghost of a steamboat, too, by the great low water bayou."

Kinney turned his wheel with a spasmodic violence and rang the engineer's bells to "slow port" to "fast starboard" and reversed his orders with such rapidity that the mechanic below wanted to know what he meant. Presently we rounded the bend.

"See that corner of the island there?" asked Kinney.

"Yes."

"There's where the bones of old Alonzo Childs are laid."

"Well?"

"An old chap owned a plantation just around Bayou Sara, below here. He had a land boiler and engine and used it for boiling sugar and pressing cane. Colonel Hubbard burned the sugar house as he passed with a detachment of soldiers, but the boiler and engine were saved in a somewhat disturbed condition. The old fellow's name was De Soto.

"De Soto put his old engine and boiler on the hull of the Alonzo Childs, and she was made to travel up and down, inside the Confederate lines of course. She went between Port Hudson and Vicksburg. At that time I was a 'cub' pilot on a big steamer, and I used to see her. One day I heard she exploded or snagged, and everybody on board was lost. The circumstances of the disaster no one ever knew. A few bloated bodies and some charred pieces of the old craft's timbers floating down the river indicated the extent of the horror and suggested its terrible details.

"After the war I went west to San Francisco, but three years ago I came back and took up my old business.

"Two years ago I was standing watch alone in the pilothouse. The river was up, and we were pushing the gray, muddy waters aside under the full head of steam. I had just pulled the wheel over to make the bend when I saw a steamer heading straight for us. It appeared to me that she came out of the bank rather than up the river, and I noticed at the moment that she was a strange craft to me. Well, I blowed once to pass to port and steered off to the west shore. Giving her the advantage of the back water, I watched her, and presently I saw from her whistle two escapes of steam. By that I saw that she had blown twice, although I had not heard the blasts. So I blew twice and reversed my helm.

"Still she came on. There was no noise of escaping steam, no beat of paddle wheels. I heard the piano down in the main saloon. Somebody was playing 'Natalie, the Maid of the Mill.' I heard the discord which I knew must have been occasioned by the first alarm of danger—the sweep of the hand over the keys as the player turned suddenly from the piano. I seemed to see the piano cover swept from its place, the open doors of the staterooms and some chairs thrown aside. So vivid was the picture to my senses that I saw for the moment which of the chairs were broken. In a second I grew old and lived 20 years. I never thought of escape. I could not have escaped had I so chosen. My senses were so alert as to give me a physical pain.

"I opened my eyes a second afterward, and there was no boat—nothing in sight. Only a bland spread of water, a fast flowing current and our own boat backing at full speed, while Captain Bixby was yelling from the hurricane deck:

"'What in blazes is the matter?'

"I don't know how I recovered myself, but I did tell him some way or other that the bell ropes had got tangled. I started her ahead then. Now, that was in the afternoon at 4 o'clock—and tell me there ain't no ghosts!"

"That was a mere hallucination," I ventured.

"Was it? Not much. Such things don't happen twice or three times any more than lightning strikes twice in the same place."

"Then you saw her again?"

"Yes; three times afterward and have never failed to see her when I passed here within two hours of the hour of 4 o'clock, morning or evening. Here comes my relief for dinner. Had yours? No. Sit at my table. It's nearly 4 o'clock, and as we are about to stop to 'wood up' before we round the bend maybe you will see the ghost of a steamer yourself. Seeing's believing."

Later I was sleeping, oblivious of ghosts and regardless of Kinney's spook steamboat, when a sharp rap at my stateroom door brought me out of dreamless slumber.

"I say," he said. "It's nearly 4 o'clock, and we are going to pass the wreck. You wanted to see the ghost of a steamboat. I don't want to be alone, and I want a skeptic with me. Light your pipe and sit down."

I did so, while Kinney smoked on till the signal came to start, and presently the wheels of the Baton Rouge once more beat the turbid waters.

Kinney hove the wheel over to port, and the jackstaff of the boat could be seen as the "night hawk" swung for the pilot's eye to sweep the horizon, cut away such little rays of light as penetrated the cottonwood forests on the Louisiana shore.

"I don't see her," said Kinney, turning his night glass one way and another, "and it's ten minutes to 4."

"Don't see what?" inquired a strange voice at my side, and, turning in surprise, for I had not heard any one enter, I could define in the half gray light of the morning the figure of a man with smoothly shaven face, apparently a youth.

"The ghost," said Kinney, still peering out into the space beyond.

"Do you expect any?" asked the stranger.

"Why, I was just telling you— Great God, there she is!"

I looked in the direction he pointed, and, sure enough, about a quarter of a mile away were the red and green lights of an approaching steamer I knew enough of the laws of the road on water to comprehend that she was coming toward us, and I could also see that she was making tremendous headway. Kinney's eyes, as I saw them flash, were fixed upon her. He neither moved the wheel nor stirred a hand to give warning.

"Kinney," I cried, "that is not the ghost! It is a steamer. It is the White of the Vicksburg line, bound up. She is to pass here about this time. For the love of heaven give the signal!"

I tried to wrest the wheel from him, but a strong arm swept us both aside, and the stranger seized the spokes. There was a jingling of bells, a screeching of whistles, a mad cry of human voices, a leaping of flames over light woodwork that seemed to laugh with joy over the destruction that was being wrought, but over it all I heard one voice in articulate agony whose wild agonizing accents I shall never forget. Then in the flash of flame I saw the person who had uttered it. It was the stranger at the wheel. On his cap band, spelled out in letters of gold bullion, were the words, "Pilot Alonzo Child." He was illuminated by the blaze, and his eyes shone brighter than the fire itself.

"I am punished! My God, is it not enough? I was her pilot! It is the Alonzo Childs!" he screamed.

For a second he towered like a giant high over the eight foot wheel, then, throwing his arms above his head, he fell prone upon the floor. Already the glass windows of the pilothouse were crackling with the heat. I knelt beside the prostrate form. There was no heart beat.

I looked up at Kinney. He was standing with his arms folded, his face perfectly calm, but pale as death.

At that moment the flames burst into the pilothouse, and their hot breath blistered my hands as I held them before my eyes. I had no feeling of fear beyond apprehension of physical pain. Death had no terrors for me. Besides, there was no escape. I remember just then Kinney shook me by the arm, and I heard his voice:

"Say, you will set yourself afire in a minute."

I opened my eyes. The steamer Baton Rouge, Bixby master, Elton clerk, was having quick dispatch, and my after dinner pipe lay smoking on my knee. Some of its live ash was on the floor, and some had burned my hand just a little, and Kinney said I had been asleep less than two minutes.—Buffalo Enquirer.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample its agreeable taste will surprise you.

Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Poison's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

A Dinner For a King.

The father of Queen Victoria, the Duke of Kent, had no objection to dissenters and, in fact, cultivated intimate relations with a well known Congregationalist minister, Dr. Stoughton, whom he knew both at Windsor and Kensington. The doctor lent the embarrassed duke some money, but refused many invitations to dine at Kensington palace. At length Victoria's father pressed him for his reason, and the doctor explained that he would not accept because he could not entertain in return.

"Oh," said the duke, "you can easily do that. I like boiled leg of mutton and trimmings better than anything, but I cannot often get it." Taking the hint, the doctor had a fine leg of mutton duly prepared, and the duke thoroughly enjoyed his dinner. The warm friendship cemented by the leg of mutton continued unimpaired until the duke's death, and one of the first acts of the queen on coming to the throne was to repay the doctor's loan, expressing high appreciation of his considerate kindness.

ARABI PASHA'S PARDON.

Famous Egyptian Revolutionist Said to Hesitate About Returning After His Long Exile.

After 18 years of exile in Ceylon, Arabi Pasha, the famous Egyptian revolutionist, is said to hesitate about accepting the pardon which has been granted him, although it is known that about a year ago he was anxious to return to Egypt. Arabi Pasha was sent to Ceylon January 18, 1883, under sentence of exile for leading a revolt against the Khedive's government. He was accompanied by several adherents and by his wife, son and servant. He has seen some of the men who accompanied him into exile buried and others released, until only he and Ali Fehmy remain. His spirit is said to have been completely broken. Arabi Pasha was born near the borders of the desert and became an officer in the Egyptian army at the time when Said Pasha replaced many foreign officers by native Egyptians. He appeared at the head of a revolt in 1881 and became dictator. Then England interferred, Alexandria was bombarded and Arabi and his army were defeated at Tel-el-Kebir. Arabi fled to Cairo and surrendered to Gen. Drury-Low. He was tried, pleaded guilty to rebellion and was condemned to death. His sentence was commuted by the Khedive to perpetual exile from Egypt, and he and his fellow-conspirators were sent to Ceylon.

ARABI PASHA.

Maggie looked dreadfully hurt.

USE THE SAME WIRE.

TELEPHONE MAKES TROUBLE FOR WOMEN OF SUBURBANVILLE.

Mrs. Onering and Mrs. Tworing Agreed on the Subject of Butchers, but When Each Discovered Who the Other Was Everything Was Off.

Since telephones on party wires were introduced in Suburbanville there has been a very thorough readjustment of old feuds. The party wire system permits three or four telephones on the same wire. Every telephone bell on this wire rings at the same time. The special telephone that is wanted is indicated by the number of times the bell rings. Each subscriber on a party wire quickly acquires a decided contempt, if not hatred, for every other subscriber on the same wire.

Suburbanville's social lines were formerly marked by membership in church congregations, in some one of the dozen or more whist clubs and lastly by the butcher who supplied the family. When Mrs. Smith wanted to invite a dozen congenial women to form a whist or bowling club, she sorted out on her list the women who patronized the same butcher and went to the same church.

Since the party telephones have been put in it has made the problem of collecting a dozen congenial women so complex that it would puzzle a graduate in double entry bookkeeping. Not only must the hostess bear in mind the congregation to which the women belong and the butchers whom they patronize, but she must be sure not to bring together two women who use the same party wire. Such a disaster happened last week.

Mrs. Onering had never met Mrs. Tworing, though their telephones were on the same wire. When Mrs. Tworing's telephone was put in, she thoroughly enjoyed the novelty of calling up all of her friends who had telephones a dozen times a day. Mrs. Onering had become accustomed to her telephone, and the continual jangling of Mrs. Tworing's calls annoyed her. Several lively skirmishes followed over the wire.

One morning when Mrs. Onering was anxious to telephone for a cab to catch a certain train she waited for Mrs. Tworing to get through telephoning until her patience was exhausted. Then she broke in on the wire with the request:

"Won't you please give me a chance to call up the livery stable? I'm in a hurry."

"Are you, indeed?" said the voice. "Who are you?"

"I am Mrs. Onering. Who are you?"

"I am Mrs. Tworing, and I shall complain to central that you have been listening."

"Well, then, I will tell central that I can't help listening because you are using the telephone all the time. I have as much right on this wire as you have."

"Comes from having ill bred persons on the wire, and"—

"People who never had a telephone before, and"—

"I'll complain, and"—

"I won't stand it a"—

"Such impertinence!"

Bur-r-r-r, and both telephones rang off at the same time. It so happened that Mrs. Onering and Mrs. Tworing did not know each other by sight. They were both guests at a Helping Hand social, and, happening to be seated together, they opened conversation without the formality of an introduction.

They agreed beautifully about butchers, and each wondered why she had not happened to meet the other before. Then they came to the subject of telephones.

"I find my telephone a great convenience," said Mrs. Onering, "but I have the most disagreeable people on it. One woman has just had her telephone put in, and she works it to death. She has been telephoning all this last month. I think I will apply to have my wire changed. I can't stand it."

"That's just my experience," said Mrs. Tworing delightedly. "There is the most impertinent woman on my wire. I know from her voice that she is a perfect fright. She is so curious that she listens whenever I use the wire. If one could only chase the other subscribers on her party wire, it would be a great advantage."

So many common experiences made Mrs. Onering and Mrs. Tworing very chummy, and each was just about to invite the other to call when the hostess came up and said to them:

"Why, I did not know that you two people knew each other."

"We have just scraped an acquaintance," said Mrs. Onering, "and I wish that you would introduce us formally."

"Certainly," said the hostess. "Mrs. Onering, I want to present a neighbor of yours, Mrs. Tworing."

"Tworing, did you say?" asked Mrs. Onering. "Yes, I remember the name perfectly. So sorry, but I must be going now. I have had a lovely afternoon." And out she went.

"If she had not gone, I would have done so," said Mrs. Tworing.

"Why, I thought that you were getting along beautifully," said the hostess.

"Her telephone is on my party wire, and she bothers me very much."

Mrs. Tworing and Mrs. Onering pass each other on the street as strangers, and when they conflict in using the telephone each treats the other with frigid politeness.

So many hostesses in Suburbanville have had similar awkward experiences that they have now applied to the telephone company for a classified list of the party telephones in use, so that two women who use the same wire may not be invited at the same time.—New York Sun.

Beauty Requires Sleep.

Nearly all the great beauties of the world have testified to the value of sleep. Under its influence every muscle is relaxed and all care dispelled. The heart beats slower, gaining new vigor for the waking hours. A midday nap, if only for a few minutes' duration, is wonderfully refreshing, and it is generally conceded that sleep during the earlier hours of the night is far more beneficial than that obtained after midnight.—Maude C. Murray-Miller in Woman's Home Companion.

Hamilton, April 1.—Saturday night the local Journeymen Tailors' Union received permission from the Internation Union to go on strike. At noon to-day, unless a settlement is reached in the meantime, about 150 union men will quit, and this will throw about 150 more persons out of employment. The bosses granted an increase of 10 per cent. in wages, but the union demands a change in the bill. It is said there is just two items in which there is a difference of opinion.

STARVED HIMSELF.

A Toronto Moulder who Tried to Cure His Dyspepsia by the Starvation Method, which is never a Satisfactory or Successful Treatment—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Cured Him.

Toronto employs hundreds of moulders. As everyone knows, the extremes of temperature in which these men labour, has often caused the strongest among them to break down. Stomach troubles is many time the cause.

George Arthurs, of 122 Argyle street, is an example of a moulder, who by the timely use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets retained his good health. He says:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia for six years. It has been a great inconvenience to me for after eating a hearty meal the pains would almost double me up. I have tried several remedies, and have also tried going without my meals, until I was very weak and run down, but no treatment seemed to give me any relief.

"I read of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and concluded to try them. I am very thankful I did so, for I am now completely cured."

Among other things Mr. Arthur tried the starvation plan. Many hope to cure stomach troubles in this way. The stomach certainly does need rest but the system also needs food. How can a man or a woman who has to toil from morning till night, six days in the week, get along without a full share of good food?

How then may the body receive the strength and nourishment of sufficient properly digested food, and at the same time, the stomach enjoy the needed rest?

Science has answered, by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest the food without the aid of the stomach, thus furnishing nourishment to the body and rest to the stomach.

You may eat what you like if you are careful to use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

Mr. Arthur is well known to the moulders of Toronto and his experience has been the means of pointing a great many others to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, the only sure cure for Dyspepsia and Stomach Troubles.

LIFE WAS A MISERY FOR FOUR OR FIVE YEARS.

The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont. Montreal, Oct. 17th, 1900.

Dear Sirs,—For the last four or five years life was a misery to me.

The pains in my back have been terrible. For some time I could not stoop over to tie my shoes. At last I got so bad that I could not go up stairs and had to sleep on a lounge in the dining room. I had to raise myself by a cord attached to the end of the lounge.

I used to swell up terribly, my urine was scanty and highly colored and had a very offensive odor.

If I eat a hearty meal I would suffer agony for hours after. The several physicians whom I consulted advised me to go to the hospital and have an operation performed, as they said I was suffering from womb trouble.

I was told about Doan's Pills, so procured a box, and I thank God every day for the good they have done me.

After the third dose I began to feel the benefit of them, and eight days after starting I could urinate freely and without the scalding sensation, the swelling has all disappeared, and I do not know what a backache is since I took the first box of Doan's Pills.

I can now attend to my household duties without any trouble, and can enjoy a good night's sleep, things I have not been able to do for five years.

I am now 57 years old, but feel like 30, and never felt better in my life, thanks to Doan's Pills. I cannot praise them too highly and trust this will meet the eyes of some poor suffering woman.

Yours gratefully,
MRS. J. WILSON.

On separating they shook hands several times. Count Von Buelow returned to Venice and Signor Zanardelli to Modena.

Lieut.-Col. Moore Dead.

London, Ont., April 3.—A very old citizen, Lieut.-Col. William Moore, died very suddenly Monday night. Death came almost immediately after he had arisen from the supper table. Deceased was in his eighty-second year. He was the oldest Masonic Past Master in Ontario, the oldest member of St. John's Lodge 209.

Strike For Eight-Hour Day.

London, April 3.—As a result of the disaffection existing among the Lanarkshire miners and engineers, 30,000 of whom are idle, owing to a strike for an eight-hour day, some of the iron masters took steps to damp down their furnace last night, and the steel makers will stop their mills. The railroads, enabled by the slackness of work, are sending engineers and shunters to some of the mines. Some of the smaller collieries have granted the eight-hour day demand of the strikers.

Crow's Nest Bill.

Ottawa, April 3.—At the meeting of the Railway Committee yesterday morning, Mr. Blain asked that the bill be allowed to stand over. There were some points of public interest, outside those of the companies interested, that he wished to look into. The committee agreed, and the bill stands over till next Thursday.

It now looks as if the C. P. R. and the Crow's Nest Company may come to an agreement so that the latter's bill may not have opposition from the big road.

Students Ask Excommunication

Why Women Join Clubs.

Women join clubs because they enjoy sociability, which is placed upon an intellectual basis. The pleasure to be derived from the exclusively fashionable gatherings is militated against by the fact that the circle is comparatively small and is composed of persons who have similar traditions and standards. There is apt after a time to be a sense of monotony; there is also apt to be rivalry, and above all, a woman must be young and beautiful or rich and influential in order to extract the true essence of the pleasure of fashionable society. Club society is much more democratic and is composed of a greater variety of elements. Its reason for being is intellectual. Such rivalry as exists has nothing to do with material things. The elderly and plain woman, poor in purse and unknown outside of her club, may win her double firsts there and find a life that otherwise would have been lonely and unexpressed filled and warmed by what she receives and what she is able to give.—Mrs. Ella W. Peattie in Chicago Times-Herald.

GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH.

The Mary Fisher Home.

Aged authors, artists, teachers, and other professional people are spending their declining days in comfort and happiness under the care of Miss Mary Fisher at Nos. 144, 146, 148, 150 and 152 St. Ann's avenue, in the Bronx. The first inmate of this home for the cultured poor was an old friend, a teacher out of a position, whom Miss Fisher took into her home.

Then Miss Fisher formed what was called the Home Hotel company, gave her own home to the cause and opened it to any one in need. The proceeds of the sale of her Brooklyn house she uses in keeping up the present quarters according to her ideas of what a home should be. Miss Fisher lives in it and directs its management. Associated with her is Miss Emma P. Traynier, corresponding secretary of the association, which has become incorporated.

The vice presidents are Mrs. Charlotte J. Bell, Mrs. A. Inez Ludlow, Mrs. Theodore Harris, Mrs. Marie T. Lange, Mrs. Pierre M. Thomson; recording secretary, Miss J. Anna Sloat; auditor, Raymond Cote. The late Mrs. William C. Whitney was a member of the board of managers. Mr. Whitney is accounted as one of the most prominent benefactors, as are also Seth Low and Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, who is a life member. The late Frederick Billings was a life member, contributing $50 a year up to the time of his death. Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, Mrs. Frank Leslie, Mrs. Francis N. Shimmin, Mr. A. G. Mills, Mrs. Winthrop, Mr. Benjamin Stern and others are life members.—New York World.

The Care of Flowers.

A woman who knows all about flowers and their care has compiled the following rules for keeping cut flowers:

The ends of the stems of all flowers should be cut off before they are placed in water. It is better to strip the leaves from that part of the stem which will be immersed.

Do not allow the ends of the stems to rest on the bottom of the vase.

In cutting the ends, snip them off at right angles to the stalk.

Change the water each day and at the same time again cut the ends of the flower stems.

Do not place flowers near or under lights—gas or lamp—when it can be avoided.

Maidenhair fern should be kept rolled up in moistened paper and on the ice or with the stems in the water if a cool place, until ready for use. In this way it will last for some time.

Mignonette is generally grown in a cool house and for this reason often droops when first placed in a heated room. It is well to put it in the icebox, in water, for a time, when it will revive, "harden," and if properly cared for each day last a long time.

Many flowers do more satisfactorily if placed in water with the chill off until the stems have become filled and are then allowed to stand in an ice chest or very cool place for a time. Roses will occasionally revive if placed in ice water—always with the ends of the stems previously cut.

Never place cut flowers in a draft or in sunlight.

How to Gather.

Laying gathers is a time honored operation, as irritating and nerve wearing as it is necessary. Since learning to accomplish the same result in a far easier way, the present writer has taught the knack to several friends, and all, without exception, are enthusiastic. Use a long, strong needle; that is, a coarser one than you would ordinarily use for the work in hand. Gather the needle full, keeping the thimble finger at the eye of the needle, so that no stitches escape on to the thread. When you can force on no more cloth, still holding the thimble in place, with the thumb and first finger hold the gathers firmly on to the needle at the point end. With the left thumb and first and second fingers pull the gathers, two or three at a time, straight down from the needle with a swinging motion, sliding the fingers under the material and pulling down with the thumb, beginning at the left and working toward the right. When the work is slipped on to the thread, it will be as flat as if each gather had been painfully "scratched" into place. The two processes are practically accomplished in one, and after a few trials and with a little patience you will never go back to the "good old way."—Good Housekeeping.

Drive Ball.

Drive ball is a game played only by the older children. A court is mapped out and a big, soft ball is placed between the captains of the two lined up teams of five players each. The ball is driven back and forth between the teams, but can only be hit by the fist. A goal counts two.

FRIENDSHIP OF ALL.

Chinese Crisis Needs More Than Favor of One Power.

CHINA DECLINES TO SIGN TREATY

Definite and Formal Notice of this Decision for the Indicated Reason Is Given to Russia—Only the Indemnity Question Now Remains—In Favor of a General Claim.

Pekin, April 3.—The Chinese Government has formally notified Russia that China, owing to the attitude of the powers, is not to sign the Manchurian convention.

"It is China's desire," says the formal notification, "to keep on friendly terms with all nations. At present she is going through a period which is the most perilous in the empire's history, and it is necessary that she should have the friendship of all.

"However much she might be willing to grant any special privileges to one power, when others object it is impossible that, for the sake of making one nation friendly, she should alienate the sympathies of all others."

Li Hung Chang says that the latter settles the matter definitely, and that Russia was informally notified to the same effect March 29.

Prince Ching asserts that every Chinaman, except Li Hung Chang, was against signing the convention.

So soon as the generals of the powers notify the Ministers as to what disposition is desired of articles eight and nine of the protocol, everything will be practically concluded except the indemnities, the only claims not ready being the British, German and Japanese. The Germans say they can be ready in two days and the Japanese assert that they can be ready at a moment's warning. Private claims, however, can be filed until May 14, and this may delay the presentation to the Chinese plenipotentiaries.

A majority of the Ministers are in favor of making a general claim, so soon as the Government claims are in, making allowance for a few thousands for possible future claims, although it is believed that all private claims are now filed.

Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching have sent to the court for approval a list of names presented by the Ministers of the powers for punishment. The death list has been reduced to four names for degradation and to 91 for loss of office. No objection is anticipated, as the men are only prominent in local communities.

Killed by a Yard Engine.

London, Ont., April 4.—Edward Simcoe, a G. T. R. callboy, was run over by a yard engine in the local yards yesterday afternoon at 1.30, and instantly killed. The young man was engaged in conversation with a switchman named Haycock, at a time when two engines were coming from the car shops. The young man waited to let one engine go past, but immediately after went to cross the track, and was caught by the other engine. His head was nearly severed from the body. The young man was 18 years of age.

Babies Burned to Death.

St. Thomas, Ont., April 4.—While Alex. McGinnis, farm laborer for C. R. Stevenson of Southwold Township, near Fingal village, was cutting wood yesterday, his shanty in the woods some forty rods distant took fire. The wife, with two children, were a short distance away, gathering wood. Her twin babies, seven months old, were in the house. In her hurry on seeing the fire she fell and lay unconscious, and before the father could reach the shanty it was consumed, and the two babies were burned to death.

A BIG HAMILTON SUIT.

Present Wife of T. H. Lawry Demands Heavy Damages From His Divorced Wife for Alienated Affections.

Hamilton, April 4.—Legal proceedings were commenced yesterday in what promises to be one of the most sensational cases that have found their way to the courts in this city. Mrs. T. Harry Lawry, No. 2, is the complainant, and the defendant is Mrs. Tuckett-Lawry, the divorced wife of Mr. Lawry, the well-known pork packer.

Teetzel & Co. have issued a writ on her behalf against the first Mrs. Lawry. She asks the court to give her $25,000 damages for the alleged alienating of her husband's affections.

The plaintiff and defendant in the action each has two children, Lawry being the father of the four.

HOW AGUINALDO WAS CONVERTED.

Chief Justice Arellano Explained to Him the United States Proposal.

Manila, April 4.—Chief Justice Arellano, who administered to Emilio Aguinaldo the oath of allegiance to the Unites States Government, described yesterday the conditions leading up to and attending the ceremony, which was semi-private.

Aguinaldo had expressed himself as anxious to learn more regarding the American system of Government. The justice carefully explained the various measures passed by the Philippine Commission, headed by Judge Taft, and showed him what provisions were made for education and progress, and for municipal and provincial self-government.

Listening with deep interest, Aguinaldo finally exclaimed: "I never believed the Americans would be so fair and liberal."

Ere the conversation had ended, he had agreed to take the oath of allegiance, and this was immediately administered.

Pacification by June.

Senor Arellano says: "Aguinaldo's action will induce all the insurgents to surrender and I predict that the islands will be completely pacified by June.

"Aguinaldo is eager to visit the United States, but, when I questioned him on the subject of holding office, he replied that he had no desires in that direction and intended to retire to private life after a trip to America."

Invited by the President.

It was reported here yesterday afternoon that President McKinley has invited Aguinaldo to visit the United States, and that the former insurgent leader may sail from Manila April 15. Gen. MacArthur, when questioned regarding the rumor, said he had absolutely nothing to communicate.

Exile Preferable to Parole.

Manila, April 4.—Constancia Probelet, the daughter of the former chief of the Kalipuna Society, has interviewed imprisoned Aguinaldo. He expressed himself as confused as to what he should do about swearing allegiance to the United States.

As to his present position, he said: By the trickery of the Americans, I was captured. Now that I am a prisoner, I must consider what is best. Liberty is sweet, but those whom I deserted would hate me. If paroled, I would respect my word, but sometimes I think exile and imprisonment would be preferable.

It is said it was only after much persuasion that Aguinaldo swore allegiance.

Aguinaldo's wife, mother and sister visit him daily.

Americans Picking Up Filipinos.

Washington, April 4.—The following cablegram was received yesterday at the War Department from Gen. MacArthur at Manila:

"Brigadier-Gen. Robert P. Hughes reports surrender at Banga, Northwest Panay, March 31, 30 officers, 185 men, 105 rifles. Gen. Kobbe reports 21 men and 21 guns surrendered March 31, Northern Mindanao.

"Commissary frauds being investigated; not sufficient gravity to cause concern; apparently due irregularity sales savings. Press reports inexact and misleading.

"(Signed), MacArthur."

Young Englishman's Suicide.

Comber, Ont., April 4.—The M. C. R. officials here were notified this evening that the body of a man was lying beside the track about one and a half miles east of the village. The section men, accompanied by Coroner McNiven, left at once. The body was identified as that of Fred Palmerson, a young Englishman, who has made his home around Tilbury for some time. The young man had deliberately committed suicide by cutting his throat with his jackknife, the implement of destruction being clutched in his hand when the body was found.

IT IS IMPORTANT.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages.

THE ONTARIO HOUSE.

A Grant of $6,000 a Year to Mining School at Kingston.

THE TRADING STAMP BILL.

The University Bill Considered in Committee—Premier Denies That Politics Have Influenced the Appointment of Professors — Bills Granting $329,000 to Railways Read a Second Time.

Toronto, April 4.—The Legislature met yesterday at half-past 11 a. m. A number of bills received third readings, including Mr. Harcourt's High School bill, Mr. Dryden's bill to amend Ontario Shops Regulation Act, Mr. Bridgland's bill to amend the Agricultural and Arts Act and Mr. Casrcallen's bill to amend the Municipal Arbitration Act.

A resolution moved by the Premier for an annual grant of $6,000 to the Kingston School of Mining was adopted. The bill to amend the act respecting the Kingston School of Mining was referred to committee for the insertion of a clause embodying the grant. A discussion followed on the clause empowering the School of Mining to mortgage the appropriation. Mr. Whitney urged that this practically committed the Legislature to continue the grant and charged the Premier with proceeding in a roundabout cowardly way to accomplish an object he dare not openly avow. The Premier pointed out that while the Legislature were bound in honor to continue this grant there were considerable larger appropriations for the benefit of the school in the estimates which were under their control. Hon. Mr. Harcourt repelled the charge that there had been anything tortuous or roundabout in the action of the Government. The matter had been thoroughly considered. Several Opposition members protested that the question had been sprung on the House at short notice. Col. Matheson said it would be better to make a grant of $200,000 in a lump sum. Hon. J. M. Gibson said that if members were to discuss every item in this spirit the House had better sit a week longer, a suggestion which was greeted with applause from both sides of the House. Mr. Carscallen raised the point that the School of Mining had not been defined and that the money might go to support sectarian teaching. Mr. Harcourt replied that the subjects of instruction were set forth in the act which would prevent the grant being diverted to such purposes. The committee reported progress.

The House went into committee on Mr. Graham's Trading Stamp bill. Mr. Carscallen expressed the opinion that such legislation should be general instead of optional with municipalities. Mr. Reid (Addington) moved that the committee rise, which would throw out the bill. Mr. Graham was prepared to accept the principle of an absolute measure, but said that the bill had been prepared by the merchants on the best legal advice. Premier Ross approved of leaving the matter in the hands of the municipalities. Mr. Barr denounced trading stamps as a species of gambling that should not be allowed. Mr. Farwell spoke in defence of the trading stamp system. Dr. McKay said that the very fact that the solicitors for the trading stamp companies asked for time to enable them to get out of the business showed that it was not a legitimate one. Mr. Pattullo thought it would be a kindness to many merchants now compelled to use trading stamps to pass the bill. Mr. Whitney did not think the bill would be effective and he considered that the introduction of the local option principle would result in confusion. Mr. Carscallen moved that the committee rise and report progress. Mr. Reid's motion was defeated and Mr. Carscallen's carried by a large majority, so that the bill stood over for further consideration.

The Government bill respecting the University was considered in committee. Col. Matheson strongly denounced Government control in university matters, more especially in connection with the appointment of professors.

Premier Ross emphatically denied that political considerations had ever influenced the appointment of professors. No appointment was ever made without consulting those interested in the university. The best evidence that the appointments of professors had been good was the success of the students of the University whose standing sufficiently indicated the excellence of the faculty. The Senate of the university were consulted respecting the bill and they believed the Government should be responsible for appointments.

Mr. Whitney urged the Government to reconsider the features of the bill and contended an advisory board would prevent ill-considered appointments and put the university in a more independent position.

Hon. R. Harcourt said that when a professorship was vacant it was widely advertised and frequently applicants were selected from beyond the bounds of the Province. The only question was to get the best man obtainable regardless of their political views. He did not know what the political opinions of the university professors were and he did not care.

Mr. Carscallen said the Senate would not hold themselves responsible for the success of the university so long as it was under Government control.

The committee reported progress, some sections of the bill being allowed to stand over.

Hon. F. R. Latchford introduced a bill respecting aid to certain railways, the grants amounting in all to $329,000, which was read a second time.

Premier Ross announced that the Government bills to amend the Assessment and Municipal Acts would be withdrawn. The latter measure was the one authorizing municipalities to exempt from taxes or make bargains as to the annual assessment of the property of corporations operating public franchises. As to the Assessment bill, the Government did not propose to abandon the proposal to amend the "scrap iron" law, and he therefore introduced a substitute measure for the Assessment bill restoring the law as it stood before the scrap iron decision and providing that the plant of corporations holding municipal franchises should be assessed as that of going concerns.

Mr. Whitney accused the Government of having yielded in this matter to the threats of the corporations.

The Premier—"That's not true."

Mr. Whitney, continuing, said that the Premier's Municipal bill ought to have been burned by the common hangman. It had been given as a measure of relief for the corporations, but the latter had refused to accept it as such.

Mr. Pattullo fully approved the course of the Government. The question of assessment was such a large one that it could only be dealt with in a comprehensive way. The entire report of the Assessment Commission should be before them when it was dealt with.

Mr. Carscallen said all that the Opposition desired was that corporations should pay their fair share of taxation.

Hon. J. M. Gibson thought that the questions involved were so important and far-reaching that it was well that another year should be given for their consideration. He urged that there were many companies in the smaller places which paid no dividends and were practically run at a loss which municipalities might very well be permitted to relieve of taxation. The bill was reported.

THE SPECTER OF GORUCKPOOR

BY M. QUAD.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

The garrison of Goruckpoor in the province of Oudh, India, in the year 1862 consisted of 4,000 men, and about half of these were split up into small detachments and stationed here and there in the north to keep order among the hill men and punish raiding dacoits. Dacoits are bands of robbers under command of a chief who holds a religious influence over them, and they are yet the pests of India along the foothills of the Himalayas. They are daring men and hard fighters, and very few British soldiers who fall into their hands are spared.

We of the Fourth, comprising 80 men, were stationed during the year 1862 almost as far north as the borders of Nepal. We had plenty of skirmishing with the dacoits for a time, but finally dealt them such heavy blows that they drew off and left us in peace. We were in the midst of what seemed to be peace when the government dispatched a large train of treasure and military supplies from Goruckpoor for Ghoorka. Colonel Kemble, who had been ordered to take command of the garrison at the latter place, being just back from a year's leave of absence in England, was with the train, and the whole was escorted by 250 cavalrymen. The route for the train brought it past our station, where it rested for a day and then moved on. In a defile 15 miles to the north of us it was ambushed by over a thousand dacoits and suffered a severe misfortune. There was not only a heavy loss in killed and wounded, but the treasure and a portion of the supplies were captured and run on.

The remnant of the train returned to us and went into camp until re-enforcements could come up, and the bullet headed, tyrannical Colonel Kemble, whose obstinacy and recklessness had brought about the disaster, proceeded to make it redhot for everybody. Any set of men except British soldiers would have mutinied and taken his life. Raging over his defeat and feeling his helplessness, he ordered out detachments and commanded them to bring in every native they could overhaul. It was a well populated country, with hundreds of loyal natives to be picked up, but the colonel proceeded to look upon each and every one as guilty of having had a hand in the attack on the train. More than a score were shot or hung offhand, while others were whipped at the post or ordered out of the district. It was a reign of terror for three weeks, and the end was a fitting one.

My own detachment one day brought in a mere boy whom we had found cowering in a thicket. I do not believe he had the slightest knowledge of the ambush or took any part in it. He was a timid lad, whose father had been one of the first ones hung, and he was so frightened that but little could be got out of him. The colonel bulldozed and browbeat him and finally ordered his execution on the ground that he was a spy. It was only when he knew that he must die that the young fellow braced up and showed his courage, and as he was being led away to execution he said to the colonel:

"Sahib Colonel, I am innocent, and you will be punished for my death. You may shoot me and bury my body, but my spirit will follow you to the grave."

Half an hour later he was dead, but he was the last one to be executed. That evening as the colonel entered the officers' mess tent for supper all of us noticed that he had a queer, troubled look on his face and that he cast furtive glances behind him. After a bit he tried to be jocular, but the effort was a failure. He said something about not feeling well, but nobody dared question him. At midnight that night we got an explanation. The colonel called the sentinel into his tent, and with white face and trembling voice and the perspiration standing out on his forehead he said:

"Man, do you see that boy sitting on the chest?"

"I see nobody, sir," replied the sentinel.

"He is there, I tell you! He followed me to mess and back, and he has been here in plain sight all the evening. Take him away!"

"But there's nobody here, sir."

And there wasn't. The sentinel called in two officers, who looked and searched in vain and assured Colonel Kemble that no boy was present. He tried to turn it off with a laugh, but in less than 24 hours every man in camp knew that the colonel was haunted by a specter. He made a brave effort to bluff it out, but it was useless. The specter followed at his heels by day and sat by his bedside at night, and in a week the strong, aggressive man was becoming a mental wreck. He turned to us for pity and sympathy, but we had little to give. He had been brutal in his vengeance.

The surgeon looked upon the case at first as some disorder of the brain, but later on acknowledged that it was something beyond his medicine. No one else could see the specter. The colonel would say that it sat beside him or stood in the door, but there was nothing for other eyes to rest upon. He would draw his sword and cut and slash and thrust at the specter, but he could not harm it. By the surgeon's advice the colonel returned to Goruckpoor. It was reported as a case of breaking down over mental anxiety, but hundreds of people came to know better. The specter followed him back, followed him to the house of a friend, sat with him through every night and dogged at his heels through every hour of the day. He could no more shake it off than he could change the color of his eyes. He made the gamest sort of fight, knowing that his future career was at stake, and at length all men came to pity him—pity him and avoid him as one accursed. He was medically treated, given brief furloughs and every effort made to build him up, but at the end of eight months, every day and every night of which had been a terror to him, he ended by blowing out his brains.

Was it a case of a man haunted by a spirit seeking revenge? It was not so reported officially, but from first to last and from the highest to the lowest, and this includes two surgeons, it was fully and firmly believed that it was, and the uncanny affair had a great influence over other officers in their future treatment of the natives.

THE DRUMHEAD BUSINESS.

A Huge Long Island Industry Which Prospers by War.

Few people know that more than half the banjo and drum heads sold in the United States are made on Long Island. Near the railroad station at Cold Spring is a little red building surrounded by frames, in which skins are stretched for drying, while near by is an artificial pond, with wooden sides and bottom, filled with a chemical mixture. It is an unpretentious establishment, but in our two wars and in the pence between it has fathered a great deal of noise. The business was established in 1860, and success was almost immediate. Competition was strong after the rush of war orders was over, but the business has advanced in importance until now there are but three factories in this country whose opposition can be felt. Two of these are in Brooklyn and the other at High View, N. Y.

New York markets furnish the salted raw skins from which the drumheads are made. The hair is removed from the skins by a chemical bath in the artificial pond, and the skins are then stretched on the racks and dried. A thorough scraping removes any particles of fat or flesh that may have adhered to the dried skin, which is then the thickness of parchment. The skins are thoroughly bleached in the drying process and are then ready for cutting into heads. During the Spanish-American war the factory was fairly swamped with orders for drumheads, 500 dozen heads often being ordered at one time. The principal demand was for the "tenor" drum, on which a loud accompaniment to the fife or bass instrument can be produced.

Kangaroo skins make the costliest drumheads. When dressed, they are showy, but beyond their appearance and name they are of no greater value than heads made from calfskin. Sheepskin is used for cheap toy drums.

Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

History of the "Hiss."

There is not an actor, an actress, a vocalist or other public performer, including the politician, but must be interested in the hiss and its origin.

Dr. Ainslie Hollis in The Humanitarian tells, under the title of "Before Babel," of his researches as to the prevailing language before the "confusion of tongues."

Referring to the aforesaid awesome word, he writes: "Perhaps the sibilant ss (st, ts, sh) is one of the oldest sounds in animated nature, as it undoubtedly is one of the simplest to produce.

"Vocalized in the English hiss (hist, hush) we find the pure sibilant adopted by beasts, birds and reptiles as an expressive of the warning in times of stress.

"Even the crustacean cirrhipeds can produce the sound, when 'there is an adjacent source of danger,' although they are not supplied with a proper vocal apparatus.

"Besides acting as a warning not to its own kith, some predatory animals, as, for instance, some of the smaller carnivora and certain snakes, utter the sound in a minatory manner to ward off objectionable intruders from their lair.

"Equivalent in the former case to the expressions 'Keep quiet,' 'Stand still,' a hiss is construed in its more widely known sense among animals of different species as 'Come forward at your peril,' impressing a visitor in search of hospitality much in the same way as did the legend 'Cave canem,' on the threshold of a Roman mansion."

The paragraph concludes sagely: "Our English hiss is mainly restricted to the use of dissatisfied playgoers. The sound here retains its primitive meaning—a warning note."

MARRIED AT HIGH NOON.

Nuptials of Mr. A. S. Laing to Miss Margaret Watt of Town.

A quiet but interesting event took place at 12.30 o'clock to-day at the residence of Mr. John Watt, No. 227 Dublin street, when his only daughter, Miss Margaret A., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Arthur S. Laing, of St. Catherines, eldest son of Mr. Robert Laing, of town.

The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Wm. Bennett, in the presence of only the imediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was attired in white organdie and carried a bocquet of white lilies. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ida Watt, of Cobourg, who wore a costume of white organdie trimmed with pink, while Mr. Torrance Laing, brother of the groom, was best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Ada Gillespie.

After the marriage ceremony the wedding party sat down to a sumptuous wedding repast, and at 4.45 o'clock they left per C.P.R., for London and points west. They will take up their residence in St. Catherines, where Mr. Laing holds a responsible position on the teaching staff of the High School.

THE BEET SUGAR INUDSTRY.

There Will be a Meeting Here Wednesday Next in the Market Hall.

A meeting of those interested in the establishment of the sugar beet industy in this section are asked to bear in mind the date of the meeting to discuss matters pertainining to the same, on Wednesday next.

The following circular letter has been sent out:

DEAR SIR.—I am instructed to invite you to be present at a meeting to, to promote the cultivation of sugar beets, with a view to erection of a factory for the manufacture of beet sugar in the town of Peterborough. The meeting will be held in the Market Hall, Peterborough, on Wednesday, April 10th, at 1.30 p.m.

Addresses will be delivered by C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Prof. A. E. Shuttleworth, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and others.

It is the intention of the committee (who represent the Peterborough Board of Trade, the Town and County Councils and West Peterborough Farmers' Institute) to ask the Department of Agriculture for seed, to be distributed, in order to more fully demonstrate the quality of beets our soil is capable of growing for the purpose of sugar manufacture, which is just now promising to become one of our greatest industries.

With regard to the location of a factory, there is no doubt that Peterborough is the centre of a large district with unequalled water power for operating the plant—while the waterways for carrying purposes are unsurpassed, which, along with the fact that lines of railway radiate out from the town in six different directions—all of which makes this the most desirable of locations for this or any other industry.

Hoping that it may be convenient for you to attend, and induce others to come along.

Yours respectfully'
WM. COLLINS, Chairman Committee. E. M. ELLIOTT, Secretary.

OUR DEPUTATION

Received by Sir Richard Cartwright and Hon. A. G. Blair.

(Special to the Examiner.)

Ottawa, March 3rd.—A deputation from the County of Peterborough interviewed Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Blair this morning, and asked for a subsidy of $3,200 a mile towards the construction of a railway from Apsley to Norwood on the C. P. R., a distance of thirty miles. Railway communication, it is claimed, would open up a district which is rich in timber and minerals, and also well adapted for dairying and hog raising. Messrs. Lang and Kendry, M.P., introduced the deputation, which represented the different municipal Councils throughout the County of Peterborough. Mr. D. W. Dumble, President of the Peterborough Board of Trade, and Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, Warden of the county, were among the party. Consideration of the application was promised.

Through the efforts of the Civic Association, the letter box at the corner of Lake and Elizabeth streets will be moved to the corner of Mark and Elizabeth streets, at the Town Hall. This is a much more central location, and as collections are made from this box every day, except Sundays, at 6 p.m., no doubt the box will be more generally used. Letters collected from the box at 6 p.m., reach Toronto, Montreal, etc., in time for delivery the following morning.

THEIR SINCERE THANKS.

Tendered the Canadian General Electric Company by a Committee.

The following resolution of thanks was read last night by Mr. Geo. McCrea to Mr. E. G. Patterson, Supt. of the C. G. E. Co., to which the latter very feelingly replied:

To the General Superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Co., Peterborough:

We, the undersigned committee on behalf of the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co., at Peterborough, beg leave to tender our sincere thanks to the company and superintendent of the works, Mr. E. Pain in the Joints

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

Seeds that Surely Grow.

The cost of seeds compared with the value of the crop is so small that a few cents saved by buying second-rate seeds will amount to many dollars lost when the harvest is gathered. Farmers have found out by many costly failures what a risky thing it is to buy seeds without being pretty sure that they are reliable and true to name. The latest catalogue of the seed house of D. M. Ferry & Co., of Detroit, Mich., is a reminder that thousands of farmers in the United States and Canada have pinned their faith to the reputation of this great firm. During a business career approaching half a century in time, Ferry's seeds have won an annual increase in popularity, which is perhaps the best evidence that they grow and give satisfaction. Ferry's Seed Annual for 1901 is a useful guide in selecting seeds for the farm, the truck garden and the flower garden. It is sent free on application.

GAUZE WOOL FOR SPRING.

NORWOOD NEWS.

Meeting of the Village Council—The High School At Home—Personals.

Mrs. A. J. Robertson spent a few days in Toronto last week with friends.

Rev. F. D. Roxburgh is spending a few days at Cressnock.

Mr. Robert Breckenridge of Peterborough, gave our village a call on Saturday

Mrs. W. E. Roxburgh is visiting her son, Mr. G. B. Cameron, in Peterborough.

Mr. A. S. Harrison of Marmora, has purchased the bakery and confectionery business of Mr. D. Foster and will take possession at once. Mr. Harrison is an old Norwood boy and we are pleased to welcome him back to town.

The entertainment given in the town hall by Miss Pauline Johnson was very poorly attended but those present received a treat.

The High School at home, given on Friday night was a decided success in every way and reflects much credit on the staff and scholors who had it in charge. The programme was as follows:

8 to 9 p.m. ..... Reception
9 to 10 ..... Musical and literary programme
Chairman's address ..... Mr. Davidson
Recitation, "British Nerve" ..... Miss Gertie Squire
Solo, "While the Heart is Young" ..... Miss Roxbourgh
Solo, "The Old Soldier" ..... Mr. N. W. Murett
Recitation, "The Duel" ..... Miss Powell
Solo, "Only a Rose" ..... Mrs. E. C. Squire
Recitation, "He was there, so was I" ..... Miss Gyerdrum
10 o'clock ..... promenade

During the promenades light refreshments were served by the scholars. The proceeds of the entertainment amounted to $40 and will be used in procuring new uniforms for the Cadet Corps.

We are pleased to learn the Ontario Government has consented to subsidize the projected Norwood and Apsley Railway. A delegation of our townspeople left Tuesday night to interview the Dominion Government with regard to securing a further subsidy.

By an almost unanimous vote on Sunday the members of the Presbyterian church here decided to adopt the individual communion cup service.

The spring millinery opening at "The Arcade" store took place on Thursday and Friday last, and they were busy days for the ladies. The show rooms were tastily arranged and judging from all accounts Miss Isaac has secured a warm place in the hearts of the ladies.

The village council met in the town hall, on April 1st. Present, Reeve A. Breault, in the chair, and Councillors W. A. Eaton, and W. J. Webster.

The minutes of former and special meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from the Canada Foundry Co. was read by the reeve, but no action was taken.

The following accounts were read from the chair.

D. Hartley, 9371 ft. cedar scantling and plank	$103 76

AND THE YEARS GO BY.

Lightly sips youth at the wines of its joys,
Laughs at the charms of yesterday's toys;
Life is so long, and nothing alloys,
And the years go by.

Little by little the world shows its dross,
Deepens the sense of enjoyment and loss;
Pleasure is wearing off part of its gloss,
And the years go by.

Now there is question and doubt and dismay;
Well, time will alter, and truth will outstay;
Night is as needful, perhaps, as the day,
And the years go by.

Work multiplies, and pleasures abate;
So much to do, and we are so late;
Duties still flocking now knock at the gate,
And the years go by.

Once—ah, we sigh, but we never can stop!
What is life for but to work till we drop?
Only one thought—to rise to the top—
And the years go by.

Age is oncoming, and what have we done?
Oh, we had dreamed of such victories won!
Whose is the fault, and what is undone?
And the years go by.

What do we hold but a handful of dust?
We were so wise in our first ardent trust.
Somehow we missed the real metal for rust,
And the years go by.

"THE DEVIL'S OWN"

A Story of a Station Agent.

BY CHARLES DONALD MACKAY.

Tom Dean was ticket agent and telegraph operator for the Union Pacific at Wellsville, a settlement of not more than a few dozen scattered houses, the most pretentious of which was the "hotel and lunchroom." About 100 yards down the track from this popular resort at "train time" stood a low, one roomed building, the station, Tom's St. Helena.

To an energetic, ambitious young man, socially inclined, Wellsville was well nigh intolerable, but Tom had hopes and made the best of it. He had removed his belongings from the "hotel" to Mrs. Jordan's cosy little cottage, where he made himself at home. He found Miss Jordan a charming companion and "years ahead of the village in every way." Nevertheless the uneventful days would drag, and the nights—well, after the 8:50 "accommodation" pulled out until 11:10, when the west bound "express" dashed past, one might as well have been stationed in the middle of the Great Sahara. At least so Tom said many times.

One raw, gusty December night just before the holidays Tom with much pleasure piled the three cases billed through to Omaha on the truck and ran them down the track, ready to be hauled aboard the baggage car of the coming train. He was not overfond of work, but this meant the stopping of the express, the latest newspapers and good reading for several days. To signal the express was an event.

Taking a last look at the lights, he entered the station and slammed the door after him as if to bar out the loneliness of the dripping outside world. The last light in the hotel had gone out long before the wind bowled in the wires, the red light blinked and flickered—

"Well, of all the God forsaken"—

The door opened suddenly, and two men stepped into the room, followed by a third.

"Hands up—quick!" the foremost cried.

In less than two minutes Tom was bound, gagged and lying helpless behind the partition in the baggage end of the room.

"He's safe. Where's Jim?" asked the man who had spoken before.

"Down to the sidin," came the answer. "Set the white light."

The door closed quickly after them. Out of Tom's bewilderment and confusion came the question, What did it mean? Robbery? There was nothing worth the risk at the station, and the men had gone.

"Set the white light." That meant the express would not stop.

"Down to the siding." The blind siding, an eighth of a mile beyond the station by the sand hill! It ended in the gravel bank.

The terrible truth flashed across his mind. He turned cold. Great beads of moisture stood out upon his forehead. Twenty-six, with its living freight, was to be switched on to the siding at full speed.

As the horror of it rushed upon him Tom strained at the cords that bound him hand and foot with a strength he never dreamed he possessed. It was useless. The work had been done well. He looked quickly at the clock—10:41. In 29 minutes more the train would be due. As he turned the knots of the gag pressed into the back of his head. Bearing heavily upon them, unmindful of the pain, he moved his head, forcing his chin downward. They gave. They moved. Again he tried and again, until at last the handkerchief slipped to his neck.

"Help, help! Townsend! Bill! Help!" he cried. But his voice was lost in the mocking howl of the wind, and he realized that the effort was strength wasted and time lost.

Again he looked at the clock—only 26 minutes remained. How fast the seconds flew! Twenty-five—

The sharp click, click, click, from the other side of the partition caught his ear—a telegraphic message. "Twenty-six 20 minutes late."

"Thank God, a delay!"

Forty-four minutes now—a gain of 20. The train, due at 11:10, would not arrive until 11:30. Townsend relieved him at 12. "Too late! Too late!" rushed through his mind as he glared at the clock. Then the light of hope fairly blazed in his eyes.

The summer before, when he had long, weary night watches, twice he overslept because his alarm had failed him, so to insure his "call" he had run a wire from the station clock to a bell in his room at the hotel. By an ingenious connection when the hands marked 11:45 the ringing of the bell brought him violently out of the land of dreams. When Tom was promoted to the shorter watch and went to live at Mrs. Jordan's, Bill Townsend, who succeeded him, fell heir to his room and "the devil's own," as Tom called the bell. The clock was an imitation of the old fashioned, big faced, caseless timepieces, with weights and chains and a long, heavy pendulum.

"Twenty minutes late," he muttered.

The hour hand was less than two inches from the connection, but how slowly it crept! If he could only move that hand! His knees were free. He drew them up toward his chin, shot out his legs and came to a sitting position. Then, by a series of short jumps and bumps, he reached the wall, braced his back against it and, with great difficulty, worked himself to his feet. The pendulum swung close to his ear, but how could he reach the hand? Was he to fail now?

His eyes quickly searched the room. A few feet to the right was the window, heavily barred, the torn shade partly down. His glance rested on the stick that weighted the latter, just what he needed. New hope gave him new strength. Inch by inch he edged himself along the wall to the shade, caught the stick between his teeth and sank quickly to the floor. He had succeeded. The stick was torn loose from its flimsy fastenings. Back again, up and along the wall he worked until he stood nearly under the clock. He turned sidewise, raised his head until the stick pointed at the hand, made a terrific effort to reach it, failed, lost his balance and fell heavily to the floor.

The bodily pain was nothing to him, but he groaned in anguish at the loss of time. He looked up. The clock had stopped!

The hands marked 11. He could reach the pendulum. It must be started. There was still a chance of more delay. Again the struggle to regain his feet, harder now because of his growing weakness. Nearer and nearer be crept to the motionless rod. A nod of his head would start it.

"My God!" he suddenly cried. "Why didn't I think of it before? Is there still time?" And seizing the heavy brass disk at the end of the pendulum in his teeth he raised his head and detached it.

The rod, freed of its heavy weight, swung rapidly back and forward, impelling the hands onward at a greatly increased rate of speed. His eyes were following the minute hand. He could see it move, and the hour hand? Yes, it was creeping along. Tom's strength was going fast. He sank to his knees and rolled over on the floor, but his eyes were fixed on that hand. How long would it take to reach 11:45? Closer and closer it crept. Now it touched the iron connection and moved slowly past it. The alarm had been sounded, but there were 15 minutes more before Bill would arrive. He strained his ears to catch the slightest sound. The noise of the storm was all that he could hear.

Click, click, click came from the instrument—a message from Maysville. Twenty-six had just passed. Maysville was 12 minutes up the road—it must now be 11:18. Tom tried to calculate the time since the hands started on their wild race, but his mind was a chaos of mad thoughts. What if Bill did not arrive in season? He rolled over on his face and waited for the worst.

The door burst open.

"Hello, where are you?" It was Bill's voice.

"Stop 26—hold up at Dyke's siding—get men"— But Bill was gone.

The red light flashed up the track, and 26, with a noisy grinding of wheels and many jolts, came to a stop. A posse was hastily formed, but when the siding was reached nothing was found but the open switch that meant death and destruction.

The passengers and crew tried to make Tom believe that he was a hero, but he only pointed to the clock and said:

"It was the 'devil's own.'"—Waverley Magazine.

Hats in the House of Commons.

Speaker Denison if he saw a member wear any unwonted headgear other than the regulation tall hat would send for him and point out the irregularity. In these days a billycock hat has frequently been seen in one particular quarter of the house, and the innovation is tolerated. What Speaker Denison would have said or thought if he had seen a few straw hats in the extremely hot weather of last session the writer cannot venture even to conjecture.

A reference to hats recalls the curious custom which prevails, that when a member wishes to interpose with a point of order after the question has been put from the chair he must speak "covered." On one occasion Mr. Gladstone wished to speak in this way, and, as he never brought a hat into the house, he was obliged hastily to borrow a hat. It happened that the hat which he borrowed belonged to his then solicitor general, Sir F. Herschell (afterward the lord chancellor), and it proved to be far too small for Mr. Gladstone's head. He was unable for some time to address the house owing to the shouts of laughter which his appearance called forth.—Good Words.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample its agreeable taste will surprise you.

INDIAN SIGNALS.

The Long Distance Code by Which the Red Men Conversed.

The traveler on the plains in the early days soon learned the significance of the spires of smoke that he sometimes saw rising from a distant ridge or hill and that in turn he might see answered from a different direction. It was the signal talk of the Indians across miles of intervening ground, a signal used in rallying the warriors for an attack or warning them for a retreat when that seemed advisable.

The Indian had a way of sending up the smoke in rings or puffs, knowing that such a smoke column would at once be noticed and understood as a signal and not taken for the smoke of some campfire. He made the rings by covering the little fire with his blanket for a moment and then suddenly removing the blanket and allowing the smoke to ascend, when he instantly covered the fire again. The column of ascending smoke rings said to every Indian within 30 miles: "Look out. There is an enemy near." Three smokes built close together meant danger. One smoke merely meant attention. Two smokes meant "Camp at this place." Travel the plains, and the usefulness of this long distance telephone will quickly become apparent.

Sometimes at night the settler or traveler saw fiery lines crossing the sky, shooting up and falling, perhaps taking a direction diagonal to the line of vision. He might guess that these were the signals of Indians, but unless he were an old timer he might not be able to interpret the signals. The old timer and the squaw man knew that one fire arrow (an arrow prepared by treating the head of the shaft with gunpowder and fine bark) meant the same as the column of smoke puffs—viz, "An enemy is near." Two arrows meant "Danger." Three arrows said imperatively, "This danger is great." Several arrows said, "The enemy are too many for us." Two arrows shot up into the air at once meant "We shall attack;" three at once said, "We attack now." An arrow shot off in a diagonal direction said as plainly as pointing a finger, "That way." Thus the untutored savage could telephone fairly well at night as well as in daytime."

Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—I wish to let you know of the benefit I have derived by using your Pills.

I am a widow with a family to support, and have to work hard, which is very trying on my nerves.

At night I was unable to sleep for hours after going to bed, and it seemed as if every nerve in my body was on the go.

I had a smothering, choking sensation, and had to spring out of bed to catch my breath.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done me so much good that I can recommend them highly to any person afflicted with heart and nerve troubles like I was.

Yours, with gratitude,

KEPT TALLY ON FIBS.

THE ASTONISHING RESULT OF ONLY ONE DAY OF COUNTING.

An Investigator's Discovery of What an Enormous Bouquet of the Flowers of Fable Adorns the Daily Speech of the Average Mortal.

"Do you know that the average American is a hopeless and incorrigible and unmitigated liar?" said an amateur cynic of Baronne street. "I don't mean he lies viciously, but suave mendacity glides off the end of his tongue as easily as molasses flows from a spigot on a warm day in summer. He does it unconsciously, habitually, automatically—just as his lungs expand and his heart palpitates and his hair grows, without any special attention from the rest of his system. He does it because he can't help it. The thing has become a second nature.

"I had all this brought home to me," continued the amateur cynic, "by a very simple little experiment which I tried on myself and a few others no longer ago than yesterday morning. Did you ever see a pocket counting machine? Well, it's a little device shaped like a watch. Whenever you press the stem the needle on the dial jumps a point, and it registers in that way up to several thousand on the principle of a cyclometer. They are used by anybody making long counts and are very handy, because they never forget where they leave off.

"But, to come to the point, something happened to remind me of our national vice of untruthfulness as I was getting up yesterday, and I determined to 'keep tab' on myself and ascertain, if possible, how many actual, out and out lies I put into circulation in the course of the day. I chanced to have one of the little counting machines I have just mentioned, so I slipped it into my pocket and started out.

"The first lie I told was right at the door. Smithson was passing and stopped to shake hands. 'Hello, old man!' said I. 'Delighted to see you,' when as a matter of fact I was deuced sorry to see him, because I owe him ten. I gave the counter a squeeze and hurried on, but before I got to the office I had jogged it nine times.

"What did I jog it for, did you ask? Oh, trivialities, mere trivialities, but at the same time point blank lies, every one of 'em. Whenever I opened my mouth out dropped some confounded hyperbole. I told Jones the joke he insisted in springing on me was the 'best I ever heard' and then made a double tally in assuring his wife she was looking remarkably well when she was looking exactly like a scarecrow. I told another friend I never laughed so much in my life as I had at something or other, I don't remember now what, and still another that I hadn't slept a wink for three nights when I had neuralgia lately—all lies, bald lies, in spite of their harmlessness.

"When I reached the office and looked at the dial, I was horrified. 'Good heavens!' I said to myself. 'It seems to be physically impossible for me to speak the plain truth in the paltriest matters. I'll just remain perfectly quiet for half an hour and keep check on Boggs.'

"Boggs is our head bookkeeper and a pillar in one of the suburban churches," continued the amateur cynic. "He wears rubber overshoes in wet weather, cultivates sandy side whiskers, carries a gingham umbrella, belongs to a building and loan association and has all the other marks of severe respectability. I had supposed him to be the quintessence of cast iron veracity, but when I sat down in cold blood to put him on record I was astounded at the blase fashion with which he frivoled with the truth. I pushed the button on him 15 times in 27 minutes; then he got into a whispered conversation with a caller, and I lost the thread of his remarks. But I am certain if I had been in earshot the counter would have had hard work keeping up with the procession.

"That relieved my mind somewhat, and later on, when I made a quiet test of several of the other fellows in the office, I came to the conclusion that I was no worse than the average, but the average was pretty tough. As far as my investigations went, the invoice clerk held the record. He is a guileless sort of chap, with modest manners and a freckled nose, and I never supposed he had any imagination concealed in his peg topped cranium, but he forced me to push the indicator up exactly 22 times in 15 minutes. During the last part of the stretch, however, he was trying to trade off a secondhand bicycle, and that naturally swelled the returns.

"Of course I soon realized that the idea of keeping count on my own mendacity was entirely impractical and abandoned the effort, but the other data has furnished me with abundant food for thought. My brother-in-law, by the way, insists that we would make a great mistake in trying to weed these flowers of fable out of our daily speech. He says we lie continually and systematically because everybody else lies, and a man who would start out to tell the plain, cold, raw, rectangular truth about everything in life would be little better than an anarchist. He would upset all established standards of value and make it necessary almost to recast the language. Besides, nobody would believe him. But my brother-in-law is a doctor," added the amateur cynic thoughtfully, "and maybe that makes a difference."

PUZZLED THE JEWELER.

He Wanted a Second Hand Watch and Finally Got It.

He was evidently a foreigner, and he walked into one of the big jewelry houses on F street and asked for a watch. He would be pleased to examine some "second hand watches," he said to the clerk who advanced to meet him.

"This isn't a pawnshop," observed the clerk haughtily.

"No?" observed the man inquiringly. "But you have watches?" And he pointed to the great showcase full of handsome watches.

"Certainly," replied the clerk. "Finest stock of watches in the city. How much do you want to pay for a watch?"

"How mooch?" asked the stranger. "Mooch as he is worth, so that he suits me. I have said that I desire a second hand watch—a good one that shall keep the time."

"See here, sir; you are off your base. We don't keep secondhand goods. You will have to hunt elsewhere for secondhand watches."

The stranger's eyes opened wide. "But you have him there, and there and there," he said as he began to gesticulate. "I have said s-e-c-o-n-d h-a-n-d watches," spelling it as though to make it plainer, "and they are here, everywhere, yet you say you have them not. I do not comprehend you."

"Well, I do you," replied the clerk sheepishly as he quickly got behind the counter. "Just a little mix up. No harm done, I hope. Certainly we have watches with second hands. All our watches have second hands. We handle no others." And the stranger got his second hand watch, for which he laid down a $50 bill.

Speculation and Theft.

Some statistician, in emulation of Lombroso perhaps, has been figuring out the habitual employment of convicts. He concludes that more men and women whose employers are the national, state or municipal governments fall into evil ways and come to untoward ends than those who work for private individuals or corporations. A very large proportion of the men and women who have been handlers of public moneys seem to yield to the constant temptation and begin to peculate, and some cynic avers that peculation is the corollary of speculation. As a matter of fact, most of the big and little thieves who confess how they were led to take money that did not belong to them declare that speculations of one sort or another brought them eventually behind the bars.

Mrs. Ewing and Her Fish Pan.

Mrs. Emma P. Ewing, dean of the Chautauqua Cooking school, tells of one saddening experience when she first began housekeeping. The art of cooking was unknown to her, and she looked forward with terror to the first visit of her mother-in-law, who was a famous housewife. She arrived, and Mrs. Ewing began to serve dinner. The first course was a fish, which she had baked in a pan. When she tried to lift it, she was at her wits' end. It stuck to the pan here, there and everywhere.

At last the fish was removed by the aid of a carving knife, a fish slice, a spoon and a griddlecake turner. It was too broken to serve on the platter, so the young cook, with tears in her eyes, made a sauce and served it creamed. She determined, however, to find a better pan for baking fish. There was nothing of the kind in the stores, so she got an intelligent tinsmith to carry out her ideas. She had a piece of sheet iron cut to fit loosely into a shallow bake pan, and at each end of the tin she had long handles attached. When thoroughly greased, the fish baked on it to perfection, all the juice being held by the pan. It was child's play to slip a thin, long knife under the fish when lifted from the pan and slip it whole on a hot platter.—Good Housekeeping.

Honey For the Toilet.

Apart from the medicinal uses to which honey is and may be applied are those connected with the toilet. A small jar containing honey should be kept on every washstand and in every nursery. Honey proves a panacea for most of the ills that flesh, or, rather, skin, is heir to in the shape of cracked lips, roughness of the skin, blotchy patches around the mouth, which are most disfiguring to even the most beautiful, chilblained or chapped hands, sore and cracked heels, wind caught ears, etc., which can all be prevented by this simple remedy. The application is easy, and no one can object to it, as they do to so many other remedies. After washing any part of the body suffering from any of the above unpleasantnesses, apply to the part affected, while still wet, a very little honey by dipping the finger into the jar and smearing over. To those who suffer habitually in winter from any of these distressing complaints the continued use of honey will prevent them from appearing. Begin to use as soon as the weather gets cold or as soon as the wind begins to nip.

STRONG TOWNSHIP SENSATION

The Restoration to Health of Wm. Doeg Who Had Not Left His Room in Years—Rheumatism of the Worst Kind Completely Cured.

(Sundridge Echo.)

The Echo has taken the trouble to investigate the circumstances and can vouch for the truth of the following interesting story in its every particular.

Almost everyone in this neighborhood knows Mr. Wm. Doeg. In 1878 Mr. Doeg moved from the Township of Osprey, in Grey County, to lot 19 in the thirteenth concession of Strong Township. He has since made many friends, and all who know him speak of him in the highest terms.

Some time after he came to this part he was striken with rheumatism. It gradually grew worse and worse till for the last four years he has been a confirmed invalid, and as a consequence has not been seen in town at all. He has sat night and day in his chair, unable to move or walk a step for months. The pain never left him. It commenced in his back, and the torture he had to bear was terrible. From his back it would sometimes move to other parts of his body. His knees were fearfully painful at times. The truth is, that for four long years the poor man did not have a single moment's respite from the racking of this dreadful disease.

Mr. Doeg says: "It makes me shudder to look back upon that awful four years, even the thought of it is dreadful. How I ever lived through it I do not know, but I thank God that He has at last restored me to health and strength with nothing of the rheumatism left but the memory of it.

Mr. Doegis a changed man. Hale and hearty he now enjoys every moment of his new life to the full.

How did the change come about?

This is the question which Mr. Doeg is most delighted to answer. He had tried the treatment of several physicians and had used almost every medicine known as a cure for rheumatism, but he got no relief.

"I gave them all a fair chance, too," said Mr. Doeg to the Echo, "but nothing seemed able to give me even temporary relief. I grew despondent and despaired of ever leaving that dreadful pain behind me.

"One day I read in a newspaper the testimonials of some who said they had been cured of rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills. I hadn't much faith in anything by this time, but I sent for one box of the pills and commenced. I noticed an improvement and kept on, and look at me now."

Mr. Doeg certainly doesn't look like an invalid now, and it is hard for one who had not seen him in his sick room to believe that six months ago he couldn't walk.

"Have you any objection to making and signing a written statement of the whole thing for publication in The Echo?" was asked Mr. Doeg.

None whatever, I will be glad to do so, for I want every person suffering as I was with rheumatism to know that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure them, and I do hope that my statement will be read by all such unfortunates.

This is Mr. Doeg's written statement:

For four years I suffered excruciating torture, during which time I was scarcely an hour free from pain. The trouble commenced in my back, where it often remained stationary for months, and so intense was the pain that I could not lie down or take rest, but had to sit night and day in a chair. The pain would then remove to other parts of my body, and when in my knees I was unable to walk, and was confined constantly to my room. I was treated for rheumatism by several doctors and also tried many medicines without receiving any benefit. Almost in despair I feared I would never again experience the pleasure of being free from pain.

Last spring my attention was directed to some remarkable cures of rheumatism effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, recorded in the public prints. I procured a box, and soon found that they were doing me good, so I kept on, till now I can say I am a new man, entirely free from pain, and have continued so for over six month's, being able to attend to my daily duties on the farm and feel strong and able for work.

I verily believe this great change has been effected by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I think it my duty to make this statement public for the benefit of anyone afflicted as I was. Wm. Doeg, Sundridge.

This is a plain unvarnished statement of fact, as we found it, and every reader of The Echo, especially those who know how bad Mr. Doeg was, will agree that it is a case without parallel in the history of the community.

Easter Bonnets (Marked Down)

BY FRANK NORRIS

Scene—The bay window of the club, commanding a view of the street. Directly opposite are the windows of a fashionable milliner's, gorgeous with a display of Easter bonnets.

Characters—Tom, Dick, Harry, afterward Jack, and Dolly Street, engaged to Jack.

It is 3 o'clock on a warm afternoon about ten days before Easter. The grand parade is at its thickest.

Tom (reflectively looking out of the window toward the milliner's display)—I wonder how many girls stop to look in at that window.

Dick—I guess one in seven is a good average.

Harry—One in three, you mean. Notice the sign, "Easter Bonnets Marked Down." Why, either one of those signs would be dangerous. Together they're fatal. Let's watch and count.

Tom (with sudden animation)—No. I'll tell you what. We'll get up a game with it. I'll pick out a girl coming down the street, and you and Harry bet on whether she stops and looks in at that window or not. It'll be for a dollar. You both put up your stakes, understand. Harry, he'll be the bull. He'll bet that she stops. Dick will be the bear. He'll bet she doesn't. Savvy?

AT THE CLUB WINDOW.

Dick—And how if she goes in—goes into the store?

Tom—Well, I'll just bet a dollar as to whether she goes in or not, and if she does I win double. It's a one to two shot.

Dick—Great idea! Here, Tom, here comes a girl. See—just crossing the street. Do we bet on her?

Tom—No, no. There's an art in this thing you fellows don't seem to appreciate. She wouldn't do. She's been shopping all the morning and spent her last quarter for lunch at the department store. She wouldn't dare look in. Besides, she's from the country, I'm sure. Look at her net bag.

Harry—Tom, you're right. She went by with her head turned away. Wouldn't trust herself to look. How about this one that's coming—the one in the brown tailor suit?

Tom—Yes, we bet on her. (Harry and Tom each lay a dollar on the table.)

Harry—Oh, she's bound to stop. Watch, now. She can't go by that row of bonnets. There, she's right in front—now—now—yes, no—she's hesitating—she's got her eye right on that blue affair—no—yes—yes. Hooray, she stopped. The dollar's mine. Say, it is a great game. (The girl abruptly enters the store.)

Tom (pocketing the $2)—Isn't it? Hurry up. Put up your money. Here comes another one. We bet on her. The one in gray, with the bull pup (assuming the tone and manner of a wheel of fortune winner). Put up your money, gents. Pick 'em out, pick 'em out. Here she goes, and there she goes, and if she stops or not nobody knows. (Dick and Harry make their bets. The girl passes by in a hurry, merely glancing at the bonnets.)

Tom (in a professional chant)—Dick wins.

Dick—Great game—great.

Tom—Gents, make your bets. This one coming. The one in the hunting green dress. Come on, come on, come and gamble on the green. And still the little ball goes round. (The girl in green enters the store hurriedly without as much as glancing at the bonnets.)

Tom (gathering in the money)—Bank wins.

Harry (with an aggrieved about)—She was the saleslady in that store. I've seen her there. Fake, fake! Skin game! Blow out the gas! Yah!

Dick—Kill the umpire!

(Enter Jack at the back of the room.)

Harry—Hello, here's Jack! Shall we ask him to join our merry throng?

Tom—He's going to be married next week to Dolly Street. He wouldn't take an interest in such frivolities.

Harry—Well, if he's going to be married next week the sooner he learns about Easter bonnets and ways of women the better for him. Hey, Jack, come over here and get into the game.

Jack (coming up)—Hello, you fellows, what's up? (Tom explains at length.)

Jack—Capital idea; capital!

Tom—Steady all. Here's another, and a stunner too. Black cashmere, white gloves and a dot of blue plush in the hat. See her?

Jack—The one with the heavy veil?

Tom—Yes, that one.

Harry—Isn't she a stunner?

Jack—Walks like a girl I know.

Dick—She won't look at those bonnets. She's the kind that sends her maid down to have a lot sent up on approval.

Harry—Doesn't make any difference. Why, look at that blue affair right in the front row and marked down. She's only a woman after all. Look, look. If she hesitates—

Jack—She's lost, and she is hesitating.

Tom—She's stopped. Harry wins. No, no—wait a moment. She acts as though she was going in. She's going to price the blue affair. I know it.

(The girl studies the array of Easter bonnets a moment, starts off, returns and finally enters the store with an undecided air.)

Tom (gathering up the money)—Bank wins.

Dick (disgusted)—You wouldn't have thought it of her. Wimmin folk air powerful onsartin, and I'll bet she was a pretty girl too.

Harry—She's over in the store now. Look, you can see her through the window. The saleslady is getting that blue bonnet out for her. By Jove, she's looking right over here.

Jack—Who—the saleslady?

Harry—No, you goat, the girl. The stunner, and—why—well, of all— Boys, she's bowing over here.

Dick—To us?

Tom—No, to me.

Jack—It's to me, of course.

Harry—Oh, you're both wrong. She's bowing right at me. Can't I see?

Tom—Betcha $10 she's not.

Jack—Take you.

Dick—How you going to prove it?

Tom—Well, I'll bow and wave my hand at her, and then Jack, he'll bow and wave his hand at her, and the one that she answers will be the one that wins.

Jack—All right. There's my tenner. Tom, you try first. (Tom bows and waves in the most ingratiating manner, but the girl puts her chin in the air and turns away coldly.)

Tom (dolefully)—Crushed, crushed. Well, Jack. (Jack bows and waves in his turn, and he's rewarded with a pleasant little nod.)

Jack (swelling proudly and pocketing the money)—What did I tell you? I'll bet she's pretty, Harry. She's going to try on that blue bonnet, and she'll have to take off her veil to do that. We'll soon see if she's pretty or not.

Tom (bitterly)—I'll betcha $5 she's not.

Jack (defiantly)—Betcha $10 she is.

Tom—Take you.

Dick—Watch, now. She's taking off her veil. There! Is she pretty or not?

Jack—Why, it's Dolly!

All—Miss Street!

(A moment of embarrassed silence.)

Harry (to Jack)—I say, old man, this is no end beastly. I—we, by Jove, Jack, we've acted like a lot of bloody little cads. Of course, if we'd known—guessed for an instant it was your fiancee—Miss Street, I mean—I—that is—hang it, Jack, I feel like a stable boy!

Dick—Harry speaks for all of us, Jack.

Jack (easily)—Pshaw! That's all right. No wonder Dolly bowed to me. She recognized me all right, but I didn't know her under that veil, and I've never seen that dress before. I thought her walk was familiar, though. Guess I'll run over and talk to her a bit. Goodby, you fellows.

(Tom, Dick and Harry exchange rueful glances.)

Tom—And now the question is, Did she recognize Jack?

Dick—Would Dolly Street flirt with a man and she engaged to Jack?

Tom—Would Jack flirt with a girl and he engaged to Dolly?

Dick—Well, wimmen folk air onsartin.

(In front of the milliner's store a few moments later. Dolly, coming out, meets Jack.)

Dolly (surprised)—Why, you dear old Jack! Where did you come from? I haven't seen you in an age!—Boston Globe.

FOR EASTER BREAKFAST.

Five Different Ways of Cooking the Dish of Honor.

Eggs in Tomato Shells.
Eggs a la Marnay.
Baked Eggs.
Calf's Brain Omelet.
Eggs Aromatique.

Eggs in Tomato Shells.—Take two fresh tomatoes, dip them in hot water in order to remove the skins, cut a slice in the top large enough to retire the seed or interior, break one raw egg in each tomato, mask with cream sauce, cover your tomato with the removed slice, place the tomato in a buttered saucepan and let cook slowly for eight or ten minutes. Dress them on a very hot plate, surrounded with madeira sauce.

Eggs a la Marnay.—Prepare some soft poached eggs, mix some white cream sauce with a little white pepper, salt and grated Parmesan cheese and, if desired, some chopped chives. Pour half the sauce into a shirred egg dish and lay the eggs in it. Cover the eggs with the remainder of the sauce and sprinkle over the top some grated Parmesan cheese and a few drops of melted butter. Place the dish in the oven until lightly browned and send to the table.

Baked Eggs.—Pierce the larger end with a pin several times to prevent the egg from bursting, place in a pan and cook in a moderate oven for ten minutes.

Calf's Brain Omelet.—Boil some fresh calf's brains until done. When cold, chop them fine, adding pepper, salt, chine and suet butter, together with a few mushrooms. Make an omelet of three fresh eggs, stirring in the above preparation, and serve hot.

Eggs Aromatique.—First poach as many eggs as you have need to serve. Roll them in flour, then dip them in beaten eggs. Roll again in fresh bread crumbs and fry in sufficient hot butter to completely cover them for one minute. Cut from a kitchen loaf of bread as many heart shaped croutons as you have eggs. Cover them with fresh mint leaves and place them on a dish. Now place an egg on each crouton thus dressed and surround all with a thick tomato sauce.

Paschal Candle's Symbolism.

The paschal candle is the name given to the light which appears on the gospel side of the altar during mass and vespers from Easter to Whit Sunday. It symbolizes the rising from the grave of Christ, the "light of the world." In the year 1457 it was recorded that the candle used at Canterbury was of 300 pounds weight. There is also mentioned as a matter of history that on one occasion the paschal candle in the church at Norwich, England, was so tall that it had to be lighted through an opening in the roof over the choir.

Catarrh.

Called an American disease, is cured by an American medicine, originated and prepared in the most catarrhal of American countries.

That medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It cures radically and permanently, in that it removes the cause, cleansing the blood of scrofulous and all other impurities. It overcomes all the effects of catarrh, too, and builds up the whole system.

No Hope for the Hope.

St. John's, Nfld., April 6.—On Sunday the sealing steamer Hope was lost on Byron Island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, by an ice floe, in which she was frozen. She was carried over a rocky ledge, her bottom being chafed out by jagged points of the rocks. Her entire crew, 28 men, escaped, and reached the land, where they endured keen privations until yesterday, when the sealer Panther was sighted and subsequently embarked them.

It is understood they have promised to place the telegraphic communications and transport facilities at the service of Japan."

Will Send an Ultimatum.

"Russia's reply concerning Manchuria being most unsatisfactory, the Japanese Government has decided," says the Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail, wiring Thursday, "after a conference with the heads of the army and navy, and of the Departments of Finance and Foreign Affairs, to address a second and more peremptory remonstrance, demanding a reply within a stated period. This remonstrance, communicated through the Japanese Minister at St. Petersburg, amounts to an ultimatum."

A CONTRAST IN PRACTICE.

In considering the progressive policy and practice of the Ross Government, it may be interesting and instructive to compare it, or rather, contrast it—for there is no comparison—with the policy, or better, the practice, of the Conservative Government of the Province of Manitoba. That Government claimed to have inaugurated a progressive policy in securing Government ownership of railways, but the manner in which that policy has been applied has imposed upon Manitoba tremendous financial burdens and responsibilities, with no assurance that the advantages these financial burdens (running up into the millions) represent, will be realized by the carrying out of the agreement with the railways.

In striking contrast with this condition is the splendid bargain made by the Ontario Government in respect of the Algoma Central Railway, which, while it does not cost the Province a cent of money directly, received aid on conditions that with only a partial fulfilment—which a short time will make complete—have had an almost incredible result in developing the resources of New Ontario, settling unpeopled areas, stimulating railway and steamer traffic, and creating new, profitable and extensive trade with older Ontario.

Another bill to aid another railway brought down by Premier Ross on Tuesday night promises to be a parallel of the bill confirming the phenomenal bargain with the Algoma Central Railway. In consideration of 2,500,0[illegible] acres of land, at present, as it has been for centuries past, useless and undeveloped, the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Company, whose charter has passed into the hands of the Clergue Syndicate, agrees to construct a railway 300 miles in length. This line will begin at Meaford, a harbour on Georgian Bay, Grey County, and run through Owen Sound, Wiarton and the Bruce Peninsula, thence by car ferry to Manitoulin Island. After it has crossed the Island to Little Current, striking the main shore, the railway will run northerly into New Ontario, in the Township of Trill, and sending a spur into Sudbury will head westward a further distance of 105 miles, tapping, en route, a belt of rich nickel deposits and forming a possible link in a new transcontinental line. And a proposition has been submitted to the Ontario Government for a car ferry from Batchewana Bay on Lake Superior to Port Arthur to connect with the Rainy River Railway. This would give a through line from western and central Ontario points to Winnipeg. In fact, by this means all Ontario, eastern, western and central, would gain access to the prairies and trade of the northwest. Besides, the road itself will give access to the iron and nickel mines of New Ontario, and form a direct avenue for the large trade with older Ontario which the development of these mines will produce. Last year the Algoma Central Railway and the connected industries threw into old Ontario for supplies of various kinds, a trade of about a million dollars: and it is expected that this figure will be increased for the same purposes to $2,000,000 this year. Corresponding results may be expected from the new line. Then mining development is to be stimulated. The Company is bound to build a public smelter of 300 tons capacity. This will admit of the prospector of small means, who, at present, is at the mercy of large corporations, carrying mining operations with a certainty of having his ore treated in a public smelter. The other conditions are in the public interests and in the interests of increasing trade. The company is bound to locate 1,000 settlers per year for ten years upon its lands. The Government has full control over the road bed and freight and passenger rates. All pine timber or pulpwood must be manufactured in Ontario, and all ore smelted or refined in Ontario. By this line Toronto will be brought 81 miles nearer to Sault Ste. Marie and the West and all Ontario will be brought nearer to these points also.

The new line connects with the C.P.R. at Owen Sound, and the G.T.R. at Meaford, placing the new line and the region it serves in direct connection, via. Collingwood, Barrie and Peterborough, with both the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. systems in this Province. The trade advantages resulting from these conditions can be bettter seen than estimated. Besides the injection of $6,000,000, which it will cost to build the road, into the districts through which it passes, will be no unimportant consideration, yet it will be as nothing compared with the tremendous effects directly produced upon the rich and now unimproved natural resources of the new country, and, indirectly, upon the older parts of the Province. The Government has the option of purchasing the line at the end of fifteen years, at the actual cost of outlay with interest at not less than six per cent.

Such is a summary of the main conditions upon which is to be built a railway which will have so important an effect upon opening up new territory and preserving to Ontario the trade incidental to the great development operations involved. While the Government is taking this public spirited and enterprising course in respect to this road, it is also giving assistance to other colonization and development railways—the Norwood and Apsley Railway and the Port Arthur and St. Joe Railway from Port Arthur towards Lake Nepigon.

The Government, however, is going a step further and proposes Provincial construction of a railway from North Bay to the Lake Temiscaming district, with the object of preventing the trade of this rich agricultural region from being diverted to Montreal, and of making it tributary to this Province, to which it rightly belongs. This road the Government proposes to build and will build as a Government line; an appropriation of $2,000 has been voted for the survey of the route. Its estimated cost is about $1,750,000, and it is proposed to lease the line for operation to the Grand Trunk, which it is expected can be done for an annual rental sufficient to pay the interest on the cost of the road.

We must not let the markets of northern Ontario pass out of our hands, and the action of the Government in preserving these markets by constructing and aiding the construction of transportation facilities, is as commendable and farsighted, as its action in applying a spirited policy of development that will immeasurably add to their importance, and create increased demand for supplies that must be furnished by Old Ontario. It is fortunate for this Province that at this time the Province is in charge of a Government which appreciates the situation, which recognizes that in this age of expansion in every direction, Ontario should and must take the prominent place which her immense stores of natural resources of every kind, pre-eminently fit her to occupy. The policy of the Government has been, and is directed to this end, and the results that have followed from its partial application amply justify the retention of the Government in power, in order that there may be no check to the forward movement that means so much for the immediate as well as more distant future of this Province. The Ross Government is a Government of action and achievement.

IN MEMORIAM.

Lines written on the death of Mr. Frank Hawke, of Coldwater, who died February 13th, 1901.

I cannot, and I will not say
That he is dead—he is just away!

With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs be, since he lingers there.

And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old time step and the glad return,

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of there as the love of here,

Mild and gentle, as he was brave,
When the sweetest love of his life he gave

To simple things—where the violets grow
Blue as the eyes they were likened to,

The touches of his hands have strayed
As reverently as his lips have prayed:

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirred
Was dear to him as the mocking bird;

And he pitied as much as a man in pain
A writhing honey-bee wet with rain.

Think of him still as the same, I say:
He is not dead, he is just away.

Miss K. Allen.

SPRING WEATHER.

IS YOUR SYSTEM IN SHAPE TO CARRY YOU SAFELY THROUGH.

The Practice of Taking a Tonic in Spring Has Descended from our Wise Forefathers and has Good Medical Endorsement—A Few Suggestions Regarding Health.

The practice of taking a tonic during the inclement weather of early spring is one that has been bequeathed us by our forefathers who lived in days when a sturdy constitution and vigorous health meant even more than they do to-day. The custom has the highest medical endorsement and the healthiest people are those who follow it. Thousands not really ill, need a tonic at this season. Close confinement in badly ventilated houses, offices, shops and school rooms during the winter months, makes people feel depressed and "out-of-sorts." Nature must be assisted in throwing off the poison that has accumulated in the system, else people fall an easy prey to disease and are subject to many discomforts from boils, eruptions, and similar troubles. Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People are the best tonic medicine known to medical science. These pills make rich, red blood and strong nerves. Through their use in springtime jaded, listless, easily tired men, women and children are made bright, active and strong. Evidence of the wonderful health restoring virtue of these pills is given by Mrs. J. Langlois, 650 Lafontain street, Montreal, who says: "Before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was under the care of two doctors, who told me my trouble was developing into consumption. I was very pale and feeble; had no appetite and could hardly stand on my feet. I was very much discouraged, and thought death was staring me in the face. I had often often read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and finally decided to try them. After I had used three boxes my appetite was much better, and I felt a little stronger. I continued the use of the pills for three months when I felt fully cured. When I began using the pills, I only weighed 92 pounds, and when I discontinued them my weight had increased to 119 pounds. I also gave the pills to my baby, who was pale and sickly, and they made him a bright, rosy, flushy child. I think there is no weak or sickly person who will not find benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

It is a waste of money to experiment with other so-called tonics which are all cheap imitations of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Insist upon getting the genuine, and if they are not sold by your dealer send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid, at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of Mrs. James Wilson died March 7th, 1901, by her friend, Ida Lillian Heasman:

Darling friend, you have gone and left us,
For your last long home above,
If we are faithful it will not be long
Before we meet above.

Your home is very lonely now,
Our hearts are filled with pain,
But in the Bible we are told
Our loss is just your gain.

The life of suffering she bravely bore,
In silence she kissed the rod,
Her Bible was her companion,
Her troubles she took to God.

She went to Him for guidance
For strength to bear the cross,
But now she has found a resting place,
She has gained though we have lost.

We miss you, dear, for the kindly words,
Which on earth no more we will hear,
The patient smile, the loving look,
Is missed by eyes now bathed in tears.

We would not care to call her back
To this world of sorrow and pain,
Up yonder in that fair, bright home
We shall see her once again.

She said good-bye to her loved ones dear,
She was not afraid to die,
As her feet touched the waves of the river of death
She knew her God was nigh.

Dearest friend, your prayers are answered,
Your tears were not shed in vain,
And in that sunny land above,
We shall see you once again.

Ah, yes, dear friend, there is a hope
That lies beyond the sod,
We shall meet again in that City of Gold
If our battles are won for God.

God formed a blood-washed choir in heaven
It was not quite complete,
He came and took our comrade home
To fill the vacant seat.

If your system needs toning up take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill, druggist.

What Is Behind This?

Toulon, April 4.—There is much comment here at a strange and unexplained order received by the Russian admiral to leave Toulon with his fleet, in order to avoid meeting the Italian squadron here. The Baby Sick?

Then probably it's a cold. Babies catch cold so easily and recover so slowly. Not slowly, however, when you use Vapo-Cresolene. Then a single night is all that is necessary for a cure. You just put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and place near the crib. While baby sleeps he breathes in the healing vapor. Cold loosens, inflamed membranes heal, and all trouble ceases. It's a perfect specific for whooping-cough and croup. 8

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 180 Fulton St., New York, U.S.A.

Recommended and sold by H. H. Edmison druggist, Peterborough.

MR. WHITNEY CONCURS

Manitoulin Railway Bill Unopposed in the Legislature.

PREMIER ROSS' FULL REVIEW.

The Bill Was Read a Second Time, After Mr. Whitney, for the Opposition, Told of Unique Situation in Which It Found Itself—Much Committee Work Was Done.

Toronto, April 5.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, on motion of the Premier it was resolved that when the House rose it should stand adjourned until 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Among the bills which were read a third time were the measures to amend the Supplementary Revenue Act, Mr. Ross; to amend the Ontario Companies Act, Mr. Stratton; to incorporate the town of Copper Cliff, Mr. Loughrin; respecting the town of Peterboro and the village of Ashburnham, Mr. Blezard; to consolidate the debt of the city of Guelph, Mr. Mutrie, and to authorize the St. Thomas Cemetery Co. to purchase lands, Mr. Macdiarmid.

A number of private bills received second readings and were put through committee.

The Government bills respecting the Arbitration of Accounts with the Dominion and amending the Sawlog Driving Act were read a second time.

Premier Ross' Full Review.

Premier Ross moved the second reading of the bill respecting the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway. He said:

I do not propose at this time to go into the details of the bill, which were explained pretty fully when it was introduced. Our object in this measure is to furnish opportunities for settlement to make profitable the timber and minerals of that country by bringing them to the market and by finding homes for those who may enter the wilds for settlement. Those features are important, but the Government wants to keep before the country the fact that we have a vast domain there that will sustain a considerable population with its resources, the extent of which we have not yet realized, and that according to modern methods settlement and development can scarcely take place except by the aid of railways. Large trunk lines of roadways were built here 50 years ago so that the settlers in Huron and Bruce and in York County along Yonge street could have convenient access, but these have been superceded by railways. As we have immense territories, we have thus our duty to aid and to find capital. We are encouraged by what has been done to take a similar course. We must carefully look forward to see that any work we may do now may be serviceable for one or more purposes. A secondary object is to afford additional facilities for transportation, for a closer connection between the older sections of the Province and the new. In this case old Ontario is getting a very substantial consideration for what is being done. What this country wants is population and a market for its products. Settlement helps to give us population. The railway will help to give us a market.

Another purpose is to serve as far as possible larger ideas of transportation, that might involve in the construction of a larger line of railway. Transportation across the continent seems to be in the minds of those who look forward to the development of Canada. That object was in mind in subsidizing the Rainy River Railway. That object will be served in this also. So that we are now building a link of what may be another transcontinental railway. We were to a certain extent handicapped by the subventions given to other railways, notably the Canadian Pacific and the Ottawa and Parry Sound Railway. We have got that money back, I suppose, in the settlement of part of the province; at all events, we are not afraid that that investment will prove unproductive. Towns have sprung up there from Pembroke west, such as Depot Harbor, which will some day rival some of the most busy ports on the west shore of Ontario. Then they call the attention of other peoples to the possibilities of this province. There is also the Georgian Bay Canal, which is projected from North Bay to the Ottawa River. All these enterprises help to develop the country.

The third feature is the close connection that this railway will give with the railway systems of Ontario. The connection at Wiarton places the northern districts in the closest possible connection that they can be placed in in western Ontario. There can be no rival to this railway in that respect. There is no other peninsula, no other railway which can supersede it or take its place. We are, therefore, practically master of the situation. We have a vantage ground that cannot be taken from us as to the connection with western Ontario. As to the connection in eastern Ontario, the same may be said with equal force. All that vast country between Lindsay and Owen Sound will be in close connection with the railway along the peninsula. And that, I think, is a very strong feature of the whole bill. Sometimes a railway is built over such a line as renders it possible for some other railway to put a shorter line to secure advantages which the original railway did not provide. We are in the happy position that nobody can take advantage of us, that is, from Lindsay to the far western part of Ontario. That comprises four-fifths of this province, and beyond it we have the prairies to the far west. It would not be going too far to say we have the shortest line that can be built westward in the Province of Ontario so long as time lasts.

We have, however, to guard ourselves on two points. First we have to see that that railway goes through the new territory where settlement can be most easily established. As far as we know that country, and we know it tolerably well, the road projected from Sudbury west to Batchewana Bay, or Michipocoton embraces a stretch of territory 175 miles wide at the western end, narrowing to about 40 miles in the eastern end, in the Township of Tilly. All that country will be then honeycombed or mottled with townships alternately owned by the Government and this company—a district of 175 miles by 40! It means a great deal. It means that what is now an unsettled wilderness will be opened up. You can imagine a part of country of that size being dotted by settlement. That is a country as large as there is between here and Kingston, reaching back about 40 miles. That means a population of a good many thousand, provided it can be populated as thickly as old Ontario is populated. That point, I think, is guarded by this bill.

The other point to be guarded is that while we are providing for the settlement of Algoma we do not overlook the importance of the lower end of the railway. If by any accident in providing for settlement we do not make ample provision for the connection along the peninsula conjointly with the construction of the upper end we would be making a mistake. We contemplated that in our bill. We have made ample provision for it, we think. When it comes into committee again we will look into it more closely. I think it is well guarded upon that point. We think that by the provisions for connections with the old Ontario railways at Wiarton, Owen Sound and Meaford, we will have secured for Ontario the full privileges of the lower connections, and its completion as early as the upper connection, or, at all events, that when the road on the north shore is built the railway on the peninsula will not be long delayed. These are the two objective points. By the construction of the North Shore line we have the settlement, and by the construction on the peninsula we have the connection. Both are important and both will be fully guarded by the bill before it receives its third reading.

I shall not weary the House any further. We look upon this as a forward movement, for movements for opening up the country are forward movements—even a colonization road is a forward movement. It is a large scheme, a scheme which means much to every man that looks into the future of Ontario; a scheme which costs us no money, which will give transportation and opportunities for settlement, which are now unproductive. We were fortunate in being able to bring down this bill this session, when there is a superabundance of money in the hands of capitalists, and when they are ready to invest their money in what appears to be—I do not say a speculation—but it is an enterprise—which promises well to them, and which must be received by the people in whose interests the money is expended as very gratifying. Perhaps we should guard ourselves against risking our freedom in the capitalists' hands, but we must have capital for a great enterprise of any kind.

This bill seems valuable for this. This seems to be our golden opportunity. We should not let it slip; at all events it should be through no fault of ours that the opportunity should be lost. I take a great pleasure in moving the second reading of this bill. (Ministerial applause.)

Mr. Whitney Concurs.

Mr. Whitney said—I beg to concur in the second reading of this bill. Without attempting to follow my hon. friend in the region which he traversed the other day I would look upon it rather from the standpoint of its desirability as a plain business proposition. It seems to me that this proposed railway will be a very desirable one if it can be carried out. Ordinarily, at any rate for some years past, the attitude taken by the Opposition with regard to railway grants has been somewhat different from that upon this occasion. As a rule, the Legislature has been asked to pronounce upon schemes which involved far greater responsibility upon the Legislature if granted than this, and we have complained always that we have not been furnished with proper data or any material from which to form judgment with regard to it. But as I have just intimated we are not in the same position on this occasion, because I think a person who is acquainted with the geography of the district referred to will be able to see at once the desirability of a railway such as this. Whether it will land us on the shores of the Pacific Ocean or of the Hudson Bay is another matter. If it does, well and good. Even if the proposition which my hon. friend referred to, an influx of English capital to be invested in pulp and other resources, even if it should result as some of his predictions have in the past there would be enough left to justify the Legislature of the Province in consenting to the passing of this act. I shall merely, now at this stage, mention one point which occurs to me as very important, namely, that the bill shall contain some provision before finally passed which will compel the company to construct the line on the mainland of this Province. I see no reason whatever why there should be any distinction between the two parts.

The bill was read a second time.

Other Business.

The House went into commitee on the bill to amend the Ontario Insurance Act. Attorney-General Gibson explained that one section of the bill extended the class of securities in which insurance companies might invest. They were allowed to invest in building society debentures and in terminating debentures of a large class of companies holding public franchises. He thought that these were comparatively safe investments, but the same could not be said of corporations which were exposed to the vicissitudes of trade. The bill was reported.

The bill to amend the Municipal Drainage Act was amended in Committee by striking out several sections respecting the liability for damages resulting from drainage works, as the question was at issue in cases now pending before the courts.

Mr. Thompson asked that his bill to amend the Municipal Drainage Act by providing that lands in ased in value by drainage and assessed on that account, should not be liable to increased assessment on the general rate, should be incorporated with the Government bill.

Hon. J. M. Gibson could not accept the principle. It was not in any different category from the ordinary case of a man's improving his own property and having his taxes raised on that account. The assessor, in making a general assessment could not have reference to local improvement works. If such an amendment in the law were to be made it should be as an amendment to the assessment law and not to the Drainage Act and should include other cases where the value of property had been increased by expenditures upon it.

The bill was reported.

The House went into committee on the bill to amend the statute law. The clause extending the Manhood Suffrage Registration Act to the towns of Sault Ste. Marie and Deseronto excited a somewhat lively debate, the Opposition contending that there was no special reason why these two towns should be singled out and other places equally important denied the same privilege. The Attorney-General explained that the reason these two towns were specified was because they were manufacturing places having a large floating population. The clause was allowed to stand over.

Hon. J. M. Gibson introduced an amendment to the bill providing that no sanitorium for the cure of consumption or tuberculosis shall be established within 150 yards of a dwelling without the consent of the owner and the local Board of Health under penalty of a fine of $25.

Some other amendments were introduced and the committee reported progress.

Hon. Mr. Stratton presented the report of the Public Accounts' Committee.

Col. Matheson complained of the late stage of the session at which the Public Accounts Committee were called together, and the non-attendance of Government members. He also urged that further details of expenditure should be given.

Hon. E. J. Davis explained that amounts paid for services were charged under the various departments in which these services were rendered.

Mr. Whitney urged that the Public Accounts' Committee was a partizan body instituted for the purpose of keeping from the people a knowledge of how their money was being expended.

Mr. Charlton said that the fact that no complaints had been made this session as to the management of the committee, proved that matters had gone along smoothly. The committee had done good work.

Mr. Graham said that Mr. Whitney, not being a member of the committee, had spoken without knowledge. No reasonable man looking over the public accounts could say that there was any difficulty in finding any detail of the expenditure.

Premier Ross said that the accounts were given in as full detail as possible. It could hardly be expected that the monthly pay sheets would be given in detail.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample. Its agreeable taste will surprise you.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity of the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages.

RETURNED FROM THE SOUTH.

Rev. D. O. Crossley and Mrs. Crossley Arrived Home on Wednesday.

Rev. D. O. Crossley, of Charlotte street church, and Mrs. Crossley, returned home on Wednesday evening after a stay of nearly three months in Southern California.

If Mr. and Mrs. Crossley had any misgivings as to the kindly feeling of the Charlotte street people towards them they were entirely dissipated by the cordial welcome extended them on the evening of their arrival, and again on Thursday evening.

On Wednesday evening they found the parsonage brilliantly lighted, a company of smiling faces to greet them, the pantry re-furnished with provisions, and an oyster supper in readiness, served by the Ladies' Aid Society, under the management of Mrs. Hamilton.

On Thursday evening in the Sunday school rooms, the choir also tendered a reception to the returned pastor and his wife, when nearly forty sat down to a beautiful spread of delicacies, at the conclusion of the choir practice. Short addresses of congratulation and welcome were given by Messrs. Davis, Main, Skitch, Mrs. Barrie and Miss Stephens.

Mr. Crossley on both occasions expressed the very high appreciation of himself and Mrs. Crossley of the very cordial welcome home given them, and expressed the hope that the same kind feeling might continue to exist to the very end of his pastorate.

HUNTER STREET NEAR POST OFFICE

BIOGRAPHY OF PETER LAING.

He was Well Known in Peterborough--Had Travelled Extensively.

The Pendleton Tribune, Oregon, contains the following biography of Mr. Peter Laing, who died there on March 22nd. It will be remembered that Mr. Laing visited Peterborough about a month ago and was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. R. Goodfellow, London Street. His many friends here will be grieved to learn of early demise. The Tribune says:

The death of Peter Laing at the home of our well known citizen, Robert Laing, of this city, on Friday, March 22, has occasioned the deepest grief to the members of his brother's family and a heavy shock of sorrow and disappointment to those who met this pleasant and intellectual gentleman during the two weeks preceding his death.

Mr. Laing arrived in Pendleton, on March 10, on a visit to his only surviving brother, whom he had not seen for 21 years. Though apparently unwell at the time of his arrival he very courageously held himself up for about a week, exchanging pleasant memories of the past with his brother, driving out over the rich wheat fields of the county and meeting many friends and acquaintances of his brother's family. He was confined to his bed with an attack of bilious fever which in a few days' time developed complications of a sub-acute rheumatic nature terminating his life and a long and useful social and business career.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. F. L. Forbes at the Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon and the body was interred in the Robert Laing family burial ground in Olney cemetery. The funeral was very largely attended by the many friends and acquaintances of the family.

Peter Laing was born in 1850 in the province of Ontario, Canada, his father having come in an early day to that place from Scotland. The family emigrated in 1869 to New Zealand where forty years of Mr. Laing's life have been spent. He has been engaged in the mercantile business for 25 years and has had the management of the Dunedin Importing Company, of Dunedin, N.Z., for the past 16 years.

He left New Zealand last July, making an extensive tour of Aaustralia and from there to Europe, by way of the Suez canal. He spent some time in visiting the principal cities of Europe, Paris Exposition and other places of interest, remainining in London four months on business connected with his New Zealand house. From London he came to New York and from there visited many of the American cities and his boyhood home near Toronto, Canada, and from Toronto, direct to Pendleton.

Mr. Lang was a brilliant conversationalist and an ardent advocate of the many reforms in government which have been inaugurated during the forty years of his residence in New Zealand. Himself a close observer and careful student of public matters, he had made himself thoroughly conversant with government ownership and control of public utilities, the Torrens land system and many other of the practical reforms in New Zealand government which are attracting such wide spread attention and comment on the American continent at the present time.

ENDEAVOUR CONVENTION.

The "Endeavour" Convention on Monday promises to be of intense interest and value. This is the tenth annual gathering of those interested in Young People's work in the various churches throughout the county, and comprises the Epworth League, the Baptist Union, and Y.P.S.C.E.

The programme is of the most practical and pleasing character. Among those taking part will be Rev. J. McP Scott, Toronto; Rev. A. W. Torrie, Norwood Rev. Robert Harkness, Kingston and an interesting talk from Rev. D. O. Crossley, regarding his impressions of Young People's work abroad.

The musical part of the programme will be of more than usual interest. Together with many pleasing numbers from local workers. Miss Myrtal Hendren, of Lakefield will sing in the afternoon, and Miss Godfrey at the evening session.

The local members of Leagues, Unions and Societies will not forget to supply refreshments for the social tea at 6 p.m.

The Convention will meet in St. Andrews church at 2 p.m., with social hour from 6 to 7.30 and the evening session will begin at 7.30.

Greetings from Associated Christian Workers will be a novel feature of this Convention.

GOUGH BROS.' EASTER WINDOW.

The fact that the great annual change in Nature is on, a special effort is being made in all lines of business to resurrect the newest, brightest and most captivating spring goods. The firm of Gough Bros. clothiers, always prominent with effective window displays, have put in a handsome Easter design which is attracting general attention. In the large centre plate glass window is erected a mammoth heart, trimmed in white, through the centre of which may be seen a prettily decorated cross twined round with smilax. Lilies and other decorations are filled in with excellent taste and skill, while the display of fashionable black dress suits and other highest grade garments is very effective. This artistic trim is another example of the handiwork of Mr. Merrill, the firm's window dresser.

Messrs. D. E. Hoxie & Co. announce to the ladies of Peterborough that they are prepared to clean, dye and curl ostrich feathers at moderate prices. Feathers made over in the latest styles. Black a specialty. Address, 100 Dublin St. 9w3-law

BASEBALL MEN ORGANIZE.

MR. H. R. H. KENNER IS ELECTED PRESIDENT

And R. A. W. Hay, Re-elected Secretary-Treasurer--Discussion Regarding Grounds.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Baseball Club was held in the parlours of the Oriental hotel, on Thursday evening, when organization for the coming year was effected, and the prospects for the future fully discussed. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. B. McKee, the president of the club, and amongst those present were: Messrs. R. A. W. Hay, Secretary-Treasurer; Manager Graham, H. R. H. Kenner, Joe Guerin, Will Grady, Jack Connors, Ed. Desautel, S. S. Moore, Wesley Edwards, R. Dunford, Jack McCabe, Gus Johnston, Tom Craig, E. S. Clarry, W. B. Rickey, M. Halpin, Tommy Henry, Ed. Dillon, W. Robinson, J. Angelsey, Billy Lynch, Jack Melrose, Bill Crowley and J. W. Sturgeon.

The president after a few remarks called for the election of officers, which resulted as follows:—

Patrons and Patronesses—Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton, Mr. James Kendry, M. P., and Mrs. Kendry, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McGill.

Hon. President—G. W. Hatton.
Hon. Vice-President—R. B McKee.
President—H. R. H. Kenner.
1st Vice-President—M. H. Halpin.
2nd Vice-President—W. Robinson.
Secretary-Treasurer—R. A. W. Hay.
Executive Committee—S. S. Moore, Ed. Desautel, Bruce Rickey, A. J. McClellan and E. S. Clarry.

Representatives to Midland Baseball League—Messrs. R. A. W. Hay and E. S. Clarry.

In the discussion that took place regarding grounds, the general opinion appeared to be that if the Riverside Grounds would be at all suitable it would be preferable to have them put into shape and make them the permanent home for the Club. The Secretary was instructed to communicate with the Secretary of the Lacrosse and Rugby Clubs, with a view of calling a joint meeting of the Executives of these Clubs, and taking united action regarding athletic grounds. In the meantime the Executive of the Baseball Club will gather all the information they can concerning same and report at the joint meeting.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the retiring President, Mr. R. B. McKee, to Mr. G. N. Graham for the use of his parlours, and to Mr. C. G. Graham for the successful banquet which he tendered to the Club last fall.

Messrs. Wesley Edwards and R. J. Sturgeon were present as representing the 37th Regiment.

FOR GOOD GUESSERS.

It's out in the ocean,
But not in the sea;
It's found in yourself,
But not found in me;
It's up in the moon,
But quite out of sight;
It's seen in the morn,
But not in the night.

It's out in the woods
Whenever it rains;
You can take it away
And still it remains;
It has no beginning,
Nor has it an end;
You never will guess it
I quite apprehend.

CHIN IN

To keep the chin in, means to keep it well drawn back horizontally. That causes, what physical culturists call, "a lifted chest." A lifted chest insures deep breathing, and, hence, pure blood and perfect circulation. TRY keeping your chin in, and see how your chest will stand out, giving to a woman a superb figure, and to a man a military bearing.

Most Colds are caused by checked circulation known by a chill or shiver. Dr. Humphreys' "77" starts the blood coursing through the veins until it reaches the extremities, when the feet warm up and the Cold or Grip is broken, while its tonicity sustains the flagging energies.

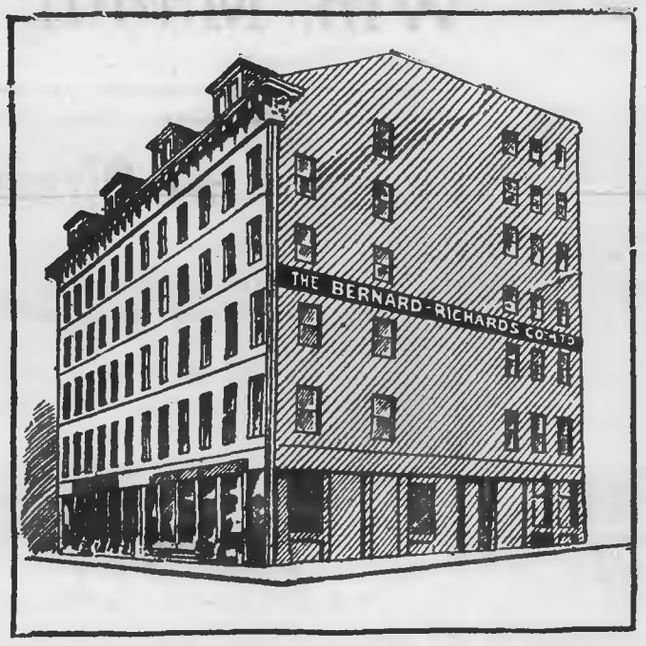
$10,000 REWARD

We will give $10,000 in cash to anyone, if they can prove that we have not paid the cash prizes to the parties whose names we advertise, or if they can prove that we ever knew or heard of these parties before they answered our advertisement. We offer this large cash reward in order to convince the public that they will always receive honest treatment from us.



Having outgrown the two buildings which we now occupy, we will remove June 1 to this handsome seven story granite block, which will be devoted entirely to our business. If we did not treat all our contestants fairly, do you think we would have achieved the greatest success made by any firm or individual in the 20th century.

The Chance of a Lifetime

Last October, November and December it will be remembered we advertised what was at that time considered one of the biggest contests ever published. The first prize was nothing more or less than an annuity of $300 a year for life. Mrs. L. L. Rich, of Eaton Rapids, Mich., was declared the winner and the following letter from Mrs. Rich speaks for itself:

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Feb. 19th, 1901.

President THE BERNARD-RICHARDS CO., 100 Broad St., Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—Your letter of the 16th, containing a check for $300, being the first instalment of a life annuity, was received last eve. A more surprised or happier woman I do not believe exists in this little town to-day. I will be sixty years of age the first day of next May. Have been a widow of a soldier of the rebellion for six years, with but a meagre income. Have been unable to obtain a pension, though I believe myself justly entitled to one. Now, my present income, with this annuity, makes me independent and very happy. And I heartily thank you and all connected with the "Brown Book of Boston" for my good luck.

Sincerely,
L. L. RICH.
P. O. Box 893.

Just stop and think for a moment what a grand prize this was. It means as long as Mrs. Rich lives she will receive from this firm every year on the first day of February $300 in cash.

Now, if you were so foolish as to ignore our previous advertisement, we certainly would advise you not to overlook this one, for without a doubt it is the opportunity of your life, as you have a chance to win Two Thousand Dollars in Cash. We want you to read this over very carefully, for it does not cost you one cent. One of these contests is, we believe, a very hard one, in fact, so hard that it cannot be solved in a minute nor an hour, but it is going to tax your brains and take considerable of your time. However, don't give it up for it can be solved and just think of the reward. We will give $2,000 in Cash for the correct answer.

A	N	C	A	C
N	V	O	T	I
T	C	T	N	A
O	I	R	O	N

In the block square to the left we have printed twenty jumbled letters which we want you to try and arrange. These jumbled letters, when properly arranged, will spell the names of three cities in the world, one city being located in China, one in the United States, and one in North America. In making the names of these three cities, the letters can only be used as many times as they appear, and no letter can be used which does not appear. When you have found the three correct names, you will have used every letter in the twenty as many times as it appears. If you cannot find the three correct names, but find only one, you will receive a special prize worth one dollar. Remember, if you find only one correct name, you will have the same chance to win the second $2000 cash prize mentioned below. We want to distinctly impress upon your mind that there is no trick or catch about the names of these three cities. We do not mention the sections in the respective countries in which these cities are located, nor do we request you to mention that fact in your answer; simply state the country in which the cities are located, not the State or section. We do not require that. If you send in your answer at once we are quite sure you will not be disappointed. Someone is going to win the money and it maybe you. Anyway, it does not cost you any money to try, and if you are a successful contestant there is only one easy condition which will take about one hour of your time, and which we will write you as soon as your answer is received. We would advise you to get out your geography, atlas or encyclopaedia, and look for the names of these three cities at once. The correct names are only known to the President of this Company and his private secretary.

The envelope containing the names of these three cities has been sealed and deposited with a leading safe deposit company in Boston, and will not be opened until the day after the contest closes. This, we believe, is the only honest way of conducting a contest, as every one will have an equal chance. In the event of more than one correct answer being received we will request five parties who have answered this advertisement to act as a committee to award the cash pro rata. They will be invited to come to Boston at our expense, and be our guests while in this city. We take this original method of ours of selecting a committee to show our good faith, as we want to treat all in the fairest manner possible. The committee will be selected solely upon their merits from among the contestants ten days before the contest closes, May 29, and in addition to their expenses being paid we will allow each one $5 a day for their time. You may be asked but not compelled to act as one of the committee. The committee who decided our contest on Feb. 1st, were Mrs. Anna C. Boyd, 1019 Terry Ave., Seattle, Washington; Miss Leila E. Cuthbert, 101 Major St., Toronto, Ontario, Canada; Mr. J. M. Conolly, Punta Gorda, Florida, and Mr. C. L. Baker, Bristol, R. I. In addition to the $2000 in cash we will give you an opportunity to win.

FIRST PRIZE $2000 IN CASH FREE!

SECOND PRIZE $1000 IN CASH FREE; THIRD PRIZE $350 IN CASH FREE; FOURTH PRIZE $200 IN CASH FREE.

FIFTY-EIGHT CASH PRIZES OF $50 EACH FREE WITHOUT LABOR OR EXPENSE.

We are going to give to someone who has entered this contest, and who complies with our easy conditions, an opportunity to win and secure from us, without any labor or expense on their part, Two Thousand Dollars in cash. We mean just what we say. If you are the lucky one, and we hope you are, for some one will get it, we will send the winner Two Thousand Dollars in cash. Now, in addition to the cash prizes already mentioned we are going to give away a Second Prize of $1000, a Third Prize of $350, a Fourth Prize of $200 and Fifty-eight Cash Prizes of $50 each in the following manner, and that is we will give to one party residing in each State and Territory of the United States and in each Province of the Dominion of Canada a Cash Prize of $50 each. You have an opportunity to win and secure from us without any labor or one cent of expense on your part, any of the above mentioned cash prizes. There is positively no deception, and as for trickery how can there be when the committee is selected from the contestants, and you yourself might be chosen to decide who the winners are. Do not throw this advertisement aside and say, Oh, pshaw, I have answered puzzles before and got nothing for it, for if you do you will regret it as long as you live, someone will win the money and it may be you; no one can tell. Anyway, it does not cost you one cent, as we do not want any money from you. Are the prizes worth trying for? We think they are, for $2000 in cash will be the means of building you either a pretty little home, or establish you in a comfortable paying business.

Do you know of any firm in the world who have made such liberal offers in such a fair manner? Of course you have no assurance except our word that we are financially able to carry out the promises we make. If you have the least doubt we would be pleased to have you get a special report from either Bradstreet's or Mutual Agencies, our bankers in Boston, or better still, write to the prize winners whose names we publish above. We are a responsible company with a paid up capital of $100,000, composed of well known business men, giving employment to upwards of 160 people, and our sole object in giving away such large cash prizes (something never heard of before) is to advertise our business; and we will leave no stone unturned to accomplish, by honest methods only, our object. Everyone entering this contest will receive honest treatment, and you will have the same chance whether you live in California, Canada or Massachusetts; distance positively makes no difference.

When you have carefully arranged the Jumbled Letters into the three names which you think are right, send your answer to us at once and enclose a stamp for reply. In a few days you will receive an answer telling you whether you are a successful contestant. We will also send you full particulars regarding our other contest whereby you can win for one moment's thought a large cash prize without labor or expense on your part. Do not delay, as this advertisement will not appear in this publication again. Address us this way:

VALLEYFIELD STRIKE.

Mr. Monk's Charge Against Deputy Minister King.

MONTREAL TOLL ROAD TRUST.

Mr. Corby Resigns for West Hastings—Introduction of a New Member—The Case of Lieut.-Col. Van Wagner—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Tribute to the Fairness and Ability of Mr. King.

Ottawa, April 4.—Although many of the members had gone to their homes for Easter, and it was private members' day, yesterday afternoon's sitting proved one of the most interesting of the session. Mr. Monk brought up the position of the Montreal toll roads trust, and in the discussion a state of affairs was revealed that reminded some of the Ontario members of the conditions of a by-gone age. The trust are unable to keep the roads in proper condition, yet they spend $13,000 a year in maintaining tollgates, and it is now desired to have their indebtedness to the Dominion Government written off. Mr. Monk also charged Mr. King, Deputy Minister of Labor, with political interference during the Valleyfield strike. Mr. King was vigorously defended by the Premier, the acting Minister of Labor, Mr. Tarte, and the labor members of the House. Mr. Monk proposed to bring forward affidavits in support of his charges. Mr. German, in moving for a return, made sweeping charges in relation to water power on the Welland canal.

At the commencement of the sitting, Mr. Speaker announced that he had received the resignation of Mr. Harry Corby as member for West Hastings.

Mr. D. H. McKinnon, Liberal member for East Queen's, P.E.I., returned at the late bye-election, was introduced by Sir Louis Davies, and Mr. Hughes of King's, P. E. I.

Replying to a question by Mr. E. F. Clarke as to the cause of the continued delay in issuing forms of application for the long service decoration and medal to the militia, the Minister of Militia said: "There has not been continued delay. The regulations to govern the issue of long-service medals are in the general orders for March 1. These general orders were approved by His Excellency in Council March 13, and a certified copy was received on March 20, 1901. Steps are being taken to have the forms printed.

Lieut.-Col. Hughes was informed that Lieut.-Col. Van Wagner's name was placed on the retired list, and not on the reserve of officers, because he declined to send in his resignation when requested to do so.

Mr. Monk, on a motion for papers, discussed the Montreal Turnpike Trust, an organization chartered by legislation of half a century ago.

The Valleyfield Strike.

On motion for papers in connection with the Valleyfield strike, Mr. Monk said he traced its inception to the organization of a Liberal union, which all workingmen were asked to join, with the promise of better wages being secured for them. It was because of three men who conducted this union that the strike of last autumn was precipitated, in connection with which the militia was called out. Furthermore, Mr. Monk said, when Mr. King, the Deputy Minister of Labor, went down to act as intermediary, he met leading people of the town, and assured them the success of the mission depended upon the town supporting Mr. Loy, the Liberal candidate, in the election. He would produce affidavits to this effect. Mr. Monk, in conclusion, said that as a result of this peculiar condition of affairs, Mr. Bergeron, instead of the majority of 109, which he had in Valleyfield in 1896, had a minority of 316 in that town at the last election.

Mr. Tarte pointed out that against a population of 5,000 or 6,000 in 1896, the city of Valleyfield in 1900 had a population of 12,000. He attributed the strike to the low wages received by the men, and justified the course of the local authorities in declining to read the Riot Act. The blame for the trouble rested with the Cotton Company. The change in the vote was only what had occurred elsewhere throughout Quebec. If Mr. Monk could produce evidence that Mr. King, Deputy Minister of Labor, had canvassed for Mr. Loy, the Liberal candidate, the House would unite in condemning him.

Mr. Puttee hoped the papers would be brought down, so it could be seen if politics was at the bottom of the trouble. The settlement made by Mr. King had not, he said, proved satisfactory.

Hon. James Satherland defended the Deputy Minister of Labor.

Mr. Logan praised the result of the conciliation bill and the work done by Mr. King.

Dr. Borden pointed out that under the automatic operation of the act, the militia were bound to turn out on the requisition of the civil authorities. He promised the early production of the papers.

Mr. Monk spoke briefly in closing, stating that he would produce affidavits as to the conduct alleged against Mr. King.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke of the great ability and fairness with which Mr. King had discharged his duties in arranging settlements in widely-separated parts of Canada. "Mr. King," he added, "has everywhere discharged his duties in a most satisfactory manner, and has been particularly careful not to do anything that would cause any suspicions about politics. This is the first insinuation against him. Mr. Monk would have followed a better course towards himself and towards Mr King if he had not at this moment assailed the character of a man who is not here to defend himself."

Mr. Ralph Smith argued that the correspondence should be brought down, because the terms of settlement effected by Mr. King had not been carried out by the employers. He had not heard of any political charge against Mr. King. He said it was too easy under the law to have the militia called out, and it was the duty of the Government to have the law altered.

Some further papers were moved for and at 6 o'clock the House adjourned till Tuesday afternoon.

Boils keep coming

Boils are the product of poor or watery blood carrying impure matter. Boils also indicate poor circulation, as the matter or pus, as it is usually called, clogs up the circulation, causing the accumulation of this poisonous matter, which must be removed from the congested parts. At the same time the blood should be enriched and purified by the use of BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. The best proof we can give you is the testimony of others. Here are some; others will be supplied on application to the proprietors.

FLAT LANDS, Restigouche Co., N.B.
THE T. MILBURN CO., Toronto.
Gentlemen,—A short time ago my blood got out of order so much that numerous boils appeared on my face and neck, and hearing BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS highly recommended as an excellent blood purifier, I decided to give it a trial. After using the first bottle the boils gradually started to disappear, and before I had taken the second bottle I was completely cured.
Yours truly, GEO. CALDWELL.

Have you Boils? If so, read the following letter from Mr. William Thompson, of McNeill's Mills, P.E.I.

THE T. MILBURN CO., Toronto.
Gentlemen,—Some time ago my blood got out of order and before long I had boils breaking out all over me. They appeared on my legs, neck and arms, and were so painful that I could not possibly sleep at nights. I tried many remedies, but without any effect, until a friend advised me to take BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. Before I had quite used two bottles I was entirely cured, and I cannot honestly say too much in favor of B.B.B. as a purifier.

ALFRED HAMMOND, Townsend Centre, Ont.: "I have used two bottles of B.B.B. and find it a great remedy for boils. I used it two years ago and have not been troubled since. I can recommend it highly."

MISS MAUD SLATER, West LaHave Ferry, N.S.: "In the spring I was troubled with boils, one coming after another. My blood was bad and I was miserable when I began taking B. B. B., but before taking many bottles was completely cured."

Dec. 26, 1900.
MRS. G. MOORE of Hamilton says: "I cannot praise B.B.B. enough for impure blood, boils and sores. It is a perfect cure for boils. I have used it for twelve years in my family and cannot praise it too highly."

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

are curing people of Nervousness, Sleeplessness, After Effects of La Grippe, Faint and Dizzy Spells, Shortness of Breath, Nervous Prostration, Anæmia, General Debility and all troubles arising from a run down system. Absolute proof that they cure the above complaints. Here are some, others will be furnished on application to The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. Theodore Smith, of Wards Brook, N.S., writes us on Jan. 10, 1901, that she was troubled with sharp pains in the region of her heart, which would leave her so weak she could not sit up. She took one box of Milburn's Pills and the trouble has all disappeared.

Mrs. Johnston, of Coteau, N.W.T., writes on Dec. 11, 1900, that she was so bad with nervousness that she could not sleep and felt tired and listless all the time. She took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and can sleep as soundly as ever, and all nervousness has disappeared, and she feels like a different person.

Mrs. Kate Tryfegle, of Belmore, writes on Nov. 8, 1900: I was greatly troubled with nervous debility, weak spells, poor appetite and skip beats of the heart. I procured a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and since taking them I have increased in flesh, have a better color, nervousness all gone, and have a good appetite. I have recommended them to others and they all say they are the best pills they have ever taken.

THE RISEN CHRIST.

CHRIST is risen! Let the swell
Of the holy Easter bell
All the wond'rous story tell:

How the Man of Nazareth,
With his faint expiring breath,
Gained the vict'ry over death;

How within the tomb's embrace
Once reposed the sainted face
Of the Saviour of the race

On that faroff Eastertide;
How the grave was opened wide,
And he lived who had but died.

Thus the Holy Word was done,
And the triumph had been won
By the Father through the Son.

Teach me, Lord, to love thy way
Ere my feet have learned to stray
Or my lips forget to pray.

Now, O Lord, so many rise,
Filled with earthly vanities,
Who thy gentle truths despise!

But thy bread is fair to eat,
And the lowly path is sweet,
Trodden by thy sacred feet.

Sound, O bell, your dulcet ring!
Lift, O child, your voice and sing,
For again has come the King.

And, fair lily, lift your head;
All your sweetest incense shed;
Christ is risen from the dead!

DAINTY EASTER TRIFLES.

Here Are Some Timely Hints For the Givers of Gifts.

THE real ostrich's egg makes as attractive an Easter boutonniere as any one need ask. Some that are on exhibition this week are genuinely Turkish in their decoration and are singularly handsome apart from their use. In some cases the top is chipped off and a silk bag pasted about the opening, but in others they are divided and hinged. Either method makes a commodious receptacle for sweets and one that is evidently in keeping with the traditions of the day.

A gift of flowers is a reminder of the happy Easters of long ago. There is the white azalea, like a small tree covered with snowflakes; the calla and ascension lilies, or, if they are preferred, the many varieties of palms or ferns. These plants may be placed in fancy jardinieres, or a fancy cover may be made of white or colored crape tissue paper and with a broad band of satin ribbon to match the paper. Cut flowers give a deal of pleasure while they last, white roses mingled with sprays of the feathery maidenhair fern, the sweet scented Roman hyacinth or the always dear violets, single or double, with their own leaves. The Easter bouquet should be all white, but a little lavender or pale pink is sometimes permissible. Broad streamers of satin ribbon are fastened to bouquets and one's card attached.

Prayer book sets, the small anchor and cross in silver or mother of pearl, make very appropriate presents.

Sofa pillows in rich shades of green or red velvet or in the dainty pompadour silks are always liked.

The butterfly, being emblematic of the soul, makes a pillow with figures of these winged creatures an appropriate Easter remembrance. The foundation of the pillow is made of blue upholstery satin in an æsthetic shade, with numberless butterflies in bright colors, some shown as if flitting here and there, an occasional one resting on field grasses that grow up from the lower edge of the pillow. The reverse side of the pillow has the monogram of the recipient embroidered in large size in the shades of brown that run into a golden yellow, the letters all being well stuffed. The ruffle that runs around the four sides of the pillow is of double faced satin ribbon five inches wide, matching in color the satin used in the pillow. The edge is worked in butterflies done in buttonhole stitch with heavy silk, the edges being cut out so as to make a butterfly wing a scallop.

The society girl who has been so generously provided through the winter with violets from a certain young man may show him a courtesy on Easter morning by sending him a violet sofa pillow. This is of white bengaline, over which has been thrown a handful of violets, with here and there an occasional stray leaf of green, all of which are embroidered true to nature. The four sides of the pillow have a twist of green stems and artificial violets running along the edge.

The Easter card pure and simple is not as popular as it was some years ago. Still, there are cards which make very amusing souvenirs. On them are downy chicks nestling in old straw hats, others driving an eggshell tandem, rabbits and roosters performing the same acts and long legged ostriches gravely surveying the hidden possibilities of a basket of china eggs. All these things, nicely mounted, have taken the place of the ordinary Easter card.

Nerve Repairing and Strengthening!

SYSTEM CLEANSING AND BLOOD PURIFYING.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Is The Great Spring Medicine for Building Up Shattered Strength.

ITS CLAIM: "MAKES SICK PEOPLE WELL"

Fully Supported by Thousands of Testimonials From Our Best People.

Paine's Celery Compound makes sick people well.

This sweeping but true claim made years ago when Professor Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth College, gave to the world his famous discovery, is now more strongly supported than ever before. Testimonials coming in daily from all the provinces of the Dominion, go to prove that no other remedy is so generally used for the cure of the common ailments of life, and that no other has so faithfully done its work of life-saving in the past.

Paine's Celery Compound, the remarkable medical achievement of the last century, and prescribed by our ablest doctors in spring time, is the great banisher of all diseases arising from impaired nerves and impure blood, and sensible people insist upon having it, even when profit loving dealers recommend the something just as good. People call for Paine's Celery Compound, knowing well that in spring time it repairs their shattered strength and weak nerves, and fits them for the battle or life. Mrs. E. Trinder, Simcoe, Ont., says:

"For a long time dyspepsia and indigestion made life miserable to me. I was so bad that I could not go out of the house, do housework or get regular sleep. I bought six bottles of your Paine's Celery Compound from our druggist, and commenced to use it regularly. I was obliged to consult a doctor about another trouble, and he advised me to continue with your compound, and if I had not been using it he would have recommended it to me. Paine's Celery Compound has done wonders for me; it has banished dyspepsia, indigestion and sleeplessness, and gives a new life. I can now eat, sleep, do all my work, and walk over half a mile to church in any weather."

AN EASTER LUNCHEON

EASTER is one of the highest feast days in the church calendar. It is a day of rejoicing among all mankind. Even the agnostic, despite his views, feels its influence. It more than any other period seems to be the birth of spring, the unfolding of nature's sweetest secrets, the shrubs and flowers. It is a day when hospitality is supreme. Spring flowers make a most lovely table embellishment. Yellow blooms should be employed—yellow, the glory of the sun, the emblem of life—with their own crisp foliage. Yellow can also be placed under a white lace centerpiece. If madam is the possessor of gold and white glass or gold and white china, it should be used. Yellow bonbons are obtainable, and candied quarters of oranges are especially appropriate in color as well as delicious in flavor. It should not be forgotten, however, even on this feast day that it is spring and that consequently the viands to be served should be dainty. Here is an acceptable and seasonable menu for Easter luncheon:

Oysters on Half Shell.
Anchovy Canapes.
Fresh Sliced Cucumbers.
Chicken Breast with New Cauliflower.
Easter Salad.
Salpicon of Fruit.
Black Coffee.

Chicken Breasts.—Have the butcher remove the fillets from the chickens and lard them. Under each one lay a slice of fat pork in the bottom of the braising pan. Dredge well with salt and pepper. Cover the pan and set on the stove. Cook slowly half an hour, then add one pint of white stock. Cover the pan and place in a moderate oven for one hour, basting frequently with the gravy. Do not let the gravy cook away. Take the fillets, drain them, cover with soft butter and dredge lightly with flour. Broil till a light brown. Boil the cauliflower and place it in the center of a platter and place the chicken breasts about it and then small link sausages, fried. Over the cauliflower pour a white sauce and on the breasts a sauce made of the stock in which they were cooked. Skim all the fat from it and cook a tablespoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of flour together until a light brown; then add the gravy and boil up once and strain. Select new potatoes of even size, boil and serve with a little melted butter seasoned with salt and pepper; sprinkle over them finely chopped parsley.

Easter Salad.—Select the crisp, fine leaves of endive and form into a fluffy green nest in the salad bowl. Mash two cakes of Neufchatel cheese and soften with a teaspoonful of olive oil, mold into egg shaped balls and place within the green. Pass a French dressing with this salad.

Salpicon of fruit served with whipped cream is universally liked. Mix lightly equal portions of orange pulp, bananas cut into half inch dice, pineapple and a few strawberries. Add sugar and sherry or liquor. Let it stand an hour on the ice before serving. Then place in a glass or silver bowl and over the top pour sweetened whipped cream. Garnish thickly with strawberries.

What the Red Azalea Said.

It seemed to her that she had never received so many flowers at Easter time. There were Easter lillies, a cluster or two of violets, lilies of the valley, and all manner of flowers breathing Easter messages. There was even a red azalea, which had been sent by the young man who was always doing something original and thought that all ideas of the proprieties would die with him.

"Azalea!" said the girl, looking at the glaring redness wrapped up in a bent cylinder of pink tissue paper. "I wonder whatever possessed him to send that!"

"What are you going to do with all those flowers?" asked the girl's aunt, who was interested in charities. "Don't you think it'll be a splendid scheme to send them to the flower mission?"

"Well," replied the girl, "I don't know but that it would. How would it do to send the azalea first of all. I suppose that as a matter of fact I ought to place it in the parlor window on a stand and loop up the curtains on either side."

"I'm afraid," sighed the elderly woman, who had little time to think about herself, "that you are rather hypercritical."

There was a spot where the red azalea bush, with its covering of pink, brought joy and sunshine. It was in the place where physicians move from cot to cot, and the jangle of the ambulance bell was heard every few minutes in the street below. It was not often that flowers came into that room to speak to those whose heads were lying upon the white pillows. Yet there was a message which the red azalea brought to many. I do not remember that in the language of flowers the azalea means anything at all. In a sheaf of pink tissue paper, with a red ribbon bound around it, there is little of eloquence. Yet in that hospital ward the red azalea was not dumb.—New York Herald.

The French peasants believe that on Easter morning, at the sound of the rejoicing bells, fair angels with azure wings were supposed to descend from heaven bearing baskets of eggs, which they deposited in the houses of the faithful. Sometimes, however, it happened that the evil one slipped in an accursed egg among those which came from heaven.

The hot cross buns at Easter are the cakes which the pagan Saxons ate in honor of their goddess Eastre and from which the Christian clergy sought to expel the paganism by marking them with the cross.

He Barred Newcastle.

When Edward VII as Prince of Wales visited America in 1860, Canada went wild over him, and in Detroit and Chicago the crowds were so dense that the party could scarcely reach their hotel. So many were the receptions, dinners and other social functions in which the prince participated that he finally broke down through sheer fatigue and overexcitement. The Duke of Newcastle, who was the prince's companion, decided, therefore, to stop off on their way to St. Louis at Dwight Station, a quiet village famous for its shooting. The prince brought down a bag of 14 brace of quail and four rabbits. But the pleasure of the day was marred by the following incident:

As the royal party approached a farmhouse an unmistakably British settler appeared at the door and invited every one except the Duke of Newcastle to enter.

"Not you, Newcastle!" he shouted. "I have been a tenant of yours and have sworn that you shall never set a foot on my land."

Accordingly the party passed on, and the farmer, though revenged on his old landlord, had to forego the honor of entertaining royalty under his roof.

DIED IN THE WEST.

Mr. Adam C. Thompson, Formerly of Otonabee.

The death occurred in Souris, Manitoba, on March 28th, of Adam C. Thompson, formerly of Otonabee. Deceased was the youngest son of the late Charles Thompson, of Otonabee, and moved to Manitoba just two years ago. He was married to Miss Fowler, daughter of Mr John Fowler, who resides near Peterborough, who together with eight children, are left to mourn his demise.

Besides these to mourn his loss, he has six brothers, Thomas, of Hiawatha; Walter, of Keene; Andrew, of Thornbury; George, John and Charles, of California.

CONQUERED

Back Ache and Kidney Disease Conquered by Dr. Arnold.

Since Pasteur perfected his process of inoculation to prevent hydrophobia following the bite of mad dogs, or since the success of the new anti-toxin treatment of diphtheria was proved, the medical world has not witnessed so great a triumph as that which Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills have won—and deservedly won. This is because they act in the only way that can result in curing disease. They simply kill the germs or microbes that cause the disease, and the counteract or sweep out of the system they poisonous products (toxins) of the germs. Now, as all diseases are caused by germs, it stands to reason that if the germs be killed the disease must come to an end.

J. Jones, 237 Elizabeth Street, Toronto, says: "I have kidney disease and bladder weakness for a long time. Suffered from gravel also. Took all the advertised 'sure cures,' but all failed. I tried Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills, which have made me sound and well in every way."

E. J. Howell, 83 St. David St., Toronto, says: "I endured the most intense agony from Bright's Disease during two years. All the medicine I took failed to help me, until I started taking Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills. They effected a thorough and permanent cure."

Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills, at all druggists, 25 a small box, 75c a large box, or sent on receipt of price by The Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Canada Life Building, 44 King Street, West, Toronto.

For sale by J. Nugent, Peterborough.

Mrs. John Cunningham, of town, is a neice of the deceased.

Mr. John A. Fowler, father of Mrs. Thompson, left last Friday for Manitoba, but did not arrive in time for the funeral.

The Souris Plaindealer has the following to say concerning Mr. Thompson's death:

Mr. Adam C. Thompson, who has been confined to his bed this last few weeks with an attack of pneumonia, succumbed yesterday morning at 4 a.m. Mr. Thompson kept up his spirits well until last Thursday when the disease developed into double pleurisy. From that day little hopes were entertained for his recovery and a sudden decline brought him to an end on Thursday morning.

Mr. Thompson is a well-known and respected citizen of our district and we regret to have to record his death in the prime of his manhood, being 41 years old last January. A wife and eight children remain to mourn his loss. The funeral leaves his late residence, 14-7-21, at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday for Glenwood Cemetery.

DEATH OF AN OLD SETTLER.

Demise of Mrs. Margaret Smyth, of Frazerville, aged 88 years.

In the death of Margaret Smyth, of Cavan, which occurred on Thursday at eight o'clock, the township loses one of its oldest settlers. Deceased's maiden name was Margaret Little, daughter of the late Christopher Little, of Fermanah, Ireland, and was born there in the year 1813. She was, therefore, in the 88th year of her age. She came to this country in 1819, when but six years of age, settling in the township of Hamilton, and when 18 years of age she married her late husband and moved to lot 23, concession eight, Cavan, near Frazerville, where she has resided ever since, leading an active Christian life. Her husband pre-deceased her about 24 years, and she has continued to reside on the homestead with her son, Mr. John Smyth. Three sons and one daughter survive her. These are Rev. William, of St. Catherines, and Thomas and John, of Cavan, and Mrs. Henry Nethercut, of Frazerville. Deceased was an ardent member of the Methodist church and was widely known as one of Cavan's oldest settlers. She was in excellent health and maintained all her faculties up until Saturday morning, when she was taken ill.

The funeral took place this morning to the Baptist burying ground, Frazerville.

WAS NO MEETING.

The Midland Baseball League for the Season 1901.

The meeting that was called for yesterday afternoon in Peterborough, for the purpose of organizing the Midland Baseball League for the season 1901, did not materialize. There were only present two representatives from Port Hope, besides the Peterborough representatives. As a result nothing definite is known as to the probability of the league being revived. It is believed that Lindsay does not intend reorganizing. It is thought that the Midland League will be composed of only four clubs, in any event, this season.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

GOLF.

A general meeting of the Peterborough Golf Club was held on Thursday evening with the President, Mr. Peter Campbell, in the chair. It was decided to agree to the proposition of the ladies to the effect that the links be reserved for the men players on Tuesdays after 3 p.m. and on Saturday afternoons. A classification of the players desirous of competing in foreign matchers was decided upon. Those admitted to the first class will have to make a record of 95 for the course, and the second class men will have to be able to do the 18 holes in 105. Other players will not be classified. The matter of selecting a caretaker was left in the hands of the Executive Committee.

Several pairs of enthusiasts were seen enjoying their first game on the links this year yesterday. The ground is soggy in the low spots yet.

What is a Flying Bunker? Ask the unclassified.

LACROSSE.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Lacrosse Association, held in Toronto yesterday, Mr. Peter McMillan was elected president. For the first time in many years Peterborough was unrepresented.

BE YOUR OWN MILLINEY.

A Costly Easter Egg.

In France more than any other country is Easter a season of giftmaking. The egg is the ruling emblem, almost as endless in device and costliness as in form. There is one such gift egg on record that was of white enamel and had doors which when opened revealed Easter gospels engraved on all its walls, and for the yolk there was a tiny music box which played 12 tunes. The cost of this trifle was $12,000.—Philadelphia Times.

HOW TO DECORATE THE HOME

Giving the house a new dress for Easter is one of the pretty customs which grow in popularity every year. And this year it will be as general as decorating for Christmas or New Year's.

All the art stores have Easter designs for rooms, and the china and glass stores are arranging miniature dinner tables for the admiration of those who may be on the lookout for something quite new for Easter. Those who can afford the luxury of refurnishing are indulging in that prettiest of all household things, a Japanese room. The model for these rooms is taken from Japanese pictures and from the ideas of those who have visited the Land of Flowers at this season as well.

EMBLEMS OF PURITY.

as from the Japanese dealers who are arranging their shop windows into a semblance of what the wily, almond eyed ones term "Easter in Japan."

The materials for such a room, if one is willing to indulge in it lavishly, are a bushel of quince blossoms, another bushel of apple blossoms, some oriental prayer rugs, a Japanese fire stool, two or three Japanese chairs and tables, a square umbrella as big as the room to form a canopy, some Japanese hangings, a Japanese tea set, some tall Japanese vases and a big Japanese doll to make one feel at home.

In the hands of an artistic woman a room furnished with these things may be made a lovely dream of color. Even an inartistic woman could not make it look bad. The Japanese have such beautiful color schemes that just to look upon their creations is a joy.

For those who are fond of laying in a stock of spring plants at Easter time there are very effective possibilities in the way of room decorations. One of these is the palmroom. And this is such a very lasting thing that it will be sure to be beautiful all the spring months until the family exodus into the country. So never mind if the outlay staggers you a little at first glance.

The background for the palmroom must be a palm. And when you get it you can place it in a corner, and it will be a handsome beginning. For a $10 bill you can get one big enough to reach almost up to the ceiling and take the place of the dozen pots of little things which you were going to get for the spring conservatory. But for half the sum you can get a palm big enough to give dignity to the palmroom. Next, if you have a tall lamp set it in a big jardiniere and fill the jardiniere with ferns. They will grow well in the heat and will be wonderfully effective. Small pots of ferns, palms and rubber plants complete the greenness of the Easter greenroom.

Set a tall vase of them also at the foot of grandfather's clock, and be as generous in their distribution as you please. Even grandfather himself, strict Puritan though he may have been, would relax into a gratified smile on Easter day at the sight of his old timepiece.

Ribbons are to play an important part in the Easter trimmings.

Easter baskets are wound with ribbons so that the texture of the basket is not seen at all. A very ordinary basket of striped straw may have its handle and rim wound with pink ribbons and then be filled with pink hyacinths until it is a study in pink loveliness. The basket should be as shallow as possible, so that a few sprays of moss arranged under the ribbon wound rim will entirely cover it.

Trimming the house for Easter is such a pretty custom that one feels like bowing to it and conforming to it in all possible ways. Happily the spring novelties in Easter decorations are so numerous, so varied and so cheap that all may indulge in them to a certain extent, even though the Easter bonnet and the Easter wrap be too dear for present purchasing.

The West Hastings Election.

Ottawa, April 6.—A writ will be issued at once for an election in West Hastings. The resignation of Mr. Corby has at last been received by the Speaker, who has issued his warrant for an election. Mr. Corby was first elected in 1888 and has been elected at every general election since that time.

Catarrh.

Called an American disease, is cured by an American medicine, originated and prepared in the most catarrhal of American countries.

That medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It cures radically and permanently, in that it removes the cause, cleansing the blood of scrofulous and all other impurities. It overcomes all the effects of catarrh, too, and builds up the whole system.

AFFAIRS AT PEKIN.

Important Meeting of the Allied Generals on Sunday.

RUSSIA TO WAR WITH CHINA.

A Message Which Foreshadows Forcible Resistance Against Russian Aggression by the Japs—Said That Britain and Japan Influenced China to Refuse to Sign the Manchurian Treaty.

Pekin, April 6.—The meeting of the generals of the allied troops and Count von Waldersee this morning was of great interest and importance, though it was known beforehand what had practically been decided upon; still the meeting showed conclusively the attitude of the different powers. The only dissentients from the plan adopted were Gen. Chaffee, the American commander, and Gen. Wogack, commander of the Russian forces, who both thought that the number of points to be occupied was excessive, and also that the number of troops was too great. The other generals were unanimous in the opinion that nine points on the railroad should be occupied between Pekin and Shan Hai Kwan, with 6,000 men, exclusive of the 2,000 in Pekin. This will be a permanent measure, while the reduction of the present forces will be made according to the wishes of the respective governments. The railway between Pao Ting Fu and Pekin will not be guarded, it not being a line of communication with the sea. General Chaffee suggested that it was only necessary to occupy two points between Yang Tsun and Tien Tsin and three between Tien Tsin and Shan Hai Kwan, with a total of 2,000 men, exclusive of those at Pekin. It was not necessary, he said, to have soldiers at Tong Ku, as naval vessels were always there, and also because the reliefs would always be passing backward and forward.

General Wogack thought 1,000 men would be sufficient for occupying Tien Tsin and Shan Hai Kwan.

The views of the majority will be presented to the Ministers for immediate action, as the generals feel that the acceptance by the Chinese of these terms, including the total destruction of the forts at Shan Hai Kwan, Peitang, Pavu, Tong Ku, Pei Tsan and Yang Taun will mean complete submission, when arrangements ought to be made for the withdrawal of a majority of the forces from China.

MEANS WAR.

A Message Received at Washington Which Foreshadows Early Strife Between Russia and Japan.

New York, April 8.—The Journal prints the following, dated Pekin, April 6, 11 a.m.:

"Secretary of State, Washington:

"Russian Minister refuses to receive official communications from Chinese Commissioners. Squiers."

The significance of the despatch from the United States Acting Minister at Pekin is that it foreshadows a declaration of war against China. Earlier despatches announce a battle on the Manchurian frontier between several Siberian regiments and a Chinese force.

China's action in refusing Russian damands was taken at the instance of Japan and England. Despatches from Yokohama yesterday say that Japan's army and fleet are held in readiness to assist the Chinese in driving the Russians out of Manchuria.

The general belief is that war between Japan and Russia is now a matter of but a few days.

Another Report of the Fight.

Berlin, April 6.—A despatch to The Cologne Gazette from St. Petersburg says hard fighting is reported to have occurred between the First, Second and Third East Siberian Rifle Regiments and several thousands of Chinese troops, between Kobantsy and Sin Min Ting. The Russians lost a captain and several men killed, and a lieutenant-colonel, several other officers and many men were wounded.

The Chinese lost heavily and retreated, with the Russians pursuing them.

The date of the engagement is not mentioned.

Washington Is Perplexed.

Washington, April 8.—The Administration is perplexed over a cable despatch received Saturday from Mr. Squiers, now in charge of the American Legation in Pekin.

RUSSIA ISSUES A NOTE.

Her Diplomatic Agents Instructed to State the Case.

London, April 8.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says it is learned from a trustworthy source that Russia's diplomatic agents abroad were instructed on April 3 to communicate to the Governments to which they are accredited an identical note, in the same terms as that presented by Count Cassini (the Russian Minister at Washington) to Secretary Hay.

Text of the Note.

The text of the identical note, as it appears from news which has come to hand, is as follows:

That in the present circumstances a special agreement in the Manchuria affair, instead of being an open testimonial of friendly sentiments on the part of Russia toward China, might entail various difficulties for the neighboring state. Russia does not in any way insist upon the conclusion of such agreement, and even abandons all possible negotiations in this matter. Inasmuch as the Imperial Government ever adheres faithfully to its original and oft-repeated program, it will quietly await the further course of events.

Japan Refused Neutrality Proposal.

London, April 8.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Sunday Special says it has transpired that Russia recently proposed to Japan the neutralization of Corea, but that Japan refused the proposition, as insufficiently safeguarding her interests.

Claims to Be Filed May 1.

London, April 8.—Official notice has been issued that claims for indemnities from China must be filed with the British Minister at Pekin, Sir Ernest Mason Satow, before May 1.

Earl Li Is Hopeful.

Pekin, April 7.—Mr. Rockhill, United States Special Commissioner in Pekin, had a long interview yesterday with Li Hung Chang, who satisfied him that there is not likely to be any further important hitch in the negotiations for a settlement between China and the powers.

The Ministers generally fear that the presence in Pekin of a considerable force of troops of various nationalities might be a source of international friction. They are not entirely pleased with the military proposals of the generals, as they fail to see the necessity for the demolition of all forts.

Everything Looks Warlike.

London, April 8.—The Yokohama correspondent of The Daily Mail, wiring yesterday and dealing with the attitude of Japan towards Russia's Chinese policy, says: "Shipping companies have been ordered to hold their vessels in readiness for transport service. Cruisers on the reserve list have been commissioned for active service. All leave has been recalled and officers of the first reserve have been warned for service. There is much popular excitement.

Yang Yu Disabled at St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, April 7.—The apoplectic seizure of Yang Yu, Chinese Minister to Russia, after his recent interview with Count Lamsdorff, the Russian Foreign Minister, will probably necessitate his withdrawal from the post. Negotiations with Chinese at St. Petersburg have ceased since his illness.

"UNEASY LIES THE HEAD," ETC.

German Kaiser and Russian Czar as Seen by Outsiders.

New York, April 7.—The papers reiterate the alarming reports concerning the tottering of the Kaiser's mind. He has, says The Journal, ordered that all German children memorize verses from the Bible. This act has again made Europe fear that there is much ground for believing that he is mentally afflicted. The World prints a story of Mme. de Thebes, the famous Parisian prophetess, consulting the Kaiser. The Emperor was told that the German Empire would be disrupted, that Prussia would rise against him, and that he would die in England 23 years hence, exiled by his own people. This is taken as a reason for the Emperor's recent eccentricities.

The Russian Czar.

New York, April 8.—The Sun's London correspondent says the situation in Russia includes more widespread unrest and discontent than has occurred in the Czar's dominions for many years. The sternest measures of repression have finally been adopted. If open revolt ensues the army cannot be relied upon, as the rank and file sympathize with the malcontents. The friends of Tolstoi are alarmed at his position. The Ministry would arrest him, but they fear the peasants, whose champion he is.

It is feared that serious disturbances will take place on April 14, the Russian Easter.

CANNABALISM.

Fearful Suffering of the Wrecked Crew of Nova Scotia Barque.

London, April 8.—The Singapore correspondent of The Daily Express wires a ghastly story of cannibalism at sea, brought to Singapore by two survivors of the Nova Scotian barque, Angela, wrecked six days' sail from Manila, Oct. 23 last. The correspondent says:

The survivors, Johnsen, a Swede, and Marticornu, a Spaniard, assert that the Angela struck a reef. Two rafts were built, the smaller, bearing five men, disappeared; the larger, with twelve men, drifted for 40 days. The sailors ate barnacles and seaweeds, and finally their boots. On the twenty-fifth day two became insane and killed themselves. On the twenty-sixth a Frenchman killed the mate with an axe, drank his blood, and tried to eat his brains out, but was prevented by the others. Cannibalism continued until only Johnsen and Marticornu remained.

Copp Bros'. Financial Troubles.

Hamilton, April 8.—Copp Bros., makers of stoves, implements, furnaces, etc., established nearly 50 years ago, have suspended payment. This unfortunate state of affairs was precipitated a few days ago by the Merchants' Bank authorities issuing a writ against Copp Bros. for the payment of $87,500 on demand notes. Steps are also being taken in the courts for the appointment of a receiver. W. Copp, president of the company, said yesterday he had hopes of some settlement being arrived at, and thought that an arrangement would be made whereby the business would be carried on as usual. The firm gives employment to about 120 hands. It has branches at Toronto and Winnipeg.

"Joe" Downey Gets the Call.

Guelph, Ont., April 8.—At the convention of South Wellington Liberal-Conservatives, held here Saturday afternoon, J. P. Downey, editor of The Herald, received a majority of the votes as candidate for the Ontario Legislature. The choice was then made unanimous. Over 140 delegates were in attendance, and the enthusiasm reached a high point.

Three Dr. wned, One Saved.

Portland, Me., April 8.—The two-masted schooner Wendell Burpee, of St. John, N. B., went ashore off Cape Elizabeth shortly before 12 o'clock yesterday noon, the captain, cook and one sailor being drowned, while the mate only was saved.

Strike at an End.

London, April 8.—The Lanarkshire strikes are apparently ended, the engine workers having agreed to resume work to-day. The miners will in consequence resume work also. The strike brought no gains to the workmen.

A CANADIAN VETERINARIAN

Will Be Sent to England to Inspect Cattle For Shipment to U. S.

Washington, April 8.—As a result of negotiations between Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and the Canadian Minister of Agriculture, an agreement has been reached between the two Administrations, by which Canada is to have a first-class veterinarian stationed in England to test for tuberculosis all British cattle shipped to this country via Canada, without tests at the border by American experts. The Department at Washington would not agree to this. Secretary Wilson said, however, that if Canada would send to England an agent who should have sufficient expert knowledge of the subject, the United States would admit cattle upon his certificate that the cattle had been tested and found free of tuberculosis. This was agreed to by the Canadian Minister.

HEAD SEVERED BY THE CARS.

Ed. Muchmore of Gananoque Fell Under the Wheels.

Brockville, Ont., April 8.—There was a fatal accident at the G.T.R. station here Saturday afternoon, the victim of which was a young Gananoque man, named Ed. Muchmore. He had been working in the Canada Carriage Works here for a short time, and was about to take the 5 o'clock train for Gananoque to spend Easter with his wife, who still lives at that place. He had procured his ticket, and was waiting about the platform for the time of departure. When the train started he was some distance away, and made a rush to get on board. He caught hold of the car platform, but lost his hold of it, and in a moment was under the wheels, which passed over his neck, severing the head from the body. He was 30 years of age.

BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless it is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manuel labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

THE CANADIANS LED.

Boers Yielded to Their Impetuous Head-on Attack.

THE BRITISH PROCLAMATION.

Fighting Burghers Who Surrender Say They Never Heard of It—Boers, Who Say They Are Satisfied With the Peace Terms, Are Urging Botha to Accept Them by April 10.

Durban, Natal, April 7.—Details which are arriving here of General French's successful operations in the Eastern Transvaal show that in one engagement the Canadians charged a Boer position in Buffalo Bill style, firing as they galloped along. The Boers were in a position where they could not have been flanked and where it was almost impossible to dislodge them, but by the forward charge of the Canadians they were forced to yield.

Scores of Boers with their families have surrendered at Melmoth, Zululand, and others are following their example at different places. The people coming in say they have never heard of the British proclamations in respect to those who surrender, and, furthermore, that they have been misled in regard to the Boer position.

Big Treason Court.

Cape Town, April 7.—Bands of Boer invaders are still roving about the Cradock district of Cape Colony. A suggestion has been made that a special police force be raised for the purpose of attempting to capture or drive out the Boers. Several bands have concentrated at Spitzkop.

It is believed that Commandants Kritzinger and Scheepers are endeavoring to combine their forces in the Murraysburg district.

The Treason Court, which is to meet at Barkly East, will have to hear the cases of 104 alleged rebels.

ULTIMATUM FOR BOTHA.

General French's March Has Been Productive of Results.

Pretoria, April 7.—The results of Gen. French's march are everywhere evident along the border line between the Transvaal and Natal. Many Boers who escaped Gen. French's dragnet are now surrendering voluntarily, and it is said that all of them are in a bad plight, even in their own bailiwicks.

A rumor is in circulation here that the burghers have given Commander-in-chief Botha until April 10 to accept Gen. Kitchener's terms of surrender, and that if he does not accept on that date they will leave the commandoes and come in themselves.

A general surrender of the Boers is not expected here, however, until the northern mountainous districts of the Transvaal have been subdued. Drafts of the Constabulary encamped at Elandsfontein are being drilled daily.

The garrison of Vlantfontein, composed of the Essexes and the Dublin Fusiliers, are in touch daily with the Boers, who are attempting to cross the line.

The commando of Lucas Meyer, which is made up of men from the Heidelberg district, is in the neighborhood of Veramelsberg, on the Klip River. This commando is careful, however, to avoid the camps of the British and to loot unprotected places. A British column, which is marching on Harrismith, will attempt to break up Meyer's force.

NEWS FROM KITCHENER.

Volunteer Companies Relieved — Boers Will Fight to Bitter End.

London, April 8.—Lord Kitchener has informed the War Office that 18 volunteer companies, freed by reliefs, are coming home, and that arrangements are in progress for the speedy relief of further companies. He thus appears to be endeavoring to meet the demand that fresh troops be sent to the front to replace the stale men.

The Pretoria correspondent of The Morning Post, who warns his countrymen against hoping for an early termination of hostilities or believing the stories that the Boers are tired of the war, says:

"It becomes daily more evident that the Boers intend to fight to a finish. Many are surrendering, but they are men of no standing. The real fighting men are still in command, and, although the recent successful British operations tend to bring the end nearer, it is evident that the Boers must be completely crushed before a general surrender is probable."

It is reported from Brussels that Acting President Schalkburger has removed the seat of Government to Leydesdorp.

According to a despatch to The Daily Mail from Hilversum, Mr. Kruger, who has just arrived there, has expressed an intention to go to the United States in June and to visit Washington, Chicago and Boston.

"It is definitely ascertained," says a despatch to The Times from Kroonstad, dated Saturday, "that Gen. Dewet and Gen. Botha met at Vrede."

Kruger in Retreat.

Utrecht, April 8.—Mr. Kruger has started for Hilversum, 15 miles from Amsterdam, where he will stay for some time. The burgomaster of Utrecht and a big crowd bade him farewell at the railroad station.

Ten Fresh Cases of Plague.

Cape Town, April 7.—During the last 48 hours, ten fresh cases of bubonic plague have been officially reported. Of these, four are Europenas and the others colored persons. The corpse of a colored person who had died of the disease, was found today.

Praise From Lord Roberts.

Quebec, April 8.—Field Marshal Lord Roberts has accepted the honorary colonelcy of the R. C. A. In his letter he adds:

"I feel proud to be associated in so close a tie with a regiment which has already served under my command, and which rendered so excellent an account of itself in South Africa."

Humors

Come to the surface in the spring as in no other season. It's a pity they don't run themselves all off that way; but in spite of pimples and other eruptions, they mostly remain the system. That's bad.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them and and cures all the painful and disfiguring trouble they cause. Nothing else cleanses the system and clears the complexion bright and clear.

When in Bed

Put some Vapo-Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp and place it near the head of the bed. Then all the time the baby sleeps it will breathe-in the healing, soothing vapor. The hard, tight cough loosens; the fever gradually goes down, the breathing becomes natural, and pneumonia is avoided. Every part of the throat and bronchial tubes are touched by the medicine. For the hard colds and coughs of children nothing equals Vapo-Cresolene. 9

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. Illustrated booklet containing physicians' testimonials free upon request. Vapo-Cresolene Co., 180 Fulton st., New York, U.S.A.

Recommended and sold by H. H. Edmison druggist, Peterborough.

KRUGER'S OPINIONS.

He Declares Again For Boer Independence in Order, He Says, to Insure Peace Forever in South Africa.

Paris, April 6.—An interview with Mr. Kruger appears in The Matin, The former President of the Transvaal, on the eve of his retirement to the country, said at Utrecht:

"The British Government, British telegraph and the British press always try to make this much"—and he measured his little finger—"look like this much"—and he extended both arms. "I am persuaded everything is going well out there precisely because our enemies continue to dissimulate and travesty facts.

"As regards Gen. Botha's negotiations, the public knows from the blue book and by reading Gen. Botha's last despatch that it was the British general who first made proposals. Never did the Boer general refuse to listen. We do not fight, except for peace. We are not conquerors, but, although Gen. Botha listened to the British proposals, he never uttered a word of equivocation on the subject of independence. Independence is the only treasure we cherish, even if we have to sacrifice all others to have our national independence.

"It is for that reason our citizens forsook their farms, and sacrificed their lives, and our women and children now suffer temporary servitude in the enemy's camp.

"And, if the English were not blind, if they considered their own interests well, if they were not hopelessly enslaved by error and injustice, they would recognize the independence we demand, because in the hope of safeguarding it we shall be ready to make any concessions and sacrifices, and moreover it would assure peace forever in South Africa."

Boer Attempt Failed.

Bethulie, Orange River Colony, April 4.—(Thursday.)—A force of Boers, under Commandant Kritzinger, attempted to re-cross into the Orange River Colony to the west of here, but failed.

Red Cross Medal to Mme. Ferriers.

Johannesburg, April 5.—Lord Kitchener has personally presented the Red Cross medal to Madame Ferriers, head of the French ambulance detachment, for her services to the British wounded.

Plumer Keeps Advancing.

London, April 6.—Lord Kitchener reports as follows to the War Office: "Col. Plumer has advanced 20 miles beyond Nylstroom unopposed on the way toward Pietersburg."

According to the Pretoria correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, the Boers have shifted their seat of Government from Pietersburg to a point 85 miles northeast.

The Last of the Enemy's Guns.

London, April 6.—Lord Kitchener, reporting to the War Office the finding of an abandoned and destroyed pompom near Vryheid, says: "This accounts for all the enemy's guns known to be in the southeastern district."

French Keeps Moving.

Cape Town, April 6.—Gen. French continues to press the Boers at Vryheid, Transvaal Colony.

Will Not Interfere.

Washington, April 6.—Though the State Department has been invoked to effect the release of the steamship Anglo-Australian, at New Orleans, loaded with mules consigned to the British Government in South Africa, the sailing of which has been prevented by an application for an injunction made by Boer sympathizers, it decided not to interfere. The matter will be left to the courts to decide.

Will Go in a Hay Ship.

Ottawa, April 6.—There are still in Ottawa eleven members of the South African Constabulary, who had to be left behind on account of sickness. They are now convalescent, and, having represented to the militia authorities that they are anxious to proceed to South Africa, it has been decided to send them to Cape Town on the next steamer, which leaves St. John laden with hay.

Stewart Receives $400

Ottawa, April 6.—Pte. Alex. W. Stewart of Strathcona's Horse, who was recommended for the distinguished service medal for gallantry shown at Machavie, has received $400 from the British War Office. Pte. Stewart was wounded in action at the above point. He is a native of McNab Township, near Arnprior. His comrades speak highly of Stewart's bravery as displayed under a hot fire.

The Halifax Garrison.

Ottawa, April 6.—Recruiting for the Halifax garrison is proceeding slowly, but there are now about 600 men on the roll. The Militia Department is satisfied the regiment will hold its own. There are few vacancies among the officers.

SPRING FASHIONS.

SOME HINTS CONCERNING THE NEW HATS AND GOWNS.

Favored Hues After Black and White, the Reds and Greens Accompanied by Gold—Prominence of Frills and Fine Embroideries on Dressy Gowns.

AT THIS season of the year every woman who can possibly afford it blossoms out in a new costume. Winter styles have passed by, and new and bewildering combinations confront us in the way of spring and summer costumes. The majority of these new styles are very beautiful. This is an artistic season. The dress goods are above all soft and clinging, and they come in the palest and most delicate shades. Plain colors are now the most stylish, although figured goods in Persian designs will be a feature of the season. Crepe de chine, veiling, albatross and grenadines are the leading materials.

There is a marked return to challie for house dresses and for mountain and seaside wear. Particular attention has been paid by domestic printers in bringing out challies with a view to equaling if possible the artistic work of European printers.

Among high art novelties most worthy of note are dentelles-voiles—a lace on nun's veiling—woven on a loom.

Ruby rose is the new shade, but will have a strong rival in reseda green—the first bloom of the olive. Other popular shades will be bohemian blue and buckskin tan.

The muslin fabrics come embroidered in black, white or self coloring. Dotted muslin is taking to a large extent the place of organdie.

Fashion will be full of frills. The tendency to the plain, svelte and sylphlike will be supplemented by an array of embellishments brighter and more profuse, gayer and more elaborate, and by an astonishing multiplicity of forms of handiwork and arrangement of small materials. The little buttons, dots, braids, narrow ribbons, bonitons, beadings, insertions, stitchings, cordings and tuckings will be clustered closer, turned more daintily, and their novel use and arrangement will receive still more attention.

THE EASTER GIRL.

The prevailing form of round, smooth skirts, with broad flare at the bottom, will hold strongly for the beginning of the spring season. Blouse forms for the young and graceful figure, basque forms for the slender and Eton for those who find them best suited to their uses—all will find employment and place. The Parisian woman and the slender European can wear to great advantage basque tails and forms set on; in fact, she frequently needs them. Our more rotund American women do not find these forms either becoming or satisfactory. Much of the clinging to the bolero has been due to the fact that it suits the woman with high hips better than the basque form. The postilion back, however, which is much seen, is not objectionable and will naturally be more employed.

As regards millinery, this is going to be a rose and foliage season. In addition to roses, of course, other flowers will be worn. There are many novelties, especially for undertrimming, trimming in the shape of new voile or veiled roses and foliage, many of which have tinsel embroidered into the make up in the shape of tricotine, which is used as a separate layer in the formation of the flowers. The tricotine is also used to cover fruit, notably bunches of grapes, and is very effective as a method of introducing the gold effect tastefully and not too strikingly.

The hat shapes now showing for spring continue to be extremely low and very broad. The majority are decidedly slanting, though as a rule they are less boldly raised than those we have lately seen. Many of the brims curl gently over at the edge, the brim itself being less straight, but forming a sort of curved hollow. This is a point to be noted, as the majority of both spring and, it is said, summer hats also will be principally trimmed beneath the brim, either with long curled ostrich feathers or with entire and rather large garlands of flowers mingled with lace.

A shape somewhat of the mushroom type, with low and shaped crown, but gently raised on one side, is trimmed with lace draperies falling over the brim, with shirrings of mousseline de soie and butterfly bows of velvet accompanied by a full bunch of full blown roses with foliage beneath the raised side.

Straight brims will not be very general, an undulating movement being imparted to this portion of the headwear. The undulations are, however, most irregular and unstudied, rising and falling according to the requirements of the garniture and apparently supported by it.

Shirt waists are to be as much worn as ever. The bishop sleeve, long waisted effect and soft collar are the dominant features of the season.

The white taffeta waist is beyond question the most popular garment among New York's well dressed set. It is wonderful to observe the great number of silk waists and fancy silk and lace garments that appear at every first class function, whether it be the high class theaters, the swell restaurants or the show places of extravagant metropolitan life.

If you are scrofulous, dyspeptic, rheumatic, troubled ith kidney complaint, general debility, lacking strength, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WOMEN IN THE POLICE COURT.

Two Residents of North Monaghan that Do Not Agree Met in Town on Saturday.

Sarah Cunningham, who resides in North Monaghan, is a quiet-looking countrywomen. She has for her neighbour Mrs. Thompson, a woman of stout physique, keen eye, auburn hair, and a determined looking individual in general. For some time there has been friction between the two neighbours, and Mrs. Cunningham claims that she has been the victim of slanderous statements concerning her acquaintance with Mr. Thompson, the husband of the above mentioned defendant. From what Mrs. Cunningham would give one to believe, there might have been a possibility of their settling their differences by physical combat had she been agreeable, but she chose the more diplomatic means, and as a consequence Mrs. Thompson was the defendant in an action in the police court this morning, wherein she was charged by Mrs. Cunningham with using grossly abusive language towards her. The climax to the disturbed relations was reached on Saturday, but the evidence Mrs. Cunningham put forth was very weak. According to her story she happened to pass the defendant and the defendant's husband on George street in front of the Southern hotel on Saturday. The complainant then alleges that Mrs. Thompson said to her husband:—"There's your object." Then to Mrs. Cunningham said:—"There he is, take him." What do you mean?" enquired the complainant, when it is alleged that the defendant replied: "I mean you can have him." "I'll make you prove this," retorted Mrs. Cunningham, and, for a final shot, Mrs. Thompson, so the complainant alleges, said: "I'll prove this and more, too." This was about all the case the complainant could put forth, but she claimed that the words used meant a good deal more than one would think, if the past history of their troubles were rehashed. However, the court could not go into this, as it all happened outside of the town.

Mr. Thompson went into the box and swore that his acquaintance with Mrs. Cunningham was of no improper kind, and the Magistrate dismissed the case, after trying to press upon the two women the advisability of trying to live peacefully together.

WEDDING BELL.

Nuptials of Miss Luella Spence and Mr. Harry R. Patterson in South Dummer.

A very pleasant and unique event, in which all South Dummer were immensely interested, took place on Tuesday at the residence of Mr. Wm. Spence, when his third daughter, Luella A. and Mr. Harry R. Patterson, two of South Dummer's most widely known and prominent young people, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony.

Only the most intimate friends of the contracting parties were present, and about 7 o'clock they gathered in the spacious drawing room, which was artistically decorated for the occasion.

At 7.30 the bridal party entered the drawing room to the soul-inspiring strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride looked charming in a costume of blue-gray ladies' cloth, trimmed with white satin, lace and ribbon, while the groom wore the conventional suit of black.

The Rev. E. B. Cooke, of South Dummer, officiated, and after the ceremony the guests proceeded to the dining room, where a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was tastefully served.

The evening was spent in games, music, etc., after which the guests dispersed to their several homes. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson have taken up their residence on the homestead, in the commodious brick dwelling formerly occupied by Mr. P. Patterson.

Their many friends and acquaintances extend to them their heartiest congratulations.

EASTER AT ST. LUKE'S.

Pleasing Services Held by Rev. Mr. Symonds, Yesterday.

The joyful season of Easter was fittingly kept at St. Luke's The congregations were large, the communicants were numerous, and the offertories liberal. The Decoration Chapter spared no pains in the adornment of the Church, and never were they the recipients of so many or such beautiful flowers, both cut and potted. The Sanctuary was adorned with pure white flowers. Several pots of splendid calla lillies were arrayed on the steps, whilst the back of the Holy Table was a snowy mass of white roses, carnations, tulips and stocks. The pulpit and the font were, as usual, tastefully decorated, and round about the reading desk was an abundance of handsome plants. A new feature was two handsome banners in blue and gold on a white ground bearing the mottoes "Christ is Risen" and "Alleluia, Alleluia," respectively. These were the work of Mrs. Adams, the energetic head of the Decoration Chapter, and Mrs. Sawyer.

Both sermons were appropriate to the day. In the morning the text was St. John x, 17: "I lay down my life that I may take it again." In the evening Mr. Symonds concluded the course of sermons on the Bible, choosing as his text I Cor. xv., 46: "Howbeit that is not just which is spiritual but that which is natural, and afterward that which is spiritual." Using this text to illustrate his subject which was "The Goal of Revelation," he said that men naturally asked what was the final end or object of anything. So it was that men asked, What is the final end of Revelation? To this question the answer was given that it is the Perfection of Humanity.

Man's imperfection was a perplexing mystery, but it was an obvious fact. We have what we call the lower and the higher nature. On certain sides of his being man resembles the animals. But on other sides he so transcends them that he feels there is a great gulf fixed between him and them. Man is on one side of his being, which we call the natural, related to the lower creation, but on the other, which we call the spiritual, he is related to God. Both of these truths are picturesquely expressed in the ancient record of Creation, when it tells us that man was made out of the dust of the earth, and that God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life.

These two sides of man's nature are not perfectly adjusted. "The flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh," says St. Paul.

The object of Revelation is to minister to the higher nature until at last the lower is entirely subdued and the whole man is spiritualized.

Mr. Symonds then proceeded to show how St. Paul expressed these truths in his famous 20th Chap. of 1st Cor. In one life man's imperfection had no place, viz. in the life of Christ. In no word does Christ betray the slightest consciousness of sin. He assumed the true human nature, but he filled it full of the Divine Spirit. This is why St. Paul calls Him "the first fruits of them that slept." He is the living prophecy of man's final estate. In Him we behold ourselves. "But that is not first which is spiritual but that which is natural." This profound statement of the law of progress from the lower to the higher has been wonderfully illustrated in the scientific movements of the 19th century. From undifferentiated matter up to man the work of creation proceeds. First the natural and then the spiritual. Life has a meaning, a purpose, a goal, and that goal is seen in the resurrection of Christ. Life is worth living. Its struggles are the battles by which life's victory can be won. Its sorrows are the sorrows of the night before the morning breaks and the shadows flee away. Man is made a little lower than the angels to be crowned with glory and worship.

After the sermon Mrs. Parker sang with much feeling and in exquisite voice "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Then the choir sang "All hail the power of Jesus' name," and the Rector pronounced the benediction. The music throughout the day was appropriate and well rendered by a large choir under Mr. Davies.

In the afternoon Mr. Symonds went to St. Mark's Otonabee.

The Easter Vestry meeting will be held in St. Luke's to-night, and at St. Mark's on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

CHINA AND THE CHINESE.

Addresses Delivered Yesterday in Bethany Tabernacle.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, two missionaries formerly stationed in China, but now home on furlough on account of the present disturbed conditions in the Celestial Kingdom, delivered addresses yesterday in Bethany Tabernacle to large audiences, more especially at the evening service.

The visit of Mr. and Mrs. Smith was of local interest, inasmuch as Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Ella Hawkins of town, who was sent out and supported by Bethany Mission as its representative in China. Last night dressed in the native garb, a loose green silk costume, with prodigious sleeves, she told many interesting incidents in connection with her work as a teacher, and of the success which had attended her labours.

Mr. Smith also gave a short address along the same lines, and a hymn was sung in the Chinese language, to the evident pleasure of the local Chinamen, who were out in full force.

At the conclusion of the service a large number of articles of Chinese manufacture were shown and their uses explained.

The missionaries' two little children speak the language like natives, while their English vocabulary is very limited.

EASTER SERVICES IN THE CHURCHES.

Special Music Rendered by all the Choirs Yesterday.

VERY LARGE CONGREGATIONS

Notes on the Services Held in the Various Churches of the Town. Yesterday.

St. Peter's Cathedral.

The beautiful services of Holy Week were brought to a most solemn climax yesterday in St. Peter's Cathedral. The altar had been magnificently decorated by the good Sisters of Notre Dame, and the sacred edifice had donned a truly paschal attire. The first two masses were celebrated by Rev. Dr. O'Brien, at which large numbers received Holy Communion. The 10.30 mass was a Pontifical High Mass, celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, with Ven. Archdeacon Casey as Deacon, Dr. O'Brien as Sub-Deacon, Mr. Herbert Sullivan as Master of Ceremonies, Ven. Archdeacon Casey preached an excellent sermon on Christian Perseverance, typified and guaranteed by the resurrection of the Saviour.

In the evening the Cathedral was crowded to the doors for Pontifical Vespers and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament given by His Lordship the Bishop. At the conclusion of Vespers Rev. Dr. O'Brien preached on the Resurrection.

The music was Lache's Mass in B. The Cathedral choir was in its best form; and ably assisted by Gliddon's Orchestra of twelve pieces, Miss K. Hurley with her usual grace and success presided at the organ. The evening service opened with a march played by the orchestra in brilliant style. The choir under its able leader entered into the spirit of the music of the mass, and both the choruses ond solos were taken with the effect the author intended. The soprano solos were sung in a faultless manner and in splendid voice by Misses F. Hoolihan and F. Hallahan. The alto solos were taken in splendid style by Misses L. Hurley, L. Koster and L. Hallahan. The tenor solos were sung by Mr. T. Pakenham and J. Mulligan with much feeling and effect; while Messrs. A. McPherson, J. Picard and W. Pope took bass in solemn, clear and rich style. At the offertory a chorus, Giorza's "Regina Coeli" was beautifully rendered; Mr. T. Pakenham tenor and Miss L. Hurley alto solos. The unaccompanied quartette "Et Incarnatus", by Misses Hoolihan and L. Hurley and Messrs. T. Pakenham and A. McPherson was splendidly rendered, as was also the "Qui Tollis," taken by Misses F. and L. Hallihan and Messrs. J. Mulligan and J. Picard.

Evening (Musical Vespers)—"Dixit" and "Laudate Dominum" by D'est; "Laudate Pueri," by Cappocia, a beautiful composition brought from Rome as a gift to the choir, the solo of which was magnificently and charmingly rendered by Miss Hoolihan and the chorus by the other ladies of the choir. "Haec Dies" by Bordese and "Magnificat" from "Gloria" of Mozart's 12th Mass were excellently handled. "O Salutaris" by Hanna, was taken in artistic and beautiful style by Miss L. Hurley. "Tantum Ergo" by Goeb, was a beautiful arrangement, the solos being taken with much grace and ease by Miss Hoolihan and Mr. Pakenham, while the whole choir rendered the chorus solemn and grand. The organist and leader of the choir are to be congratulated on the success of the day.

Charlotte Street Church.

The Easter services in Charlotte street church, yesterday, were exceedingly bright and attractive. In the morning Rev. Mr. Wagg preached an appropriate sermon on the resurrection to a large congregation, and the music furnished by the choir was very fine. In the evening Rev. D. O. Crossley gave a specially prepared song sermon on the Easter topic—"From death unto life"—to a congregation that filled the church to the doors. Besides the draw seats in the aisle, chairs were substituted in every available place around the altar and pulpit.

The divisions of the subject were as follows: 1, The Resurrection of Christ; 2, the resurrection of the man; 3, the experience of regeneration; 4, the hope of the believer.

The subject was presented in a very appropriate manner by Mr. Crossley, and at the conclusion of each division a musical selection was given by the choir, solos being taken by Messrs. Davis and Crossley and Miss Myrtal Hendren. Besides the selections during the sermon, the choir rendered delightful music at both services. Altogether the services in the church were such that will not soon be forgotten by the large congregations participating in them.

The church was appropriately decorated with flowers. The following is the programme of music during the day:—

Anthem—"Thanks be to God, Who Giveth us the Victory"—Sudds. Trio—Miss Pedlar, Mrs. Pearse and Mr. Mitchell. Solo—"Resurrexit"—Tosti, Miss Hendren. Quartette—"The Magdalene"—Warren, Misses Hendren and Stephens and Messrs. Davis and Skitch.

Easter song sermon—Rev. D. O. Crossley. Anthem—"Christ our Passover"—Buck, alto solo, Mrs. Pearce; tenor solo, Mr. Davis; soprano solo, Miss Pedlar. Solos during the song sermon were taken by Miss Hendren, Mr. Davis and Rev. D. O. Crossley. Quartette—"The Magdalene."

St. John's Church.

The services at St John's church were of a very appropriate and interesting nature. The number of communicants was in advance of last year, and the offering amounted to $236. The choir furnished special music, Miss Sherwood and Mr. H. Morphet taking the solos in the anthems.

St. Paul's.

The pulpit at St. Paul's church yesterday morning and evening was occupied by Rev. Frank Roxburgh of Norwood. Rev. Mr. Roxburgh is a son of Mr. W. E. Roxburgh of Norwood, and is a graduate of Knox College. He has just returned from Edinburgh, where he has taken a post-graduate course. His discourses on both occasions yesterday were most interesting and created a favourable impression indeed as to his ability as a preacher.

The musical portion of the services at St. Paul's church yesterday was generally excellent. In addition to the usual Easter hymns in the morning, the following excerpts from the Oratorio "Emmanuel" was given: "And when the Sabbath was past," by Mr. J. Dawson; "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth," by Mrs. Mein; "Hallelujah! now is come salvation and strength," by the choir.

The evening number was Stainer's "He is risen" and "King of Kings" by the full choir. A ladies' trio, "Peace I leave with you," by Mrs. Nelson, Misses Montgomery and Paterson.

All Saints'.

The chancel decorations in All Saints' Church yesterday excited a great deal of admiration by their chastity and beauty. Among a profusion of cut flowers and potted plants, lilies predominated. A handsome new white silk dossel added greatly to the effect produced. All four services were well attended. Rev. W. L. Armitage conducted all of them, and in the morning there were one hundred and seventy nine communicants. The special collection amounted to $113, which amount included a pleasing contribution by the Sunday school. The music throughout the day was well rendered. The regular Easter hymns were given, with Hopkin's Te Deum, Plumer's Evening Service, and Smart's Communion Service. The anthems were: "Awake Thou that Sleepest," in which Miss Mary Rush took the solo in clear, sweet voice, and "Christ, Our Passover," in which Mr. Kingscotte's voice was heard to advantage in the solo passages. The Easter gifts to the church included a handsome new pulpit light and an alms dish of rich appearance. Mr. Armitage wishes to extend his sincere thanks to those who assisted in decorating and those who contributed.

Murray Street Church.

At Murray street Baptist church yesterday, the anthem "Christ being raised from the dead," by Dr. Elvey, was beautifully rendered. Mrs. Dr. Scott sang in excellent form the solo "The Resurrection Morn," and the solo "Light of the World" was rendered by Mr. G. K. Martin

THE LIQUOR HABIT.

Rev. J. A. McCallen's Lecture.

On the occasion of a lecture delivered before a large and appreciative audience in Windsor Hall, Montreal, in honour of the Father Matthew anniversary, Rev. J. A. McCallen, S. S., of St. Patrick's church, and president of St. Patrick's Total Abstinence Society, paid the following grand tribute to the value of Mr. Dixon's new discovery from the cure of alcohol and drug habits.

Referring to the physical crave engendered by the inordinate use of intoxicants, he said: "When such a crave manifests itself there is no escape unless by a miracle of grace, or by some such remedy as Mr. Dixon's cure, about which the papers have spoken so much lately, and if I am to judge of the value of the Dixon remedy by the cures which it has effected under my own eyes I must come to the conclusion that what I have longed for twenty years to see discovered has at last been found by that gentleman."

Full particulars of this new medicine are sent sealed free to all applicants. Address Mr. Dixon, 81 Wilcocks street, Toronto, Ont.

QUAINT COLONIAL NAMES.

How the Offspring of Our First Colonists Were Christened.

It is an interesting study to trace the underlying reason for many of the curious names which are given to the offspring of the first colonists. Parents searched for names of deep significance—for names appropriate to conditions, for those of profound influence presumably on the child's life.

The Rev. Richard Buck, one of the early parsons in Virginia, in days of deep depression, named his first child Mara. This text indicates the reason for his choice: "Call me Mara, for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. I went out full, and the Lord has brought me home empty." His second child was christened Gershom—for Moses' wife "bare him a son and called his name Gershom, for he said I have been in a strange land."

Many names have a pathos and sadness which can be felt down through the centuries. Dame Dinely, widow of a doctor, or barber surgeon, who had died in the snow while striving to visit a distant patient, named her poor babe Fathergone.

The children of Roger Clapp were named Experience, Waitstill, Preserved, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Decide, Unite and Supply. Madam Austin, an early settler of old Narragansett, had 15 children. Their names were Parvis, Picus, Piersus, Prisemus, Polybius, Lois, Lettice, Avis, Anstice, Eunice, Mary, John, Elizabeth, Ruth, Freelove. All lived to be threescore and ten, one to be 102 years old. Edward Bendall's children were named Truegrace, Reform, Hoped For, More Mercy and Restore. Richard Gridley's offspring were Return, Believe and Tremble.—"Child Life In Colonial Days."

French Bakers.

Bakers in France are subject to restrictions and regulations undreamed of in England. In the fortified towns along the frontier they are bound by law to have a certain stock of flour always on hand in case of emergencies. The bakery not only has to be kept clean, but the baker has to deposit with the local authorities a certain sum of money as a surety for the proper conduct of his business.

The law also looks after his weights and measures, which circumstance places him in the same position as the British baker, but in addition the law regulates the price at which bread can be sold.

Napoleon III ordered on one occasion that a loaf about equal to our quartern should be sold for not more than sixpence, and this at a time when we were paying eightpence and ninepence.—London Tit-Bits.

THE EASTER RABBIT.

THE PRANKS HE PLAYS—ODD LEGENDS TOLD ABOUT HIM.

How Germans Make Nests In Which He Lays His Gayly Colored Eggs, and Chinese Bake Rabbit Cakes to Give to Their Friends.

NOT even the greatest students have ever been able to learn how it happens that the rabbit lays Easter eggs. All they know is that little children, and particularly little children in Germany, make, as their grandfathers did before them, warm nests of hay during Easter week, in which they find on Easter morning a lot of beautiful colored eggs laid there, of course, by the Easter rabbit.

In America the shop windows are now crowded with Easter rabbits, and the Easter cards as often as not show the Easter rabbit's picture. Ask somebody why it is a rabbit instead of a woodchuck or any other animal. You will find nobody that can tell you. Nobody knows. All they can do is to make shrewd guesses at it.

Going back behind the first books men have found that the rabbit was regarded as a sacred animal by widely scattered people all over the world. Even the American Indians, who had never so far as we know heard of Easter, had their feast of the great hare, or rabbit, and in the sixth century before Christ, before the early inhabitants of what is now England had been Christianized, the hare or rabbit is said to have been sacred to Ostara, the goddess of dawn and of spring.

Among the natives of South Africa there has been for centuries and still is a story which connects the rabbit with Easter in a curious way. The spots on the surface of the moon form, as these natives say, the perfect image of a rabbit. And as the moon sets or dies and rises again every 30 days it sent the rabbit to take its message to the children of men.

"Go," said the moon to the rabbit, "go and say to the men that even as I die and rise again so shall they also die and rise again."

But the rabbit was wicked and did not carry the message straight.

"The moon says," the rabbit told the South African natives, "that even as I die and do not rise again so shall you also die and not rise again."

When the rabbit came back and told what he had done, the moon was naturally angry and struck at him with a hatchet. The blow struck the rabbit and split its upper lip. People who doubt the story are asked to notice that the rabbit's lip is split to this day. And besides having its lip split the rabbit was much frightened at the moon's anger, so that it ran away and hid in a hole in the ground and has been timid ever since.

Going over to Asia it is found that the rabbit still holds its place as a sacred animal. In China and all other countries where the religion of Buddha prevails the story runs that the great Buddha himself was at one time terribly hungry and wandered up and down on the surface of the earth looking for something to eat, but found nothing. Finally the rabbit saw the hungry god and felt sorry for him. Going up close, so that Buddha could not fail to see him, the rabbit lay down at his feet.

"Eat me," said the rabbit to Buddha.

But the Chinese divinity was not to be outdone in generosity. Instead of eating the rabbit he transported it up to the moon, and there to this day the little Chinese children can see it.

And today in China at the time of the celebration of the great moon festival, which corresponds in season to Easter in Christian lands, the figure of the rabbit is stamped on the moon cakes which relatives and friends exchange among each other in the place of Easter cards.

So the children who credit the Easter rabbit with laying the Easter eggs are simply following a tradition so old that no man knows its beginning, and in every corner of the globe other little children—white, black, yellow or red—are in one way or another paying allegiance to the same tradition.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

EASTER IN OTHER LANDS.

Strange Ceremonies of Ancient and Modern Times.

Among the most impressive of Easter customs is that of foot washing, monarchs and nobles performing the office for the poor and unfortunate. For centuries in most European countries Thursday of holy week was observed in this way in commemoration of Christ's act when on the day before his crucifixion he washed the feet of his disciples and bade them love one another. Thus up to the time of King James II the king or queen of England gathered together on Holy Thursday a number of paupers, equal to the years of his age, and washed and anointed their feet with oil. Queen Elizabeth, for instance, when in her thirty-nineth year washed the feet of 39 people. Even up to the present time the emperor of Austria observes the old custom, and in Rome the women of the nobility still wait upon the poor in the same way. On the same day the pope washes the feet of 18 priests, who are dressed in white and wear high white caps. Twelve of the priests represent the 12 apostles, while the thirteenth typifies an angel. After this ceremony is over a meal is served in a large room over the portico of St. Peter's at which the holy father himself waits upon the guests.

In Russia Easter is the one great festival of the year. The Passage From Darkness to Light, the Opener of the Gates of Paradise, the Sanctifier of the Faithful, are a few of the names which the Russians have given to Easter Sunday. On Saturday night all the churches and chapels are crowded with people dressed in new and bright clothes. There are no seats in Russian churches, so everybody is obliged either to stand or kneel. A few minutes before midnight the service begins. After a solemn chant the priests lead the people in a procession all about the church. Then, just at the stroke of 12, it is announced from the altar that Christ is risen. At the word the worshiper who stands nearest the officiating priest lights his candle from that carried by the latter. He in turn passes the light on to the people about him, and in a few minutes the whole building is ablaze with lights. Then is exchanged the Easter kiss, which is the most unique of Easter customs in Russia.

The whole congregation passes by the priest, each kissing him three times, once on the forehead and on either cheek, and being kissed in return.

The exchange of kisses, followed by presents of Easter eggs, is almost universal among all classes of Russians. In the boys' schools all the pupils are saluted by the head master. Friends and relations kiss each other on the streets, and the Easter lily takes the place of the mistletoe among the peasants.

All along the sides of the street on Easter night saucers containing a lighted wick and filled with melted tallow are placed to light the way of Easter revelers.

In the mountain heights of the Austrian Tyrol bands of musicians wander about on Easter eve, climbing from valley to valley and stopping before every farmhouse to sing the Easter carols. The singers wear bright colored garments, and their wide brimmed hats are festooned with flowers and ribbons. As it grows dusk they are joined by bands of children who carry flaring torches and escort the minstrels from house to house. The children also carry nosegays, which are used with Easter eggs at each farmhouse. At the homes of those who are well off wine and other refreshments are also set before the Easter singers.

On the island of Amorgos, which is the outlying island in the territory of Greece, the Easter celebration centers about the three sacred silver icons which are kept in a wonderful monastery.

In days long gone by the people in England and the clergy used to play together at ball inside the churches for prizes of tansy cakes, and within recent times it has been the custom for the clerk in some parishes to go about on Easter day distributing small white cakes among the parishioners, receiving money in return.

In the old English town of Chester the practice of lifting was once carried on in a much more elegant manner than prevailed elsewhere. The gay gallants of the town started out in the morning of Easter Monday, carrying with them a throne or chair covered with white silk and trimmed with streamers and festoons of flowers. It was their privilege to force every pretty girl they met to take a seat in the throne and then be carried along on the shoulders of the revelers until she was willing to pay a forfeit of a kiss to each of the men who had made her captive.—Chicago Tribune.

The Feast of Easter.

The name Easter is derived, as some suppose, from Eastre, the title of a Saxon deity whose feast was celebrated every year in the spring about the same time as the Christian festival, the name being retained when the character of the feast was changed, or, as others suppose, from Oster, which signifies rising. If the latter supposition be correct, Easter is in name as well as reality the feast of the resurrection.

The kings of England had a custom on Good Friday of hallowing rings with much ceremony, the wearers of which would not be afflicted with the falling sickness, epilepsy.

Easter In the New Century.

In the century just begun there will be 5,217 Sundays. In that which we have hardly yet learned to speak of as the last Easter Sunday has occurred once on its earliest possible date, March 22, 1818; but this will not recur till the twenty-third century. The earliest Easter in the new century will be March 23, 1913. Easter Sunday will fall once on its latest day, April 25, in 1943. This also occurred once in the century just passed—in 1806. Ascension day is practically always in May, but on three occasions in the past century it occurred in June, and in the new century this will happen four times.

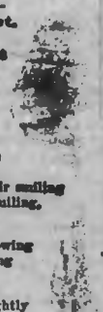
Catarrh.

Called an American disease, is cured by an American medicine, originated and prepared in the most catarrhal of American countries.

That medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It cures radically and permanently, in that it removes the cause, cleansing the blood of scrofulous and all other impurities It overcomes all the effects of catarrh, too, and builds up the whole system.

The Easter Bonnet.



Sing ho the Easter bonnet
With a lot of strings upon it
New and bright,
And the avenue parade
Of the maidens all arrayed
For the sight.

For sweet the Easter faces
That brighten up the places
Where they go,
With their nodding and their smiling
And our mannish hearts beguiling,
As they know.

Not a man but likes the showing
Of the bonnets in their going
Up the street,
And our admiration rightly
Do we give—the sight is sightly
And a treat.

So let's hang the bills for dollars
That are stiff enough for collars,
Yes, and high,
And pray for decent weather
For the witching maidens' feather—
So say I.

For I love one Easter bonnet
With a lot of strings upon it,
Bright and gay,
For the face that's just below it,
And I care not if you know it,
Right away.

—Philip Verrill Mighels.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The run of live stock at the Cattle Market to-day was light—26 carloads, all told, composed of 199 cattle, 1500 hogs, 165 sheep and 20 calves.

The quality of fat cattle was only medium, generally speaking, with few well-finished in either the butchers' or exporters' classes.

The market for butchers' cattle was not by any means active, as most of the dealers, in the expectation of a light run today, had purchased their supplies earlier in the week. Prices remained unchanged but weak at Thursday's quotations.

The run of hogs at the market amounted to about 1000. Prices unchanged; market firm.

THE REASON WHY.

Devout she sits within her pew,
A vision fair, with eyes of blue,
A face divine, serenely sweet
In calm repose, content complete;
Her thoughts must dwell above the skies
Within the pale of paradise.

The mighty music fills her soul,
As through the church its echoes roll;
Amid the throng that worships there
She sits, devout in peace and prayer
And perfect bliss; for, though you search,
She has the finest hat in church.

UNCLE MECK'S "GOSLIN"

AN EASTER STORY BY ELI SHEPPERD

ON A bright Saturday in April Uncle Meck and Aunt Rebie walked down the big road to town.

Jo-Jim, the adopted son of this old couple, despite their injunctions, played ill conditioned pranks along the way.

In Aunt Rebie's white oak splint basket were ten dozen eggs, nicely packed in cotton seed, with a bit of lint cotton on top.

With this she counted on buying many delicacies to add to an Easter feast, mainly to be furnished by a basket from Tolstone House. That never failing Easter basket would contain a turkey, flanked with jams and "lightnin bread" and real "white folks' cake." Master and mistress never forgot these old quondam slaves at Eastertide.

But at the first store of the short row of village shops Rebie came to fear that she could not get even the moderate price of 10 cents a dozen for the eggs she carried, for there she saw what she had never seen before, a gorgeous supply of eggs—red, yellow, purple, blue, gold, and never a plain white one among them.

"Fer goodness' sake, Meck, what sorter eggs is dem?" exclaimed the old woman.

"They are Easter eggs. The Easter hen laid them," explained the young clerk facetiously.

"You don't say! Not des one hen, sir? You hear dat, Meck! Des one hen. Do she hatch also?"

"Well, not often. She usually rests up till another Easter."

"Well, she need to."

"Can't I sell you some?"

A gleam lit up Meck's dim old eyes as he drew his wife aside to whisper:

"Boot leg blue hen want' set, Rebie."

"Fer true!" exclaimed Rebie.

"Swap yo' eggs for some of dem, Rebie."

"Even swap?"

"Is you crazy? Dozen fer one and be glad."

"What 'bout de other things us wuz gwine buy?"

"Ain't what marse sends al'a's 'nough and mo'?"

So Rebie offered the exchange of a dozen for one. The clerk made the bargain and, perhaps pricked in conscience at so manifestly unfair a trade, threw in an extra one—a great white egg with just a tiny blue flower drawn here and there on its surface.

At home, in their little daubed log cabin, they carefully handled the eggs. Meck raised the large one gingerly: "Dis must be de last of de litter, hit so different from de rest. Hit's clearer dan de others too."

In fact, it was the only raw one of the number, the only one whose pores were not thick with dye.

With every precaution the boot leg blue was "set."

There were two treasures now to be guarded from the prying proclivities of Jo-Jim—the nest of many colored eggs and a certain strong box chained to the leg of the old four post bed in the cabin.

Even since the little scamp could remember he had tried to find out how that box got there and what was in it, but old Rebie did not herself know.

If Meck knew its contents, he had never told either Rebie or Jo-Jim. Old master had given it to his trusted slave to keep till young master needed it most. This box, this injunction and an old blunderbuss of a pistol had been given to old Meck.

Three weeks had passed and no sign of a chick, another week and yet another. Then, just as the boot leg blue was beginning to distrust the laws of nature—"Peep, peep!" And out of the great white egg with blue flowers on it came a downy something!

The creature was surrounded with every precaution from the first hour of its hatching. It grew amazingly, but proved to be no master hen—only a gosling, and a gander at that!

The old people, though disappointed, yet loved it, and when in time it grew to be an old, pink eyed, snow white gander it manifested in its turn a strange devotion for Meck.

Meantime the adopted child, Jo-Jim, had grown up lazy, ill contrived, ungrateful. He had stolen money from Colonel Tolstone, who, for the sake of the good old people, had refrained from committing the boy to be sentenced to the penitentiary.

Jo-Jim was given to wandering off. He had in his last wandering away staid two whole years, and all this time Meck felt that the strong box chained to the bedpost was safer than when Jo-Jim had been about the cabin.

It was Easter eve now, and no turkey had yet come from Tolstone House. The old people felt forsaken and forlorn as they shivered over their smoldering logs. It was the first time master had forgotten them since the surrender, and now they needed help badly.

Now and then in his misery Meck looked furtively and uneasily toward the box chained to the bedpost. The guardianship of that box had grown heavier year by year, yet he felt that he must be true to his word to old master and not give it over to young master, who was now himself 58 years old, until he should plainly need it most. But Meck had reasons of his own for being very anxious to deliver to master that strong box. Meck recalled with grief and fear Jo-Jim's never allayed curiosity concerning the contents of the box. He sighed a great deal by his fireside and kept his old pistol loaded.

Dusk was settling down when tramping hoofs roused the old couple by the fire, and then at last came the long looked for basket from Tolstone House.

But such a small basket!

"You see," said the boy who brought the basket, "times is hard wid us. Been gettin hard a long time. Us ain't got a turkey ourselves. Sold all our turkeys to git Mr. Lewis home from de college at Sewanee. He gotter go to clerking at Mr. Jenkins' store in town at $10 a month. De ole place gwine be sold mortgage sale next month. I'm leavin next week. Colonel say he ain't able to keep no servants."

Leaving the poor little present, a package of tea crackers and a robin pie, the boy was off before the old people had roused themselves from the shock of his news.

Real want at Tolstone House! The place was their ideal of all that was rich, beautiful and generous. They both sat silent awhile, casting solicitous glances at the robin pie and tea cakes.

There was a long pause, then Rebie said, "A young, tender goose ain't bad eatin."

Now, though Easter, as they called him, might, as the ages of geese go, be expected to have many a year before him, yet he could by no means be called young and tender, but so he seemed to these fond old people.

"Fer young master's sake," murmured Meck, tenderly stroking the gander's white head as Easter hissed softly and upturned a questioning pink rimmed eye.

"Us can put him 'live in a basket and start by soon daylight."

"I must carry dat box to young master."

"You tote de box. I'll tote de goslin."

Latterly Meck's uneasiness over the box had kept him wakeful, but that night the knowledge that he was so soon to get rid of the great responsibility acted like a sedative on the weary old brain.

Old Rebie, however, kept awake as long as the pet of the household remained restless, and it was late ere she, too, sank into heavy slumber.

But at midnight both old people were shaken roughly from their slumbers by a loud note of terror from Easter. "Dat's dat gander! Kill him," said a muffled voice in the cabin.

Instantly Meck snatched the old pistol from his pillow and cocked it with a loud click.

"Lord, have mercy on me," groaned Meck, "but if you was my own son I'd kill you if you got dat box. If I don't see you git empty handed out dat do' 'fo' I count three, you is a dead nigger fer sho."

Then Aunt Rebie screamed louder than Easter, and the two cowardly thieves made a dash for the door. As they leaped out the two old people saw that one was their scapegrace, their sorrow, Jo-Jim.

Meck made fast the door again. Easter hissed in exultation. The rest of the night they sat by the hearth guarding their trust. Next morning at dawn the old couple were off, laden with box, basket and blunderbuss. The sweet April air was all astir with flight and fluttering of bird wings. The fence corners were blue with wild violets. The golden bells of the jasmine sweetened every swamp and field.

At last the white pillars of Tolstone House came in sight. The poor old people were admitted, and Rebie presented her gift—Easter.

Easter behaved very handsomely. He turned up one bright eye on the master, the other on the mistress, who wept at the gift of her former slave. Master, too, must wipe his glasses. Meck put the box on the table before the colonel. From his neck he took the key on its leather string. Old master had given it to him long years before, when the now staid old colonel was a wild spendthrift.

After much ado it opened. The lid was lifted. The glow of gold and the sparkle of jewels shone before the amazed eyes.

A yellow letter told a part of the story. The colonel's recollections of his early escapades filled up any blanks.

"And Easter save us all dat money," cried Rebie, and she reiterated the story of how the sagacious gander had awakened them in the night.

"Easter shall never be eaten," declared mistress. Indeed, Easter's age had already given bond that he should never be eaten with pleasure.

So it came about that the colonel's young son visited a home of rejoicing instead of one of sorrow.

The two old people went but once more to their cabin in the lonely swamp, and then only to move all their belongings to a house of their own in sight of Tolstone Place, a gift of young master.—New York Evening Post.

An Easter Scene.

Sunlight poured through polished panes upon a well scoured floor. The odor of chemicals filled the air. Down a long room stretched a row of white iron beds. On a cot lay a child whose face was as pale as the lime washed walls. In one blue veined hand the youngster held a flower—a flower once a bud under the Bermuda sky.

"I've seen them before," the child was saying. "I used to see them in the windows of the shops where they make them."

All day the lily stood in a slender vase at the head of the cot. When the night came and the lights burned low in that long, white room, the lily bent tenderly over the face of the sleeping child.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhosone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhosone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Poison & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A PEASANT SUPERSTITION.

How the Bells Go to Rome and Return Easter Morning.

In some remote districts of France it is still customary for the priest of the parish to go around to each house at Easter and bestow on it his blessing. In return he receives eggs, plain and painted. In these same regions a belief still lingers that during passion week the bells of the churches set out for Rome in order to get themselves blessed by the pope. During this period of mourning the bells are mute in their belfry, and the peasants firmly believe that they have started on their pious pilgrimage and will return to send forth a joyous peal on the morning of the resurrection. People do not come back from so long a journey without bringing presents to good children. The joy bells then always come first and bring with them various beautiful playthings. The death bells come last and bring nothing. Easter then was like a second New Year's day. The peasant bestowed on his child an egg, dyed scarlet, like the cloak of a Roman cardinal and supposed to come from Rome.—New York Herald

DYSPEPSIA CURED.

The Case of Miss Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., Proves Beyond a Doubt that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure Even the Most Stubborn and Chronic Cases of Stomach Trouble.

Dyspepsia is no respector of persons. Young and old, rich and poor alike suffer the tortures of this dread disease. There are very few who entirely escape.

That it can be cured is no longer a matter of doubt. Theories are often exploded, but nothing can overcome the deductions which result from actual experiences.

Many have claimed to have discovered a remedy for dyspepsia. The theories advanced have been plausible and seemingly reasonable, but when the proposed medicines have been subjected to the actual test they have been found wanting.

Previous to the discovery of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets no medicine had ever successfully attacked and defeated all kinds of stomach trouble. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have never failed.

Miss Maggie Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., is an example. Briefly this is what she says:—"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and stomach weakness for four years. I could not get any relief. I heard of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and bought some. They relieved me instantly, and I have not been troubled since. I am completely cured."

Miss Gallant's experience adds another to the already long list of perfect cures effected by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is positively no case of stomach trouble (except cancer) that Dodd's Dyspepsia tablets will not cure.

This is a strong statement, but it is made without any qualification whatever, and the experience of every dyspeptic who has tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets has confirmed it. Its truth cannot be denied.

Thousands of people have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and never in a single case have they failed to cure. Many cases have been of long standing and very acute, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have completely cured. They'll cure you. Try them and be convinced.

CATHOLIC MARRIAGES

Pastoral Letter by Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal.

THE DELPIT-COTE JUDGMENT.

His Grace Says the Church's Authority Was Divinely Bestowed, and That the Position Remains Unchanged Under Judge Archibald's Decision—The Crematory Question Referred To.

Montreal, April 8.—An important pastoral letter was read here yesterday in the Catholic churches from Mgr. Bruchesi, brought forth by Judge Archibald's decision in the Delpit marriage case, and also touching the recent legislative act permitting a crematory in Mount Royal Cemetery. His Grace says that the church received from his divine founder the power and the right to regulate all that concerns Christian marriage, and all the parliamentary laws and all the decisions of the courts of justice establishing divorce must remain valueless in presence of the divine words: "Let no man separate what God has joined together." Mgr. Bruchesi further says: "Without entering into an appreciation of the judgment from a legal standpoint, which concerns the civil tribunals of this country and the Empire, we feel it to be our duty to solemnly declare that it can in no way lessen or modify the obligations of Catholics, whether in the external sphere or in the internal domain of conscience."

His Grace further declares that the church has already pronounced sentence of excommunication against its members who presume to contract marriage before an heretical minister, be it a question of two Catholics or of a Protestant and Catholic. His Grace reminds the faithful of these severe penalties.

As to the Crematory.

In speaking of the crematory, the Archbishop says: "Despite the courageous opposition of several members and legislative councillors, the request was granted, and it is a triumph for the very few friends of cremation in Canada. For us," adds His Grace, "the vote given by the majority of our legislators was a real surprise, and it caused us regret." And further on, "we hesitate not to say that the introduction of the practice of cremation into our City of Montreal is regrettable."

BISLEY TEAM.

Acceptance Has Been Received From Gilchrist, Mortimer and Wilson.

Ottawa, April 8.—The Bisley team will sail from Montreal for England on the Tunisian on June 22. The eligible marksmen have until the 25th inst. to accept places on the team. So far acceptances have been received from Lieut. Gilchrist, Guelph; Sergeant Mortimer, Royal Grenadiers, Toronto, and Sergeant Wilson, 43rd, Ottawa. This year the Bisley matches begin on July 8 and close on July 20. The prone position is to be allowed at all distances in all stages of the Queen's and St. George's competitions.

RICHMOND, QUEBEC, FLOODED.

The Fine Iron Bridge Which Cost $40,000 Has Been Carried Away.

Montreal, April 8.—Advices from Richmond, one of the principal towns of the Eastern Townships, about 100 miles from Montreal, state that the town has suffered from a big inundation. The ice in the St. Francis River, between Richmond and Melbourne broke up yesterday and carried away the fine iron bridge connecting the two places. The water then rose and inundated the main portion of the town. The water is still rising, and the people are removing out of danger. The bridge cost $40,000. The damage will be heavy.

Seeking Welsh Immigration.

Ottawa, April 8.—W. L. Griffith, the Canadian Government Agent for Wales, who just completed a tour through Canada, left yesterday for Portland, where he takes passage for Liverpool. When in the west, Mr. Griffith made arrangements with some private concerns to accommodate a large number of the proper class of Welsh immigrants by advancing capital in the way of erecting dwellings and outbuildings on the land. The advances will only be made to such persons as have some capital. It is expected that in this way the immigration from Wales to Canada will be increased by several hundred.

The Monk's Own Turn Came Suddenly.

London, April 8.—Father Souillan, a monk of the Sacred Heart of Montmartre, preaching in the cathedral at Nantes, on death and eternity, concluded by remarking that he had preached Lenten sermons for the last 20 years in many places, and noticed almost invariably that within a week of his preaching someone among his hearers was called to his account. He rested a few moments after the sermon, and then, approaching the chancel, fell on the flagstones, dead.

French Brig Wrecked.

Halifax, N.S., April 8.—An unknown French brig, painted white and coppered high up, went ashore near Point Aconi, C. B., during the gale Saturday morning, and became a total wreck. Four of the crew left her in a boat soon after she struck, and, after great hardships, owing to the heavy gulf ice, managed to reach shore alive. The remainder of the crew, who remained on board, doubtless perished.

An Attack on London.

London, April 8.—In the volunteer cyclists' manoeuvres, ordered by the British War Office, the attack on London this morning proved that the military value of wheelmen is dependent on the weather. The attacking force out-generalled the defenders, but lost so many men in the rain and owing to the bad roads, that it was unable to attack in force at the proper time.

Big Alaskan Combine.

San Francisco, Cal., April 8.—Negotiations for a great combination of all the trading and transportation companies doing business in Alaska and the Northwest Territory are progressing. It is probable that the combination will be completed within a fortnight.

Russia Puts on the Screws.

London, April 8.—According to the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, import duties for Vladivostok have been raised on all American iron, steel and machinery.

You should not feel tired all the time—healthy people don't—you won't if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla for a while.

POPE LOOKS TO 1903.

Preparing to Celebrate the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of His Elevation.

Rome, April 8.—The Osservatore Romano, the organ of the Vatican, announces the appointment of a large committee under the presidency of Cardinal Respighi, the Pope's vicar, to take charge of arrangements for celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the elevation of Leo XIII. to the Pontificate, which will occur in 1903. The committee will invite Roman Catholic prelates and societies to prepare special prayers for the conservation of the Pope's health and strength.

All countries will be invited to organise pilgrimages to a sacred exhibition, which will be held in the Eternal City, probably in Vatican Park, and a grand monument designed to perpetuate the event will be unveiled by the Pope himself.

TROLLEY FELL INTO CANAL.

Through a Bridge Breaking—Forty Persons Were Injured.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 8.—While a car on the old East Side suburban line of the Syracuse Rapid Transit Company was crossing James street bridge, over the Oswego Canal in the heart of the city late Saturday afternoon, the bridge suddenly gave way, dropping the car and its 50 passengers to the canal bed 30 feet below. Several persons who were crossing the bridge at the time, went down with the car, while a horse and loaded wagon piled on top of the heap. About 40 persons were injured. It is not believed that any deaths will result.

The Pacific Cable.

Vancouver, B. C., April 8.— The R. M. S. Miowera sailed for Australia on Friday. Amongst her passengers were W. R. Peake, of the firm of Clark, Torder & Taylor, the firm responsible for the selection of the route and landing places of the Pacific cable. Mr. Peake stated that he had selected the landing place for the cable on the west coast of Vancouver Island, and was now en route for Brisbane, Queensland, to select a landing place there, afterwards proceeding to Sydney, N. S. W., to join the steamship Britannia, which had been sent out to aid him in selecting suitable landing places, and in the survey of the route from Queensland to New Zealand.

Cutting Wages in England.

London, April 8.—The signs that this country has reached the end of a series of fat years of industrial prosperity have alarmed the trade unionists. Last week the miners of the Northumberland district had to submit to a reduction of 21 per cent. in their wages, and at Cleveland the iron workers agreed to a reduction of 13½ per cent. These startling figures surprise no one who has watched the signs of the times for the last six months.

French Premier's Illness.

Paris, April 8.—There was no important change yesterday in the condition of M. Waldeck-Rousseau, and President Loubet, whose movements have materially been affected by the illness of the Premier, started for Nice on his way to Toulon to greet the visiting Italian squadron under the Duke of Genoa. M. Loubet was accompanied by M. Delcasse, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and General Andre, Minister of War.

Bowmanville Boy Dies From Wounds.

Bowmanville, Ont., April 8.—Thos Martyn, who was accidentally shot Friday, while constructing a footbridge across a stream, died Saturday morning. He is the youngest son of Mr. John B. Martyn, grocer, provision and hardware merchant, King street east, and was a very bright boy, in his 15th year. His bravery in walking over a quarter of a mile is something wonderful, as the charge shattered three ribs, badly lacerated his liver, and a portion of it entered one lung.

Serious Situation in Russia.

London, April 4.—The Vienna correspondent of The Times takes a serious view of the Russian political situation, believing that the first symptom of far-reaching military movements are confirmed by the reports of sanguinary disturbances in Pialyatok, where there is a university. The disorders there, in his opinion, show that the rioting is no longer confined to students.

Teamster Crushed to Death.

Hamilton, April 4.—George Bodden was killed last night in Rodger's coal yard, being crushed between a wagon and a post. Bodden was unhitching the horses when they started forward, and before he could get free he was jammed against an upright in the shed, and instantly killed.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Winnipeg, April 4.—Donald Todd was found guilty yesterday of manslaughter. He shot John Gordon over a year ago.

EASTER EGGS.

They Date Back to Ancient Times. How to Decorate Them.

All the traditions connected with the Easter egg, its decoration, cooking and eating, are, of course, decidedly old world, and yet there is some myth among the legends of the Inca Indians which tells of a magic egg and how it may be found in some mysterious spot, and of its wonderful power. Whether or not this is one of the superstitions of the far east which Manco Capac brought with him from the other side of the Pacific is altogether unknown, but certain it is that in Asia, Africa and Europe feasts were kept in most ancient times when the egg played a prominent part. The Jews used eggs in their feast of the Passover long before the coming of Christ. In Persia colored eggs are presented at the celebration of the solar New Year's, an extremely ancient custom with this people.

From Germany comes the singular connection of a rabbit with the Easter eggs. It is believed that this little animal steals into the house when all is quiet and hides a store of pretty eggs in most impossible places, giving the children, who must search for them, a great deal of trouble and excitement in finding them. The house mother prepares by procuring a quantity of eggs and colors them herself by wrapping them in colored calicoes, some plain and some figured.

To the country boy or girl of America Easter or "Paas," in rural vernacular, resolves itself first and foremost into a contest to see who can accumulate the greatest store of eggs, and, secondly, who can eat the most. For weeks before Easter the hens are the recipients of marked and unremitted attention. Their daily habits are closely scrutinized, and the "cut-cut-cut-ca-da-cut!" that announces a new contribution to the food supply of the country is the signal for a rush on the part of the children to obtain the coveted treasure.

Each child has long before this selected a hiding place in the fragrant haymow, and thither in secrecy the lucky finder bears each new addition. Then when Easter morning dawns the hoarded contents are all brought forth, and proud indeed is the lucky boy or girl whose "Paas" outnumbers his fellow's. Then the Easter breakfast! Boiled or fried, with juicy, pinky ham, egg after egg disappears until "the wonder grows how one small" stomach can hold the wealth of eggs committed to its care. At Sunday school Easter Sunday in all the hamlets of the state the story of the resurrection, it is safe to say, will be overshadowed in many a small boy's mind by the more present question, "How many eggs did you have for "Paas?"

In the simpler forms the eggs are swiftly colored in rainbow hues with aniline dyes, then daintily etched with a sharp pointed knife, or they are coated with metallic paints, or they are frosted with diamond dust. For decorating by whatever method the eggs are either hard boiled or the contents are blown out by means of a tiny hole at either end and the eggs are then finished with narrow ribbons for a hanging.

An exquisite greeting is this bit of nature's porcelain when transformed into a vase and filled with violets. The support for the vase is made of three pieces of bronzed wire, each three inches long, twisted together in the form of a tripod.

To make a vase, carefully break off the smaller end of the shell. Leave the edges jagged and gild them heavily. Decorate the outer shell with tiny sprigs of blue flowers in oil. A dainty bit of white and blue china is the result.

By tinting the shell a delicate yellow, gilding the jagged edges of the opening and then adding light designs in red and gold lines the vase is suggestive of royal Worcester.

A great variety of vases can be made. They should in every case be filled with dainty spring flowers.

Prior to the application of paints to the shell it must be well washed, thoroughly dried and rubbed with benzine. After this treatment there is no more difficulty in painting on eggshells than on paper.

Prettily decorated eggs nestling in the fragrant depths of flowers or in a nest of fresh grass breathe of glad springtime.

A quaint wooden shoe, gilded and supplied with white satin ribbons for carrying, may be filled with smilax, posies and eggs.

A large straw hat with ribbon handles in pale and deep green lined with sweet grass is a dainty nest for colored eggs. Eggs decorated with comic faces are much appreciated by the children.—New York Tribune.

PAIN IN THE JOINTS

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

Wage Dispute on the Central Railway of New York.

MAY TERMINATE IN A STRIKE.

Vice-President C. H. Warren Says He Cannot Make Any Prediction As to What Will Be Done on Either Side—Grand Chief Arthur Declines to Stand Around Awaiting Mr. Warren's Pleasure.

New York, April 9.—Neither employers nor employed have made a decisive move in the wage dispute that may terminate in a strike on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It is expected that the men will confer within the next 24 hours and agree upon a plan of action.

Vice-President Charles H. Warren, speaking for the railroad in a statement yesterday to the Associated Press, said:

"The brotherhood chiefs evidently do not know that it is a custom of railroads to close their general offices on Saturday afternoon. We were closed in usual custom Saturday afternoon, and in addition to that I was called away by other business. I think, under these circumstances, it was somewhat unusual for them to expect me to meet them at the time named by them. We want no dispute with our employes, and are prepared to pay them the wages paid by other railroads in the vicinity. We have asked our men to point out any specific case of treatment that is unfair, and agree to right any injustice that may be shown. I cannot make any prediction as to what will be done on either side."

Grand Chief Arthur Speaks.

Cleveland, O., April 9.—Grand Chief Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers arrived here yesterday. Discussing the interview with Vice-President Warren of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, Mr. Arthur said:

"We have made requests for conferences with Mr. Warren, vice-president and general manager of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and we have been unable to secure one. We do not propose to stand around here with our hands in our pockets awaiting the pleasure of Mr. Warren.

"We have performed the duty for which we were called. We have failed to obtain an audience with Mr. Warren, and it is impossible for us to break into his office. Having done all that we could do, and having failed, we have decided to return to our respective homes.

"We knew all about the Central office being closed Saturday afternoon. Our first communication to the officials of the company, asking for a conference, was sent on Wednesday last. Replies were received, but the officials did not agree to hold a conference with us."

Mr. Arthur has no authority to order a strike. The matter must first be voted upon by the members of the organization. Whether this will be done, Mr. Arthur declined to state.

Men and Money Involved

400 conductors at $1,080 per day.
450 engineers at $1,462.50 per day.
500 firemen at $1,125 per day.
1,000 trainmen at $2,100 per day.
200 telegraphers at $270 per day.
Total number of men employed, 2,550.
Total amount involved per diem, $6,037.50.

P. M. Arthur, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, has in many previous strikes shown a conservative spirit which has gone far toward reconciling the differences between the men and the railroad companies.

This quality of conservatism he exhibited to a marked degree in the Missouri Pacific and New York Central strikes, and in the great Pullman strike of 1894 his moderate counsels were the direct means of averting a serious catastrophe.

Strikes in Ottawa.

Ottawa, April 9.—The Journeyman Bakers' Union has refused to accept a wage scale submitted from the master bakers, offering $14 a week for foremen and $12 for journeymen. The men decided to stay out for their previous demand for $16 for foremen and $14 for journeymen.

The drivers for the Dominion Transportation Company went out on strike because the company was importing men from Montreal.

Anti-Vaccination Feeling.

Halifax, N. S., April 9.—The City Council and School Board both passed resolutions yesterday, disapproving of the action taken by the Board of Health in ordering a general vaccination in the city. The doctors appointed by the board to vaccinate the poor will not accept the fee of 25 cents for each case, and they have gone out on strike. They want 50 cents. The citizens generally are indignant at the action of the board, as there is no smallpox within 75 miles of the city.

A Cleric's Cold Bath.

Ottawa, April 9.—During the flood in New Edinburgh on Saturday, the Rev. N. Macleod took refuge on a lumber pile. A young man in a canoe volunteered to take him ashore, but while on his way the canoe upset and both were badly soaked, but escaped drowning.

Toronto, April 9.—There was not much change yesterday in the condition of Rev. Principal Caven of Knox College, who is seriously ill at his home in Spadina road.

Bubonic Plague in Egypt.

Died of His Injuries.

Ottawa, April 9.—Calixte Rivet, who was severely injured in the collapse of a building on Albert street on Good Friday, died last night in St. Luke's Hospital. Rivet's eyesight was destroyed by lime, and his left arm and leg fractured. An inquest has been called.

Flood Scare Subsiding.

Boston, April 9.—The flood scare all over New England, due to rising waters under the influence of nearly five days of rain, has flattened out, for late last night the reports indicated that a change for the better would come by daylight. The losses will be heavy.

Filipinos For U. S. Navy.

New York, April 9.—A special from Washington to The Herald says 500 natives of the Philippines will be enlisted for service on board the former Spanish gunboats and other small vessels which are to be maintained exclusively in the Philippines.

The Czar Contributes.

New York, April 9.—Czar Nicholas II. of Russia, it was announced yesterday, had given 2,000 rubles, or $1,000 toward the building fund of the Syrian-Greek Orthodox Church to be erected in Warren street, near Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn.

REBELLION IN CHINA.

Outbreak Headed by Gen. Tung Fu Sian Fully Confirmed.

THE COURT SERIOUSLY ALARMED

Li Hung Chang Believes Rumor and Thinks Sian and Prince Tuan, Associated With Him, Are Trying to Create a Diversion in Their Favor for Their Unconditional Protection.

Pekin, April 8.—The rumors which have been current during the past few days of the outbreak of a rebellion, headed by Gen. Tung Fu Sian (formerly commander of the Northern army), in the Province of Mongolia, and Shen Si, have been absolutely authenticated.

Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching have received information on the subject, which, though indefinite, still proves that the court is still seriously alarmed.

Gen Tung Fu Sian, according to last accounts, was about 150 miles from the court with 11,000 regular troops, all supposed to be devoted to him. The court has about the same number of soldiers at Sian Fu, but it is probable that the troops of Tung Fu Sian are better drilled and better armed.

What Li Thinks.

It is believed that the Mongolian rebellion was brought about through agents of Prince Tuan and Gen. Tung Fu Sian. Li Hung Chang thinks there are about 5,000 regular troops in Mongolia, and inclines to the belief that they have not joined in the rebellion. He does not think the court is in any danger, and thinks the object of Prince Tuan (who was last reported at Ning Hsu with 10,000 men, prepared to resist arrest, having been disgraced and exiled by Imperial edict), and Gen. Tung Fu Sian, is to create a diversion of interest in order to force unconditional protection of themselves.

May Have to Use Foreigners.

Unofficial Chinamen of intelligence regard the rising as most unfortunate at the present time to the interests of China, and as possibly meaning the use of foreign troops to protect even the court itself.

The Ministers of the powers do not think that any present interference is likely. If the dynasty should be overthrown, it would, to a certain extent, delay the peace negotiations, but they consider that a regime, not bound by traditions like those of the present court, would probably be much easier to deal with eventually.

Is About Bankrupt.

Pekin, April 8.—According to expert opinion, China would be able to pay from twenty to thirty million pounds sterling without crippling her financial resources, while the amounts which the powers at present demand aggregate from eighty million pounds to one hundred million pounds.

RUSSIA HUMILIATED.

London Times Says the Setback Is All the More Severe Because Japan Had Most to Say.

London, April 9.—In a despatch to The Times from Pekin, dated Saturday, Dr. Morrison comments upon the blow to Russian prestige in China resulting from the check to Russia's ambitions regarding Manchuria. "This blow is all the more severe," he says, because Japan, whom the Russians have affected to treat with the utmost contempt, has had the largest share in dealing it.

"There is little doubt that Russia will renew the struggle in some shape. It is a remarkable outburst of public feeling which has thus enabled China to withstand Russia. All the appeals against the convention concerning Manchuria were addressed to the Emperor. It is, therefore, difficult to believe that the Empress Dowager has not been affected by the defeat of the policy of which her henchman, Li Hung Chang, has pursued.

"The Emperor has summoned the President of the Board of Revenue from Pekin to prepare for the renewal of the court. Probably this only means a removal to Kai Fong Fu, in the Province of Honan, which would bring the court into closer contact with the Yangtse viceroys.

The Gainsborough Portrait.

London, April 9.—On his arrival in London, Mr. Agnew handed over the recovered picture to the clerks and detective, who deposited it in a safe in the office. Mr. Agnew says the statements to the effect that "Pat" Sheedy had anything to do with the recovery of the picture are not true, and that he, Mr. Agnew, did not pay any money in America. The bill for the detective work in the United States will be paid through Scotland Yard. He testifies to the fact that the picture is the original picture.

"A UNITED CANADA."

The Watchword Set by the Young Liberals of Toronto.

SENATOR DANDURAND'S SPEECH

Fact and Phrase Showed How Eloquent in English Many French-Canadian Public Men Are—A Withering and Complete Refutation of the Criminally Reckless Cries of French Domination.

Toronto, April 9.—The Young Liberals of Toronto made it very plain last night on which side they were when attempts were made to stir up racial and religious prejudices in Canada. Senator Dandurand of Montreal was their guest at their annual banquet, and the Senator made a speech which was a withering and complete refutation of the cries of French domination which a criminally reckless portion of the press and politicians of Ontario have been fomenting. His reply, which was put with a point and a command of fact and phrase which was an admirable example of how well many French-Canadian public men can speak the English language, aroused the enthusiasm of the guests to a high pitch, and the Senator will have on his return to his compatriots a tale to tell of enthusiasm for a united Canada and of compliment to the French-Canadian race, as represented by him, which cannot but prove gratifying. Nearly all of the subsequent speakers referred to the Senator's speech, and the tone of the meeting was enthusiasm for unity in Canada. A secondary but significant feature of the meeting was the interest manifested in transportation and railway problems.

Steel Corporation Takes Issue.

Chicago, April 9.—The Post yesterday says: For the first time the U. S. Steel Corporation has indicated its position in the marine engineers' strike yesterday by a clear-cut intimation to the Marine Engineers' Benevolent Association that it would not consider any demands upon the part of the Engineers' Union, that its boats be taken out of the Lake Carriers' Association. If the employes of the Steel Corporation desire to take up any grievances they would be respectfully received and the grievances taken under consideration. The right of the Engineers' Union to say whether the boats belonging to the steel trust should be enrolled in the Lake Carriers' Association or not, was flatly disclaimed.

What Caused the Drop.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 2. — The State engineers who have been investigating the James Street Canal bridge disaster in this city Saturday evening, have about come to the conclusion that the accident was caused by blowholes in the iron of the centre truss. Some further investigation will be made before a formal report is rendered. Work on a temporary structure for the traffic of the street will commence this morning. Of the 40 victims of the accident all but three are out of danger.

The Danger Is Passed.

St. John, N. B., April 9.—The danger from wash-outs is over, but at Fredericton a serious state of affairs exists. The ice has started in the river, and it went yesterday at the rate of seven miles an hour, smashing the railroad bridge so badly that the trains cannot cross. Several warehouses on the river front were also carried away. Trains on the short line can only run to St. George, on account of the wash-outs.

Vermont Streams Are Filled.

Burlington, Vt., April 9.—Vermont streams are filled to their banks, but as yet no serious damage has been done. The only thing which prevents an overflow is the fact that the continued rain in the lowlands turned to snow on higher hills and mountains, and unless the weather becomes warmer so that the immense body of snow melts rapidly, there is little danger, as the snow in the valleys has all disappeared.

Anti-Clerical Mobs in Spain.

Madrid, April 9.—Large and excited anti-clerical meetings at Malaga, Corunna and elsewhere have passed resolutions demanding that the Government expel the religious orders from Spain. At Corunna, the manifestants paraded, shouting: "Down with the Jesuits," and "Down with the Convents." They stoned the Jesuits' College and the offices of the clerical newspapers.

A THEATRE BURNED.

Destruction of the Russell at Ottawa—Russell House Burned.

Ottawa, April 9, 2 a. m.—The Russell Theatre, generally admitted to be amongst the most beautiful buildings of the kind in Canada, has been burning far half an hour and is certain to be a total loss. The Russell House, immediately adjoining the theatre, is in imminent peril.

The guests are hastily removing in cabs to other hotels.

The City Hall, directly opposite the theatre, is being covered with sparks and cinders and it may catch at any time. The firemen have withdrawn their ladders from between the theatre and City Hall, as there is danger of the theatre wall falling. Fortunately everything is thoroughly soaked with the rain that has prevailed here for the past week, and the danger of the fire spreading is not so great as it otherwise might be. The fire was first discovered over the stage, overlooking the canal. The Belle of New York company played to crowded houses this afternoon and evening, and have lost everything.

Later—The fire is under control, and the Russell House Hotel is saved.

Loubet Laughs at Assassins.

London, April 9.—A despatch to The Evening News from Paris, says that the French detectives were privately informed of a projected attempt to assassinate President Loubet during his coming trip: Extraordinary precautions have been taken everywhere, and the usual police protection has been doubled. Outsiders have been excluded from the railroad stations. Ten thousand soldiers have been detailed to maintain order during the French President's stay at Nice, where stringent orders have been issued to suppress rigorously the slightest hostile demonstration. President Loubet is inclined to laugh at the detectives' fears that an attempt will be made upon his life.

Dyspepsia

Is difficult digestion, due to a weakened condition of the stomach and its inability to properly churn the food; or to unhealthy condition of the gastric juice, too much or too little acid, too much or too little pepsin.

Hood's Sarsaparilla relieves all the distressing symptoms of dyspepsia because it promotes the muscular action of the stomach and intestines, aids nature in the manufacture of her own digestive secretions, which are far better than any artificial pepsin, unlocks the bowels, stimulates the kidneys and tones up their mucous membranes.

So prompt is its effect in many cases that it seems to have almost a magic touch.

Begin to take it NOW.

Suffered Everything—"I was troubled with dyspepsia, suffered everything but death, could not eat without terrible distress. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I eat heartily and I am well." MRS. EUGENE MURPHY, Danbury, Conn.

Eat Three Times a Day—"Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured me of dyspepsia and I never felt better. Can eat three good meals every day." FRED POEHLER, 437 South Penna St., Indianapolis, Ind.

DYSPEPSIA CURED.

The Case of Miss Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., Proves Beyond a Doubt that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure Even the Most Stubborn and Chronic Cases of Stomach Trouble.

Dyspepsia is no respector of persons. Young and old, rich and poor alike suffer the tortures of this dread disease. There are very few who entirely escape.

That it can be cured is no longer a matter of doubt. Theories are often exploded, but nothing can overcome the deductions which result from actual experiences.

Many have claimed to have discovered a remedy for dyspepsia. The theories advanced have been plausible and seemingly reasonable, but when the proposed medicines have been subjected to the actual test they have been found wanting.

Previous to the discovery of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets no medicine had ever successfu ly attacked and defeated all kinds of stomach trouble. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have never failed.

Miss Maggie Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., is an example. Briefly this is what she says:—"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and stomach weakness for four years. I could not get any relief. I heard of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and bought some. They relieved me instantly, and I have not been troubled since. I am completely cured."

Miss Gallant's experience adds another to the already long list of perfect cures effected by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is positively no case of stomach trouble (except cancer) that Dodd's Dyspepsia tablets will not cure.

This is a strong statement, but it is made without any qualification whatever, and the experience of every dyspeptic who has tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets has confirmed it. Its truth cannot be denied.

Thousands of people have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and never in a single case have they failed to cure. Many cases have been of long standing and very acute, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have completely cured. They'll cure you. Try them and be convinced.

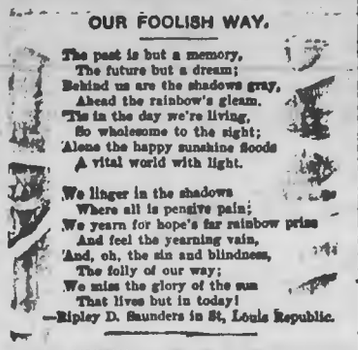
OUR FOOLISH WAY.



The past is but a memory,
The future but a dream;
Behind us are the shadows gray,
Ahead the rainbow's gleam.
'Tis in the day we're living,
So wholesome to the sight;
Alone the happy sunshine floods
A vital world with light.

We linger in the shadows
Where all is pensive pain;
We yearn for hope's far rainbow prize
And feel the yearning vain,
And, oh, the sin and blindness,
The folly of our way;
We miss the glory of the sun
That lives but in today!

—Ripley D. Saunders in St. Louis Republic.

DEAR OLD BOY.

How a Persecuted Girl Took His Advice.

"You are particular tonight," said Second Lieutenant Dill. "Your tie's all right, and what does it matter, anyway? It's only a little hop, and you don't dance."

Major Sayres, retired, rather bald, his mustache iron gray, grinned grimly at Dill's reflection in the looking glass. Then he glanced downward at a waistband of comfortable dimensions and a pair of neatly shod feet. Finally he pirouetted with great agility and kicked high at the electric light. The lieutenant laughed loudly and clapped his hands.

"Bravo!" cried he, with boyish impertinence. "Rather good for a has-been."

The toe of the major's right shoe wiggled gently, as though it were tempted. The major said simply:

"Which would you rather be called, Dill, by Miss Bain—uncle or brother?"

"That's not fair, major," he said. "When I asked your counsel, I did not think you would taunt me."

"Pshaw, my lad," said the major paternally. "You once told me yourself that I was old enough to take the place of your father. Accept the jest filially then. I don't believe Miss Bain really cares for Prince Paccadini."

"Of course she doesn't!" cried Dill. "But—the title, and—she's ridiculously obedient to her mother. As for loving him, why, honestly, major, I think she loves even you better."

"See if the carriage is ready," said the major, slipping on a light greatcoat.

"I've a good mind," the young lieutenant mused as he obeyed his senior, "to ask old Sayres to put in a word for me with Kitty. I guess he would. He's such a good old boy, and he says himself it's a shame such wealth should leave the country."

He laughed again as he recalled the pas seul of the retired warrior.

"High kicking, like a colt, and he must be 50. I shall make her laugh over that. Poor old boy."

They drove together to the Bain cottage and found the music already playing. The popularity of "old Sayres" was very evident.

"Dear old major—so obliging and unselfish and so reliable!" said the chaperon.

"Dear old major! It's a pity he's so poor and getting old. He's more fun than half the younger men," said the girls.

"Good old boy! When a man's in doubt, ask the major," said the young men.

The major managed to enjoy two dances, the second with his little favorite, the heiress, Emily Bain. Then he handed her over to Dill with a laugh and an elaborate sigh.

"It's sad, when I could dance all night. However, I yield you to good hands, Miss Bain. Dill's my peculiar care, you know, and, though he's only an untitled American officer, I beseech your goodness for him. Princes are proverbially"—

"Major," said the girl, "how often have I told you that I would rather be, if I were a man, an American officer than anything else?"

A young looking matron, who would hardly have been taken for Miss Bain's mother, signed to the veteran with her eyes to come to her. As she did so, Prince Paccadini moved from her side. The man of age worn titles looked sullen. Mrs. Bain looked annoyed.

"Major," she said, "I think we had better do it tonight and put a stop to Em's caprices."

"Is she naughty again?" Sayres asked. "She promised me to be good."

"Good! The poor prince is furiously jealous, and no wonder. Look at her! Her eyes are simply beaming upon that young pauper, Dill. You have such influence over these young men I wonder you do not tell him at once that he's making a—a fool of himself. Em's not going to marry a poor nobody. I wish you would, major, like the dear old fellow you always are."

"Old?" said the major.

"I am old, and you are immensely older than I am; so don't be angry. At any rate, you are old enough to trust."

"What is it you are going to do tonight?" Sayres asked abruptly.

"Announce Em's engagement to the prince and put a stop to all this nonsense."

"Without Em's consent?"

"She's a good, sensible girl when she takes time to think. She will see the folly of throwing away such a chance."

"For happiness?"

"Of course. For place and power, with wealth. Is not that happiness?"

The major smiled. Mothers are very young sometimes and have not lost the traditional selfishness of youth. The major fancied that Mrs. Bain realized very well that place and power would accrue in their just measure to the still youthful and handsome mother-in-law of a prince.

"So," said the lady determinedly, "you have my full authority to announce the betrothal."

"Wouldn't you—ah—wait to speak to Em? It might be something of a shock."

"No. Take her by surprise. She'll yield, the foolish child."

Sayres moved off into the crowd of guests and sought out Dill.

"Dill," he said, "don't shy; don't swear; don't give yourself away. I have our hostess' authority to announce Miss Bain's engagement to Prince Paccadini."

Dill turned white, but never moved.

"Emil—Miss Bain—has just told me that she was not engaged to the prince or anybody else, and, and—in fact, I hoped that—oh, da"—

"Don't swear. The best thing Miss Bain can do, if she won't be forced into this marriage, is to assert herself boldly and at once. Why don't you assist her?"

"I? What can I do?"

"'Oh, young Lochinvar is come out of the west,'" the major quoted with a wink.

Dill jumped at the spur.

"Major," he said, his eyes lit up, "if it were possible! Would she? By Jove! I could do it. Her mother would never consent, and—and enough of our beauties have gone to foreign countries already."

"And of our wealth."

"Two million," said Dill excitedly. "It's a ghastly shame! Though, of course, as you know, major, that is nothing to me."

"Certainly not," said the good old boy. "I might, for Miss Bain's sake, help her out of the very unpleasant position her mother has forced her into, Dill."

"You dear old chap! What shall I do? I shall speak to Em at once."

"'Twould 'tract 'tenshun," the major murmured, catching Dill's arm. "I shall see her myself. Leave it to me."

"Major," cried Dill, "you are the best old fellow in the world, and Em and I shall never forget it. Of course we all know you are sometimes pressed. Anything I can do after my marriage"—

The major puffed a little bit. Men of his age, growing stout, are liable to puff. Dill did not notice it.

"This night will be worth ten thousand to you," whispered Dill enthusiastically, and again the toe of Sayres' right boot wiggled instinctively.

It was toward the end of the supper that the daring elopement became known—toward the end of a supper during which Prince Paccadini had been congratulated until his graceful smile seemed fixed on his face. Miss Bain's sudden sickness and absence in her room for awhile had been ascribed to her modest desire to postpone her share of these congratulations. Dill's departure had been attributed to chagrin. Therefore, when a maid whispered in the hostess' ear, startled people saw Mrs. Bain flop in a faint. She recovered quickly. Paccadini stood out, dignified, but disappointed.

"She is mad!" cried madam. "That scoundrel, Dill, has taken her by force! Prince, I myself shall restore her to your arms. Where is Major Sayres? He will help me. He loved Em like a daughter."

"The old boy slipped off before supper," some one said. "He's probably tucked in bed at his hotel."

"Send for him!" cried Mrs. Bain. "Prince, I don't know how to apologize to you! I won't wait for Sayres! I'll go myself! Prince, stay here, please, and it will all be explained. That young villain, Dill! Emily must have known he cared more for her money than for her. Prince, I am humiliated dreadfully. Pray forgive! I shall horsewhip Dill myself! Prince, be calm! My poor abducted daughter! Oh, that wicked young man! Prince, embrace me! I am beside myself! My darling Emily! My dear prince!"

Once more there was mounting in hot haste. With luck, they might catch the fugitives before the western express stopped at S., 12 miles away. They had luck. They caught the train, and they caught Dill, and Dill had a dreadful time of it between screeches and hauls and pushes and maledictions and the dodging of Mrs. Bain's horsewhip.

"I don't know where she is!" he yelled at last from behind a chair in a corner of the hotel room. "I've been fooled and trapped! It's a ghastly fraud! Where's Sayres?"

"Sayres!"

"Yes, Sayres! He was to bring her here to me!"

"Sayres?"

Mrs. Bain screamed and fainted again.

A groom galloped up.

"Major Sayres and Miss Emily, they druv off an hour ago at a gallop, mum, in the opp'site direction, mum, you went, and I did my best to catch up and tell you, but you traveled that hard"—

"Major Sayres! That dear old boy! Impossible!" the crowd gasped.

It was quite possible, as Emily's letter explained a week afterward.

"I was worried to desperation, mother, by your determination to marry me off. I could not bear it! You always told me to listen to the major's advice, and I have. Among all the men about me, most of whom were running after my money, I believe he was the only honest one. So I gave him some advice at last, which may have been unmaidenly, but, as I say, I was desperate. I'm sorry for Lieutenant Dill. The part he played seemed rather hard on him, but the major said it would serve him jolly well right and teach him to be respectful to his seniors. The major always acts for the best, and I know I shall be very, very happy with him, for he is such a dear, dear old boy."—New York Sun.

She Saw the Point.

"Hereafter," said the progressive woman, "I shall cease to be Mrs. John Smith. There is no reason why a woman should lose her individuality because she marries, and, like other advanced women, I shall insist upon being Mrs. Margaret Smith socially as well as in my club work. Even my calling cards shall be thus engraved."

"What would you think of me," asked the mean man, "if I worked to get something as if it were the only thing on earth worth having and then threw it away as soon as I have secured possession of it?"

"I should say you didn't know your own mind," answered the aggressive woman.

"Precisely," said the mean man.

"But I don't see the application," persisted the aggressive woman. Just the same a dangerous glitter appeared in her eyes, and a moment later she exclaimed, "I didn't exert myself to get your old name, so there, now."—Chicago Post.

Humors

Come to the surface in the spring as in no other season. It's a pity they don't run themselves all off that way; but in spite of pimples and other eruptions, they mostly remain the system. That's bad.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them and and cures all the painful and disfiguring troubles they cause. Nothing else clears the system and clears the complexion bright and clear.

A Sympathetic Memory.

In a western Massachusetts town lives a young woman who is blessed with both discrimination and tact.

The first of these admirable qualities she has displayed by her two marriages. Her first husband was a minister, a most delightful man. He died, and after a lapse of five or six years she was united to his only brother, who was a successful lawyer in New York.

On her library desk stands a picture of the first partner of her joys and sorrows, and one day a curious caller asked whom the photograph represented.

"That," said the hostess, with evident emotion, "is a picture of my husband's brother, who died eight years ago and who was very dear to us both."—Youth's Companion.

Generous.

"What's your fare?" asked old Flintskin of his cabby the other day and was met with the stereotyped reply:

"Well, sir, I will leave that to you."

"Thank you; you're very kind," said old F., buttoning up his pockets and walking off. "You're the first person who ever left me anything yet"

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

EMPHATIC PROOF

IN FAVOR OF DOAN'S PILLS AS A CURE FOR KIDNEY COMPLAINT.

SUSSEX, N.B., March 10th, 1899.

THE DOAN KIDNEY PILL CO.,
Toronto, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—Some time ago I was troubled with Kidney Complaint which was almost unendurable.

I was so bad that I was laid up in bed for four months.

I tried several doctors but they would only help me for a very short time and the trouble would come back and be as bad as ever.

I heard Doan's Pills well spoken of and procured a box determining to give them a fair trial, and by the time I had taken them I was completely cured.

I can faithfully recommend them to all suffering from kidney troubles.

Yours truly,
GEORGE GADSOE.

THE EASTER LILY.

It Has Held a High Place In Religious Worship For Ages.

While all the flowers of spring find a welcome place in the decorations of the day and win admirers, the white lily (L. candidum) is par excellence the Easter flower. A native of the Levant, growing wild in most Mediterranean countries, it has for years been considered emblematic of purity and hope. The Greeks called it the flower of Juno and told this myth in explanation of its origin. "Jupiter," they said, "wished to make his boy Hercules one of the gods. So he snatched him from the bosom of his earthly mother, Alcmena, and bore him to the breast of Juno. The milk is spilled from the full mouthed boy as he traverses the sky, making the Milky Way, and what drops below stars and clouds and touches earth stains the ground with lilies." As the emblem of purity it was contrasted with the passion rose of Aphrodite, and beauty was represented crowned with white lilies and violets, types of purity and modesty.

The lotus holds chief place in all oriental mythologies, its antiquity extending far beyond the limits of Grecian mythmaking. The Egyptians spoke of it as the throne of Osiris, the god of day, and they are represented on monuments as holding the white lotus in their hands at banquets. As a symbol of purity and benediction the lily was chiseled on the pillars of Solomon's temple and ornamented the great golden candlestick. While honored by specific mention by our Lord, truth compels the statement that the probabilities are against the lily having been the flower particularly referred to.

The lily is not common in the flora of Palestine, and some think it must have been the red anemone, with which the Galilean hillsides are covered in springtime, that suggested the beautiful figure in the sermon on the mount. Others advance arguments in favor of asphodel, amaryllis and narcissus. Whichever it was, and it is not impossible, though improbable, that it was our lily, the figure remains a most beautiful and effective one and has doubtless had a wonderful and wide-reaching effect in giving the lily an added charm and sacredness wherever Christianity has established itself.—Philadelphia Press.

VESTRY MEETINGS HELD LAST NIGHT.

Meeting of the Congregations of St. Johns and St. Lukes.

ANNUAL BUSINESS REPORTS.

Church Affairs in Both Parishes Appear to be in a Very Flourishing Condition.

The annual vestry meeting of St. John's church was held last night in the Sunday school room, the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, presiding. After the usual opening ceremony, the minutes of the last meeting of the vestry were read and on motion adopted.

Rev. J. C. Davidson then addressed the meeting concerning the work of the church during the past year and the work that would likely have to be undertaken during the ensuing twelve months. He asked for full discussion of the financial statement of the church wardens, and speaking of the work in view, the chairman referred to the matter of the decorations of the church, and the advisability of taking immediate steps towards putting the church property, particularly the Sheridan street houses, in better condition.

The Church Wardens' report was presented by Mr. F. D. Kerr, who stated that the general income of the church compared favourably with that of preceding years, there being an increase of about $30 in the past year. The special collections for outside objects had not been so good as usual, perhaps owing to the fact that many had given increased contributions through the Woman's Auxiliary to the church. There had been a large increase in the expenditure, including lighting and heating, amongst these items being $130 for furnaces, with the result there was a small balance against the church, which would be cleared off if the subscriptions and pew rents were collected. The organ had been renewed at an expense of $150, and several other improvements effected which had been absolutely necessary. An increased revenue was needed to meet the increased expenditure.

The report was, on motion of Mr. A. P. Poussette, received, referred to the auditors, and ordered to be printed and distributed amongst the members of the congregation.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun spoke freely concerning the report, in which he touched upon the matter of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund, which is not in a very healthy condition.

The next order of business was the election of church wardens. The Rector thanked all those who had assisted him in managing the affairs of the church, and he wished to thank particularly Mr. Wilson who had been his warden for the past year. Mr. Kerr, he felt sure had the sincere thanks of the vestry as well as the thanks of the Rector. Rev. Mr. Davidson then asked Mr. John Bell to be his warden for the next term. In doing so, the loyal works of Mr. Bell and his family in connection with the affairs of the church was referred to. Mr. Bell in accepting, thanked the Rector for the very complimentary reference to him and assured the meeting that he would fill the position to the best of his ability.

Both Mr. McFarlane Wilson and Mr. F. D. Kerr, last years wardens did not care to act again although pressed to do so. As the meeting was small and it was not thought advisable to appoint anyone to the position of church warden in his absence, the retiring wardens and Mr. Bell, the new warden, were appointed a committee to nominate a warden at the adjourned meeting, two weeks hence.

The following sidesmen were appointed: Messrs. John Fanning, W. G. Howden, William Hinchcliffe, Edward Johnston Percy Clarke and Mr. Lush.

Representative to Central Charity Board—H. Rush.

Representative on Nicholls Hospital Board—A. P. Poussette.

Advisory Board—Messrs. H. Long, R.M. Dennistoun, Peter Campbell, A. P. Poussette, Dr. Boucher, Dr. Halliday, H. Rush, R. Fair, F. D. Kerr and McF. Wilson.

Auditors—Messrs. F. D. Kerr and Harold Cluxton.

The meeting then adjourned for two weeks.

St. Luke's Vestry Meeting.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. Luke's church was held last night in the comfortable vestry of the church, Rev. H. Symonds presiding. After prayers Messrs. Adams and Peck presented the Warden's report, in which it was stated that although the current expenditure this year was exceptionally heavy owing to the installation of water into the church and rectory, and the payment of three years' insurance premium on the church buildings, all had been met, and there was a small balance on hand. Next year's fuel had also been purchased and paid for. The average collection showed an increase of $1.00 over last year, without taking into account the splendid Easter collection of $307.

The report gave great satisfaction to the meeting, and Messrs. Jameson and Warde were appointed auditors to report at the adjourned vestry meeting next Monday.

Mr. F. Adams was unanimously re-elected People's Warden. In acknowledging his election, Mr. Adams said that it was a pleasant office in a church where the people gave so liberally without putting the Wardens to the trouble of making a special appeal.

Rev. H. Symonds nominated Mr. E. A. Peck, who, however, asked to be allowed to resign from the position, which he had held for over three years. Mr. Symonds referred to the admirable manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of his office. It was the unanimous wish of those to whom he had spoken of the matter that he should renominate Mr. Peck. He added that in the event of a change it was desirable to advance an assistant warden to the office. It, therefore, gave him the greatest pleasure to nominate one of the oldest and staunchest members of the congregation, Mr. Adam Dawson.

Messrs. J. Z. Rogers and A. O. Sawyer were elected assistant wardens, and the meeting left the nomination of sidesmen to the rector, who will report at the adjourned Vestry Meeting. The finance committee will also be elected then. Hearty votes of thanks were passed to the organist and choir, the officers and teachers of the Sunday school, the chapters of the guild, the sidesmen, the sexton and the press of the town for their valuable services. The meeting then adjourned.

At the subsequent meeting Messrs. Jameson, Peck and Warde were re-elected delegates to the Synod.

The attention of the congregation was drawn to the fact that the adjourned Vestry Meeting and annual congregational social will be held next Monday, April 15th. This social has come to be one of the pleasantest gatherings of the entire year, and it is earnestly hoped that all members of the church will contribute by their presence to its success.

A RESOLUTION.

Carpenters' and Joiners' Union go on Record.

Mr. J. E. Haggart, recording secretary of Carpenters' and Joiners' Union No. 672, Peterborough, has handed THE EXAMINER the following resolution, which was passed at the meeting of the union last night:—

"Whereas a telegram was read by Mr. Ralph Smith, M. P., in the House of Commons at Ottawa making reference to and purporting to give information in regard to one of Peterborough's industries, namely, the Auburn Woolen Mills, in the name of the labor unions of the town, being signed by R. F. McGregor, chairman of the associated unions of labor men of Peterborough, the Carpenters' and Joiners' Union No. 672, at its first regular meeting since this occurrence, desires to place on record the following facts, making clear its position in regard to the matter:—

"That Mr. McGregor had no authority to speak for this union; that there is no such organization in Peterborough as the 'associated unions,' or 'associated labour men'; that we fail to see in what way the cause or interests of labour were to be advanced by the statement made in the telegram, or the use that was made of it, and we therefore regret that the name of Peterborough's labour unions should have been made use of without authority and in a connection that is more liable to cause friction and dissension among the unions and their members, and place them in a false position before the citizens of the town, as regards our industrial interests, and in doing so this union takes occasion to express its endorsation of all reasonable efforts that have been made and are being put forth to develop Peterborough as an industrial centre, and hopes and trusts that all the factories we now have, and any which may come here in the future, may enjoy prosperity and be allowed to remain under conditions that will insure profitable operation for the capital invested and fair wages and hours for all employed therein; and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the local Member at Ottawa, to be read in the House of Commons, and also sent to the local press, so as to place this union's position and the facts before the Parliament of Canada and the Peterborough public."

REFINED HUMOUR.

Macy Delighted his Audience at the Opera House Last Night.

Macy, the humourist and buffo-basso singer, drew only a fair house last evening but the entertainment which he gave ranks him among the first flight of monologue artists. His humour was refined, keen wit, and that he was appreciated by those present was amply testified by the liberal applause which was so unstintedly bestowed. Mrs. T. Mowat of town, was the accompanist, and her exquisite touch marked her as a musician of high standing.

This was the third of the course of concerts which is being given under the auspices of All Saints' choir. Two more of equally good quality will follow.

For twenty-four years Vapo-Cresolene has been extensively used for all forms of throat and bronchial troubles. All Druggists.

COUNTY POLICE COURT.

Several Cases up Before Police Magistrate Edmison this Morning.

J. E. Thurston, a young lad of about 16 years, had Wm. Metcalf up before County Magistrate Edmison this morning on a charge of non-payment of wages. Metcalf was not present when the case was called, and the magistrate made out an order for $6.00, the amount of plaintiff's claim and costs.

There was a big crowd on hand at the County Police Court this morning, consisting almost entirely of residents from the vicinity of Bridgenorth. An old gentleman and his wife from that place were charged with being the keepers of a house of ill-fame, and a 16 year old girl, said to be a daughter, was charged with being an inmate of the same. A large number of witnesses were summoned, but in the absence of two witnesses which the Crown deemed most important, the case was enlarged until Monday morning next at 10 o'clock.

The man, woman and girl, who have been in custody for several days, were allowed at large upon their own undertaking to appear on Monday.

THE FIRST MARCH-OUT

Of the 57th Regiment Will Take Place To-night.

To-night will witness the first march-out of the season of the 57th Regiment. At 8 o'clock sharp, according to present arrangements the regiment will parade down George street headed by the band. Owing to the bad state of the streets with mud the march out will be necessarily short, and the men will return to the drill shed and be put through company drill.

Every available man is urged to turn out and make the parade to-night one of which all may feel proud. The importance of all being on hand early is also strongly urged.

Denne and the entire Town Council, Warden Graham and several members of the Victoria County Council, Mayor Ingle, of Lindsay, Mayor Phillips, of Trenton, J. M. Kilbourn, Manager of Cement Works, Lakefield, Reeve Smith, of Campbellford, and many others.

A PLEASANT EVENING.

With the Members of the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's.

The "At Home" given by the members of the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's Cathedral in the rooms of the Total Abstinence Society last night, proved to be a most delightful affair, and those attending passed a most pleasing evening. The ladies who had the function under their direction are indeed to be congratulated on the success which attended it.

Excellent music was furnished throughout the evening by Miss Ada Doris.

THE ENDEAVOUR CONVENTION.

THE COUNTY UNION MEET IN ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Very Encouraging Reports From the Societies—A Social Tea.

The tenth annual convention of the Peterborough Endeavour Union met in St. Andrew's church Monday afternoon at 2.15 p.m, the Rev. W. A. Gunton, President, in the chair.

The Secretary, Rev. J. G. Potter, led in the devotional exercises.

The President expressed his delight that so many were in attendance at the opening of the convention.

He then called the Rev. J. McP. Scott, B.A., of Toronto, who made a most practical address on "The responsibilities of Young People's Societies to Foreign Missions." After describing the condition of heathendom to-day, he found that four things were needed: (1) A vision of the world's need. (2) A new ministry of prayer. Above money, missionaries, etc., is the ministry of prayer. (3) A new standard of the ministry of Christian giving, e.g. A society of 35 members gave in 1894 $50. Some young people gathered together a missionary library and in 1895 $106; in 1896 $200. In 1897 a young man came and offered self for service and $1000 contributed for the missionary. He strongly urged deeper interest, and all present were deeply impressed.

Rev. A. W. Lorrie, of Norwood, gave a most inspiring address on "Consecration." The subject was one that had to do with every Christian. In the word of God many examples were given of those who had led to the world's salvation being all filled with the Holy Ghost.

The Rev. D. A. Thompson followed with a most interesting address on "Witness Bearing." The chief duty of every Christian as well as his highest privileges was to be a true witness of Christ.

The addresses led to a very profitable afternoon.

The Rev. C. L. Thomas, of Ashburnham, conducted the Conference on "Problems in Young Peoples' Work," which was followed by reports from the various Societies throughout the county. All the reports given showed deep interest in Endeavour work.

Those contributing to the musical programme were: Miss Hendren, Miss Kindred, Mr. Watson, Miss VanEvery and Miss Weddell.

The County Executive for thr ensuing year was chosen as follows:

Hon. President—Rev. W. A. Gunton.
President—F. W. Walden.
Vice-President—Rev. D. A. Thompson.
Sec-Treas—Miss Sherlock.
Executive Committee — Messrs. Geo. Shearer, J. M. Roberts, R. S. Merrill, D. Edwards, W. Breckenridge, S. Taylor and the resident ministers.

At six o'clock an excellent tea was serven to the delegates in the Sunday School room, and at 8 o'clock the evening session opened.

After the opening exercises the new president, Mr. F. W. Walden, was introduced and spoke fittingly in response to the warm commendation of the retiring occupant of the chair.

Mr. Potter was called upon to explain the new departure of the Endeavour Society, which had decided to come as closely as possible into relations with the Y. M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A. and Sabbath school workers.

Mrs. H. P. Kennedy extended greetings on behalf of the Y. W. C. A., and gave some interesting particulars about the Association, which has branches on every continent, and a membership of about 3,000,000. Touching the work of the local branch, Mrs. Kennedy spoke of the success of the Sunshine Society and of the educational work. The association has a junior class composed of children from 6 to 14, who are taught sewing on Saturday afternoons. The Endeavorers were cordially invited to visit the rooms at 168 Brock street. Young women visitors in town are invited to spend their time at the rooms while waiting for trains. They will find homelike surroundings, reading matter, etc.

Mr. George Williamson spoke for the Y.M.C.A., telling of the good work done by the association in extending wholesome influences to strangers.

After a solo by Miss Godfrey, the Rev. Robert Harkness, of Renfrew, who has spent seven years in Japan, delivered a thoughtful and vigorous address on the subject, "The Worker's Outfit."

Rev. D. O. Crossley followed with "Impressions from Abroad," giving an account of his observations in California, where he found "devilish wickedness," and attributed much of it to the fact that the maiority of the people do not keep the Sabbath.

After a delightfully rendered solo by Miss Myrtal Hendron, and a vote of thanks to those who had assisted the Endeavourers, the meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Robt. Harkness.

In spite of exceedingly disagreeable weather the attendance was large, and the convention is pronounced the most successful yet held.

KEEP SILENCE.

"No One Will Grieve Because Your Lips Are Dumb."

Art suffering, striken even unto death?
Speak not thy woe:
The thoughtless world and busy, wrecks not though
"Twere thy last breath.

Too sensitive, too exquisitely fine
This race of ours,
To look upon a wasted form like thine
That pain devours,

Or touch the burden that doth on the lie
With finger tips:
Only to Heaven may earth's sufferers cry
With anguished lips.

Brush back the starting tear and give no sign,
Hide thou thy pain;
When falls the death-dew on this brow of thine
Smile, yet again.

E. E. M.

MOTHER.

Now she is gone, hide we with flowers her bier,
And laud her virtues to the arching skies;
Enough of blame she bore while with us here,
And roughened pathway; many a bitter tear
Have wayward children wrung from love-lit eyes.

Ever she held us back—we might not go
The easy way and wide, down to death's night.
Bravely she battled with the unseen foe;
Though wounded, blooding, suffering blow on blow.

Never, while life endured, gave up the fight.
Poor, martyred mother! Even from the grave
Thy love, undying, hovers round to save.

IT IS IMPORTANT.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages.

CANCER,

THE MOST MALIGNANT DISEASE TO CURE.

The action of B. B. B. on Cancer is first felt by reducing the pain, afterwards the healing commences restoring a healthy condition to the flesh surrounding the parts affected.

TREATMENT:—Bathe freely with B.B.B., and take internally according to directions. Three bottles will prove its efficacy for relieving or curing any kind of cancer.

MR. GEO. MEGGISON, of QUINN, ONT., writes under date of Dec. 17th, 1900, of the wonderful benefit he has received from the use of B. B. B. for cancer on the throat, from which he has been suffering for seventeen years:

"Seventeen years ago a cancer formed on my throat just beside the wind-pipe.

"I doctored with several physicians, but they failed to give me a particle of relief.

Some of them advised an operation, others cautioned against it as the cancer was in such a delicate place.

But to make a long story short, for seven years I suffered untold agony, until at last the cancer broke and discharged a thick bloody matter, after this it would heal up and a scab would form, but would eventually drop off and leave the opening larger than before. I suffered this terrible agony until a short time ago, when I happened to read of Burdock Blood Bitters being good for cancer, and I decided to procure a bottle, but hardly had faith in anything and did not dare to think of it giving me any relief.

However, I started applying it to the sore with a piece of cotton. I also took the B. B. B. internally according to directions.

I had not used the treatment long before I could notice a great change for the better, and believe by continuing its use I will ere long be permanently cured. I cannot too highly recommend B. B. B. to any person who is troubled with cancer.

HEROIC MRS. BOTHA.

PART PLAYED BY BOER GENERAL'S WIFE IN SECURING PEACE.

How She Persuaded Her Stern Soldier Husband to Meet Kitchener and Milner in Conference—She Is a Daughter of Ireland.

The happiest woman in South Africa today is probably Mrs. Louis Botha, wife of the commanding general of the Boer forces. She succeeded in bringing about a conference between General Kitchener and her husband regarding a means of ending the South African war.

Love was the motive power that induced Mrs. Botha to attempt the seemingly impossible. She is a descendant of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot, and the thought that she would have to treat with the foes not only of her country, but of her ancestors, must have stirred all the antagonism bequeathed to her from the past. But she remembered the beautiful Botha farm in Vryheid and the four children who called her mother and began her efforts for peace.

All that this meant in sacrifice of pride and race prejudice, what intensity of devotion moved her to the attempt, she alone can tell. The influence of that self forgetfulness is traceable throughout the interviews of the two great leaders, it touches every provision of the armistice and turns the tide of good feeling of the two nations toward each other.

Only after months of earnest study of the situation did she act. She felt satisfied finally that the Boers were upholding a lost cause and that much blood was being uselessly shed. She saw the devastation that was sweeping over the country, and while Kruger, De Wet and Steyn were loudly crying for vengeance and announcing their determination to wage war to the bitter end Mrs. Botha quietly began her propaganda for peace.

One by one she talked to prominent followers of her husband and found a strong sentiment in favor of a speedy settlement. Surrender with honor was plainly an idea not displeasing to the men who, step by step, had opposed Buller's progress to Lydenburg.

Having satisfied herself that her course would be approved by the majority, the brave woman found means to communicate with the English. She intimated that the Boer forces would not oppose a cessation of hostilities should the conditions be to their liking. The reply was conciliatory, and the finale of many messages was a semiofficial summons to Cape Town to confer with Lord Kitchener.

In the course of her interview with the British leader Mrs. Botha learned that he would meet the Boers half way, and a messenger was at once dispatched to General Botha; but hardship and suffering had made Botha doubtful of British clemency. His answer was half hearted, and the wife who had braved so much almost despaired.

MRS. LOUIS BOTHA.

She told Lord Kitchener, however, that she was determined to continue her peace work and left him with assurance that she would seek her husband and make a personal plea. At once she departed for the Boer camp and to Botha depicted the horrors that war had already brought to the patriotic burghers and their families. She drew such a vivid picture of desolation yet to come that the Boer general began to yield. She saw his indecision and renewed her plea for peace. Into it she brought their personal affairs and painted the happiness that would surely be theirs when warfare and bitterness were at an end.

Botha finally consented, though with much reluctance. She obtained her husband's promise that he would meet Kitchener, discuss the situation and state the terms on which he and his men would lay down their arms. Back to Kitchener she sped with the news. She had scarcely known sleep. She was worn with anxiety and feverish with hope, but she did not leave the British general till a meeting between the leaders had been arranged. The world now knows the result of that meeting.

To fully appreciate the difficulties with which Mrs. Botha had to contend we must know the character of her husband. He is not a pliant man nor one accustomed to surrender, but he is a man of intellect and as a member of the volksraad proved, during the many stormy scenes that preceded the actual declaration of war, that he possessed the coolest head in that assembly. He opposed the war and foretold the awful devastation of his country which would follow in the footsteps of the British army.

But when the time came and his country was irretrievably pledged to war he was not the man to hang back. He was one of those who had much to lose and little indeed to gain by taking up arms, for, by honest industry, he had become a wealthy farmer and stock breeder. At the first call to arms he threw aside his senatorial duties and took up his rifle, rejoining his old commando at Vryheid as commandant under General Lucas Meyer.

It is said that at the battle of Dundee General Meyer, feeling convinced that the God of battles had decided against him and his forces, decided to surrender to the British, but Louis Botha fiercely combated his general's decision and point blank refused to throw down his arms or counsel his men to do so. From that moment Botha went up very high in the estimation of fighting burghers.

BABY'S BUSINESS

A healthy baby is comfortable; and that is enough for a baby. His business in life is to grow.

Aside from acute diseases, his food is the cause of most of his troubles. But Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil delivers him from it.

He isn't sick; only a little hitch, somewhere, in his machine for turning food into growth.

It is a great thing to do, for a baby, to help him over a hitch with mere food—the emulsion is food that has the tact to get there.

The tact to get there is medicine.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Canada.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

GOES DIRECTLY TO THE ROOT OF YOUR TROUBLE.

A Mother's Life Saved by the Great Spring Medicine.

In cases of severe rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous complaints and sleeplessness, Paine's Celery Compound is the only remedy that goes directly to the root of the trouble.

Paine's Celery Compound in all parts of our Dominion is regarded as a goodsend—the only cleansing, strength-giving and health-restoring spring medicine that the ailing and suffering can place confidence in.

The toiling, nervous wife and mother, the weary and confined shop girl, weakly school children, ailing mechanics and workmen and overworked and worried business men can be made strong, vigourous and happy by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. A. R. Cobb, Seamo, Man., tells of the wonders done for her by Paine's Celery Compound.

"I am very pleased to be able to tell you of the great good that I have derived from the use of your Paine's Celery Compound. Before using your valuable compound I was so crippled with rheumatism that I had to crawl on hands and knees from one place to another. I also suffered from neuralgia and dreadful headaches, and could not get more than one or two hours sleep each night. I often thought it would be better to die than live and endure my terrible agony.

"I was happily advised to use Paine's Celery Compound, and after the use of six bottles, the rheumatism and neuralgia are banished, and I now eat, rest and sleep well. My present improved state of health is due entirely to the health giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound, which has done wonders for me. My husband is now using it for dyspepsia and it is doing wonders for him. My neighbours to whom I have recommended Paine's Celery Compound have been greatly blessed."

Excursions to the Pan-American.

All over the country the people are planning to make excursions next summer to the Pan-American Exposition. Clubs are being organized whose members are saving money for the trip in this way. Pan-American study clubs are also being organized. Some large business firms are planning to give excursions to their employees, and in many manufactories the employees are organizing to go in a body to the Exposition. In the large shoe manufacturing concern of Hanan & Sons of Brooklyn the employees, who have organized themselves into an association called the Mutual Aid society, have decided on a five days' excursion to the Pan-American and Niagara Falls and have engaged a special vestibuled train for the purpose. The trip will be made during Independence week, and it is expected that at least 1,000 persons will participate in the journey.

Firemen to Attend In a Body.

The Hill Hook and Ladder Company of Rensselaer, N. Y., will attend the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo next summer in a body.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

Doesn't lay a man up for a week, but quietly and surely goes on doing its work, and nothing is known of the operation till the corn is shelled. Plenty of substitutes do this. Some of them are dangerous—no danger from Putnam's except to the corn. At all druggists.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

A Dog That Churns.

The uses to which the dog are put are many and are constantly increasing in number as his fitness for different kinds of work is appreciated. In Holland almost all the vegetable and fish carts of the market are drawn by dogs. The same animals carry the light cargoes of the north, and in the Alps they accompany searching parties and are kept in the monasteries for the purpose of locating travelers who have lost their way and would otherwise perish. In our own land scarcely a week passes without the payment of a tribute of some sort to a creature of the canine breed for his acts of heroism or other performances which indicate that he has a natural insight into the affairs of men.

HE LIKES IT.

A comparatively new use to which the farm dog is being put in northeastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania is shown by the accompanying illustration, which demonstrates how a dog runs the churn. The animal shown has churned the entire product of a large dairy for the last two years. It will be seen that the principle upon which the churn works is a simple application of the old treadmill, and dogs are easily taught their part of the work. The common shepherd dog is said to be the easiest to teach, and, having once been in the treadmill, he barks and capers around when preparations are being made for his new occupation, thus showing by his actions that he finds as much delight in the work as do his masters in having him perform it. In this case the cross section near the top is a lever and connects with the handle of an old fashioned churn to the right not shown in the picture.—Chicago Record.

Why Do Birds Migrate?

No one has given a really satisfactory reason for the migration of birds. Some say it is a matter of instinct; others that it is a matter of example—the younger learning from the older; still others, that it is largely a matter of search for food. The last named reason will hardly hold, in view of the fact that often birds disappear when food conditions are seemingly perfect. Notwithstanding naturalists have studied and written much on the subject, the real reason remains a mystery. Some extraordinary stories are told of migratory birds. It is said that the Virginia plover flies to the height of two miles and at a speed of 225 miles an hour. It is reported that a blackcap warbler arrived at a certain bush in the north in three successive years at half past 3 o'clock of the afternoon of the same day.—American Boy.

A Boy's Joke.

The little son of an officer prominent in the navy circle of Washington has made frequent visits to the neighborhood of Sandy Hook in summer. The other day, overhearing his parents discuss sundry naval matters, he pricked up his ears at one remark of his father and asked to have it repeated.

"I was just telling your mother," said the officer, "how we organized the mosquito fleet during the war with Spain."

"The mosquito fleet!" echoed the boy. "Oh, yes; I suppose that must have the New Jersey for its flagship?"

Miss Brown's Photograph.

Little Miss Brown
Came up to our town
To sit for her photograph.
Her bunny she brought (How funny, she thought,
The photograph man should laugh)!

"Please 'take' my muff—
I love its white fluff—
And bunny, my precious pet.

I'll smirk or I'll pose,
I'll work or I'll done,
If only you won't forget."

"Now, do not frown
Nor drop your eyes down,
But smile at the lady there;
Now clasp bunny tight,
Your muff fix just right;
The camera's caught you fair!"

YOU KNOCK NO MORE.

It is not that the later years are cold
And void of blooms that made life's springtime sweet.
'Tis that along the way no more I hold
Your hand and hear your heart's remembered beat.
'Tis that in desolate mansions at the door,
Dear heart, you knock no more!

'Tis that your dwelling now so lonely seems,
And in the starless midnights I can hear
The rustle of the curtains in my dreams,
Knowing that but the ghost of love is there!
'Tis that I stand—a shadow at the door,
Dear, where you knock no more!

'Tis, when the depths of all my soul are stirred
With passionate grief for a remembered day,
There comes this thought: "Did I not miss some word
Which might have made the light shine on your way—
Some flower I might have lifted from the dew,
Dear, to the lips of you?"

Oh, lonely dwelling, 'neath the withering vines,
Once bright with bloom, now lost to all delight!
No wreath of love the ruined garden twines;
Out of the darkness comes "Good night! Good night!"
Never "Good morning" at the lonely door,
Dear, for you knock no more!

—Atlanta Constitution.

AFTER TWELVE MIDNIGHT

The man who speaks loudly in public places of the valuation of his sideboard and the insecurity of his front door may safely be put down as an amiable idiot. Yet Thomas Nedham of the firm of Nedham & Wilkins was no fool. He was reputed to be a cute man of business, who knew how to keep his counsel when his money was at stake, and yet here he was tonight, on the front seat of a crowded omnibus, boasting to his neighbor that his silver plate was the heaviest in all Hampstead.

"Burglars?" he laughed in answer to a question. "I have been 30 years a householder, and never one of the gentry has deigned to visit me. I often think that the man who takes no precaution comes off best in this matter. I have known some men spend a fortune in locks and bolts and have a housebreaker in as regularly as a chimney sweep. You did not know my partner, Wilkins? He's been dead these dozen years, and before things went wrong with him and I bought him out he had a collection of coins worth £1,000. Well, he kept the treasure in a room whose windows were sheathed nightly in heavy shutters, bolted and bolted again. But of course he rose one fine morning to find the lot gone. That broke the old fellow's heart, and from then till they placed him in Norwood cemetery he was never off the rocks."

As the old gentleman proceeded in a lower voice to tell stories of the burglaries that he had known to befall his friends the tall young fellow immediately behind him showed signs of nervousness. He shifted uneasily in his seat, and as ever and anon the gaslights were passed his pinched face showed white, and his big eyes seemed riveted on the jovial Nedham. When the merchant left the bus with a hearty "good night" to all and sundry, the stripling rose and slipped off too.

Twelve midnight had long since boomed from the church steeple opposite, and still Thomas Nedham, city merchant and importer, lay wide awake. Usually he was a heavy sleeper, but tonight slumber had deserted him, though before coming to bed he had done his best to woo her by the subtle aid of two tumblers of strong toddy.

His active brain insisted on scrutinizing and dissecting the stock and share list of the previous day and gamboling through his now silent city warehouse. The old gentleman chuckled as he held his eyes tight and conjured before him the thousands of great bales that lumbered every inch of his stores.

"Wonderful!" he said audibly. "What a great thing may sometimes grow from a small one, to be sure! Only 30 years ago and I was wondering how I could meet a bill for £2 15s. Now new blocks added, six and fifty warehousemen, piles of paying work and still growing, growing, growing. Wonder what Wilkins would think of it all if he were looking up now? Poor Wilkins! They tell me he died declaring that I had robbed him. That was a hard thing to say. No robbery, say I, but a business transaction—a smart business transaction. Besides, in any case, it was a question of tit for tat. But for Wilkins I should not have been a bachelor."

Nedham moved uneasily in bed, and, through a doorway arched with troubled memory, he stole to the land of forgetfulness.

How long he slept he hardly knew, but he woke with a start. He had the distinct impression that he felt warm breath on his face, and, springing out of bed, he switched on the electric light. No trace of an intruder was in the room, but the door, which Nedham felt sure he had shut, stood partly ajar.

Hastily pulling on his dressing gown and shoving his bare feet into slippers, he reached a heavy riding crop from the wall and stumbled down stairs. As he opened the drawing room door there was the shuffling of hasty feet, and when the light went up a tall young fellow shabbily dressed stood revealed. The two men faced each other across the table, Nedham gripping tight the whip handle.

"Now," he said in a wonderfully composed voice, "I've caught you clean. What in all the world may you want here?"

The youngster removed his battered hat, and his eyes fell as a tinge of color rose to his cheek.

"A straight question demands a straight answer," he replied. "I am in quest of some of the silver plate you boasted about on the top of the Hampstead bus last night. I overheard that conversation."

Nedham laughed and laid the crop on the table.

"You young fool!" he said. "You do not know Tom Nedham, or you would not have tried this mug's game on." He rubbed his hands. "Tom Nedham has never been known to be caught napping, never!"

"I have heard said," replied the burglar nervously, "that you are a smart man of business—a very smart man of business," he added, raising his eyes and looking Nedham squarely in the face.

"You flatter me, young man," chuckled the portly merchant. "And who, may I ask, reported so favorably of me?"

"My name," replied the stripling, leaning over the table—"my name is Wilkins. My father was your partner." And having fired that shot he awaited results.

Nedham shivered slightly, and his face changed color. In a moment, however, he had mastered himself.

"Ah," he said lightly, "are you the boy I've heard him speak so often about? How strangely people meet sometimes! Who could have dreamed that I should have had the pleasure of seeing you at such an unlikely hour and place? Sit down, sir; sit down! It is cold as an iceberg here. Let me get you a whisky and soda." And he passed over to the sideboard.

The housebreaker protested, but the old gentleman insisted.

"To tell you the truth," he said, laughing, "you've given me quite a turn. I need something to still my fluttering heart, and I make it a rule never to drink alone when there is company about."

So saying he handed Wilkins the frothing stimulant, and, filling up his own glass to the brim, he raised it with:

"Well, sir, I drink to you, and I sincerely hope I have not disappointed you by appearing so unexpectedly on the scene tonight."

The stripling drank in silence. For a minute no words passed.

"I suppose," Wilkins muttered at last, "you will now send for the police?"

The merchant laughed loudly as he lay back in his chair.

"Why police?" he said. "You have not robbed me."

"I had that intention," was the reply. "But, like most of my other schemes in life, it did not come off. But remember if I had cleared your sideboard I should not have called myself a robber—not even a lawbreaker. My father has told me that you robbed him and were the cause of his ruin at the end."

Nedham drew himself up, fidgeting on his seat.

"I do assure you," he said soothingly, "there is no vestige of truth in the accusation. You may not know that your father was subject to hallucination long before we parted company."

"I disagree with you, sir," put in the other, with a trembling lip. "But that is all past now and need not be mourned over. My father is far beyond business trickery at this moment. But candidly I bear you a bitter grudge and ever will do so. So does another—my mother."

"Your mother?" queried the old man in a whisper. "She is still alive, then? Ah, the mention of her brings back to me the days of youth! I presume your father never told you how he came between us and made the only woman I ever loved his wife? I"—

"I am in no mood for sentiment," the young man interrupted. "And besides that, too, is a bygone. What I do know is that the terrible crash came unexpectedly and brought down to the earth like a card castle all that made for happiness with us. I had to leave college, and, though I have tried, I never have been able to mend the broken thread of my life. But all this does not interest you." And he moved toward the door.

"Do have another drink!" insisted the merchant. "It is bitterly cold outside, and you may have a long way to walk."

The offer was declined.

As the gentleman burglar passed into the hall he turned with a forced smile and said:

"I came by the back door and will go by it, I presume?"

"Not at all!" cried Nedham effusively. "No visitor at Woodlands has ever been allowed to do that. Let me show you out by the front door, and when next you come to see me perhaps you will give me fairer warning than you did this morning."

He opened the door and held out his hand. The youngster took it coldly.

"By the way," said the merchant, "is your mother in need of money?"

"Money?" said Wilkins, drawing himself up proudly on the doorstep. "Charity? And from such as you? Thank God, we are not yet reduced to that level!"

And, so saying, he passed out into the night. Nedham listened to the retreating footsteps for some moments and then quietly shut the door.

"Queer fellow, certainly!" he chuckled. "But a boy of spirit—aye, a boy of spirit!" he added emphatically as he pulled on the bolts.

The Australian branch of Mr. Nedham's business, which he opened at Melbourne some four years ago, is thriving beyond all expectations. But when business friends congratulate Mr. Nedham he laughs and says:

"I mustn't take the credit. It's young Wilkins' concern. I'm taking him into partnership with the new year."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Point at Issue.

Several of the lawyers had told their stories, some of which ridiculed the continued use of legal verbiage and the absurd lengths to which members of the profession sometimes go in taking advantage of technicalities.

"A rank outsider," announced the member of the profession who had been a good listener, "a client of mine, supplied the best instance of literal interpretation that ever came to my knowledge. He was executor under a will that, among other provisions, required the payment of an annuity to a venerable aunt of the testator. But proof of her being alive must be made before each payment, and this is the rock on which the executor struck.

"The old lady proved herself in the flesh, drew her money and went to California, where she spent two years without putting in her claim. On her return she went in person and demanded the double allowance due her.

"The conscientious executor got out the will, studied it, scratched his head and finally handed down his opinion:

"'Madam, you are alive now. There can be no reasonable question as to that, for I have the conclusive evidence of my own eyes. But I am possessed of no legal proof that you were alive a year ago. I am, as you know, within the restrictions of the will. I will pay the annuity for this year, but must insist upon satisfactory affidavits that you were not dead when the preceding annuity was passed.'

"It took me the better part of a day to convince him that he should settle in full."

Pat's Beginning.

Pat suffered from indigestion, so he went to see the doctor. The doctor's advice was "to take walks on an empty stomach."

As soon as he came out of the surgery a tramp asked him if he could spare a copper, as he had not had anything to eat for a week. Pat knocked him down and walked over him, and of course the tramp wanted to know what he meant by such treatment.

"Well," said Pat, "the doctor told me to walk on an empty stomach, and I'm only obeying his instructions."—London Spare Moments.

London, April 9.—It is announced in answer to many inquiries which have been made, that the total war relief funds subscribed has been £26,000,000, of which £1,000,000 remains. There have been no fewer than 38 funds.

The Ann Arbor Plague Case.

Detroit, April 9.—A special to The Tribune from Ann Harbor, Mich., says: The university authorities refuse to make known the name of the student in the university hospital with the mysterious disease supposed to be bubonic plague, but it was learned last night from a medical student that the young man's name is Charles B. Hare of Pawnee City, Neb. He is a sophomore medico, and has been taking special work in bacteriology, and has been handling culture tubes. Dr. Novy said last night that the young man was coming out of the disease all right, but refused to make a definite statement as to its nature.

Stabbing Affray at St. Kitts.

St. Catharines, April 9.—A serious and probably fatal stabbing affray took place here early Sunday morning. Frank Whitten and John Auburn, young men, both well known around town, fought in the rear of the Grand Opera House. Whitten drew a knife and stabbed Auburn twice, first in the breast and then in the abdomen. Both wounds are serious ones. The ambulance removed Auburn to the hospital.

He was still alive yesterday morning, but his chances for recovery are very slight. Whitten was promptly arrested and locked up. Bad blood had existed between these two men for some time. Whitten is married, while Auburn is single.

Both have police court records. Auburn has been found guilty of theft on more than one occasion, and Whitten only escaped arrest a year or two ago by getting out of town, with the police after him, and remaining away for some months until the charge against him was almost forgotten. He is a son of Mr. Thomas Whitten, janitor of the city building, who is respected by everyone and who has the sympathy of the community in the disgrace his wayward boy has brought upon his name.

Shot by Accident.

Ottawa, April 9.—A mysterious shooting case occurred on Sussex street yesterday morning. Miss Coleman, a young woman, was entering McMorran's dry goods store, when a bullet, fired from somewhere in the rear, grazed her face. The wound was not serious, but it bled profusely, and Miss Coleman was taken to St. Luke's Hospital. The police have the bullet, and say it came from a Lee-Enfield rifle. The presumption is that a rifle was discharged in a drunken frolic by some one at the foot of York street, and that the bullet had spent its force when it struck Miss Coleman.

Old Welland Canal Dry.

St. Catharines, April 9.—The water was let out of the old Welland Canal yesterday for two weeks, during which the spring repairs to the canal and flumes will be done. Mr. Joseph Battle has a large force of men at work above Thorold strengthening the bank of the new canal between it and the Welland Railway track, and a solid concrete wall will be put in. The mills along the old ditch are all shut down, except a few, which will be operated by steam, while the water is out. The water will be let in again in two weeks and navigation will be open on April 22.

Reply to Countess Tolstoi.

Moscow, April 9.—Antonius, metropolitan of St. Petersburg, has issued a reply to Countess Tolstoi's defense of her husband. The ecclesiastical manifesto, in rather tame language, criticises the Countess' statements and attempts to refute her incisive and pugnacious protest against the synod's ban. The metropolitan concludes by saying: "God bless and guard you, and pardon your husband."

Ontario's Librarians Meet.

Toronto, April 9.—At the Normal School yesterday afternoon about two dozen delegates assembled to organize a new educational society, The Ontario Library Association. Various committees were appointed to carry on the preliminary business of the association. Then a constitution was drawn up. A number of papers were read.

The aim of the society is to promote the welfare of the libraries by stimulating public interest in founding and improving them, and in securing legislation which will give improved results in library work.

Costly Roast Fowl.

Ottawa, April 9.—About $500 worth of valuable hens, owned by Mr. A. P. Mutchmore of Ottawa, were burned last night. Mr. Mutchmore is a well-known exhibitor at Canadian poultry shows. The hennery caught fire about ten o'clock, and it was not long before many valuable hens were dead.

Pictures Bring High Prices.

London, April 9.—In spite of the aspiring income tax, pictures appear to be selling well. It is reported that Mortimer Mempes got £4,000 for his little sketches. Another artist has just parted with four pictures for £1,800, a Bond street dealer being the purchaser.

Sir G. M. Smith Dead.

London, April 9.—The death of Sir George Murray Smith, the well-known English publisher, was announced here yesterday. Sir George was a member of the firm of Smith, Elder & Company, and published some of the first editions of the works of William Makepeace Thackeray. He founded The Cornhill Magazine in 1860.

Another Combine Mooted.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 9.—A conference was held here yesterday by the independent furnace operators for the purpose of forming a combine of all these plants with a capitalization of $12,000,000. It is said the combine will undoubtedly go through in a short time.

It Was a Norwegian Brig.

Halifax, April 9.—The vessel which was wrecked at Point Aconi on Saturday is the Norwegian brig Curlew, from Liverpool for Sydney. The Curlew was out 15 days, and had a cargo of 5,620 bags of salt, valued at $2,500. The vessel is fast going to pieces.

Workman Crushed to Death.

Plattsburg, April 9.—Henry Gonyea, an employe of the Chateughay Ore and Iron Company, was almost instantly killed yesterday by being crushed between an ore car and the separator now building near here. Gonyea was a widower, aged 60 years.

Nephew of R. L. Richardson Dead.

Winnipeg, April 9.—Stewart Richardson, a young man, aged 22, nephew of R. L. Richardson, died here last night of typhoid, after a lingering illness. The body will be taken east by Mr. Richardson, for interment at Perth.

The Population of Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, April 9.—The Assessment Commissioner estimates the population of Winnipeg at 44,776.

John Schofield pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, and was sentenced to two years.

Government Orders Canadian-Made Steel Rails.

MR. BLAIR'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Sault Ste. Marie Company Will Start Mills and Have the Rails Made So as to Deliver in Such Time as Will Permit Their Being Laid Before the Snow Flies.

Ottawa, April 10.—The House spent a somewhat tedious day in supply yesterday. In the afternoon the Intercolonial estimates were under discussion, and last evening was almost entirely devoted to the Interior vote for forest protection and tree-planting in the Northwest. The House rose at 12.10 a.m.

The Fruit Marks Bill.

The House then went into committee on the Fruit Marks bill, which underwent considerable further ... by Dr. Sproule, Mr. Lancaster and others pressed for a definition of the fruits besides apples and pears, to which the bill was intended to apply.

The Minister of Agriculture contended that this would not be advisable, inasmuch as the bill only applied to fruit sold in closed packages, but while only certain classes were so sold to-day, in the near future other kinds might be sold in closed packages. Mr. Fisher, however, conceded to the demand to the extent of adding a defining clause, as follows: "The term fruit, as used in this bill, shall not include wild fruit."

Mr. Clancy moved to amend the penalty clause by striking out the words which allow to the informant one-half the penalty imposed for infraction of the act.

The amendment was defeated, and on the suggestion of Dr. Sproule the third reading was postponed.

Rails for Intercolonial.

The House having gone into Committee of Supply, the estimates for the Intercolonial Railway were taken up.

On the item of $500,000 for steel rails, Mr. Blair explained that the rails purchased this year were bought from the Illinois Company, and the Cambria Company at $32.60, the purchase being made by tender. For next year the Government had contracted with the Sault Ste. Marie Company at the same price. The company asked that they be given the contract to ensure the establishment of permanent steel rail works in Canada, with its attendant advantages. The rails would contain a percentage of nickel which would add to their value, but not to their cost. The company first proposed to furnish the rails at current prices, and the Government, having ascertained that rails could not be had for next fall's delivery at less than the price named, entered into a contract with the Soo Company for 25,000 tons of 80-pound steel rails, to be delivered at Montreal at $32.50 per ton. Mr. Clergue had informed him that the machinery was now in place, and that, commencing in August, the company would supply 500 tons per week, so that the whole 25,000 tons would be delivered in time to be laid before the snow flies.

Justice Estimates.

After dinner the Justice Department estimates were taken up.

Mr. Monk asked what was being done about increasing the salaries of the Quebec judges.

The Solicitor-General replied that he was convinced that the salaries of the judges in all of the provinces were too low, and the Government, he hoped, in the near future, would see its way clear to give the matter of an increase consideration.

During the discussion of the item of $20,000 for consolidation of the Dominion statutes, the Solicitor General said an Order-in-Council would be passed without delay appointing commissioners to do the work. They would be assisted, he said, by officials of the Justice Department.

Mr. Sifton's Tree Planting Item.

Mr. Sifton's item of $15,000 to promote tree planting in the Northwest Territories raised a stormy protest from Mr. Wilson of Lennox. Mr. Clancy and other Opposition members.

After some half dozen other items of Mr. Sifton's estimates were passed, the House closed at 12.10 a.m.

$3,729,716.

This Is the Sum Asked for as Supplementary Estimates, and Includes $941,276 Re-Vote.

Ottawa, April 10.—Supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year amounting to $3,729,716, of which $941,276 was a revote, were submitted to the House yesterday. The main estimates for 1900-01 amounted to $56,611,085, and Mr. Fielding in his budget speech estimated that the total expenditure on consolidated fund and capital account during the current year would be a trifle over $57,000,000. The main estimates for the next fiscal year approximate $50,398,823. This is several millions below that of the current year, but further supplementaries for next year still remain to be tabled, which will increase the amount to be voted for 1901-02. The following are the chief items of interest in the supplementaries:

Some of the Items.

Some of the important items in these further supplementaries are:

For the Glasgow Exhibition $16,000.

Public health and quarantine $20,000.

Manhood suffrage voters' lists in Ontario $13,000.

Militia, further amount for annual drills, $190,000; military properties (including $22,000 for ties and rails for tramway to Rockliffe range), $74,000; clothing and stores, $136,000; gratuity to Lieut.-Col. McGill, R.M.C., $3183.

For the Soulanges Canal $200.000.

For the new military store at Ottawa $10,000.

For the Paris, Ont., public building, $10,000.

Toronto Postoffice, Union Station, sorting room, etc., $12,000.

Expenses in connection with funeral displays on public buildings thruout Canada on the occasion of the Queen's death, $25,000.

Illumination of Parliament Buildings on return of Canadian soldiers from South Africa, $4800.

An additional sum of $60,000 is asked for the Mounted Police.

The additional Yukon vote is large, $170,000. Included in this is $11,176 to the contractor for transportation of men and supplies in connection with the construction of the Government telegraph line; re-vote of $20,000 in connection with same line in the Yukon, and $125,000 for construction of that part of the line between Quesnelle and Atlin, B.C.

The sum of $10,000 is asked for Mr. Mulock's expenses to Australia, and $17,100 additional for the Department of Labor.

The total vote for the Intercolonial is $1,200,000.

The following allowances are made to the railway mail clerks on duty in South Africa: J. A. Lallier $184, T. B. Bedell $247, K. A. Murray $160, R. John on $324.

Canadian Pressed Hay.

Ottawa, April 9.—Four steamships have been chartered to sail from St. John, N. B., this month and four next month, laden with hay for South Africa. By the introduction of a new system of pressing the bulk of a ton of hay has been reduced from 170 or 180 cubic feet, which was the best that could be done a year ago, to about 70 cubic feet. Incidentally the introduction of this improved method will tend to stimulate our export of hay to Great Britain, as the reduction of bulk by 2½ times will mean a large saving in freight. Only hay compressed to at least 100 cubic feet to the ton is being accepted for shipment to South Africa.

The Russian Police Busy.

London, April 9.—A despatch from St. Petersburg to the Reuter Telegram Company says the police at Kharkoff have arrested 21 students for rioting at the railroad station, on the occasion of the departure of other students, who were expelled

PIETERSBURG TAKEN.

Plumer's Important Movement Reported by Lord Kitchener.

MAJOR GAT HOWARD MURDERED.

He Was Caught by Sixty Boers in Advance of His Corps and Shot Down in Cold Blood—His Orderly Also Shot—75 Fifth Lancers and Imperial Yeomanry Captured.

London, April 9.—Lord Kitchener reporting to the War Office under date of Pretoria, April 8, says:

"Plumer has occupied Pietersburg with slight opposition. He captured two locomotives and 39 trucks."

The capture of Pietersburg is regarded here as important. The place is the terminus of the railway, and has been the capital of the Boer Government since the evacuation of Pretoria, the whole northern railway is now in the hands of the British.

According to Lord Kitchener's despatch only one officer and one man were killed. The Boers evacuated the town during the night prior to Plumer's arrival, after blowing up two truck laden with ammunition.

Lord Kitchener further reports the capture of 16 prisoners, 50 horses and the depot of war stores at Rooiwaaskop, Orange River Colony.

As an offset, the commander-in-chief reports that a detachment of a hundred men of the Fifth Lancers and Imperial Yeomanry were attacked by 400 Boers to the northward of Aberdeen, Cape Colony, and that after several hours fighting the British were surrounded and captured, with the exception of 25, who succeeded in making their escape.

CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES.

Names of Commissioners Announced—Strathcona Officers Promoted.

London, April 9.—The Gazette to-day announces the names of the members of the Foreign Office Commission appointed to investigate the claims for damages to foreigners deported from South Africa. Foreign governments may be represented at the sittings of the commission if they so desire.

The following promotions of officers of Strathcona's Horse were also announced by The Gazette:

Captains D. M. Howard and G. W. Cameron, to be majors and Lieuts. R. M. Courtney and J. J. MacDonald, to be captains.

MULE SHIP INJUNCTION CASE.

British Officers Denied That They Were Carrying Munitions of War.

New Orleans, La., April 9.—Suit for an injunction, brought by Boer representatives against the agents of the steamship Anglo-Australian, seeking to prevent the shipment of mules and horses thru New Orleans to South Africa, for the use of the British army, was taken up for trial in the United States Circuit Court to-day. Gen. Pearson of the Boer army, and a number of British army officers were present. Depositions were filed on the part of the defendants, in which they denied that they were carrying munitions of war, and maintained that they were simply engaged in peaceful transportation pursuits.

Britain Settles With Germany.

Berlin, April 9.—It is officially reported that while Dr. Stuebel of the Colonial Department of the German Foreign Office was in London, a mutual agreement was reached between Germany and Great Britain, regarding Germany's claims to indemnity for Germans evicted from the Transvaal.

Transport Wagons For War.

Ottawa, April 9.—The Ottawa Car Works, which is building 30 transport wagons for the Imperial Government, intends shipping one of the wagons this week to Woolwich. The wagons are entirely different from anything ever made in Canada, both in regard to structure and detail. They are built on drawings and specifications submitted by the British War Office. If the wagon shipped this week is approved of, the others will be ready to forward at a moment's notice.

MURDER OF MAJOR HOWARD.

Boers Captured the Gallant Officer and His Orderly, and Shot Them in Cold Blood.

Ottawa, April 10.—Capt. Charlie Ross, the famous Canadian scout who succeeded Major Gat Howard in command of the Canadian Scouts, in a letter to Col. Sherwood, tells how Howard was killed. It is as follows:

"Derby, South Africa, Feb. 18. — Yesterday, while the corps were out reconnoitering, Major Howard, accompanied by his orderly, was a couple of miles in advance of the corps, and was ambushed by about 50 Boers, who immediately deprived them of arms, ammunition and valuables, and then brutally shot the two of them in cold blood. This happened on the borders of Swaziland. Their remains were brought into camp to-day and buried with due honor."

The following are the names: Lieut. McCrae, Corp. Walker, Bomb. Denyes, Trooper Taylor, Gunners Abbs, Barber, Cormack, Cartlidge, Howe, Thomas, Lett, Miller, Stephenson, McGibbon, Drivers Cokey, Peanell, McDonald, Bardgett, Partridge, Philp.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1901.

NO ELECTION IN 1901.

Assembly's Term to Be Extended Beyond March 29, 1902.

MUNICIPAL AMENDMENT ACT.

Conditions of Railway Aid Provided for in Hon. Mr. Latchford's Bill—The Cutting of Small Pine Debated—Mr. Miscampbell's Amendment Defeated—House in Committee of Supply.

Toronto, April 10.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, Hon. G. W. Ross introduced a bill to extend the term of the Legislature in case the House should be in session when the term expired by the statute now in force. The date at which the Legislature would expire is the 29th of March next, when in accordance with the usual practice the Legislature would be in session. Public convenience required the introduction of the bill, as it would not be possible to bring down the various reports of the departments so as to hold the session at an earlier date.

The following bills were read a third time and passed: Respecting Summary Convictions, Mr. Gibson; to amend the Ontario Fisheries Act, Mr. Latchford; to authorize the Guelph Railway Co. to extend their railway, Mr. Mutrie; to incorporate London, Aylmer and North Shore Electric Railway Co., Mr. Taylor; respecting drainage bylaws in Tilbury West, etc., Mr. Auld; respecting Niagara Falls Park and River Railway Co., Mr. Gross; to further improve the Factories Act, Mr. Dryden.

Mr. McKee moved the second reading of the bill respecting the Union Station at Toronto, concerning which there has been a good deal of controversy and some lively debates in committee.

Mr. Foy urged that the matter dealt with in the bill was not within the jurisdiction of the Legislature. The agreement respecting the Union Station made between the city of Toronto and the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways was ratified by an act of the Dominion Parliament which declared it to be a work for the general advantage of Canada. Consequently legislation on the subject was beyond the scope of the Provincial Legislature and within the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament.

Hon. J. M. Gibson was not prepared to express an opinion as to the question of jurisdiction raised by Mr. Foy. He pointed out, however, that the proposed legislation did not affect the properties of the railways but merely the control and regulation of their premises which was a different matter.

The bill received a second reading.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt's bill respecting technical schools was withdrawn.

The following Government bills were reported by committee: The Municipal Amendment Act, Respecting the Arbitration of Accounts with the Dominion and respecting Upper Canada College.

The House went into committee on the Government Railway Aid Bill. Hon. Mr. Latchford introduced an amendment which in addition to providing that the Province should have the right to appropriate the roads aided enacted that any subsidies received either from the Provincial or Dominion Governments should in such case be deemed a part payment of the purchase money.

Mr. Wardell asked if there were any provisions in the bill against the employment of alien labor in the construction of the roads.

Hon. J. M. Gibson replied that the provisions of the General Railway Act were made applicable by a clause in the bill and these were sufficiently explicit to prohibit the employment of any but Canadian labor but if that were not considered satisfactory a special clause to that effect would be added.

The bill was reported with amendments.

The Premier moved the House into committee of supply.

Mr. Miscampbell moved an amendment expressing regret that provision had not been made for preventing the cutting for sawlog purposes of small pine less than 10 inches in diameter. He asserted that the question of timber supply was a most serious one for the future. The Americans had largely exhausted their timber as was shown by the manner in which the Michigan lumbermen were establishing mills on this side of the border. He urged that the cutting of small timber was having the depletion of the forests of Ontario. The average size of the timber cut was annually decreasing. It was down now to 12 inches for a 16-foot log. He did not place any faith in the statements of the 10 exploration parties sent out last summer to the effect that three billion feet of pine timber remained intact in New Ontario. It would have been physically impossible for the explorers to make in the time at their disposal the examination necessary to make anything like an accurate estimate. He asserted that he had been refused permission to see an item in the account books of the Crown Lands Department, which he claimed that, as a member of the House, he had a right to see.

Hon. E. J. Davis said that Mr. Miscampbell evidently could not be familiar with the work of the auditor of the Province if he had conceived the idea that the public accounts were not correctly kept. He examined all the accounts of every department of the Province and was responsible for their proper auditing. He was surprised at Mr. Miscampbell's statement as to the account he wished to see. He (Mr. Miscampbell) refused to state the reason for which he wished to see the account or to give the name of the person or the firm concerned. Under the circumstances the department naturally refused to let him see the books but he (Mr. Davis) told him that all he had to do was to put a notice on the order paper and he would be accorded any information the Government had a right to give him. It was true that the Crown Lands was the large revenue-producing department and that it should be managed with prudence and foresight. He pointed out that conditions were changing and timber greatly increasing in value. No system of sale of timber was in operation anywhere under which the people received as large a share of the proceeds as they did in Ontario, and referred to what was being done in setting aside forest reserves and reforesting waste lands. It was necessary that pine lands which were fit for agriculture should be cleared in order to make room for settlers but the lands that were unfit for cultivation were set apart to grow timber in perpetuity. These reserves would be lumbered over from time to time only taking the larger and more matured timber, so that the supply might be preserved and the largest possible returns secured for the public. Other areas would be set apart for this purpose from time to time.

Mr. Whitney said that the Commissioner had not said a word in reply to Mr. Miscampbell's amendment respecting the cutting of pine of less than 10 inches. He strongly urged that the adoption of such a regulation was necessary to prevent the exhaustion of the timber supply.

Mr. Charlton held that the department could not without actual confiscation of the rights which the lumbermen had purchased impose any such restriction.

The amenement was put and lost by a strict party vote: Yeas, 31; nays, 41.

The Oxford County Reformatory for Boys' item was then passed in supply, and the House rose at 10.40 to reassemble this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

An Honest Tired Feeling

There is an "honest tired feeling," caused by necessary toil and cured by natural rest.

But very different is "that tired feeling," from which so many complain and which may even be classed as a disease.

That tired feeling takes you to bed tired and wakes you up tired.

You have no appetite, have bilious taste, dull headache, are nervous and irritable, blue, weak and discouraged.

In such conditions Hood's Sarsaparilla does a world of good.

It begins in the right place—in the blood, purifying it and imparting vitality, then its tonic effect is felt by the stomach, kidneys and liver; appetite comes back, all waste is removed naturally, headaches cease, that tired feeling departs and you feel like a new person.

This has been the experience of thousands.

It will be yours if you take

SS. BRITANNIA DISABLED.

Anchor Liner Reached Halifax After Much Trouble—Piston Rod Broke.

Halifax, April 9.—The Anchor Liner Britannia, with a full general cargo and six first-class passengers, arrived in port this afternoon, disabled. The steamer left New York on April 2 for Mediterranean ports. On April 4, when 250 miles out, the high piston rod broke and cracked the cylinder-head. After 52 hours' work the engineers disconnected the triple expansion engines and the steamer started for Halifax. After running 22 hours another break occurred and the steamer started to leak. Temporary repairs were again effected, and the steamer reached Halifax unassisted. She will be detained here about a week.

BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless it is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manuel labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives: cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

Combine of Linen Spinners.

Washington, April 9.—Information concerning the formation of what amounts to a gigantic trust, embracing every linen spinning concern on the Continent of Europe, has reached the State Department in a report from United States Consul Mahin at Reichenberg, Austria. The object is believed to be to steady and possibly enhance the price of linen yarn.

Drank an Ounce of Carbolic Acid.

St. Stephen, N. B., April 9.—William Doyle, a young man of Calais, went to a saloon to-day, asked for a glass of water and retired to a side room. He returned immediately and fell screaming to the floor, dying in a few seconds. He swallowed an ounce of carbolic acid. He had been drinking and tried suicide earlier in the day.

Aguinaldo Signed.

Manila, April 9.—Altho the officials are uncommunicative, it is, nevertheless, said that Aguinaldo signed the peace manifesto this morning. Chief Justice Arellano drafted the document. Aguinaldo strongly objected to two clauses therein, and considerable argument was required to overcome his objections.

Nicholas May Abdicate.

London, April 9.—"The health of Emperor Nicholas has been shaken by recent commotions," says the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Express, "and he will probably abdicate, if the next child of the Empress should be a daughter."

THE HIDDEN MEANING.

High above the crowded street
Countless wires both cross and meet;
Paths are they for fairy feet.

Shod with lightning from the sky,
Unseen messengers glide by;
What they bear none may descry.

Often, when the wind is strong,
We can hear their wailing song,
Borne those slender threads along.

But, in list'ning, who can say,
As the message glides away,
Whether it be sad or gay?

So in every human breast
Lies some mystery, unexpressed
E'en to those one loves the best.

Only we ourselves may know,
As our hurrying life beats go,
Whether it be joy or woe.

ACCORDING TO LAW

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

I wasn't a tramp, but I had to become next thing to one in a sense. With my having been ill and out of work for months, with my being penniless and seedy and discouraged, with my asking for a meal here and a bed there as I tramped the highways between London and Liverpool, no one could be blamed for sizing me up as a "professional" and treating me accordingly. I made no complaint of that. What I complain of is the vindictiveness of the English law, its readiness to do up a man simply because he may be poor and unknown. Once let the law lay hands on you, and it is almost a crime to declare your innocence of the offense charged. A thousand men will declare your guilt where one will dare to doubt it.

One night, in the county of Warwick, I came upon a farmer who had neither wife nor children, but was living alone on his small holding. His name was Holborne, and, though gruff at first, he finally gave me a hearty supper and the privilege of passing the night in his barn. When supper was finished and he had heard my story, he offered me a pipe, and we sat at his door and smoked and chatted for an hour. It was agreed that I should turn to next morning and work with him in his fields for half a month. While we were chatting a neighboring farmer named Saunders came up and halted for five minutes, and two others passed on the highway and saluted Holborne with a good evening. It was 10 o'clock before I went to the barn, and, being tired and sleepy, I was soon in dreamland. How long I had slept when I was awakened by the sound of voices in anger I could not say, but I heard what seemed to be a quarrel between Holborne and another man. The voice of the other was high pitched and had a catch in it. It was not a stammer, but a sort of gasp, as if catching his breath. I was not fully aroused, nor did the quarrel continue long.

HIS DEAD BODY LAY ON THE GRASS.

It was just sunrise next morning when I woke up and turned out. The house was only about five rods away, and after looking about to see if Holborne were in sight I moved along to the house. His dead body lay on the grass before the open door. He had been struck on the head with a club and killed by a single blow. I was upset by the discovery, as you may believe. After touching his face and finding it cold I started off on the run for the nearest farmhouse, half a mile away. The farmer was milking his cow and his wife preparing breakfast, but they returned with me at once, and other neighbors were called, and a boy was sent off to the nearest police station. I told my story to the people, and all believed it, as why should they not when Saunders was among them? And yet when the police came their very first move was to arrest me as the murderer. A tramp had passed the night in the barn. Of course the tramp had murdered the farmer.

If you agree that the police were asses, you will agree that the others were fools. No sooner was I charged with the murder than all turned against me. Saunders suddenly remembered that our conversation was heated as he came up. The two who passed by thought they heard me use threatening language. A farmer whom I had not seen at all the evening before claimed to have come near enough to the house to have heard me ask Holborne for the loan of £2. I was angered, but not frightened. I asked the police to investigate my bed on the straw, and they found it still warm. I asked them to look through the house, and they found nothing disturbed. I asked them to note that the body was cold, and the doctor who was summoned said that life had been extinct for seven or eight hours. Was it to be believed that I had killed Holborne at 10 or 11 o'clock and then, instead of plundering the house and making off, gone to bed, slept all night and been the first to raise an alarm in the morning? And yet I was marched off to jail, and within three days there wasn't a person in the county who doubted my guilt.

I was examined by a magistrate who said I would no doubt get my just deserts, and the police made no move whatever to find any other party. Even the jailer and turnkeys chuckled over the hanging that must result. I told of having heard the quarrel, but they said I lied. I told of the arrangements made to go to work for Holborne in the morning, but they smiled in derision.

I was almost ready for the assizes and the hanging when a person whose identity I do not know to this day and who must have been moved by a spirit of fairness sent me a lawyer and gave that lawyer money to work with. Presto change! Why, a born fool could have picked up the threads of the case and cleared me. Within six hours after I had told the lawyer of the quarrel and the man with the catch in his voice they had the murderer spotted. His name was Jamison, and the quarrel was over the lease of the farm, and the club with which he had delivered the blow, having lost his temper, but not meaning to kill, was found in his house. More than that, he broke down and made a full confession, and when the assizes came on he stood in the dock in my place. Nevertheless in setting me at liberty the judge did it grudgingly and with a warning that my crimes must sooner or later find me out, and I was scarcely clear of the courtroom when the humiliated and chagrined police overhauled me and said:

"It is just possible that you did not commit this crime, but only because somebody else got ahead of you. We know you had planned to do it and are a dangerous man to be roaming about, and if you are not outside the county by sundown you shall be run in on suspicion."

Jamison was hung for the killing, and a long confession was left in writing over his own hand, but there were scores of people who still believed that "the tramp" had something to do in some way with that murder.

Winterbottom's Clever Scheme.

"And now, darling, it only remains for you to say when"—

But at this moment the automobile, which had reached the top of the hill, started down the other side of the hill with frightful velocity.

The young man hastily applied the brake.

It failed to work.

He shut off the power.

It was too late.

The maddened machine raced down the steep grade.

At the foot of the incline there was a sharp turn to the left.

Here the automobile left the turnpike and ran down the embankment, throwing the young couple out and landing them in a big pile of sand.

"Never mind, darling," exclaimed the youth, who, with hat gone, collar loose at one end and coat ripped up the back, was presently engaged in digging sand out of the hysterical maiden's mouth; "this is one time that the course of true love ran smooth, even if it did get a bit of a jolt at the end of the run."

"Cyrus Winterbottom," she said half an hour later as they were journeying toward home in a farmer's wagon, "I believe you did the whole thing on purpose so you could have the chance of saying something smart."

POWDER AND BALL.

There are now 20,000 of the British troops in India whose terms of service have expired, some nearly two years. They are demanding their discharge, but the authorities hope to induce them to continue to serve until the close of the South Africa war by paying them a special bounty.

In a new uniform to be tried this summer in several corps of the German army the metal buttons at present in use are to be replaced by bone, cloth covered ones. HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Save your cold tea for the vinegar barrel. It sours easily and gives color and flavor.

Cleaning windows with borax instead of ammonia or soap takes much less time than the ordinary way and is a success.

Never buy butter which has a milky look or is dotted with pink spots. This is a sign that it has not been thoroughly washed from the buttermilk and will quickly turn sour or lose its flavor.

To clean chandelier globes that have become smoked and grimy they should be left for some minutes in hot water in which a piece of washing soda has been dissolved. Afterward wash them in hot water with a little ammonia, scouring the discolorations with a small, not too stiff, brush.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

An excellent gargle for sore throat or hoarseness is made by boiling a teaspoonful of pure honey in a cup of water.

Cinders or any of the particles that seek lodgment in the eye are best removed by first closing the eye until it is filled with tears. Next turn the lid back and use the edge of a handkerchief or a looped hair to remove the cinder.

Common, everyday earth is a cure for many an ache or pain. In the case of a burn from an acid the chief thing is to apply an alkali to neutralize the acid. This may be done by gathering a handful of earth and laying it on the injured part, for the earth contains alkali enough to render it very efficacious. Soda may be used for an acid burn.

STATE LINES.

Mississippi has a total population of over 1,500,000, and yet the total vote of the state last November was under 60,000.

A new law in New Hampshire prohibits the holding of property in that state by game clubs which are not locally incorporated. It also provides that the state shall hold in trust for public use all natural bodies of water having an area of 15 acres or more.

Putnam's Corn Extractor

Doesn't lay a man up for a week, but quietly and surely goes on doing its work, and nothing is known of the operation till the corn is shelled. Plenty of substitutes do this. Some of them are dangerous—no danger from Putnam's except to the corn.

Measuring Your Man.

Put this in your pipe and smoke it: There is always some chap smarter than the chap you think is the smartest on earth—meaning yourself. You are a wonderful judge of human nature, but don't measure your man too confidently, for 99 times in 100 you'll find the suit doesn't fit. Never play favorites. The lightweight today, in your measurement, will be the heavyweight tomorrow. Old friends, like old wine, will in the end prove best. Never go back on an old friend unless you have plenty of money well invested. Possessed of a big bank account and flushed with success—the mischief take friends, old and new!

PAIN IN THE JOINTS

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is relieved as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

The Red Flag.

The red button and the red flag have been the emblem of labor and revolution for more than 3,000 years. In the ancient world the favorite colors of the aristocracy were white and azure blue, while red was plebeian. Minerva and Ceres, the goddesses of labor and agriculture, were always represented as dressed in flaming red, and the banners of the Greek and Roman trade unions were of the same color. The red flag nowhere in antiquity meant ferocity and slaughter, but rather typified the fact that all men, whether slaves or masters, had in their veins the same blood and in their nature the same humanity.

But in the frequent servile wars of Italy and Greece the red flag gradually became the emblem not of labor, but of revolt. At one time when the rebellious slaves and gladiators under Spartacus defeated three Roman armies the red flag was on the point of supplanting the eagle in the imperial city itself. It is related that the labor soldiers were so fanatically devoted to their flag that it was the custom of their generals when in battle to hurl it far into the enemy's ranks and so compel its devotees to rush forward and recover it.

MR. MacGREGOR'S REPLY

Concerning the Telegram Read in the House of Parliament.

Did not Claim to be Chairman of Organized Labour, of the Town of Peterborough.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I desire to publish in your columns my explanation of the circumstances under which I sent the telegram to Mr. Ralph Smith, M.P., concerning which The Review is making a great ado, and the object I had in sending it.

Mr. Smith communicated with me because I was chairman at the joint meeting of labour men which he had lately addressed in the Opera House in this town. I was informed that Dr. Sproule of East Grey had read a letter in the House of Commons wherein it was stated on behalf of Mr. Kendry, on March 20th, "There were over fifty employees discharged at the Auburn Woollen Mills, Peterborough, last week. Fifty more will be laid off this week as orders are being completed and no new orders coming in." Mr. Smith desired to know something of the facts connected with this mill and I accordingly had very careful enquiries made into the matter, and sent to Mr. Smith the following telegram, every word of which is correct.

"Ralph Smith, Esq,
House of Commons,
Ottawa.

Auburn Woollen Mills have been continually running night and day during this last four years, have employed twice as many hands and have over twice as large a pay roll as before and turn out more than twice as much goods and of better quality. They have improved their machinery out of their earnings at least $50,000.00 and have for three years been too busy to partly close down to accurately take stock. As this is the period they change from summer to winter goods they now take stock and are extensively repairing their machinery, and have laid off very few hands temporarily for that purpose, as stock cannot be taken and machinery repaired with mill running at full capacity. Have regularly paid good dividends to shareholders for five years and are making money. Close and private corporation."

R. F. McGREGOR,
Chairman of Smith labour meeting.

Immediately after this telegram was read, Mr. Kendry arose in his place in the house and solemnly giving his word of honour as a man and a member of Parliament stated: "So far as that telegram is concerned, the whole statement is incorrect." Now remember I said the mill was running night and day for four years, yet Mr. Kendry says "the whole statement is incorrect." If Mr. Kendry is no nearer the truth in matters which everybody in Peterborough knows to be facts, how can he expect us to believe what he says with respect to matters which concern his mill which is carefully hid from the public gaze in his close and private corporation. If he wants to be fair and candid with the public let him publish a sworn statement of the large dividends and bonuses that have been paid to the stockholders by this factory, during the last five years. Let him publish a statement of the number of men employed, his pay roll and the out put of his mill during the last five years. If he does, his employees will learn that they have not been allowed to share in the high protection he receives under the present Preferential Tariff.

I did not send the telegram in the capacity in which it is said by the Review that I sent it. I did not send the telegram on behalf of the Carpenter's Union. Why put up a straw man to knock him down. You will notice that the Carpenter's Union do not question the correctness of my telegram, and that really is the issue. I ask the Review to try and get a real live herring to draw across the track to try to mislead the public. Yours truly,

R. F. McGREGOR.

The 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, had their first march out of the season last night, but owing to the fact that they were unaccompanied by the band, not quite as much interest was attracted in the proceedings as no doubt otherwise would have been. As will be noticed by orders, Lieut. Complin, of the Queen's Own Rifles, is attached for drill to No. 6 Company.

After the regiment returned to the drill shed, company drill was the order of proceeding. The following orders were read:

CLARKE & GIBSON

GREAT AWAKENING.

Upwards of One Thousand Conversions During the Winter Season.

Mr. H. D. Kennedy, of town, and Mr. John M. Whyte, well known here, have been recently conducting revival services at Harriston, Owen Sound, Wallaceburg, and other western towns, and one more hundred have professed to have become Christians. One of Peterborough's leading citizens happened into their meetings in Owen Sound, and tells us that a half hour before the time for service, the largest church in that town was packed, and many were turned away. At present those brethren are at Clinton in a big union service of all the churches, and over one hundred have already been converted there. We have noticed from time to time that the local papers, where these evangelists have been, have spoken very highly indeed of their work. Mr. Kennedy is not only an evangelist and strong preacher, but also a writer. His new book on Jacob, the Wrestler, and Ruth's vision, is very highly recommended by Prof. Wallace, of Victoria College, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Briggs, of the Methodist Bookroom. Mr. Whyte has also a new song book just out—"Battle Songs of the Cross," which contains two hundred hymns of Mr. Whyte's own composition, one hundred of which have never yet been before the public. The many friends of these brethren here will be pleased to hear of their good work.

The Clinton News Era speaks as follows of the work of these evangelists:

The evangelists Whyte and Kennedy, according to announcement, conducted service in the Rattenbury street church on Sunday; and each evening this week except Saturday. Large congregations have greeted them at each service; the church last Sunday evening being completely filled. Mr. Whyte's singing, accompanied on the guitar, is an especially pleasing and effective portion of the service. He has a very sweet voice which has been thoroughly trained, and is under perfect control. He puts his whole soul into his work, so that his singing and playing are remarkably tender and sympathetic and finds its way into the hearts of the hearers. His "My Lord and I" and "Jesus, the fairest of the fair" are especially worthy of mention.

Mr. Kennedy's preaching is unique. It is very plain, practical, quaint. Having been associated with Mr. D. L. Moody for some time, he has caught something of Mr. Moody's style of presenting truth. Sometimes a single sentence comes like the flash of a search light over some old truth; and we see it as never before. Mr. Kennedy uses Scripture illustrations with good effect; and his comments theron give them a new interest. His addresses to children are very interesting. He has no difficulty in keeping their attention.

These Christian workers will continue their labours in old Rattenbury street church every night next week; song service at a quarter to eight. These meetings are interdenominational. Everybody welcome. Collections are taken each evening to defray expenses.

Messrs. Whyte and Kennedy will address a meeting of the W.C.T.U. in the basement of the Ontario street Methodist church on Friday afternoon. Mr. Whyte will speak on women's franchise and will also sing several temperance songs. The public is cordially invited. Children are also welcome.

Children's services were commenced on Tuesday afternoon after school hours, and were also held on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. Splendid and well attended meetings were held.

A temperance mass meeting will be held in the town hall on Sunday at 3.45, to be addressed by both gentlemen. Every person is invited.

ST. MARK'S, OTONABEE.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. Mark's, Otonabee, was held on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. Rev. H. Symonds presided.

The churchwardens' account showed a flourishing condition of affairs. The vestry had been enlarged, a stove purchased and a Sunday school library installed. After the payment of all accounts there was a balance on hand of $26.08.

The sum of $5 was voted to Miss Greystock as a slight recognition of her valuable services as organist.

A very warm vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Thomas Thorne for his valuable services in connection with the enlarged vestry, which had saved the congregation many dollars, and for the handsome bookcase which he has presented to the Sunday school library. Mr. Symonds was requested to purchase a Prayer Book to be presented to Mr. Thorne as a slight memento of his liberality and zeal.

Mr. D. Lawson was unanimously re-elected People's Warden, and the Rector re-nominated Mr. Mark Greystock.

Dr. Burritt and F. Barlow Cumberland, Esq., were re-elected lay representatives.

HARMONY LODGE I.O.G.T.

Basket Social Under the Above Auspices Last Evening.

An entertainment and basket social was held last evening by Harmony Lodge, I.O.G.T. in the hall over Dutton's. A good programme of vocal and instrumental music, readings, etc., was rendered, the following taking part: Misses Maude Curtis, B. Butcher, L. and D. Grey, Booth and O'Neil, and Messrs. F. W. Walden and T. J. Begley. The chair was very ably filled by Mr. G. W. Powell.

The baskets were then auctioned off to the highest binder, the competition in many cases being decidedly brisk. The baskets were very handsome and reflected much credit on the makers.

A hearty invitation was extended by the Chief Templar on behalf of the Lodge to those present, urging them to become members of the Good Templars and help along the work.

RUSSELL SAGE AS A WIT.

(From Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for April.)

Russell Sage's Yankee ancestry reappears in his face, figure, speech and thought. Once when Manhattan elevated stock was below par, someone asked him his age. He smiled, answered and added: "but like the Elevated, I propose to go above a hundred!"

To an impertinent friend who asked what was the most philantropic way of using a large fortune, he replied:

"Keep it constantly active in order to give employment to the largest number of human beings."

When he gave Sage Hall to the Troy Female Seminary, someone said:—

"Why don't you present it to some men's college?"

Mr. Sage responded quickly:

"The women need it the most."

ASHBURNHAM CIVIC ASS'N.

An Interesting Meeting Held Last Night.

MANY PAPERS WERE READ.

Rev. Mr. Symonds, Rev. Mr. Thompson and Others Addressed the Meeting.

The second regular meeting of the Ashburnham Civic Association was held on Tuesday evening, April 9th, the President, Mr. E. A. Peck, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and confirmed. The constitution was also read for the information of new members present.

Mr. H. T. Strickland gave notice of intention to move an amendment to the constitution, to allow property owners, not resident in Ashburnham, to join the A. C. A.

Rev. Mr. Symonds was then called on to explain his ideas on "Arbour Day." He spoke on the advantages of beautifying the village. Life is not simply a matter of making money, but time should also be taken for the cultivation of the beautiful as well. The desire to beautify his surroundings is a pleasing trait in a man's character and a good index thereof. It is the duty of each man to spend some care on the common good. The village is a unit, as a family is a unit, with common needs and common interests.

Parts of Ashburnham are already quite attractive, while others might be improved upon. If we plant even 50 trees a year, in 10 years we shall have 500 trees, with probably 400 of them alive. It would be well to take the first Friday in May—the school arbor day—and extend it to the whole village. On that day a half holiday might be proclaimed, and all urged to plant trees, and clean up and beautify their premises.

It would be well to have public supervision of tree planting on the streets. A committee of the A.C.A. might be appointed to act with the council to arrange to get trees and have them properly planted.

Rev. C. L. Thompson, Mr. W. Irwin and others took part in the discussion which followed.

It was finally moved by Rev. Mr. Symonds, seconded by Mr. W. Irwin, and carried unanimously, "That this association hereby requests the Council of Ashburnham to appoint Friday, May 3rd as Arbour Day and to declare on that day a half holiday."

It was moved by Rev. Mr. Thompson, and seconded by Mr. T. H. Adams, and carried, "That the following be a committee to confer with the council in regard to the procuring of trees, and to have charge of the work of planting, and any other matters connected therewith: H. T. Strickland, chairman; J. Ball, A. Fitzgerald, T. R. White, F. Baxter, J. Butcher, A. Rutherford, J. Lynch, R. Hamilton, W. Irwin, E. A. Peck, M. W. Matchett.

Mr. Peck read a letter from Mr. McCarthy in regard to a dry dock.

Mr. G. M. Roger represented the council of Peterborough, which had appointed a committee to try and secure a dry dock for Peterborough and Ashburnham, which had every advantage for a dry dock.

Mr. Roger congratulated the village on having such a society as the A.C.A., and said it was bound to benefit the village in many ways.

Rev. Mr. Thompson thought this would be a very central place for a dry dock, and said it would be necessary for the T.V.C.

It was decided that Messrs. Peck, Matchett, Lundy and Irwin be a committee to draw up a petition urging the Government to construct a dry dock at Ashburnham.

The other two subjects, "Public Parks" and "New Industries," were left over to the next meeting, the second Tuesday in May, namely May 14, when everybody will be welcome as usual. The attendance at this last meeting was very encouraging.

EDUCATIONAL CLASS RE-UNION.

The First of the Closing Exercises To-morrow Night.

To-morrow night will see the first of the closing exercises of the various classes held during the winter months at the Y. M.C.A. It will take the form of an educational class re-union, when addresses will be given by leading men on the advantages of the educational classes to the working boy or man. In order that the evening will be of interest to those present in different ways, the C. G. Glee Club will be present and render several vocal selections, besides Mr. Gliddon's orchestra. Invitations have been sent to all those who have taken advantage of the education offered any time during the winter months, and should any fail to receive the same, they will be welcome. Refreshments will be served at the close.

DID NOT BEAT HIS WIFE.

To the Editor and Readers of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wish through the columns of your valuable paper to correct a report which has been in circulation for the past week or so about myself. Mr. S. W. Lowry, of the Dominion Carpet Co., Port Hope, did not beat his wife, and I now give my own and my wife's signature as proof.

Signed, MR. S. W. LOWRY, Port Hope,
MRS. S. W. LOWRY.

IMPROVEMENTS NOTICEABLE.

Extensive improvements are to be seen on Charlotte street just now. The Snowden House is undergoing its regular spring renovating, and is being housecleaned from cellar to garret. In addition to this the brick work in front is being transformed from red into a cream white colour, giving the building a somewhat more dainty appearance. Messrs. Sharpe and Manning have the contract.

The Peterborough Steam Laundry is also being subjected to a change of considerable importance. Mr. Parker's conservatory over the office in front is being taken down and the space utilized for other purposes.

For twenty-four years Vapo-Cresolene has been extensively used for all forms of throat and bronchial troubles. All Druggists.

GORE'S LANDING.

Mr. W. S. Edwards is spending Easter at the residence of Mr. C. F. Sorby.

Mrs. W. S. Bonbright was at home for Good Friday.

Masters Henley Sorby and James Smart and Miss Norah Sorby are home from school for the holidays.

The lake has been open around the shores for some days, and the river is opening out rapidly.

The meeting at the public library was held on Saturday evening instead of Friday.

A sale of stock, implements, etc., was held on Monday at Glen Lynden, the farm of the late Mr. Neill.

Easter services were held in both the Episcopal and Methodist churches on Sunday, and both were suitably adorned with flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Whiterid have returned to their home here for the summer.

FRASERVILLE.

I see a good deal of shots fired in your paper about your go-ahead town, Peterborough, looming up in your healthfulness, prosperity, &c., but I can assure you Fraserville is making no mean showing, for Mr. Henry Neithercutt, of No. 121 Water street boasts of a cow that has given birth to six calves in two years and ten months. Now Mr. Editor let us hear from your town next.

Mr. J. J. Herron has bought the Robert Stewart farm in the suburbs of this village (of healthy calves) and is now fully established in his new home.

It is with sorrow we note the death of Mrs. David Smith, of this place, on last Thursday, in her eighty eighth year. She was a highly respected lady as was shown by the large number of friends who assembled last Saturday to offer the last tribute of respect to the deceased, at the Union cemetery near this village.

We had another addition to our town last Wednesday. Mr. Wm. Richardson, our enterprising merchant, introduced a beautiful blushing bride. To Mr. and Mrs. R. we extend our best wishes.

We notice that Mrs. Loomis of Peterborough, comes off the train quite often of late. We understand she is visiting her father, Mr. Wm. Kerr, who is dangerously ill at present.

Mr. Samuel Roddy is suffering from a severe attack of grippe but under the care of Dr. McKinnon of Millbrook, we look for his recovery soon.

Mrs. Alf. George and little daughter Viola, are the guests of Mrs. J. J. Herron.

At the present growth of the village we will soon have to have a newspaper of our own.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

We are anxiously waiting for the power from Burleigh Falls to pass through our town. It will be the means of starting up some new industries or manufactories. Farmers require so much done by machinery these days, and they don't want to go far to have it done. When this power comes it will bring every convenience to their doors. The foundry here may use it in place of the old steam engine, which is nearly out of date.

The Mills farm, we hear, is to be occupied by Mr. Tippet.

Mr. J. R. McLean left for his home in Toronto on the 2nd inst.

Mr. McPherson, of Omemee, reports the roads very bad.

Farmers are invited to call and inspect the new attachment for harness, manufactured by Mr. T. A. Jackson. It's on exhibition at the post office. He is waiting for the Burleigh power so as to enlarge his factory.

Dr. Keith and Mr. A. Campbell left here for the Queen City on the 4th inst.

Mr. T. W. McLean, of Brantford, was at the parental home for Easter Sunday.

Then He Hurried Up.

He was too modest to be a successful lover, and he had let 40 years of his life go by without ever coming to an emotional point.

He was in love with a fair being of suitable age, but he would not tell her so, and though she knew it she could not very well give him a hint about the situation.

She was willing because she had arrived at that time of life when a woman is not nearly so hard to please as she might have been at some other time, but he was stupid and went away without a word.

He was gone a long, long time, and when he came back he found her still ready.

"I have come back after many years," he said to her as he took her hand in greeting.

She had learned something in the years since she had seen him last.

"Well, for goodness' sake, Henry," she exclaimed fervidly, "why don't you take them? I'm 35 now. How many more years do you want?"

Then a great light shone upon him, and he did not wait for any more.—London Answers.

DONE IN AMERICAN STYLE.

Up to Date Advertising In the Land of the Rising Sun.

One day when Mr. George Ade was out walking with a guide in the naval quarter of Kioto, Japan, he observed coming down the street the head of a great procession. Interested at once, he paused to watch the procession pass. On they came, gaudy in apparel, but grave in face, flaunting flags and great banners, on which were Japanese inscriptions. The mournful chant which announced their approach was broken only when the kettledrums or tamtams were pounded or the cymbals clashed. As the weird and solemn procession approached Mr. Ade uncovered and bowed his head reverently, it being his custom and settled principle invariably to show the highest respect for the rites and ceremonies of the peoples with whom he comes in contact. He is a firm believer in the doctrine, "When in Rome, do as the Romans do." His face was very grave.

The procession was long, nearly a block in length, but Mr. Ade remained uncovered during the entire time of its passing. Once or twice he glanced at the guide out of the corner of his eye. He thought he saw on the man's face a puzzled expression. Finally, when the procession had passed, he replaced his hat and addressed himself to the wondering guide.

"Buddha?" he inquired.

The guide looked more puzzled.

"Shinto?" then asked Mr. Ade.

"I do not understand," the guide finally said,

"Was not that a funeral procession?" inquired Mr. Ade.

A light began to dawn upon the guide's face. He almost smiled as he replied:

"No; tooth powder!"

The Japanese, it seems, are rapidly learning American ways, even in advertising. A visitor to Japan may now see, as in some portions of America, almost every hillside plastered with advertisements. They are very enterprising, and, as this incident indicates, one of the advertising methods employed is that of having a procession march through the streets.

UNAWARES.

A song welled up in the singer's heart
(Like a song in the throat of a bird),
And loud he sang, and far it rang,
For his heart was strangely stirred,
And he sang for the very joy of song,
With no thought of one who heard.

Within the listener's wayward soul
A heavenly patience grew;
He fared on his way with a benison
On the singer, who never knew
How the careless song of an idle hour
Had shaped a life anew.

—Alice Williams Brotherton in "Poets and Poetry of Indiana."

LOVE'S TRAGEDY.

How a Girl Was Won.

The girl was looking out of the window, humming softly, with a fine air of indifference. The man was leaning his back against the mantelpiece, gloomily observing the points of his boots.

They were good boots, but hardly worth the amount of serious observation he was giving them. To any person of moderate understanding the situation was obvious. To the two actors in it it was becoming embarrassing. The man moved first.

"You are sure your mind is made up, Georgie?"

The girl stopped humming abruptly and turned round.

"What is the use of beginning again?" she said, with an impatient movement. "You know one cannot serve two masters. I am going to give my life to my art."

"But, Georgie, you know what it means to me. I mean you know I could never change or forget."

"Why not?" she returned quickly. "That is just what I wanted to speak to you about. You see"—and her proud head was raised a trifle higher—"you only want a wife who can see that you get a good dinner every day and sew the buttons on your shirts. You have known us all for years. Why do you expect me, the unpractical one of the family, to snatch at the offer of this post? You would have shown more sense in asking Madge or Lillian, and I dare say one of them might have had you."

For a moment there was a dangerous gleam in his eyes, but it changed to a tender look of amusement as the girl flung herself viciously into a chair with the air of a sulky child.

"I suppose it would have been more sensible," he agreed, "only I don't love either Madge or Lilian. If you will only have me," he continued, a twinkle in his eye and abject humility in his voice, "I will do my best to overcome my disgraceful appetite and dine off a sentimental song if you deem it best. I will also look out for some patent shirt fasteners which will save you the trouble of sewing on buttons."

Georgie looked up quickly.

"You needn't try to be funny, Rex!" she said severely. "You know quite well I should have to become a domesticated woman if I married, and I won't. I am going to devote my life to music, and if I were to sacrifice that and marry you I should stop loving you in a fortnight and hate you in a month. There; that's all."

Rex looked up quickly.

"You would stop loving me in a fortnight?" he asked. "Then I may infer you have begun already?"

"You may infer nothing, sir!" she retorted sharply, but her face was crimson.

"By Jove, that's the nearest I've ever got!" thought Rex. "I believe she does half like me, but must make her cave in before she'll respect me."

There was a moment's pause, then he said gently:

"I beg your pardon, Georgie. I believe you may be right, after all, though it is hard to think of giving you up." And he sighed softly, but resignedly. "If you are not too angry with me, will you tell me which you think it would be best for me to try to like, Lilian or Madge?"

"I am so glad, Rex, you are sensible at last! Really, I have thought it out carefully, and, though Lilian is awfully sweet and—and everything, I think Madge is the one best suited to you. You see, she cooks splendidly and knows exactly how everything ought to be done in a house and would be perfectly satisfied if you kissed her once a month or so and occasionally said the dinner was excellent. She really would, she is so easily pleased. While I— Well, you know what I am."

"Yes, I know what you are," he replied quietly. "You are very young."

She misunderstood him, as he had intended she should, and assented eagerly.

"Yes, I am young—only 19—and you are nearly 30. Madge is nearest you in age, and I believe you could make her love you if you tried."

"Shall I try? Do you want me to?"

"Yes, of course I want you to. It is for your own sake. She would make you a better wife than I because I don't want even to be loved. I am satisfied with my life as it is."

"All right, Georgie. In a month I shall have made up my mind, and I will tell you. Goodby."

"Goodby," she murmured, vaguely afraid of what she had done. She tried to reason out the cause of her depression, but it seemed to have no cause, and with a lagging step she made her way to the sunny den which she shared with her sisters.

Madge was sitting there alone, sewing and singing gayly. She looked up, with a smile, as Georgie entered, and an unusual merriment danced in her eyes.

"Guess who's been here?" exclaimed Madge.

"Who?"

"Rex. And he's got a box for 'The Loves of Henrietta' tomorrow, and he's asked mother and me to go."

"I'm so glad," said Georgie, but with singular want of enthusiasm.

And Madge stole a furtive look at her, and the corners of her mouth quivered.

A month had passed. Once more Georgie stood at the same window, softly humming. She was waiting for Rex, and her face was very pale. It was the same face still, but there was a difference, the difference which marks every girl's face when she becomes a woman.

She had learned her lesson and borne her punishment in silence.

Today she had nerved herself for a supreme effort that she might do no wrong to the sister who had stepped into the place she had voluntarily resigned.

She had thought love not worth the sacrifice of art, and if art without love had turned to dust and ashes in her hand who was to blame but herself?

She was waiting for Rex—Rex, who had fallen such a helpless victim to Madge that he had had scarcely a look or a word to spare for her the whole month. It was this that had first taught her what she had lost and that had afterward nerved her to play her part—for a week's experience had taught her that it was only a part—of careless indifference and entire absorption in her art.

When it seemed too hard for her, she reminded herself sternly of her own words, "I am satisfied with my life as it is."

"They shall never see I am not satisfied," she said and struggled on.

Today there was a set, stern look on her face, for this was to be the supreme ordeal, and at present there was no one to see her. But as she leaned her head listlessly against the window there came from the hall the sound of a familiar whistle, and instantly her expression changed. A smiling, expectant face greeted Rex as he entered, and she scrutinized him with playful anxiety.

"The funeral and wedding marches are side by side on the piano," she began, with an affected attempt at seriousness, "but I was waiting to choose between them till I have seen your face."

"What does my face tell you?" he asked.

She looked at him critically.

"That the momentous question is to be asked no later than this evening," she replied. "Good luck attend you."

"Wrong. Try again."

"Is it possible it is to be postponed till tomorrow morning?" And she held out her hand with a playful gesture of sympathy.

"Wrong again. I see I must tell you."

He had seized the hand she had offered and was looking her straight in the face.

"What do you say to the question having been asked already?"

The last month had wrought many changes in Georgie. She had, for one thing, learned to keep her face under control, and only the slightest trembling of the eyelid showed that she was taken by surprise.

"My dear brother to be," she said, regaining possession of her hand, "I consider I have been grossly ill treated in having this fact sprung upon me so suddenly. I had heard of a delightful little book called 'The Right Word In the Right Place'—a help to those people born devoid of tact. I was going to purchase it in the assurance that I should find a paragraph entitled, 'What to say to a future brother-in-law,' or words to that effect, and now you pounce upon me like this and crush me. I feel unfit for conversation. You had better go." And she turned majestically away.

"I will. Only you must first allow me to make one remark. You did not ask what Madge said to me." He paused impressively. "She has refused me."

It was his trump card, and he was growing desperate. He took advantage of Georgie's back being still turned toward him, and, creeping softly behind her, took one glance at her face before she knew he had moved.

It was enough.

"Georgie," he cried, "hasn't the play gone far enough? I am tired of acting, and I want you, Georgie—I can't tell you how much I want you!" There was passionate entreaty in his voice.

"What did you mean," she asked slowly, "by saying you were 'tired of acting?' I don't understand."

"No; I know," he answered guiltily. "I've got to tell you. Madge and I have been playing at being lovers during the last month. I have even asked her to marry me, and she has refused. It was the natural climax to the play, she said, and she told me to do it, because nothing else would put you off your guard. I had to know whether you loved me or not," he ended desperately.

"It was very cruel," she whispered at last.

"Ah, Georgie, don't!" he entreated. "I thought of that, but, honestly, would you ever have known you loved me if we had gone on in the same old way?"

There was a moment's silence.

"I should never have known I loved you," she answered softly.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Rest Your Eyes.

The moment you are instinctively inclined to rub the eyes that moment cease to use them; also it is time to give your eyes a rest when you become sensible of an effort to distinguish. Cold water is about the safest application for inflamed eyes. Never sleep so that on awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window. Never read or sew directly in front of the light of a window, the better light being that that comes from above or obliquely or over the left shoulder. Too much light is an evil, just as is scant light. It creates a glare that pains and confuses the sight.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Coloring Easter Eggs.

Easter eggs can be colored with aniline dye. It should be diluted to the proper shade and the eggs boiled in it. Green, the color of hope and resurrection, is particularly appropriate, but a variety is pleasing—red, pink, blue, pale yellow and purple. Eggs can be boiled hard and painted in water colors with a single spring flower, as a primrose or a butterfly, also a symbol of the resurrection. They should be arranged in nests of moss. German children believe that the Easter eggs are laid by hares, so representations of this little animal are often placed on them, or near them. Painted butterflies, mounted on wire, can be made to hover over the nest.

Humors

Come to the surface in the spring as in no other season. It's a pity they don't run themselves all off that way; but in spite of pimples and other eruptions, they mostly remain the same. That's bad.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them and and cures all the painful and disfiguring troubles they cause. Nothing else cleanses the system and clears the complexion bright and clear.

BURIED THOUGHTS.

How often does the chopper of some stone,
While toiling at his task of heave and shock,
Find in the heart space of a severed rock
The impress of some fern that once had grown,
Full of aspiring life and color tone,
Deep in the forest where the shadows flock,
Till, caught within the adamantine block,
It lay for ages hidden and unknown!
So many a beauteous thought blooms in the mind,
But, unexpressed, droops down into the soul
And lies unuttered in the silence there
Until some opener of the soul shall find
That fernlike, fossiled dream complete and whole
And marvel at its beauty past compare!
—Alfred S. Donaldson in Outlook.

His Good Wife.

Gilbert—I believe in a man being the master of the house. He should have the say in everything.

Mason—How about the naming of that baby of yours?

Gilbert—My wife gave way to me in a very proper and wifely manner. She said she didn't care what name I gave the little fellow so long as it was Henry. So that's the name I gave him. You know I felt, after the hearty manner in which she deferred to me, I ought to yield a single point merely out of appreciation of her humility.

Family Pride.

"I suppose you take a great deal of pride in your business."

"No," anwered Mr. Cumrox. "I used to take pride in my business, but ma and the girls don't approve of it. The only thing we take pride in now is my daughter's husband's pedigree."

FACTS.

It is a well known fact that most patent medicine "ads" are fakes, but since introducing

DR. HALL'S RHEUMATIC CURE the proprietors have adhered strictly to the rule of publishing none but genuine testimonials.

MR. CHAS. SUDDS. "You are at perfect liberty to use my name if it will be of any benefit to rheumatic sufferers," writes Mr. Charles Sudds (farmer), Simcoe Island. Mr. Sudds says that he suffered untold agony with rheumatism for eight years. The disease affected him in the back, hip, and down the sciatic nerve. The pain and loss of sleep he experienced made life not worth the living He might as well have taken so much water as the various other rheumatic remedies he tried. The truthful aspect of the testimonials in favor of DR. HALL'S RHEUMATIC CURE induced him to try a bottle, and he felt the effects of the first dose. He used half a bottle, and has not had a pain or ache since, although he had been a sufferer for eight years.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent bottles containing ten days' treatment. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. The Dr. Hall Medicine Co., Kingston, Ont.

UNIVERSAL DISTRUST RULES IN THE SAFE DEPOSIT BUSINESS.

Even Patrons Have to Submit to Galling Restrictions—Comedy In the Taking of Pedigrees—Remarkable Memory of Employees.

Many millions of dollars in plate, jewels, stocks, bonds, cash and other desirable things are locked in the vaults of the safe deposit companies doing business in New York city. These millions are guarded with scrupulous care. So much protection is thrown about them that their owners are obliged to submit to restrictions in handling their property which would be galling indeed if the reason was not obvious. There is a fortune for a daring thief behind the vaults' steel doors, and the sight of riches lying easy of access has turned many a well meaning but weak man into a rogue.

This is one reason why a visitor at the offices of these companies, be he patron or not, is regarded with embarrassing suspicion and why the man who desires to become a customer is forced to submit to an ordeal faintly suggestive of the Spanish inquisition. Mark Twain transformed the old adage about putting "all your eggs in one basket" into the smart epigram, "Put all your eggs in one basket and watch that basket." The safe deposit company has all its "eggs" in one basket, and the watchers of that basket are Argus eyed.

Of the 20 companies doing business in this city 17 are independent organizations, and the remaining six are identified with parent banks. The capital of the independent companies is over $5,000,000, and the value of the riches in their keeping may be roughly estimated at from 40 to 50 times that amount. One representative down town company has in its subterranean vaults 17,000 steel compartments, ranging in size from boxes 16 by 8 by 5 inches to safes in which a 10-year-old boy might stand upright.

The annual rental of these compartments varies from $5 in the one case to $800 in the other. The smallest boxes are large enough for a comfortable fortune. What can be tucked away in a big safe would tempt a Crœsus. Usually these latter compartments are rented by business partners. Each compartment has a double combination, half of which is known to each partner. Both men therefore must be present when the safe is opened, and an attendant has to use his key before the heavy doors can be swung back.

The customer who wishes to get into the vaults, perhaps to enjoy the pleasing pastime of cutting off little green coupons with a sharp pair of scissors, does not find it a simple matter. There is an outer gate guarded by a watchful Cerberus, an inner gate at which is a second Cerberus, and finally a third gate, around which is clustered a small army of attendants. When the man with the money has passed these successive barriers, he gives the key to his box to an attendant, who is distinguished among his fellows because he possesses a truly remarkable memory. He knows the person to whom each one of the 17,000 boxes belongs. If there were 27,000 boxes, he would know their 27,000 owners. He wouldn't brag about it either. His memory is the most valuable asset in his business.

When this mnemonic wonder has received the key to any one of the boxes, he goes with the customer unerringly to the right number, and, unlocking the box with the necessary aid of his own key, he carries the steel drawer to one of many little rooms equipped with scissors, paste, pen, ink and the like. Here the customer locks himself in. When he leaves, the process is reversed, and at length he arrives on the sidewalk with a considerable idea of his importance to the company which has the good fortune to safeguard his wealth.

A person who wants to rent a box is severely catechised. His pedigree to the third and fourth generation is deemed essential. His age, his profession, his habits, even his hopes and aspirations, are put on record. A few days ago an old gentleman and his wife, who were either the possessors of suddenly acquired wealth or recent arrivals in the city from up the state, called at a Broadway safe deposit company for the purpose of renting a box. The box was to be entered in the wife's name, and her husband was asked if the wife had any peculiarity by which she could be identified. The old man hemmed and hawed and rubbed his chin doubtfully.

"Well," he said at length, looking at his wife out of the corner of his eye, "well, I must admit that Alice is a leetle quick tempered."

"Why, William," was the retort, "I haven't said a mean thing to you in going on 30 years."

"Now, Alice," said her husband, fencing for an opening, "don't you recollect the time"—

"No, I don't, and you don't neither."

At this point the examiner thought it best to interpose. He said that the matter of identification would be waived.

The essential parts of each applicant's record are communicated to the attendants, who are required to keep intelligent watch of the drift of patronage. A woman who expected to meet a friend in the vaults on a Saturday morning asked an attendant if any one had called to see her.

"Not today," was the reply, "but your sister was here last Thursday afternoon," a statement which was perfectly true.

Instances of this watchfulness might be multiplied.

Persons who don't have to worry about where their food and clothes are coming from are proverbially careless. This carelessness is the cause of much trouble to safe deposit companies. One woman left a pearl rope worth $28,000 lying on the table in a room she had just quitted, and another was mildly anxious because, as she confessed to an attendant, she didn't know what she had done with bonds which a modest valuation put at $80,000. Evidences of thoughtfulness are afforded by the lists of found valuables posted each week.

No one should visit a safe deposit company in the hope of finding such articles on the floor. If he did, several large, robust men would hold him until a policeman came

THE WHIRL OF FASHION.

The princess skirt shaped with a corselet top is one of the popular styles of the season.

Small bishop sleeves, plain in style or laid in horizontal or vertical tucks, are more generally used with the new spring and summer shirt waists than sleeves of any other description.

Panne is still a conspicuous fabric in the shops. Black panne is the least attractive of the goods, but in pale shades of mauve, ciel blue, tea rose, pink, silver and sea green it is charming.

The golden tint of chestnut is a beautiful shade of brown, and for those who can wear it nothing is more becoming, but the dye is very antagonistic if there is a suspicion of pale yellow in the complexion.

Whatever may appear later on, the skirts of all new Paris made gowns are still absolutely close to the figure, with also the omnipresent flare on the lower portion of the skirt, which may be in circular form or closely gored.

For the mild days of spring the furriers who have warm neck things still on sale are doing many of them up with all sorts of dainty coquilles, jabots, choux and cascades of lace and chiffon, with decorated muffs en suite, to make them look less heavy.

Bands of embroidered velvet, cloth, silk or satin are used to edge boleros, walking jackets, skirt hems and open fronted princess dresses and these strappings in nun's veiling, cashmere, foulard silk, French batiste, organdie, linen lawn, etc., will be seen on summer gowns.

Queen's purple is the name of the very fashionable shade of this royal color which appears among elegant spring millinery in the list of handsome silks, foulards, tailor cloths and the latest importation of crepe de chine, nun's veiling, henrietta cloth, lansdowne and similar silk and wool fabrics.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box.

A Bad Judge.

Some years ago King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, was a guest at a country house in England, and, picking up a sporting paper in the billiard room one morning, was soon deep in its contents. A clergyman, also a guest, noticed this, and, sidling up, asked in a tone that was meant to carry reproof, "Is your royal highness really interested in that paper?"

The prince glanced around. "I never read anything I do not feel interested in," he remarked.

The clergyman, though, would not be denied. "Do you know, your royal highness, that one of my friends has lost hundreds of pounds by betting on horse racing and has never won anything?" he asked.

"Well," said the prince as he turned to another column, "he must have been a very bad judge of horseflesh."

"Save Me From My Friends."

This saying is commonly attributed to Voltaire, who at Ferney when pestered by professions of insincere friendship said, "I pray God to deliver me from my friends; I will defend myself from my enemies."

The thought, however, is attributed by the French to Marshal Villars, while Kant discovers it in an Italian proverb, and a German collection of proverbial wisdom gives it in a modified form. Antigonus, one of the generals of Alexander the Great, offered sacrifice that the gods might protect him from his friends and at the same time declaring he could look after his enemies himself. Churchill has something of the idea in the lines:

Greatly his foes he dreads, but most his friends;
He hurts the most who lavishly commends.

E W Grove

This signature is on every box of the genuine Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets the remedy that cures a cold in one day

A MOUNTAIN LAKE.

Oh, limpid listener, to your placid soul
Are mingled all the songs that brooks have sung
When years and years, the shaggy hills among,
They babbled of their trials, with foamy tears,
Until, all wearied, having reached their goal,
You softly soothed their sorrows and their fears.

Like sentinels the stolid mountains stand
About you, dress'd in garb of gorgeous green;
At early dawn their mirrored shapes are seen
In shimmering outline, painted by the sun,
Upon your face, athwart the gleaming sand,
Nor fade from view until the day is done.

A fitting figure of eternal rest
You typify the changeless fate of man
When, having coursed mortality's brief span
Adown the hills of Time, his life shall end,
And all his doings, be they banned or blest,
Forevermore, with other deeds, shall blend.

—John A Foote in Rosary Magazine.

BUSINESS OF THE SOAKER.

An Expert In Pawnbroking Who Has His Regular Customers.

In the neighborhood where pawnshops abound the soaker flourishes. The soaker acts as middleman between the pawnbroker and his customers. He explains his mission and accounts for his usefulness thus:

"The people down here employ me," said he, "not because they are ashamed to be seen going into a pawnshop themselves, but because I can get more for the goods than they can. There's an art in pawning a coat or a ring, just the same as in everything else.

"I've known people to go into a pawnshop with some old article to pawn and to look the proprietor over with a supercilious air, as if they considered themselves so far above him socially that he couldn't touch them with a 40 foot pole. Naturally, for sheer spite, the broker offers them only about half as much as they would get if they approached him properly. Having had a wide experience of my own, I know how to avoid such difficulties. I am not servile, but I am polite and respectful, and as those two qualities touch the most generous chord in the broker's bosom I get all I want on the proffered chattels.

"As recompense for my services I charge my customers 10 per cent commission. I have regular customers, and then, of course, I do many odd jobs for occasionals. There are families down here for whom I pawn the same things over and over again, one week after the other. On pay day they take their things out of soak. Three days later they put them in again, and the next pay day they take them out again. And so it goes, month after month. I canvass the houses just like a book agent or corn plaster peddler or insurance solicitor.

"'Anything to be pawned today?' I ask.

"And if there is I take it around to some shop and raise the necessary dough and take it back and get my commission. Once in awhile I come across somebody who abuses me and calls me a shark, but I'm nothing of the sort. I'm earning a decent living at a legitimate business."

DYSPEPSIA CURED.

The Case of Miss Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., Proves Beyond a Doubt that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Cure Even the Most Stubborn and Chronic Cases of Stomach Trouble.

Dyspepsia is no respector of persons. Young and old, rich and poor alike suffer the tortures of this dread disease. There are very few who entirely escape.

That it can be cured is no longer a matter of doubt. Theories are often exploded, but nothing can overcome the deductions which result from actual experiences.

Many have claimed to have discovered a remedy for dyspepsia. The theories advanced have been plausible and seemingly reasonable, but when the proposed medicines have been subjected to the actual test they have been found wanting.

Previous to the discovery of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets no medicine had ever successfully attacked and defeated all kinds of stomach trouble. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have never failed.

Miss Maggie Gallant, of Summerside, P.E.I., is an example. Briefly this is what she says:—"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and stomach weakness for four years. I could not get any relief. I heard of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and bought some. They relieved me instantly, and I have not been troubled since. I am completely cured."

Miss Gallant's experience adds another to the already long list of perfect cures effected by the use of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is positively no case of stomach trouble (except cancer) that Dodd's Dyspepsia tablets will not cure.

This is a strong statement, but it is made without any qualification whatever, and the experience of every dyspeptic who has tried Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets has confirmed it. Its truth cannot be denied.

Thousands of people have used Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, and never in a single case have they failed to cure. Many cases have been of long standing and very acute, but Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have completely cured. They'll cure you. Try them and be convinced.

English Roads.

After the abandonment of Britain by the Romans the roads fell into disuse and bridle paths formed the only means of communication. Not until the sixteenth year of Charles II—that is, 1670—was any systematic effort made to improve the roads of England.

The Topaz.

The word topaz comes from the Greek verb signifying to guess. The jewel was brought from the east and reported to have come from an island, and men guessed at the location of the isle which produced such beautiful gems.

"Better out than in" that humor that you notice. To be sure it's out, and all out, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WHAT FILIPINOS EAT

ONE FAVORITE DISH OF THE NATIVES IS GRASSHOPPER PIE.

It Is a Wonderful Dish, Prepared in Such a Way That the Insects Preserve Their Shape—Moths and Bats Are Also Culinary Dainties.

Your correspondent having had the privilege of investigating the kinds of food eaten by the native people of the Philippine Islands some interesting information may be given concerning the way in which the Filipino makes up a good dinner at low cost. Probably the most common article of food, that would not be desired by Americans or others than the Filipinos, is the grasshopper. In these islands the grasshoppers not only grow in great numbers, but the size of the insect is large. There are those who make a business of catching the grasshopper during the best season for them, which is in May, June, July and later.

There are several methods used by the natives for catching grasshoppers. The most effective is the net. This is a large butterfly net, arranged with netting placed over a hoop, and to the latter is fixed a long handle. The native takes this handle and with the mouth of the net toward the grasshoppers he rushes forth, bagging considerable numbers at each run. The grasshoppers always go in swarms, except the advance guard and the stragglers, and if anything occurs to disturb their flight they get confused and tumble into bags readily or fall into the open mouths of nets. They fly so closely that they cannot well escape, as when they turn slightly out of their course they come into contact with other grasshoppers next to them.

Grasshopper catching is a profitable business in the Philippines. Grasshoppers sell at $2 per sack, gold, in the larger cities of the islands, where the people do not have a chance to get at the insects in the field. The sacks of the islands hold about a bushel. The grasshopper is a regular article in the markets for the entire year, as, after drying out, the hopper can be kept indefinitely. It is in the operation of drying that the grasshopper is made eatable. I never saw a native eat a green grasshopper, but I have seen them eat the dried ones by the pocketful on the street or in company at entertainments and by the dishful at the table at their homes. Your correspondent has tried the prepared grasshopper and has experienced no serious results.

The hopper is first so thoroughly dried out in the heat of the sun or in the bake-oven that there is nothing left that is really objectionable, and a nice, crispy article of food results. This tastes sweet of itself and something like ginger snaps. The natives usually sweeten the grasshoppers more by using a sprinkling of brown sugar. Then the confectioners make up grasshoppers with sugar, chocolate trimmings and colored candies in such a way that a very nice tasting piece of confectionery is obtained.

The housewife of the Philippines takes considerable delight in placing before you a nice grasshopper pie or cake. The grasshopper pie is the most wonderful dish, as the big hoppers are prepared in such a way that they do not lose their form or any of their parts.

Another article of food which is relished by the natives is procured by collecting large quantities of moths from the rocks of the mountainous regions. In several spots in the mountains in Panay and other islands of the southern portion of the Philippine group I saw moths existing so thickly in the rocky tissues that they could be scraped off into buckets by the quart. The moths seemed to mass in the crevices and there hang. One could get a barrel of the moths in a very short while.

The natives have not failed to investigate the worth of the moth as an article of food. Their mode of catching consists in going to the hills in parties of a dozen or more with the proper bags and articles for collecting the moths. The scraping process is used in some sections of the islands, while in Negros isle I noticed that they adopted a different scheme. Here they spread a bamboo net on the ground beneath an overhanging colony of the moths and then proceeded to disturb the insects with the point of a spear or piece of bamboo. The little insects lose their hold and drop to the mat. They are slow of action, and before they can crawl away the game is bagged.

The dainty natives will not eat the wings or the heads of the little moths, and so they now take steps to remove these objectionable parts. This operation consists in creating heat to such an extent that the tissues in the heads and wings become baked and crumble off.

Often the moths in their present stage of preparation are eaten with some sugar or with other articles of food. Again, the moths are used in conjunction with other mixes of food in the form of pudding and prepared dishes. The cocoanut is liberally used in mixtures with the moth and cocoanut cake and pie, and moth fillings are common.

The horrible bat of the islands, which here grows in many cases to the size of the American chicken hawk, is also eaten in some sections of the Philippines. The best classes of natives, however, do not eat the bats. The mode of catching the bats is peculiar. The cities, towns and barrios of all of the islands of the Philippine group are quite overrun with bats, which fly through the streets at night in large numbers. They fly slowly and seem incapable of dodging articles in their path. Therefore the native takes a long pole, puts a sort of combination hooked arrangement at the top and takes position in a street, and with the pole held erect waits for bats to come along and bump into the hooked portion. As the native sees a bat coming he plans to have the hook in its path, and as he moves the pole, so as to bring the hook into contact with the head of the bat, the latter usually strikes it with a bang and drops to the earth stunned, when the native proceeds to promptly put the bat to death. After standing in this position for an hour or more the native has a little pile of bats at his feet. These he takes to the market the next day and receives about 2 cents each for them. The bats are eaten only in small part. The wings, head and, in fact, all but a small portion of each side are thrown to waste.

CHINA'S NEW REBELLION.

Father-in-Law of Prince Tuan Said to Be an Important Factor.

Pekin, April 9.—The Russian Minister to China, M. De Giers, responding to the letter from Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang regarding Manchuria, merely refuses to hold further communication with them upon the subject.

The Mongolian Prince Olaskan, father-in-law of Prince Tuan, proves to be an important factor in the rebellion now in progress. He urges the rebellious troops to march on Sian Fu.

Chinese who know Gen. Tung Fu Sian, say the Emperor brought the rebellion upon his own head when he published the edict threatening the general with future punishment. On account of his present power and influence, General Tung Fu S'an would not permit this and naturally desired to prove that power. He has the entire Mohammedan population with him: Prince Tuan has a large following, while Prince Olaskan controls the entire Province of Mongolia.

The German Minister, Dr. Mumm Von Schwartzenstein, entertained all the Ministers at a dinner to-day in honor of the anniversary of the birth of Count Von Waldersee.

As Japan Views It.

Yokohama, April 9.—The dissatisfaction of Japan with Russia's action is not in regard to the Manchurian agreement, the leading papers here affirm, but with Russia's action in Manchuria. Hence, Japan declines, according to an important section of the press, to consider the abandonment of the agreement as a final settlement of the Manchurian question. It is urged that this question should be brought before a conference of the Ministers, like the other Chinese questions.

Russia Has Secured Herself.

St. Petersburg, April 9.—The Novoe Vreymia avers that Russia has now no cause for uneasiness regarding Manchuria. She possesses separate agreements with the Governor of each of the three provinces, which remain in force. In the future, if China desires her former position restored at any time, she can sign the treaty in her possession. In the meantime, The St. Petersburger Zeitung says, Russia is free to act in Manchuria for the preservation of order as her judgment directs.

Memorial Asks for Reforms.

Shanghai, April 9.—The Yang Tse Viceroys and Governors have forwarded a memorial to the throne suggesting certain reforms. These reforms suggest, among other things, that the royal Princes and students of good family should travel and study in foreign countries; that the entire army be drilled by western methods; that colleges and schools be extended, and that a standard dollar currency be adopted.

MEN'S UNDERWEAR.

The Port Hope Knitting Works are showing this week a very attractive line of men's spring underwear. Their balbriggan shirts and drawers at 25c, and natural wool at 50c are exceedingly good value. Also other lines from cotton to silk at 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c, $1.00, etc. Be sure and call and see them.

Birds and Their Baths.

Naturalists tell us that in making their toilets some birds use water only, some water and dust, while other prefer dust and no water. Birds are not only nice in the choice of bath water, but also very particular about the quality of their toilet dust.

Wild ducks, though feeding by salt water, prefer to bathe in fresh water pools, and will fly long distances inland to running brooks and ponds, where they preen and dress their feathers in the early hours of the morning. Sparrows bathe often, both in water and in dust. They are not so particular about the quality of water as about the quality of the dust. The city sparrow must take a water bath where he can get it. Road dust, the driest and finest possible, suits him best. Partridges prefer dry loam. They like to scratch out the soil from under the grass and fill their feathers with cool earth.

Most birds are fond of ashes. Take a walk some early morning across a field where bonfires have burned and see the numbers of winged creatures that rise suddenly from the ash heaps. A darting form, a small cloud of ashes, and the bathers disappear.

LADIES!

Easter In Russia.

An Easter feast in Russia usually consists of a sucking pig, lamb, shoulder of veal, a ham, curdled cream, Easter bread, red eggs, colored lights, fiddling and general merrymaking. In the good old times the nobility left their tables furnished until Whitsuntide, so that any one who chose to enter their house might partake of what was there set out, nor was food denied any one. This state of affairs could hardly be imagined here; but, strange as it may seem, in the few localities where this ancient custom still keeps up, there is scarcely recorded a case of the betrayal of such hospitality.

GUARDING AGAINST FIRE.

Every Precaution to Be Taken at the Pan-American Exposition.

There are two fire houses upon the grounds of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, N. Y., which are fully equipped with the apparatus and men necessary to fight any outbreak of fire upon the grounds.

In addition to this there are chemical fire extinguishers in all of the buildings. These are of the same type used at the World's fair at Chicago and are attached to the wall on the interior of the building. A cog on the bearing of the reel releases a valve which turns on the water in case of fire. It is only necessary to unreel the hose and thus turn on a stream which can be directed upon the blaze without a moment's delay. In this way every precaution is to be taken to prevent the occurrence of any fire and consequent destruction of valuable property.

THE SIFTON TRIAL.

More Delay—True Bill Against Rev. Canon Richardson Because of His Wife's Non-Appearance.

London, Ont., April 11.—The Sifton trial, which was to have been commenced at 10 o'clock before Chief Justice Meredith, suffered another brief delay yesterday morning. When His Worship called the case, E. F. B. Johnston, K. C., leading counsel for the prisoner, asked that the deposition of Mrs. Canon Richardson of London Township taken at the preliminary examination, be accepted as testimony in the present trial. He explained that the witness in question could not be located for service, an injury having necessitated her departure to a health resort.

Crown Prosecutor Riddell objected to allowing the deposition, and declared his intention of strongly opposing any application that might be made for a further postponement.

Finally, the lawyers agreed to an adjournment from 10.40 to 2 o'clock, during which time Canon Richardson himself could be interviewed regarding the possibility of his wife abpearing in court.

Yesterday afternoon a true bill for conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice was found against Rev. Canon Richardson, rector of St. John's Church, London Township. Mrs. Richardson is an important witness for the defence, and the Crown and defence alike have been unable to subpoena her. Canon Richardson denies knowledge of her whereabouts. It is believed the witness will be produced in consequence of the severe course taken, and that the trial will proceed to-day. A whole day has been lost, the jury not being so much as called.

THE NEWSPAPER DELEGATION.

Pressmen of Canada Interview the Government About Grievances.

Ottawa, April 11.—An influential deputation representing the newspaper publishing interests of the Dominion waited upon members of the Government yesterday afternoon, in reference to the newspaper postage and the duty on news print. The Ministers present were Hon Messrs. Fielding, Patterson and Sutherland. The delegates included Capt. McDonald of Alexandra, president of the Canadian Press Association, and Mr. J. A. Cooper of The Canadian Magazine, secretary.

In the matter of newspaper postage, representations were made as to its burdensome character, and the Government was asked to introduce a bill reducing the charge to a flat rate, not exceeding one-quarter cent per pound. The deputation also asked between Great Britain and Canada ed free exchange of newspaper mail at domestic rates.

Mr. Sutherland, acting Postmaster-General, in reply, said that he understood Mr. Mulock had given the matter some attention before he left for Australia, but his views had not been put in shape for action. The matter was, however, engaging the attention of the Department, and would be taken up as soon as possible.

As to the duty on news print, Mr. Cooper read the resolution adopted in 1900 by the Canadian Press Association, and re-affirmed at its recent annual meeting. In support of this, members of the deputation asked that an investigation be held, so that upon proof of a combination to keep up the price of paper, the duty on paper would be removed.

The Finance Minister reminded the delegates that no tariff changes were to be made at present. The inquiry asked for would have to be of a judicial character, and necessarily slow. However, they had presented facts which were deserving of consideration, and he could at least promise that the matter would be duly laid before his colleagues of the Cabinet.

St. Thomas, Ont., April 10.—Last evening the 16-year-old son of William Sloan, Dunwich Township, near Dutton, was leading a colt to water with the halter tie fastened around his wrist. The parents, who were in Dutton, were heartstricken with grief on hearing the news at Wallacetown on their way home.

Botha Takes Full Responsibility and Asks For Peace.

NEWS SEMI-OFFICIALLY STATED

The Transvaal Leader Undertakes to Act on Behalf of All the Boer Forces—Botha Has Had Another Interview With Lord Kitchener—The News Believed in London.

Cape Town, April 10.—General Botha has re-opened negotiations with the British for peace.

As explained here, this action was determined in part by General Botha's discovery, at a recent meeting, that General Dewet's intellect had weakened, and that his influence with his followers was diminishing, and that a continuance of the campaign, in view of General Dewet's irresponsibility, rested with General Botha alone.

It is understood here that although General Dewet, at his recent interview with General Botha, refused to surrender, General Botha, regarding him as irresponsible, undertakes to negotiate in behalf of the entire Boer forces.

The British authorities here consider that if Gen. Botha surrenders, Dewet's following can be easily taken.

Report Is Credited in London.

London, April 11.—"It is semi-officially asserted here," says the Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, "that Gen. Botha has had another interview with Lord Kitchener, in which he informed him that he had seen Gen. Dewet who still refused to entertain the idea of surrender on any terms. Gen. Botha, however, regards Dewet as no longer responsible for his actions, and seeks a modus vivendi on behalf of all the burgher forces."

The report that Gen. Botha has renewed the negotiations with Lord Kitchener is not yet officially confirmed, but it is generally credited and received with satisfaction, except by the ultra-jingoes, who fear that the Government will renew the terms recently rejected.

Kruger May Come Later.

New York, April 11.—Charles D. Pierce, official representative in New York of the Boers, gives positive denial of the statement cabled from Europe that President Kruger will sail for the United States on May 31.

"There is absolutely nothing in the story," he said. "Mr. Kruger may come here in the fall, but not sooner. He is taking the rest which he needs so badly."

WARNED BY DE GIERS.

Russia's Foreign Minister Warns Li Hung Chang That He Will Henceforth Support Severe Policy.

London, April 11.—"M. De Giers demands the return of all communications to the Chinese authorities from the Russian legation regarding the Manchurian negotiations," says Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Pekin, "and he has warned Li Hung Chang that, instead of being, as heretofore, an advocate of the Chinese cause, in conference with Min Chinese cause, in conference with Ministers of the powers, he will henceforth support the policy of the utmost severity.

Russia has still ample means to indulge this spirit. The report is current, but I believe it is premature, that Russia has already prepared a fresh form of convention.

Doubtless, however, when the process of intimidation has been carried far enough a fresh attempt will be made to recover the lost ground."

A Russian Reform Policy.

London, April 11.—Referring to the policy of the new Russian Minister of Public Instruction, Gen. Vannovsky, the St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, says:

"Gen. Vannovsky has lost no time in exercising clemency, but has already liberated 388 students. It is expected that he will introduce drastic reforms."

AN AWFUL FATE.

Simcoe Girl Meets Death From a Gasoline Fire.

Simcoe, April 11.—Maggie Brown, the eldest daughter of Frank A. Brown, just before retiring Tuesday night, put her gloves on in order to clean them with gasoline. While she was thus engaged, her younger sister, who occupied the same room, noticed that the lamp was on fire, and called Maggie's attention to the fact. The latter, without waiting to take off her gloves, attempted to blow out the lamp, when her gloves and night apparel caught fire. A moment later the girl rushed down stairs a mass of flames.

Her mother attempted to put out the flames, and in doing so had her hands badly burned. Miss Brown died eight hours after the dreadful accident occurred.

NO GROUND FOR FAULT-FINDING.

The Opposition in the Legislature pretend great solicitude for the public interests, but the underlying motive of their remarks made in debate seems generally to be a desire to make party capital. In the Public Accounts Committee the other day Mr. Matheson charged that Colonization Roads were used for political purposes that the bulk of the expenditures were made in Liberal constituencies. Mr. Stratton pointed out that the force of such a charge was broken by the fact that many colonization roads ran through different ridings, and the engineer used his discretion as to the riding to which the expenditure was to be charged, often to a Liberal riding in cases where a Conservative riding got as great or greater benefit. There was nothing, Mr. Stratton said, in the charge that colonization roads were built for political purposes. Hon. Mr. Latchford showed that all the newer districts, where colonization roads were particularly called for, were represented by Liberals. The roads were built because they were needed in these newer districts and not because of their political complexion. Nothing seems to meet the approval of the captious critics of the Opposition. If colonization roads money were spent largely in Conservative constituencies the charge would be that the money was spent for bribery purposes, as Mr. Whitney distinctly charged. Between the two chief critics of the Opposition there seems to be a determination to find fault and impute improper motives no matter what course is pursued. Under the circumstances the Government will, doubtless, pursue the course it has pursued in the past, and will expend money on colonization roads where and as the interests of the settler and of the public demand. No public money spent is spent to perhaps better purpose to place the settler in touch with settled conditions, and to lessen the discomforts and disadvantages of pioneer life—than that used to construct colonization roads.

MR. MARTER SPEAKS AND VOTES

The Beet Root Sugar Bill Passed With a Majority of Twelve—A Number of Third Readings—Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Bill Reported—Order Paper Well Cleared.

Toronto, April 11.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, the Government bills for expropriation of Toll Roads and to amend the Ontario Insurance Act were read a third time and passed.

Mr. Dryden moved the third reading of the bill respecting the encouragement of the Sugar Beet Industry.

Mr. Boyd moved an amendment to the effect that while approving of the general principle of the bill, the House regretted that it contained no provision for securing to the farmers a direct bonus or bounty on each ton of sugar beets produced. He said that the bill did not go far enough and urged that the farmers should receive a measure of direct encouragement.

Hon. Mr. Dryden said the amendment embodied a vicious principle. There would be just as much reason to bonus the farmers directly in connection with encouraging the establishment of remount stations for the British army by paying them so much per horse. Or it might be sought to encourage the export trade by paying a direct bonus on each pound of bacon shipped to Englanh. The difficulty to be met did not lie in the growing of the beets but in the finding of a market for them when grown, and this was what the bill proposed to do by encouraging the manufacturers to make the large investments necessary to start sugar factories.

Mr. Whitney said there was no analogy between the growing of sugar beets and the sale of horses. There was a market for horses but none for sugar beets. They did not ask the Government to go further than the bill in the amount of aid provided, but the farmer should have some measure of protection and not be left at the mercy of the manufacturer altogether.

Mr. Marter favored the policy of the Government and thought that all that was needed was enough aid to give the industry a start. There could be no conflict between the factory owner and the beet grower.

Hon. Mr. Harcourt said that it required a very large acreage devoted to beet growing to make the industry profitable. Prof. Shuttleworth of Guelph, who had studied the question in Germany, had expressed the opinion that there was room for the establishment of 30 factories in Ontario, each costing about half a million dollars. All that was needed was to call the attention of the farmer to the profitable nature of beet culture and success would be assured. The owner of the factory could not antagonize the farmer without imperilling his own interests.

The House divided on the amendment, which was declared lost by a vote of 34 yeas to 46 nays. Mr. Marter voting with the Government. The bill received a third reading.

The following bills received third readings: Respecting the arbitration of accounts with the Dominion; respecting Upper Canada College, and to provide for the incorporation of towns in territorial districts.

The Premier moved the House into committee to consider the resolution granting to the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway Company land subsidies of 10,000 acres per mile for 141 miles, and 7,400 acres per mile for 160 miles—in all 2,594,000 acres. The resolution was reported and incorporated with the bill.

The land subsidy of 15,000 acres for the Thunder Bay, Nepigon and St. Joe Railway was also reported from committee.

The House went into committee on the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway. Mr. Hoyle concluded that Railway. Mr. Hoyle contended that the erection of a smelter and the running of a steamer from Windsor by the company were not very important concessions. It was within his recollection that a former charter given to the company only involved the payment of $2,000 per mile and a total land grant of 100,000 acres. He favored the project, but considered the grant too large.

The Premier said the steamer was to run to Little Current and would be greatly appreciated and aid to the development of that locality. The public benefit of the smelter was that it would be established at a point which would be accessible to many who would otherwise be unable to pursue mining to advantage, and it would be a great benefit to the small miner. He believed that the arrangement would be a very profitable one for the Province. The old charter spoken of by Mr. Hoyle had expired some time since.

The bill was reported.

The bills respecting aid by land grant to the Thunder Bay, Nepigon and St. Joe Railway Co., and amending the Sawlog Driving Act passed through committee.

On motion of Premier Ross the bill respecting the Legislative Assembly, giving them power to extend the term should it expire during next session received a second reading without debate, being declared carried on division. Mr. Whitney intimating that he would oppose it at a future stage.

Mr. Richardson's bill to amend the High Schools Act, providing that high schools in towns separated from the county it open to county students should receive the same grants as those in other places, was declared lost on division.

Then the Government set to work vigorously at the task of clearing off the order paper and a large number of bills were ordered to be withdrawn. Among the measures sacrificed were Mr. Hill's bill to amend the Public Health Act embodying a conscience clause as regards vaccination; Mr. Russell's Proportional Representation bill, Mr. Pyne's bill respecting the insane and Mr. Lucas' amendment to the Landlord and Tenants Act, and Mr. Farwell's bill permitting the use of voting machines.

In answer to Mr. McLaughlin, Mr. Stratton stated that the Humber Piggery had been leased by the Government for five years at $500 a year.

After recess a number of bills were considered in committee. A good deal of discussion took place over the clause amending the Manhood Suffrage Registration Act by extending it to the towns of Sault Ste. Marie and Deseronto. Mr. Russell urged that the character of the population of Deseronto as a manufacturing centre rendered the change advisable. There was no partyism in the proposal as Deseronto was a Conservative town. Mr. Whitney read a letter from Mr. Wright of the Rathbun Co. denying a statement made by him (Mr. Whitney) that trains were run at the last election from that town for the benefit of Liberal electors, passage being refused to Conservatives. He accepted the denial, but contended that if the act was extended to Deseronto there were other towns, such as Owen Sound and Collingwood, which were equally entitled to its advantages. He moved an amendment striking out the word "Deseronto," which was lost. The bill was reported.

The Premier moved the House into Committee of Supply.

Mr. Carscallen called attention to the proposed amalgamation between the Ontario and Rainy River Railway Co., which had been subsidized by this Province to the extent of $700,000, and the Canadian Northern Railway, under which the road would pass under the jurisdiction of the Railway Committee at Ottawa, in place of the authorities of of the Province. The interests of the people of Ontario might be prejudiced by the change and it was time for the Province to protest and see that our interests were not made subservient to those of Manitoba.

Premier Ross said that the Government had given attention to the subject and were on the alert to see that nothing would be done to prejudice provincial interests. The whole object of the arrangement was to secure lower rates, and these would be to the benefit of Ontario as well as Manitoba. The peculiarity of the situation was this, that under the Dominion Railway Act any railway that was declared to be for the benefit of Canada came under the jurisdiction of the Railway Committee at Ottawa, who had the power to regulate rates. The House might rest assured that the interests of Ontario would be properly safeguarded, as able counsel had been engaged to look after provincial rights at Ottawa when the question came up there.

Mr. Conmee thought the proposed amalgamation was calculated to benefit rather than to injure Ontario by securing traffic over Canadian lines which was now diverted to the roads of the United States.

Mr. Whitney moved for the appointment of a consultative council, to be composed of representatives from the various teaching bodies; that the public school system be remodelled to give increased advantages to those who attend, and that school books be reduced in price.

The amendment was lost on a straight party vote: Ayes 34, nays 44, majority 10.

The House went into committee and passed the remaining items in supply.

The House adjourned at midnight to resume again at 11 o'clock this morning.

THE AFTER EFFECTS OF LA GRIPPE.

If it did, read what Mr. F. J. Brophy, of Montreal, Que., has to say of the good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did him.

He Writes: I had a very severe attack of la grippe, which left me all run down, very nervous and extremely weak. Much to my gratification they braced me up, invigorated my whole system, and made me feel like a new man. I can recommend them to all suffering as I did.

Canadian Copyright.

Toronto, April 11.—The Canadian Copyright Act was the subject discussed at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Wholesale Booksellers and Stationers' Section of the Board of Trade. Amendments to the present act were prepared and a committee was appointed to wait on the Government and request that they be adopted.

IT IS IMPORTANT.

To Know What You are Taking When Using Catarrh Medicines.

Catarrh is the short route to consumption, and the importance of early and judicious treatment of catarrh, whether located in the head, throat or bronchial tubes, cannot be too strongly emphasized.

The list of catarrh cures is as long as the moral law and the forms in which they are administered, numerous and confusing, from sprays, inhalers, washes, ointments, and salves to powders, liquids and tablets.

The tablet form is undoubtedly the most convenient and most effective, but with nearly all advertised catarrh remedies it is almost entirely a matter of guess work as to what you are taking into your system, as the proprietors, while making all sorts of claims as to what their medicines will do, always keep it a close secret as to what they are.

The success and popularity the new catarrh cure, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, is largely because it not only cures catarrh but because catarrh sufferers who used these tablets know what they are taking into their systems. Stuart's Catarrh Tablets being composed of Eucolyptol, Hydrastin, Guaicol and similar valuable and antiseptic ingredients, and are pleasant to the taste and being dissolved in the mouth they take immediate effect upon the mucous lining of the throat, usual passages and whole respiratory tract.

The cures that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets have accomplished in old chronic cases of catarrh are little short of remarkable, and the advantage of knowing what you are putting into your stomach is of paramount importance when it is remembered that the cocaine or morphine habit has been frequently contracted as the result of using secret catarrh remedies.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets meet with cordial approval from physicians, because their antiseptic character render them perfectly safe for the general public to use and their composition makes them a common sense cure for all forms of catarrhal troubles.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized packages.

A Historic Throne.

The biggest episcopal throne in Europe is at the Exeter cathedral. Composed of the very best oak, with magnificent carving executed by the most expert designers of the day, the throne soars upward in beautiful tapering pinnacles, which rise up to the lofty roof of the sacred edifice. The throne is not only the biggest, but one of the oldest. It was saved from destruction by the Puritans by the ingenuity of the Cavaliers, who when the Roundheads marched on Exeter pulled down the throne and divided it into 365 pieces, one for every day of the year. The pieces were safely secured in many hiding places, and when peace was restored the pieces were put together again without the aid of a single nail.

A Wily Answer.

The shah of Persia once asked a group of his courtiers whom they thought the greater man, himself or his father. At first he could get no reply to so dangerous a question, the answer to which might cost the courtiers their heads.

At last a wily old courtier said, "Your father, sire, for although you are equal to your father in all other respects in this he is superior to you, that he had a greater son than any you have."

When in Bed

Put some Vapo-Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp and place it near the head of the bed. Then all the time the baby sleeps it will breathe-in the healing, soothing vapor. The hard, tight cough loosens; the fever gradually goes down, the breathing becomes natural, and pneumonia is avoided. Every part of the throat and bronchial tubes are touched by the medicine. For the hard colds and coughs of children nothing equals Vapo-Cresolene. 9

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. A Vapo-Cresolene outfit, including the Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life-time, and a bottle of Cresolene, complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. HEIGHT ADDED ON THE HEELS.

Way of Helping Those Who Think Themselves Too Short.

A young man with two very bad feet went into the shop of an orthopedic shoemaker the other day to see if he couldn't get something in the way of footwear that he could put on his feet without suffering pain. After attending to his own needs he began a scrutiny of the things in the shop and concluded that there were a good many people in this world who were worse off than he. Among other remarkable looking shoes was a pair with tremendously high heels. The heels were not French shaped, tapering to a point, but solid and substantial, like those of ordinary walking shoes except for their excessive height. That part of the shoe which comes up around the Achilles tendon was also of great height and gave the shoe as it sat on the floor a most peculiar appearance. The young man asked what was the matter with the unfortunate who had to wear such shoes.

"He wants to get a job in the post-office," said the shoemaker. "He is too short by nature, and he wants me to make him longer without any one being the wiser. Those shoes look strange now, but as soon as their owner gets them on his feet they will look all right, and you could not tell unless you examined him closely that he was standing fully two inches off the ground. Most of the height is added inside the shoe. It seems that in order to get this job he has to be two inches higher than he really is. He is naturally very short. He came to me and asked me if I could help him out. I told him I could if he had the money to pay me. You know, skill in shoemaking costs like skill in any other line of business. I told him that for $35 I could fix him up. Now he will be all right if they only measure him with his shoes on. If they don't, he's out $35.

"I do a good deal of that sort of business. There are a lot of people who are very sensitive about their lack of height. This is especially true of little men, but there are some women who want to look stately, and they do so by having their shoes built up inside. They are good customers. Vain men and women always are, for they are willing to pay any price to satisfy their vanity. The trick is rather a difficult one to do so that it is not noticeable. It is harder for men than for women because there are no skirts to help to conceal any outward peculiarities. The average shoemaker has trouble in accomplishing the end desired, and so they come to be and pay fancy prices because they know that I make all sorts of peculiar things that are called shoes. If they are willing to pay the money, I suppose I ought to be glad of it instead of moralizing upon it, as it is part of my bread and butter."

CURED OF GAMBLING.

ODDLY, TOO, THE REMEDY ENTAILED CONSTANT GAMBLING.

A Scheme by Which a Pair of Confirmed Young Gamesters Ceased, Yet Did Not Cease, and Eventually Acquired Wealth.

This is the story of two confirmed young gamblers who seemed beyond redemption, but who struck a system whereby they continued and yet ceased gambling and eventually acquired wealth.

They were a pair of young southerners from the same town and friends almost from babyhood. Therefore what one did the other was almost sure to do. They made up their minds that they needed to go out and see the world and be happy and that it was not the proper thing to live on their fathers. They came to New York to make their own way and to see things and in order to see them better became newspaper reporters. Then they saw things good and bad and indifferent and among them were introduced to a thing named "wheel."

Unfortunately in the first attempt one of them won $300 and the other $200, and thereafter they devoted their young lives and hundreds of dollars trying to repeat the run.

When the "wheel" proved faithless, they went to horse racing, which is more dangerous because it includes not mere luck, but an element of personal vanity about one's knowledge of Sunshine and Spindrift and weights up and hard and soft tracks. Poker and the other diversions were added to the list until the spirit of gambling entered their daily lives, and they gambled with each other and threw dice to see who would pay the week's board and matched each other to see who paid for breakfasts.

Things went on splendidly until on pay days it was simply a matter of an hour to run from the office to a "joint" or a poolroom and to return dead broke ready and cheerful for another day's work. They owed money, restaurant bills and money borrowed outright, which they hoped to pay some day when they made a big strike. Meanwhile they made little strikes, enough to lead them on. In time they got to the point when their faces no longer showed whether they had lost or won. Therefore they were "full fledged sports." Therefore, also, hard lines were digging into their faces about their mouths and eyes, and if their families down in the land of sunshine could have seen them parading arm in arm up Park row there would have been tears or rebuffs, according to sex.

As both of the young men had the same first Christian names it is necessary to call one of them Bill and the other Billy. Bill and Billy were in for a crisis. The summer and the greater part of autumn had gone when it dawned on them that in the name of decency, if not in the name of comfort, it was about time to buy overcoats. They had spent nights shivering on assignments for the want of a proper covering, but on pay days it seemed folly to invest money in clothing when there was a fortune to be made by the turn of a wheel. As both men were pretty good in their line of business they made enough each week to buy three or four new overcoats if they had been able to let the wheel alone. They realized this one morning and left the office together with their salaries in their pockets, bound for a tailor's shop, and they returned two hours later without a cent or an overcoat and with watches gone.

As they were game to the core they sat down in their seats in the office at desks facing each other and like true sports began to write the stories of their assignments as if nothing had happened. Presently, without stopping his writing, Bill remarked:

"Billy, you're a fool."

"Just what I was thinking of you," Billy returned, likewise disdaining to halt in his work.

"Guess we're both it," Bill said as before.

"Maybe, but I know you are," said Billy, and then for the first time both put down their pencils.

"I'll tell you, I'll match you to see who is the biggest fool; that's about all I've got left," said Bill.

"That's all right; I'll bet you a fiver if I wanted to I could save more money in a month than you could at that," the other said.

"I'll go you on that. It's five up that at the end of the month I show a fatter bank account than you do."

And that is all that was said until at the end of the month Bill produced a bankbook with $80 in it and Billy one with $120 credited to him. Therefore Bill paid Billy the $5 and said:

"I'll go you again on that."

"All right; make it every month if you like."

"Suits me, my son," said Billy, "but, look here, sport is sport. I don't think I ought to have taken that fiver. I borrowed $50 from the governor to add to the account and swamp you. That leaves $70 which I really saved against your $80, so here is your $5 back and $5 more which I owe."

But Bill hesitated; then he said, "Well, is this thing meant only for legitimate saving?"

"So I supposed."

"Then here is the $10 back. You see I was behind and only had $40 in bank. I had everything to gain and nothing to lose, I figured, so I drew the $40 and played Esmeralda, even money, and banked the $80."

"Then we will call the thing off for this month, but hereafter it will be five a month that I show a fatter account than you do, and no more funny business about it."

Neither Bill nor Billy knew what he was doing that day, or he would not have done it, but the excitement of the chase was on, and that was four years ago. The last time Bill won with $4,200 to Billy's $4,170, and Billy swore he would get the next fiver if he had to do the Isabella act and pawn his jewels. Some day a pair of fine girls will get hold of Bill and Billy and will put on the finishing touches of civilization, and thereafter they will confine themselves to laying odds on their wives, which is legitimate.

THE GLASS OF FASHION.

Sashes of all kinds and descriptions will be a feature of summer dress.

The prettiest, most becoming face veil for mourning wear is made of brussels net with a scalloped edge, a hemstitched border or a crape band.

Embroidered batiste of the finest texture and the daintiest biscuit tint is to be very much worn this season for entire gowns, waists and trimmings.

French knots are quite as popular as ever as a means of trimming, with the difference of using heavy instead of fine silk. On gauze materials they are very effective.

Spring hats have blossomed out in a very realistic way with flowers in the lead for decoration. Roses are first on the list, but all sorts of exquisite floral designs are in evidence on the new hats.

The new leather belts are the same straight around bands so long worn, but are covered with rows of stitching or combined with velvet showing a narrow line through the center, the leather overlapping and being stitched on.

Single faced velvet ribbon is promised as one of the trimmings for foulard gowns, and it is to be stitched on at the upper edge. Graduated bands of piece velvet were stitched on to the skirts of the winter models, so it is only the same idea differently expressed.

Paine's Celery Compound

Releases Women of All Ages From Ailments Peculiar To Their Sex.

A truly wonderful work is done by Paine's Celery Compound for young and middle-aged women as well as for women of advanced years.

Paine's Celery Compound in the past has brought vitality and new life to pale, weak, nervous, despondent and discouraged women. The great medicine has the same blessed power to-day upon women's weak and peculiar organism; it is woman's friend and health protector in the home, always sure and unfailing.

In spring time when the ailing and suffering use Paine's Celery Compound, the nerves and blood quickly feel the magic power of the great medicine, and new, fresh vitality is imparted, irregularities and functional disorders are corrected, digestion is perfect, sweet sleep and rest are assured, the face glows with health and the eyes sparkle. Mrs. W. Wigglesworth, Liverpool, N.S., says:

"For fifteen years I suffered from nervous diseases and other serious troubles. A lady friend recommended me to use Paine's Celery Compound, and I have since received great benefit. Paine's Celery Compound has done what no other medicine could do for me. I can sleep well now, and my appetite is splendid. I advise all who are sufferers from nervousness and other diseases to use it. Seven bottles restored my health wonderfully.

BRAKES AND COUPLINGS.

Preliminary returns of the six largest French railways for 1900 show increase in gross receipts over 1899 of $15,450,000, or 6 per cent.

The municipality of Berlin has just paid 10,000,000 marks for the Siemens-Halske tramway, the most important street railway system in the German capital. The Prussian government is preparing to run electric railroad trains at 25 miles an hour.

One hundred and sixty miles an hour is the speed aimed at by a new electric railway company in Germany under the direct patronage of the emperor. Cars with accommodations for 50 persons each are now being built and will be tried on a 30 kilometer track.

The Chicago City railway has just received an order reading: "Any conductor in whose breath is detected the odor of onions while on duty will be taken from his car and suspended or discharged. Employees of the Chicago City Railway company must not offend the public in such manner." Passengers of the road had made frequent complaints in regard to the matter.

Slandering the Cook.

Here is something that a woman who knows says is a sure diagnosis of the status of the cook. If you have a good cook, you may be more or less sure that she will look too frequently upon the wine when it is red. It is an unfortunate fact, but if the cook is less than a $40 cook as little annoyance as possible may be expected from this weakness. Possibly it will never make itself manifest enough to be known above stairs. But if the cook has risen higher in the social scale of cooks than $40, then look out. A cook who is rated at over $40 may be expected to smash things.

If one chances to make a morning call at the house of a friend and discovers the servants crowded up stairs, frightened and trembling, while from below come the sounds of ironware skating across the kitchen and pottery crashing against the wall and between times the voice of the masculine head of the family gently expostulating or commanding in would be stern tones, then it may be known that that household has reached the dignity of a $50 or $60 cook.

Huxley and the Clergyman.

A rash clergyman once, without further equipment in natural history than some desultory reading, attacked the Darwinian theory in some sundry magazine articles in which he made himself uncommonly merry at Huxley's expense. This was intended to draw the great man's fire, and as the batteries remained silent the author proceeded to write to Huxley, calling his attention to the articles and at the same time, with mock modesty, asking advice as to the further study of these deep questions.

Huxley's answer was brief and to the point. "Take a cockroach and dissect it."—Argonaut.

YOUNG CRICKETERS ORGANIZE

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell is President—Prospects Bright for a Revival of the Game.

These is every reason to believe that the good old game of cricket, which has been in a rather low water condition in Peterborough for the past number of years, will be revived, and the task of accomplishing this appears to rest with the younger men or in fact the boys of town. They are being assisted in a great measure by Mr. J. A. Culverwell of the Central Ontario Power Company, who has already done much to awaken interest in the game in Peterborough. Last year it will be remembered that Mr. Culverwell donated a bat to the player having the highest batting average, which was won by Mr. Douglas Hammond, and this year he has offered to repeat the generous donation.

Last night a most enthusiastic meeting of the young cricketers was held in the office of the Central Ontario Power Co., Bank of Commerce building. The boys were bent on effecting a strong organization of a club to be known as the Colts Cricket Club, and this was done before the meeting dispersed. Mr. J. Alex. Culverwell occupied the chair and there were also present Messrs. Jim Lundy, Frank Bradburn, Claude Rogers, Hamilton Munro, Ross Cameron, Gordon Fitzgerald, Maurice Lowry, Herb Wood, Arthur Boucher, Croyland Yokome, W. Hatton, Graham Ferguson, Bob Hall, Douglas Hammond, B. Hall and others.

After discussing the prospects for the season the following officers were elected:—Hon. President, Dr. Geo. Burnham; patrons and patronesses, Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers, Mr. James Kendry, M. P., and Mrs. Kendry, Dr. F. J. Bradd and Mrs. Bradd, Mr. A. H. Stratton and Mrs. Stratton.

President—J. Alex. Culverwell.
Hon. Vice-President—Dr. Young.
2nd Vice-President—A. A. Hollingshead.
3rd Vice-President—Walter Stocker.
Secretary—Herbert S. Wood.
Treasurer—James Lundy.
Captain—Frank Bradqurn.
Manager—E. S. Clarry.
Executive Committee—Messrs. Harold Armstrong, A. Boucher, C. Stapleton, H. Munro and Claude Rogers.
Hon. Coaches—Messrs. Walter Stocker, Hal. Burnham and Miles Hamilton.

The membership fee was placed at $1.00, and the boys have already secured a membership of about twenty. The enthusiastic president, Mr. Culverwell, donated to the club one pair of pads, 2 pairs batting gloves and a bat.

Matches will be arranged with the Grove team, Lakefield; T.C.S., Port Hope; Upper Canada College and others. It is the intention to put two teams in the field, and many new men have signified their intention of playing. Altogether the season looks most promising.

WHAT WAS IT?

Is there the Body of a Man Floating Down the River?

Nothing further has been heard of the affair, and it is not known whether or not the Chief's informant is drawing upon his imagination.

ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED.

Sports at the "Y" Under One Management.

Football, Tennis and Perhaps Lacrosse—Last Night's Meeting.

Perhaps never in the history of the local Y.M.C.A., was there ever such enthusiasm as that displayed at the athletic meeting last evening held in the Y. M. C. A. parlours, when the members present decided to form an athletic club controlling the various sports of the association. To accomplish this end those interested were many and among those present were Messrs. McWilliams, Glover, Mason, Harrison, Finney, Wood, Mowry, Goldey, Campbell, Richardson, Anderson, Blewett, Bathgate, Hendren, Davidson, Hall, Merrill, Garbutt, Dodge, Taylor, Stubbs, Dunford, Whiten, McFadden, Campbell, Macleod, Ayers and Williamson.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams as chairman of the Physical Committee, called the meeting to order, and in a few words outlined the object of the meeting. He stated that it seemed to be the desire on the part of the members that the various games and out door sports should be controlled by one body, or an executive committee, and he thought this would be a wise move. During the past two years the moral tone of the sporting element of the town had raised considerably, accomplished through able management on the part of the executive officers.

Mr. G. H. Williamson endorsed the outline as drawn out by the previous speaker, and hoped that as a result of such a formation, clean sport would prevail.

Mr. R. M. Glover was then appointed Secretary of the meeting.

It was moved, after some discussion, by Mr. Sandford Hall, seconded by Mr. Harry Goldey, that this meeting deem it advisable to carry out the recommendation of the Physical Committee, and hereby form an athletic club.—Carried.

As to the officers of this club, it was decided that it should consist of a president, two vice-presidents, secretary-treas. and two representatives from each department elected by clubs direct.

The election of officers then took place and resulted in a keen contest, the officers of 2nd vice-president and secretary-treas. being decided by ballot:

President—Mr. R. F. McWilliams.
1st Vice-Pres—Mr. J. M. McLeod.
2nd Vice-Pres—Mr. A. W. McPherson.
Sec.-Treas—Mr. Sandford Hall.

It was taken for granted that tennis, association football and track athletics would be indulged in, but a new game was thought advisable to be introduced. The Intermediates as a department desired to play lacrosse, as well as several senior men, and it was decided to introduce the game when it could be properly governed by such an organization.

On motion of Messrs. Upton and Whiten the officers of the club were instructed to call meetings of those interested in the various sports—football, tennis, track athletics and lacrosse.

It was moved and seconded by Messrs. Goldey and Anderson that the executive wait on Mr. Richard Hall, in reference to permission for the use of the Nicholls oval.

The club as formed will be known as the "Y.M.C.A. Athletic Club," and the admission fee is $1.00, permitting a full member or intermediate member to participate in any or all of the four games of out-door sports.

THE GOLF BALL.

It Proved to be a Grand Success Last Evening—Large Number of Guests.

The ball held in the opera house last evening, under the auspices of the members of the Peterborough Golf Club, proved to be a very enjoyable function indeed and was patronized by fully three hundred citizens. Guests were also present from Lindsay, Lakefield, Kingston, Toronto and other points. The floor was in excellent condition and delightful music was furnished by the Misses Hurley. Palms and potted plants ornamented the stage, and the supper table was very prettily decorated with flowers. Flags and bunting were neatly arranged as draperies on the boxes, and altogether the hall presented a very attractive appearance. Of the ladies' costumes it may be said that more artistic conceptions have never been seen at a function of a similar nature in Peterborough.

The patronesses for the occasion were Mrs. R. P. Boucher, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun, Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. John Crane, Mrs. W. H. Hill, Mrs. C. B. McAllister, Mrs. R. S. Davidson, Mrs. W. G. Hatton, Mrs. R. M. Hamilton and Mrs. F. J. Rogers. The Dance Committee was composed of Messrs. A. G. Parker, Dr. Eastwood, John Crane, C. F. McGill, C. B. McAllister, R. M. Hamilton, E.C. Complin, A. J. N. Terrill, with Mr. Peter Campbell as chairman, Mr. A. A. Hollingshead as Hon. Secretary and Mr. C. H. Bradburn as Hon. Treasurer.

HEARD FROM RELATIVES.

The Late Harry Beck's Mother Writes For Particulars.

It will be pleasing news to the public to know that the late Harry Beck, who met his death in the machine shop of the Canadian General Electric Company some weeks ago, will receive a fitting burial. The remains have been lying in the vault at the Little Lake Cemetery awaiting information from deceased's relatives in England. A letter has been received by the local manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., from the deceased boy's mother asking for full particulars concerning her boy's death, but making no requests regarding the interment of the remains. The committee which has had charge of the arrangements so far, have been asked by Mr. John Babb, of town, to accept a portion of a plot he owns in the cemetery for the interment of the remains of the deceased. This will be agreed to and all that is mortal of Harry Beck will soon be laid in their last resting place.

CLARKE & GIBSON

THE QUESTION OF SUGAR BEETS

Discussed by Prof. Shuttleworth and Mr. James.

MANY FARMERS ATTENDED.

Much Valuable Information was Given by These two Prominent Men—Farmers Want the Experiment.

The meeting which was held in the market hall on Wednesday afternoon, for the purpose of discussing the advisability of establishing the sugar beet industry in this locality, was most successful. The meeting was called by the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute, and many of the leading farmers of the townships of Smith, Monaghan, Ennismore, Douro, Cavan and other municipalities responded. They all evinced much interest in the proceedings and went home, no doubt, convinced from what they heard that the sugar beet industry could be made a success in this locality.

The chair was occupied by Mr. T. H. G. Denne, Mayor of the Town of Peterborough, and amongst those on the platform were Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, President West Peterborough Farmers' Institute; G. W. Fitzgerald, Warden County of Peterborough; Wm. Collins, Secretary Farmers' Institute; J. E. Gould, Uxbride; Mr. Ellis and Mr. Shannon, Lindsay, and others.

The chairman in opening the proceedings, spoke only briefly, and called upon Prof. Shuttleworth, of the Ontario Agricultural College, to explain matter pertaining to the establishment of the sugar beet industry. Prof. Shuttleworth was cordially received and was given a very attentive hearing. His address was most instructive, and he appeared willing at all times that questions should be asked to which a careful reply was given. In an address lasting in the neighbourhood of an hour, he explained every detail in connection with the cultivation of the beet from before it was placed in the soil until it was fit for market. The first fifteen minutes of his address was taken up in dealing with the variety of

for the successful cultivation of the beet. He dwelt at some lenghth upon the preparation the soil should go through preparatory to the planting of the seed. The full cultivation was most necessary, and Prof. Shuttleworth, went on to show the chemical properties in the soil, the clearing frost has on it, the amount of food in the same as well as the ventilation that is required in earth used in cultivation. After giving many illustrations to substantiate his statements in this regard, he went on to speak of the variety of sugar beets a factory requires. A very large quantity is needed as it takes 350 tons of beets per day to feed the factories which it is proposed to establish. Five hundred tons of beets a day should be grown in this locality to feed a factory such as is proposed to be established in this section. We can grow at least 18 tons per acre in Ontario, and incidently the speaker claimed that the Ontario farmers were amongst the most progressive farmers in the world. When the industry becomes thoroughly established it will require to have at least 5,000 acres under cultivation of sugar beets. In fact after they commence growing them they will become so delighted with them that they will become anxious to increase their crop each year.

The best beets to grow are those that give the greatest quality of sugar and that are pure. In showing how how these must be obtained, the speaker went on to speak of his visit to Germany, where he first noticed the marvellous growth of the sugar beet. Being an agricultural chemist, he took a course there, and he soon learned something about the industry. His visit to Peterborough was to show that they did not know the slightest thing about growing beets for sugar purposes. They would have to pardon him for making a remark of this kind, but it was nevertheless a fact. The experiments which had been made in the Welland and Newmarket districts this year were cited. The beets were not required to be large—one and a third to one and a half pounds were plenty large, enough still they could raise twenty-one tons to the acre. The instructions the farmers would receive as to how to grow them might seem very strange, but nevertheless they must go according to such instructions, or they will surely fail. Had the farmers of Welland not faithfully agreed to act according to the instructions received, they would not have succeeded.

They were warned against buying any seed. Use none excepting that which is supplied by the department, they will furnish it for experimental purposes only, and when a factory is located that concern will supply it from that time forward. The crop that should be grown in the land intended for sugar beet cultivation should be as near in variety as the beet itself. Potatoes, barley or wheat, etc., would answer the purpose. There is a variety of soil on which sugar beet can be grown to advantage, but it is not wise to choose soil that is at all hard. Clay soil is too hard unless well drained, so that it will not cake up or bake. Sandy loam was quite suitable and even, in fact, swampy land has yielded good results.

THE PREPARATION.

Continuing, Prof. Shuttleworth spoke of why the soil should be put into shape. The preparation of the seed beds was a feature of sugar beet raising that was most carefully gone into by Prof. Shuttleworth, who showed how that moisture of the soil is an important element in producing satisfactory results, and the surface should be made as fine as an onion bed. A plough should not be used to put the bed in condition in the spring, as it is too coarse an implement, and harrowing alone should be sufficient if the ground has been properly attended to in the fall. Beets when growing should be about 18 inches apart. One beet to every square foot should be the rule, and even then there will be a yield of 21 tons to the acre, allowing one pound as the weight of each beet, but the beets will be larger than this. However, when planting, the seeds should be planted very close together, about 16 pounds of seed to the acre being the proportion, and the drill should be set as if for peas, and the thinning out process will come in due time. The plants will be up in about ten days and after growing for a few days more the bunching process is commenced. This is done with a hoe and an ordinary man should be able to bunch one acre per day. Every plant excepting one in the bunch should then be weeded out, a process that the small boy may easily accomplish. After this there will be no further trouble—the beets grow themselves while the farmer attends to his other duties. The beets are taken from the ground with a beet puller that costs about $8, only.

In reply to the question, how may we obtain a factory, the speaker said that the farmers of the district must demonstrate that they can grow the right quality and in sufficient quantity. They will be given 50 lbs. of seed to be divided around, on the recommendation of some responsible person. The ground must be first inspected and will also be inspected at periods throughout the time the plant is growing, by some one capable of giving advice. If the experiment of growing proves satisfactory, there will be no trouble in getting capitalists to invest their money.

MR. JAMES.

Mr. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, was then introduced and at once waded into his subject. He began by saying that it would be utterly useless of them to expect any capitalist to invest $500,000, without proving to him that the investment could be made a success. We should ask ourselves, is there a market? The reply to this might be found in the fact that Canada uses three hundred million pounds of sugar anually, and not one pound of this is manufactured in Canada. The greater part of the sugar we use is beet sugar, so that it is quite plain that there is a market for at least 300 million pounds of refined sugar, worth 10 or 12 million of dollars. It would take at least twenty factories, of the very largest capacity, to supply that amount. We would be the consumers of our own product and would not therefore be interfering with anyone else.

Proceeding to deal with his subject, Mr. James showed that five acres of sugar beets would in its finished state be worth at least $700. The manufacturer would take at least $400 of this and the farmer $300. The farmer knows that he has a market for his product, he signs an agreement with the manufacturer to furnish him with a certain number o acres of beets, and therefor is not at any risk. Will the sugar beet industry interfere with any other productions already carried on by the farmer? In answer to this the speaker asked if the industries of dairying, apple growing, etc., have driven out any other line in this regard. They have not. Take Oxford county, for instance, in which there is produced one million dollars of cheese each year, will anyone say that this county produces one million dollars worth less of other farm products in consequence of the cheese industry? In addition to the sugar which is extracted from the beet there are many properties which may be taken back to the farm, such as the pulp, so that when the farmer is selling sugar from the farm it is just like selling butter, nothing being taken from the soil, but instead something which is taken from the air.

What is the Goverement going to do towards encouraging the industry? There had been set aside two hundred thousand dollars as a bonus to manufacturers on the understanding, however, that the farmers would be paid the premium price of $4 per ton. This is what the Government has done for the manufacturers, but they have done something also for the farmer in the shape of supplying the seed, etc., and giving much valuable information.

Mr. James then went on to speak of the success of the experiments that have been tried in Welland and Newmarket.

In conclusion Mr. James said that it was a question which means much to the town of Peterborough. The sum of $300,000 invested in a sugar plant in the town would mean a great deal to the community at large, and would be the means of circulating a great amount of money throughout the district. This year there are to be only six experiments conducted, and if the people of Peterborough desired to be one of the six places, which would have this treat, it was necessary that they should say so at once.

A RESOLUTION.

At the conclusion of Mr. James' address the following resolution was on motion of Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. E. M. Elliott, "that this meeting is of the opinion that it is desirable that a beet sugar factory should be established here, and that a committee be appointed to take such steps as may be necessary to interest the farmers in the matter and to secure capital necessary to establish the factory, the committee to consist of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, Messrs. James Kendry, M.P.; John Lang, M.P.; Thos. Blezard, M.P.P.; Mayor Denne, G. W. Fitzgerald, Warden County of Peterborough; D. W. Dumble, President Peterborough Board of Trade; F. Adams, Reeve of Ashburnham; Wm. Collins, Secretary West Peterborough Farmers' Institute; E. M. Elliott, President West Peterborough Farmers' Institute; G. W. Mann, Bridgenorth; Robert Houlbridge, Otonabee; T. E. Bradburn, Reeve of North Monaghan; F. Birdsall, President East Peterborough Farmers' Institute; A. L. Davis, Robert Neil and Dawon Kennedy.

Important discussion then took place in which Messrs. Ed. M. Elliott, Dawson Kennedy and Wm. Collins took part.

Mr. Dumble who was present as representing the Peterborough Board of Trade, made a rattling speech in which he urged upon the farmers present the advisability of following the instructions of the department.

Mr. William Collins announced that Mr. H. Calcutt had offered the sum of $25, to be divided into three prizes, $12, $8 and $5, for the three best analysis of beet sugar.

Mr. James and Mr. Shuttleworth in reply to several questions said that it was the desire of the department to have the six samples distributed within a radius of six miles if possible.

Arrangements were made for the distribution of the seed, and the meeting adjourned.

PURE MILK.

To the Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—On Monday last, being in Toronto I made a visit to the City Dairy Building on Spadina Crescent. Scores of people were there to view the marvellous, antiseptic contrivances for the purpose of securing pure milk for the people. In looking over the plant and the various operations going on, one could hear nothing but mingled expressions of admiration and wonder. The visitors passed up the main stairway from the offices, and walking along the galleries one could see through the windows, the clean, white-robed operators in the antiseptic milk room. The clarifiers were at work, and the pure, white milk ran down the coolers, and was quickly filled into bottles, sealed and run into refrigerator rooms, to be delivered to the customers next morning. What a striking contrast between this and the ordinary way of dipping the milk out of open cans, in the streets and back lanes of towns and cities. It is well known that in every town and city the air is loaded with impurities, and as milk is easily tainted, and is a rapid absorbent, it is evident that in the ordinary way of delivery, even with the most careful handling, the milk must contain many impurities. No attempt is made here to describe the antiseptic processes which clarify the milk, it would require too much space for that purpose. I will only add that however sceptical any one is about clarified milk, let him visit the city dairy, and he will come away fully convinced that the system employed there is the best in the world for producing pure milk.

MAY A. PARR, Sleswick, Ont., writes: "I had erysipelas very badly, and my stomach was out of order. Doctors did me no good, so thought I would try BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. After using two bottles was completely cured."

February 26, 1900.

MISS ANNIE LANG, Liscombe Mills, N.S., writes: "I was for two years troubled with erysipelas, and could get no medicine to help me until I tried B.B.B. Four bottles completely cured me."

Jan. 28, 1899.

SARAH J. DUDLEY, of Ludlow, N. B., writes: "I suffered greatly with erysipelas, and commenced taking B.B.B. and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."

Feb. 6, 1899.

MRS. T. MARSHALL, Doe Lake, Ont., writes: "I am only too happy to let you know the good I have received from BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. I had erysipelas, was run down and got so weak that I could scarcely do my work. I commenced taking B.B.B. and it worked on me like magic, and made me feel like a different person. I cannot recommend it too highly."

LET US SMILE.

The thing that goes the furthest toward making life worth while,
That costs the least and does the most, is just a pleasant smile.
The smile that bubbles from a heart that loves its fellow men
Will drive away the clouds of gloom and make the sun again.
It's full of worth and goodness, too, with manly kindness blent;
It's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

There is no room for sadness when we see a cheery smile;
It always has the same good look; it's never out of style.
It nerves us on to try again when failure makes us blue;
The dimples of encouragement are good for me and you.
It pays a higher interest, for it is merely lent;
It's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

A smile comes very easy; you can wrinkle up with cheer
A hundred times before you can squeeze out a soggy tear.
It ripples out, moreover, to the heartstrings that will tug
And always leaves an echo that is very like a hug.
So, smile away. Folks understand what by a smile is meant;
It's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

The Sweetheart OF THE Alice Club

The younger officers of the Fourteenth cavalry, stationed at Santa Rita, in the Philippines, were sitting in front of the nipa shack which they occupied as their quarters.

"Did you see the papers from the States that came up today?" asked Tomlinson. "They've all got pictures of poor Drury Lenning with the picture of that girl whose photograph he had in a golden locket around his neck when he was killed."

Johnson pulled at his pipe for awhile and looked out at the moonlight lying white in the street. "Well," said Johnson finally, "with all due respect to poor Drury and to that girl of his and to the grief which she must feel even now, still, honest, fellows, when I get killed I hope I'll have a better looking face than that in the locket around my neck."

"Come, Johnny," said little Samuelson, from the bottom step, "that ain't right, you know."

"No," said Johnson, "I suppose not, but honest, I would hate to be caught dead with a face like that tied around my neck. It all goes into the papers, and I'll be hanged if I could rest easy under my little old pile of dirt if there was such a frump looking picture as that printed in all the papers under the caption, 'Lieutenant Johnson's Sweetheart, Whose Picture He Wore Over His Heart When He Died.'"

"Needn't worry," said Tomlinson. "When the niggers pot you, all the hospital corps will find on your mangled remains will be a greasy deck of cards, two pipes and a plug of tobacco. You may have one picture in the pocket over your heart, but it will be that of some vaudeville actress with golden hair that they give away with cigarettes."

"Oh, I don't know," said Johnson. He looked cautiously across the street toward Manning's quarters. Then he pulled from his pocket the photograph of a beautiful young woman. The face was of almost pathetic sweetness, and the great eyes looked straight out from the picture, and the lips seemed as though just drawing apart to speak.

"See that?" said Johnson. "I haven't got any sweetheart myself any more than a rabbit. But I buscared this one today from old Manny."

Samuelson held the picture farther over where the light from the window behind him could fall upon it better. "Wow!" he said. "Well, she is a stunner. What are you going to do with it, Johnny?"

"I'll tell you," said Johnson. "A fellow never knows out here when he's going to get his little chunk of cold hard lead right back of the ears. When a fellow is killed, everybody paws over the things he has, and the newspaper crowd charges in and looks for pictures and things, and if he hasn't got a picture around his neck they're liable to put one there. Now, I'm going to carry the picture of this girl in my breast pocket right over me heart. Then when I get nailed, why, the papers will publish it along with mine, and I'll be the most romantic thing that ever happened."

"But you won't be here to enjoy it," said Samuelson softly.

"Nope," said Johnson. "But my family will be pleased. I've got three sisters that are prouder than ten peop', and if I were to lay me down and die with a cross, forlorn looking girl's picture above my heart my family would never forgive me."

"That's a pretty good notion, Johnny," said Tomlinson. "Let me have that picture."

"No," said Johnny promptly. "Just for me. Hunt up a lady of your own or cut one out of a newspaper."

"You needn't be so swelled up about that picture," said Andrews from the window. "I know all about it. I know how Manny got it. Manny's brother-in-law is an editor back in the States. This picture is that of a girl in some country town who was the queen of a street fair or business men's carnival or something like that. The paper printed her picture in connection with the story of the doings. Manny saw it lying on his brother's desk and stole it. He doesn't know what the girl's name is or anything and doesn't care. He likes it just because it's the picture of a pretty girl, that's all, and he's carried it everywhere. Had it down to Cuba with him and wore it strictly over his heart up San Juan hill. Your notion is real nice, Johnny, but it's not new. Old Manny, you see, evermused the same ideas a long, long time ago."

"Whew!" said Johnson, "Well, old Manny's wiser than I thought he was."

"Say, Johnny," put in Samuelson, "be a good fellow. Why not let the picture travel around? That is, let the fellow that goes out on a campaign take the picture, and then when he comes back let it go to the next man that goes hiking."

"I can beat that," said Tomlinson. "Let's have that picture photographed and a copy given to each one of us. Then we'll all be insured."

Johnson thought earnestly for awhile. "Well, all right," he said. "I'll just do that."

So the next day, when Samuelson went down to Manila, he took the picture and had a photographer make six copies of it, and he also bought some cheap rolled gold lockets and a couple of yards of blue ribbons. When he came back to Santa Rita that night, he passed out the pictures and the lockets to the other men, and they each cut off enough blue ribbon with which to fasten the lockets around their necks.

"And now," said Johnson as he fumbled at his locket as it swung on his breast, "I am ready to be a real hero, and the papers can print the 'picture found in the locket on the breast of the gallant young officer killed in the Philippines' as much as they please. Say, it would be a positive pleasure to die with this picture over your heart, wouldn't it?"

"But," piped up Samuelson suddenly, "how about this girl? Suppose she sees her picture in the papers as the sweetheart of a brave young officer who died for his flag in Luzon? Say, she won't do a thing!"

"Rein back there, Sammy," commanded Tomlinson. "Rein back to your troop. The girl, even if she happens to see it, which is not at all likely, needn't imagine she is the only pretty girl in the world. She will merely think that there is another girl in the world who bears a remarkable resemblance to her, that's all."

"That's all," echoed Johnson.

"By the way," said Tomlinson, "I was studying that photograph as I came back today, and I could trace the name Alice on the back. It had been rubbed out, but it was still there. So her name is Alice, and I think we may call this association the Alice club."

"Right," said Johnson. "Who'll be the first to die for sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?"

"With all admiration and devotion for the beautiful face I have inclosed in a golden locket and swung by a pale blue ribbon about my swanlike neck," said Tomlinson, "I 'opes it won't be me."

The garrison at Santa Rita had little to do for the next few weeks. Then suddenly the ladrones began to make raids on the villiages near by, and one night they shot into a town where there was a small party of American soldiers and killed two of them. Tomlinson and Johnson took their companies and went out to round up the ladrones and punish them. After a two days' march Johnson's company suddenly encountered the enemy. The fight was a short affair. The Filipinos broke after a few volleys from the soldiers and scattered in every direction. The last bullet that they fired, though, landed squarely in Johnson's breast, and when the hospital corps men picked him up he was dead. The hospital steward carefully removed the dead lieutenant's personal effects and turned them over to the colonel commanding the regiment.

They were all duly sent back to the States to Johnson's family, and in due time along with the pictures of Johnson that were printed in the papers were those of the "beautiful young woman, the sweetheart of Lieutenant Johnson of the Fourteenth cavalry, who was killed in the Philippines."

Alice Netley saw it one day. She gazed at it in astonishment.

"My picture!" she gasped.

She looked at it until she was certain there could be no mistake. To make sure she went in and got a copy of the photograph which she thought to be the same.

"There can be no doubt," she said. "Johnson—Johnson," she repeated. "Why, I never knew him. He never even saw me."

Then she thought. Yes, the Fourteenth cavalry had come through the town on their way to the Philippines. This lieutenant had been with the regiment at that time, of course, and probably had seen her and fallen in love. Then he had obtained a photograph somewhere, begged it from one of her friends who would not tell of the affair. Then he had worn this picture over his heart to the day of his death. She turned to the account of how the lieutenant had died. The bullet had struck a golden locket he wore on his breast and, glancing, had torn its way through his heart.

The girl's head dropped on her bosom. She sat there in the twilight, crying softly.

Two months later Lieutenant Johnson's body was brought home. When it passed through Emmetsburg there was a pale faced girl in mourning at the depot. The whole town knew the story and looked at the girl with pity in their eyes.

"Lieutenant Johnson's sweetheart," they whispered. "He had her picture over his heart when he was killed."

As the train stopped Miss Netley was helped into the baggage car. She laid some flowers on the coffin and then, burying her face in her handkerchief, was led away.

"He loved me," she murmured to herself. "He is my hero—my poor, dead hero."

Lieutenant Samuelson, who was playing poker on the Pullman, heard some man outside the car loudly telling the story of Alice Netley and the man who had died with the picture on his heart.

Samuelson grew red: "I'm afraid we carried that thing too far," he thought to himself. He reached his hand into his bosom pocket and tore a locket from his breast. As the train crossed the bridge he reached out his hand and dropped the locket into the river.—Chicago Tribune.

Eaton Hall Roads.

The roads of Eaton Hall are the finest in England and probably the best in the world of their kind, says a London correspondent. They were laid out by noted engineers, and macadam, gravel and clay were used in their construction. They range from 50 to 100 feet in width and are so well drained that water cannot stand upon the surface, as the top is composed of macadam rolled into a compact mass by the pressure of 20 ton machines operated by steam power. One can go for miles without seeing a loose stone the size of a horse chestnut. Even in parts of the estate given up to the game preserves the highways are as good as those directly around the hall itself.

After the system of roads was completed, invitations were sent to public officials in all parts of the kingdom to visit the estate with a view of educating them in road building. The visitors came by the hundreds and were entertained at the owner's expense. Annually people interested in roadmaking visit Eaton Hall from various portions of Europe.

WHAT SAID THE WIND?

(Her thought.)
The wind is waving all the trees,
They whisper in the sun,
And ever through the sweet warm grass
The wayward shadows run.
Oh, turn you there or turn you there,
The thought will not away,
That love comes as the wind comes,
And none may say it nay.

(His thought.)
The wind is scattering the leaves,
The clouds rush up the sky;
The vagrant mowflakes find no rest,
But whirl and toss and fly,
And still thought wanders with the wind,
Returning but to say,
"Oh, love goes as the wind blows,
And none may bid it stay!"
—Aldis Dunbar in Alaska's.

MRS. WILVERTON'S BALL

Mrs. Alison sat in her easy chair and tapped her foot impatiently as she worked. Mr. Alison paced the floor uneasily and frowned darkly. It was evident there was a storm brewing in the domestic atmosphere. Indeed, the first faint drops of the coming shower were already pattering down on the dainty dress Mrs. Alison was embroidering for her beloved baby.

"For pity's sake, Maud," broke forth her liege lord, "don't begin crying. Why can't you be sensible and look at the matter in a sensible way? It ought not to be so hard for you to yield to my wishes when I have good reasons for asking you to do it besides."

"I don't know what you call good reasons," sobbed Maud Alison. "You don't know the Wilvertons that you should wish me to give up attending their ball—such a magnificent affair as it's going to be too."

"That's the chief of my reasons—because I don't know anything about the family, neither for nor against them. Especially do I wish you to decline their invitation to this ball. I don't want my wife to be known as the chosen friend of a pair of adventurers."

And, having delivered this decision, Mr. Alison walked out of the room.

Thereat his pretty wife was justly indignant, as well as at what he had said. Anger had dried the tears upon her cheeks as she muttered: "Adventurers indeed! As if that were possible! I am sure that Mr. and Mrs. Wilverton are as elegant and refined as any people of our acquaintance, and everybody says the ball will be magnificent, and everybody is going, too, and—and—so am I. I will not be deprived of every pleasure I chance to care for because Fred chooses to dictate in that lordly manner. I shall go to the ball in spite of him, so there!"

And the little foot came down with emphasis upon the soft carpet beneath it.

Thus it was that Mr. and Mrs. Alison so nearly quarreled this bright morning in early December. The Wilvertons had issued cards for a grand reception and ball, to which nearly all the elite of the town had responded favorably. Could Mrs. Alison decline? She did not intend to, at all events.

Yet it was with rather a failing heart that she penned her acceptance of the invitation and commenced her preparation for the great event. She had never yet in their pleasant married life acted so wilfully in opposition to her husband's wishes. But this time she felt herself in part excusable.

"If he had asked me not to go," she said half penitently, "I might have thought better of it, but I won't be commanded. I didn't marry to become my husband's slave, and I'll go to this ball if only to show him that I can think for myself and shall act as I choose, whether he objects or not."

You see the little lady was fast working herself up to a high pitch of virtuous indignation, and she was scarcely disposed to pay any attention to the faint monitions of conscience, especially when it dared to whisper that she was wrong.

The night of the ball came around at last, as all things do when patiently waited for. At breakfast that day Mrs. Alison had announced to her husband her intention of attending the ball.

"You are got in earnest," he said.

"Indeed I am," was the defiant reply. "My preparations are all completed, and Mrs. Leighton has offered me a seat in her carriage in case you persist in not escorting me yourself."

"I certainly shall not go," her husband answered firmly. "And I cannot believe my little wife will go without me," he added pleasantly. "Give me a kiss, puss, and when I come home this evening I trust you will have put all this nonsense out of your head. By by!"

But his wife would not look at him when he kissed her and stamped her foot angrily as the door closed behind him and she heard his ceaseless whistle as he ran down the steps.

"I'm not a baby," she said to herself, "and I won't be treated like one. He shall find out that I can go without him."

And he did come to a realizing sense of the fact when he came to dinner that evening. Running lightly up stairs to their room, the first sight that met his amazed eyes was his pretty wife in full festive robes.

"Well, dear," she said, with a slight affectation of unconsciousness that she was vexing him in the least, "you see I have decided to go, after all. How do you like my dress? I dressed early on purpose for you to see it."

Mr. Alison had stopped short as she spoke, with hands uplifted.

"Maud," he said in a vexed way, "what does this mean?"

"Have you forgotten so quick?" she answered lightly. "It is the Wilvertons' ball, you know. I told you this morning Mrs. Leighton had offered to call for me and bring me home again. Don't you remember?"

"I remember something you seem to have forgotten," was the cold reply. "That is that I did not and do not want you to go to this ball. Those Wilvertons are not fit people for you to associate with, of that I am certain. The town is full of rumors against them, and I predict that you will find but few decent people there tonight."

"What nonsense you are talking!" she said, genuinely surprised now. "Why, I know there are plenty of the best people going. I have scarcely met one who has declined the invitation."

"That may be," was the quiet reply. "But many men who have heard as much and more than I have will change their minds tonight and keep themselves and their families away. Those who do go will be sorry for it, I am very sure."

"What terrible things have you heard, I should like to know?" she asked, half convinced.

"Only rumors, I own," he answered, "but they are bad enough. There was never so much smoke without a little fire. I"—

Mrs. Alison interrupted him with blazing eyes. "Rumors, indeed! You need say no more. I do not believe one word of it at all, and I shall go. That is decided."

"But, Maud"—

"I don't wish to hear any more. I am going."

And she went—went with Mrs. Leighton when she called for her—went with a smiling face and an angry, rebellious heart.

The Wilvertons greeted her with effusion. But there were very few of her set present. Somehow the atmosphere seemed a different one from what she had been accustomed to. There were a number of strangers present, ladies and gentlemen. The former did not impress her favorably, and the latter seemed rather demonstrative in their devotions to the fairer sex. Mr. Wilverton made her uncomfortable, moreover, with his persistent attentions, and altogether she was not sorry when Mrs. Leighton proposed returning home. They went early, and most of their particular set followed in their wake—those, at least, who had not gone before.

Very little conversation passed between Mr. and Mrs. Alison that night—very little for some days thereafter. He considered himself justly aggrieved and was indignant accordingly. She felt herself in the wrong, was too proud to own it and was miserable in consequence.

Meanwhile the whispers against the Wilvertons increased in number and importance. It began to be generally conceded that there was something wrong about them, and people who had taken them up on trust were gradually dropping their acquaintance. Mrs. Alison, however, prided herself on being no summer friend, and her intimacy with the Wilvertons seemed in nowise diminished; seemed, I say, for she was growing to dislike them both as she saw more and more of them. Mrs. Wilverton's dashing ways seemed coarse now, and no words could tell how she was growing to loathe the man, who grew more bold and outspoken in his admiration of her each day.

But the end was very near.

Mr. Alison came up to dinner one evening in a half subdued tremor of excitement.

"Maud, dear, I have news for you," he said, striving to speak calmly, but failing signally in the attempt.

Mrs. Alison looked up a little surprised at the "dear," which had fallen from his lips but rarely since that unfortunate ball, but, truth to tell, rather glad to hear it again.

"What is it?"

"It's about the Wilvertons. You see," he went on hurriedly, "there's been, as you know, a great deal of talk about them lately—more, perhaps, than you were aware of—and people haven't scrupled to call them adventurers, if not swindlers. It seems that they were even worse than that."

"What?" cried Mrs. Alison sharply.

"Criminals! At least the man is. He was arrested this morning by a detective who has been on his track for some time. His very boldness in coming here and launching out in the style he has, under an assumed name and with all the appearance of great wealth, had thrown the police off the scent for a little while, but they have got him now, and he's safe for a 20 years' term at least."

"What has he done?" asked Mrs. Alison.

"Perhaps you will recognise his real name—it is Willis"—

"The notorious bank robber?"

"The same."

Mrs. Alison did not speak for many minutes. Then she remembered that she had been, or tried to be, a friend of Mrs. Wilverton. She could not desert her now that so terrible a sorrow had fallen upon her.

"Will you ring the bell for Lucy?" she said to her husband very quietly. "I want my bonnet and shawl. I am going to see Mrs. Wilverton. She ought not to be left to bear this trouble alone, and I know of no one who will go to her now."

Mr. Alison stared, amazed. Even he had never realised half the real nobility that despite her faults was inherent in his wife's nature. She had risen now and was standing very pale and still by the table. He went to her and put his arms around her and drew her head down to his breast.

"My noble Maud," was all he said.

She clung to him sobbing.

"Oh, Fred, you do forgive me for treating you so badly the other night?" she pleaded. "I'm so sorry now."

"I need forgiveness, too, darling, for having been sullen," he answered earnestly, "and we will both forget and forgive. Shall it not be so?"

She lifted her face and kissed him softly.

"And poor Mrs. Wilverton, Fred! Will you not go with me to see her? I do not like her, really, though I have tried to, but I cannot leave her to bear this alone."

Mr. Alison held his wife in a close clasp.

"I have not told you all, dear," he said. "There is no Mrs. Wilverton, or Willis, as her name would be if she had any right to bear the name of the man she has lived with all these months and who, if reports say true, ruined himself and committed the robbery to gratify her extravagant demands."

"Fred!" And Mrs. Alison's face grew very pale. "You don't mean that she"—

"Was not his wife," he answered sternly.

It was a severe lesson, not only to Mrs. Alison, but to the people of Bolton who had admitted these people into their society without question, simply because of the lavish display of wealth they made, and, it is safe to say, a thoroughly effectual one.

Moreover there are few differences of opinion between Mr. and Mrs. Alison nowadays. She is more willing to take his opinion of people as a correct one, and he has learned his wife's heart too well not to trust her motives always, if he sometimes doubts her judgment.

Drugging will not Cure Catarrh.

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages and bronchial tubes. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that's why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. You simply breathe Catarrhone; it destroys the germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. Catarrhozone never disappoints and is guaranteed to cure Catarrh. Price $1.00; Small size 25 cents, at druggists or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Simple Country Living.

A man may enjoy bounding health and know very little about the cause of his happiness, and, alas, a man may suffer all the woes of dyspepsia and have no certain knowledge as to the cause of his misery.

"I'm a confirmed dyspeptic. That's the reason I look so old," said Mr. Collander, gazing almost enviously at the red bronze face of his former chum at college, who had dropped down from the country into Mr. Collander's city office.

"What you need is simple country food, man," said his old friend, clapping him heartily on the shoulder. "Come and visit my wife and me on the farm for awhile, and we'll set you up. It's rich city living that's too much for you. Now, take breakfast, for instance. All I have is two good cups of coffee, a couple of fresh doughnuts, a bit of steak with a baked potato, some fresh biscuit or muffins and either griddle cakes or a piece of pie to top off with. What do you have?"

The city man looked at his red cheeked friend, who stood waiting for the confirmation of his idea.

"A cup of hot water and two slices of dry toast," he responded soberly. "But if you think a simple diet like yours would help me I will make one more attempt to be a healthy man."—Youth's Companion.

ATTACK BY HAGGART.

The Minister of Railways and Steel Rail Contract.

AN INDUSTRY WITHOUT COST.

Hon. Mr. Blair's Reply—Step Taken by Government Will Result in Establishment of a Very Important Industry in Canada—Mr. Clarke's C. N. R'y. Bill Amendment Defeated.

Ottawa, April 11. — The House spent the greater part of the day yesterday in supply, the estimates for railways and Indian affairs being under consideration. Mr. Haggart attacked the Minister of Railways for making a contract with the Clergue Company for a supply of steel rails for the Government railway. Mr. Blair replied that the Government had by making the contract secured the establishment of the industry in Canada without cost to the treasury, and had thus furnished employment to a large number of Canadian workmen. In the evening Mr. E. F. Clarke moved an amendment to the bill incorporating the Canada National & Transport Company, providing for expropriation by the Government of the property rights and franchises of the company, and the deduction from the valuation of any bonus or subsidy paid by the Government of Canada. The amendment was voted down, and the bill was given third reading.

When the Alien Labor bill was under discussion, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the measure had been submitted to the labor organizations of Canada, and approved by them.

Mr. Bruneau was informed that since Aug. 1, 1896, new postoffices have been established in Canada as follows: In Ontario, 236; in Quebec, 227; in Nova Scotia, 167; in New Brunswick, 85; in Prince Edward Island, 28; in Manitoba and the Territories, 215; in British Columbia, 128. Total, 1,071.

The fruit inspection and packing bill was read a third time and passed.

The Steel Rails Contract.

The House again went into Committee of Supply, and Mr. Blair's railway estimates were taken up.

Mr. Haggart produced the contract with President Clergue of the Sault Ste. Marie Steel Works, and said that, instead of an agreement for 25,000 tons of steel rails for the coming summer's delivery, as Mr. Blair stated on Tuesday, the Minister of Railways has contracted with the company for 25,000 tons a year for five years, a total of 125,000 tons. Although the contract involves payment of over four million dollars, it was made without Parliament being consulted, the deal being ratified by an order-in-council, passed on the 9th of October last.

Mr. Blair assured the House that he was quite willing to have the whole transaction investigated to the fullest extent, when it would be found that the Government had taken a step which would result, without costing the public treasury a single dollar, in the establishment in Canada of an industry which would be of enormous advantage to the country, and which would give employment to many men.

Mr. Blair said that he was astonished that any Conservative should criticize the contract. He challenged comparison with contracts of the late Government. The negotiations with Mr. Clergue, he said, were entered into before Parliament prorogued last year, and was it any reason for not entering into a contract that an election was at hand?

Dr. Sproule said Mr. Blair had not dealt frankly with the House yesterday when he said the contract was only for 25,000 tons. Mr. Blair quoted from the contract to show that the explicit contract was only for one year, with a proviso for extension over five years provided the company could supply rails at current English prices.

Mr. R. L. Borden said that, to put it mildly, Mr. Blair's statement in regard to the contract was not very correct. If the Minister's statements as to market prices were not accurate, they were not of much value.

Mr. Blair's Reply.

Mr. Blair said nothing in his opinion could be more unfair or unjust than the statement of Dr. Sproule and his method of giving support to it. That gentleman knew that the whole basis of the arrangement between the Government and the Sault Ste. Marie Company was the state of the open market in England. No sane man would make any agreement to bind himself to the monetary fluctuations of the market of the United States, which is up to-day and down to-morrow, just at the arbitrary wink of the man who controls the output. It was unfair for Dr. Sproule to challenge the correctness of his statements as to the condition of the market upon the basis of the prices quoted by the proprietors in the United States combine who pulled the string to let the prices fall from $35 to $30, or from $30 to $26, and put them up again just as readily, to suit the fancy of these people, and not as the result of fair business operations. Upon the open market in England no such conditions as existed in the United States would be found to prevail, so he would like Dr. Sproule to pursue his investigations further and see whether or not the quotations upon the English market were as variable as those he had quoted. Before coming to a conclusion upon this question he had made inquiries from a friend in Montreal and learned that prices in England were about the same as they were when the offer was made. As an illustration of the risks that had to be run in buying steel rails Mr. Blair stated that they had to give a contract for 10,000 tons of rails and went into the market months before delivery. By the time delivery took place prices had increased so that the rails could have been sold at an advance of $15 per ton. It was impossible to always see when an increase or fall in prices was going to take place. All that could be done was to use reasonable judgment.

At 6 o'clock the House rose.

National Transport Co. Bill.

When the bill to incorporate the Canada National Transport Company came up for a third reading, at the evening sitting, Mr. Clarke moved the following amendment:

His Majesty shall have the right at any time to take over the undertaking, property, rights and franchises of the company, and for that purpose the provisions of the Expropriation Act shall apply. From any valuation placed upon such property so taken there shall be deducted, upon payment, the amount of any bonus or subsidy paid by the Government of Canada to the company, towards the construction of such line or any part thereof.

Mr. R. L. Borden pointed out that it might be unreasonable under some circumstances to deduct the whole of the bonus, and suggested the substitution of the words: "There shall be deducted a reasonable amount in respect of any bonus or subsidy paid by the Government." Thus it would be left to the courts to decide the amount to be deducted.

Mr. Clarke accepted the suggestion and the amendment, as thus amended, was put to a vote. It was defeated by 45 to 62.

Mr. W. F. Maclean moved to change the name of the Toronto and Georgian Bay Railway and Transport Company.

The amendment was declared lost on division and the bill was read a third time and passed.

The remainder of the session was occupied in Committee of Supply. Good progress was made by the Indian Department estimates and the House rose at 11 o'clock.

U. S. Transport Burned.

New York, April 11.—Fire was discovered in Hatchway No. 7 in the second hold of the transport Rawlins early yesterday. A quantity of hay was stored in the hold and the firemen endeavored to confine the flames to the one part of the vessel. The Rawlins was at the Government pier, Brooklyn, and was to have sailed for Cuba during the afternoon. The Rawlins sank in the mud at her pier. The damage to the transport is estimated at $30,000, and to the cargo at $80,000.

Scalpers Gloeful.

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—After a protracted debate, the Assembly yesterday morning "killed" the Everett so-called anti-scalpers bill, which provided that no person shall issue or sell passage tickets except the authorized agents of railroads and steamboat companies. The bill failed to receive the requisite constitutional vote.

Whalen, Medonagh and Lepine Sentenced

Montreal, April 11.—Five years each at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary was the sentence meted out yesterday by Judge Wurtele to the trio participating in the famous cheque case, namely: Whalen, McDonough and Lepine.

IN BED THREE YEARS.

THE HAPPY ENDING OF A VERY SERIOUS AND PAINFUL CASE.

Mrs. Hughes was Very Ill—Bloated and in Constant Misery, She Suffered for Four Years, Before She Used Dodd's Kidney Pills—She is now Well and Happy.

MORLEY, ONT., APRIL 10, (Special)—Nelson Leslie, Justice of the Peace of this place, vouches for the truth of the following interesting story, told by Mrs. Thos. Hughes.

Verification, however, will not be necessary to those who know Mrs. Hughes as that lady is one of the most highly respected residents of Grey County. Mrs. Hughes says:—

"I was a great sufferer for four years. I was treated by four doctors, and a specialist from the United States. I tried nearly every kind of medicine I could hear of, but none seemed to do me any good.

"I was in bed for nearly three years. I had pains up my spinal column, in my head, over my eyes, across my back, through my left side, and occasionally in my right side.

"For three nights at a time, I would never close my eyes in sleep. I was terribly bloated, so that I could not sit up or walk. My age was forty-one when I was taken sick.

"I have taken in all fourteen boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now I am strong, and able to do as good a day's work as I have ever been. The doctors said that nothing could be done for me.

"I was not able to eat anything, only corn starch or soup of some kind. My weight had increased from 112 to 147 pounds. I am now down to my normal weight again. I can never say enough for Dodd's Kidney Pills, for I am satisfied that they saved my life."

There are many ladies suffering as Mrs. Hughes did, although but few may be as low as she was.

Deranged kidneys are responsible for almost all the trouble that come to women in middle life, and no woman can afford to be careless, when her kidneys are in any way threatened.

What cured Mrs. Hughes of this very bad case, will cure any case.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or Dropsy, and they have never failed.

Birds and Their Baths.

Naturalists tell us that in making their toilets some birds use water only, some water and dust, while other prefer dust and no water. Birds are not only nice in the choice of bath water, but also very particular about the quality of their toilet dust.

Wild ducks, though feeding by salt water, prefer to bathe in fresh water pools, and will fly long distances inland to running brooks and ponds, where they preen and dress their feathers in the early hours of the morning. Sparrows bathe often, both in water and in dust. They are not so particular about the quality of water as about the quality of the dust. The city sparrow must take a water bath where he can get it. Road dust, the driest and finest possible, suits him best. Partridges prefer dry loam. They like to scratch out the soil from under the grass and fill their feathers with cool earth.

Most birds are fond of ashes. Take a walk some early morning across a field where bonfires have burned and see the numbers of winged creatures that rise suddenly from the ash heaps. A darting form, a small cloud of ashes, and the bathers disappear.

Secretary Giles will give $6,000 for a Cresceus-Abbot race for Cleveland's grand circuit meeting. But there is not much hope of his getting it.

James Butler of East View farm, New York, has bought of A. Johnson, Brockton, Mass., the fast mare Edna Simmons, 2:12½, by Simmons, 2:28.

It is stated that the rival Rich Hill (Mo.) pacers, Riley H, 2:06¾, and Blonda Redwood, 2:11¾, will meet in a match over the local track in June.

Mount Shasta is the name borne by the 3-year-old colt by McKinney, 2:11¾, out of Hattie, dam of Monterey, 2:09½, and Montana, 2:16¼. He is owned by John Rowan of San Francisco and reported fast.

Greenlander, 2:12, who holds the American two mile record (4:32) and long held the stallion wagon record (2:14¼), is now at Red Oak, Ia., where W. R. McClintock of Essex has him. As the sire of 24 from 2:18¾ to 2:30, he is the leading son of Princeps and at 19 is very vigorous and well preserved.

The King's Cat.

There are circumstances that make it seem likely that the cat in England is a foreign importation. The king's cat was called "the keeper of the royal granary."

The old Welsh laws provided a curious penalty to be paid by the one who should kill this cat of the king. The offender was to pay as much corn as would cover the cat's body when held up by the tail. This goes to show that cats were rare and had a market value.

FIELD SURRENDERS.

A New Army Order Just Issued in Regard to Them.

THE BOTHA NEGOTIATIONS.

The Latest Casualty List Brings the News of Lord Methuen's Sickness and Convalescence—The British Have Evacuated Hoopstad—Kruger Gets Another $450,000—Vivid Boer Imaginations.

London, April 12.—The British War Office has issued th? following special order regarding surrenders in the field:

"Any officer or soldier who, when in the presence of the enemy, displays a white flag or other token of surrender, will be tried by general court-martial."

The Botha Negotiations.

London, April 12.—No further news has been received regarding the reported resumption of peace negotiations in South Africa, but the fact that the censor allowed the report to pass, and the fact that the Government has not issued a denial, are held to prove that negotiations of some sort are in progress.

The casualty list issued yesterday revealed the fact that Lord Methuen was discharged from the hospital last week, this being the first notification that he had been ill.

There is no information from South Africa beyond the fact that the British have evacuated Hoopstad the British have evacuated Hoopstad, which. The Daily Mail observes, "seems to show that Lord Kitchener's force is still none too strong."

It is announced from Brussels that the Dutch Transvaal Committee has handed to Mr. Kruger a cheque for 1,000,000 yorins ($450,000), collected in Holland for the assistance of the Boers.

It appears that Mr. Kruger's entourage assert that the route from Leydsdorp to Zoutspansberg is heavily fortified and able to resist the British for a long time.

Dewet Fears His Men.

London, April 12.—A news agency yesterday afternoon published a despatch from Cape Town which said that General Dewet is so distracted by the hopelessness of his cause that he can truthfully be described as insane. He goes in fear of his life amidst his own troops and keeps himself surrounded, night and day, by a bodyguard of chosen adherents. But from his own ranks voices are now more frequently heard, calling imperatively for peace.

E. GUSS PORTER THE CHOICE.

WHITNEY'S WAYS WEARY MARTER.

Says He Can't Follow a Leader Who Stands Still.

BACKS ROSS'S POLICY OF PROGRESS.

He Puts the Interests of the Province Before Party Allegiance.

A GOOD MAN HAS FALLEN INTO LINE.

Mr. Marter Now Supports the Development Policy of the Ontario Government.

Since Mr. Whitney has been the leader of the Opposition in the Ontario Legislature, his chief supporter, confidant and desk-mate has been Mr. G. F. Marter, the Conservative member for North Toronto, and formerly representative of Muskoka.

It has been plain for some time past that Mr. Marter differed from the line of action which his leader dignified with the euphonistic title of a policy.

On Wednesday last Mr. Marter openly surprised his friends of the Opposition by supporting the Government and voting against an Opposition amendment to the Beet Root Sugar Bill. Mr. Marter justified his action in no uncertain terms. He denied the allegation of his leader that every right thinking man would approve of the amendment, and sarcastically remarked that he was not one of the "right-thinking men." This unexpected attitude, this turning down of his leader, created a sensation which was further intensified by Mr. Marter deliberately dropping his ballot into the Government box.

So much for Wednesday's episode; the climax was capped yesterday when Mr. Marter announced himself as an unqualified supporter of the development policy of the Ross Government.

The matter before the House was the Keewatin Pulp Concession, which the Opposition opposed en masse.

When the matter came up Mr. Marter said he regretted that he had to separate himself from his party upon the development policy of the Government. In a few words he outlined what had been accomplished during the past year by the Algoma Central Railway agreement, which had been passed during the previous session; what had been done through the granting of the Sturgeon Falls Pulp agreement and by the granting of the concession to the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper Company and other pulp concessions. No one but the man most thoroughly blinded by party could fail to see that there had been great and simply marvelous development during the past year in the newer parts of this grand province; that towns had been doubled in population and villages had grown up and developed into towns where vast amounts of capital had been invested. The older portions of the province had been greatly benefitted and the labouring and artizan classes had been also greatly benefitted by the immense impulse given to industrial activity through the working out of the Government's progressive policy adapted to these new districts. Such a policy, he repeated with great emphasis, to his honest convictions had compelled him to support. (Government applause).

Mr. Marter then explained to the House that he had quietly differed from his party on this subject and, although last year, he had endeavored to impress upon his friends the wisdom of this policy, he had voted with his leader and contrary to his own convictions, but he would do so no longer.

If the Conservative Opposition for the mere sake of what seemed to him to be factious Opposition, and and blind fidelity to party, chose to set themselves against a policy which to every patriotic Canadian, was one that would bring about a realization of the great fnture that plainly lay before this province, they could not expect his co-operation; and painful as it was to him to break old party affiliations, it came to this that he was compelled to make a choice between partyism and patriotism.

This statement was received with loud applause from the Government benches.

THE SIFTON TRIAL ENLARGED.

Murder Case at London Goes Over to the Next Assizes—Canon Richardson's Case.

London, April 12.—The Sifton murder case has been adjourned for six months as a result of the plea entered by Mr. E. F. B. Johnston in regard to the evidence of Mrs. Richardson, the wife of the rector of St. John's Church.

When the court opened yesterday morning Mr. Riddell, addressing His Lordship, said that he found it impossible, under the regulation of the code, to read the evidence previously given by Mrs. Richardson, that the lady could not be produced as a witness and that she was not in such a condition as would permit of an examination by a commission.

Mr. Johnston replied that he would be unable to take the responsibility of proceeding in a case which involved such a grave charge without the production of so important a witness as he believed Mrs. Johnston to be. He protested that the counsel for the defence were not in collusion with Mrs. Richardson; that they had any knowledge of her whereabouts was entirely out of the question.

Mr. Riddell pointed out that the county had already been put to great expense, and that the Crown would produce other witnesses who would take the place of Mrs. Richardson, but His Lordship, Sir William Meredith, declared that the question of expense to the county could not be considered in such a case, when the charge involved a capital felony. There had been an affidavit presented, he said, which set forth the fact that Mrs. Richardson was a material witness, and, in view of this, he would have to yield to the application of the defence for a postponement. He adjourned the case until the next Assizes.

Mr. Riddell then presented the true bill found by the Grand Jury against Canon Richardson, and, in doing so, told His Lordship that the rector had explained the circumstances satisfactorily, and that he had undertaken to expedite the case of the Crown by producing Mrs. Richardson at whatever time she was able to stand the strain of an examination. A formal plea of "not guilty" was accepted from Canon Richardson's solicitor, and he was not asked to appear in court.

Gerald Sifton appeared rather relieved at the adjournment of the case, and the turn which affairs have taken is regarded as favorable to the defence.

King Oscar Will Act.

Washington, April 12.—King Oscar of Norway and Sweden has accepted the post of arbitrator on the Samoan claims of the United States, Great Britain and Germany. The German case has been made up and the United States case is about completed. The British claims probably are in Stockholm by this time.

Brakemen Cut to Pieces.

Moncton, April 12.—James Goodwin, brakeman on the Buetouche and Moncton Railway, was killed at Notre Dame Station yesterday. He fell under a shunting train, both legs being cut off and his body terribly mutiliated. He was a married man and leaves a widow and two children.

Dr. James Archer Watson, a well-known Toronto physician, while horseback riding on Thursday morning, met an instant death at the C. P. R. Dundas street crossing.

CANADA FORGING AHEAD.

Canada is forging ahead in every way. Her trade is advancing at a rapid rate, and her industrial importance is increasing solidly and swiftly. This country is, by the nature and extent of her resources, very largely self-contained, and is becoming more so in regard to their development. In the past we have chiefly depended upon importing our crude and partially manufactured iron. Now we have half a dozen smelters in operation, and we are on the way to produce our own bar iron and rails. The Dominion Government, in keeping with its policy of developing the resources of the country, and encouraging home manufacture, has placed an order for 25,000 tons of steel rails for the Intercolonial Railway, with the Sault Ste. Marie Manufacturing Company, an establishment largely brought into existence and operation by the far-seeing policy of another Liberal Government, then that of Ontario. The Liberal Governments, both at Ottawa and Toronto, have faith in the future of the country, and have the courage to apply a progressive policy to the development of our splendid natural resources of forest and mine. The fabric of the world's industry rests on pillars of iron and steel, and Canada has the raw material of both in abundance associated with abundant materials to convert them into the finished article, or the raw material for industrial exploitation. That Government is best laying the foundations for a great industrial and commercial future for Canada, which pursues a policy tending to bring into utility the inexhaustible stores of mineral and other wealth which we possess. With progressive governments we must go ahead, and the people sympathise with the desire in this direction of the Governments we are at present blessed with, and will not commit the national suicide involved in replacing them with reactionary political combinations, who would waste energy in peddling routine, and set back the hands on the dial of the national horologe.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Startford, remarks the Brantford Expositor, is a go-ahead city educationally, if one may safely judge from the fact that it is now erecting a building 40x60, and two stories, which will be devoted to manual training and domestic science. Brantford has not yet had sufficient enterprise to tackle domestic science, but it is not likely the ladies will be long content to have all the advantages of manual education reserved for the boys.

The City of Kingston has the largest criminal population of any city in Canada, but it seems that during the past three months crime has been on its good behaviour. The return of convictions for the past three months show that there were only eighteen convictions, of which twelve were for drunkenness, and of this twelve six were visitors to the city. This is certainly a very creditable record. Kingston has a hard name—the Limestone City—but its crime records show that she is not true to name.

The Hamilton Herald, (Independent) does not set down Mr. F. H. Clergue, as a mere subsidy-hunter. Speaking of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway project, it says: "The fact that Mr. Clergue has accepted these conditions is sufficient to prove that he is no mere subsidy-hunter. There is no money for him and his colleagues in the construction of this road except as it is used as a means of developing the resources of New Ontario. And if they can make money that way, well and good, for they cannot do it without benefiting the whole province. Heretofore the chief end of the railway promoter has been to get the line built by means of public subsidies, raise money on it, and then unload the property. It may be hoped that the bargain with Mr. Clergue will prove to be the knell of the old kind of railway promotion in this province."

THE MAJORITY IS 12.

Consequent Upon the Defection of Mr. G. F. Marter.

THE NEW PULP AGREEMENT.

The King's Acknowledgement of the Legislature's Condolences Concerning the Death of the Late Queen Victoria —The University Bill Passed— Many Divisions in the Legislature on Thursday.

Toronto, April 12.—In the Legislative Assembly yesterday, the Railway Aid bill was amended in committee on motion of Hon. Mr. Latchford, by the insertion of a clause providing that no cash or land subsidy should be paid to any railway unless the rails used in such railway should have been manufactured in Canada, provided such rails were procurable in the Dominion at a price not greater than that at which they could be procured in Britain or in the United States with the addition of freight rates. It received a third reading.

Hon. J. M. Gibson's bill to amend the Statute Law was again considered in committee. A clause was added permitting hotelkeepers to pay license fees in semi-annual instalments. Another amendment permitted the City of Toronto to purchase the Upper Canada College block on King street west at a minimum price of $200,000. The bill was read a third time.

The House went into committee on the Trading Stamp bill. Mr. Graham explained that his absence from the House when the bill was last discussed in committee was unavoidable. He had stated at the morning session that he could not be present then and he had no intention whatever of shirking the question as he had been charged with doing.

Mr. Joynt charged Mr. Graham with having intentionally absented himself when the bill was under discussion. Lengthy recriminations took place between Mr. Graham and Messrs. Joynt, Matheson and Kidd over a statement in The Brockville Recorder that the Conservatives were trying to throw out the bill. Mr. Kidd in particular working himself up into a passion in a manner calculated to induce an attack of "lint on the lungs."

When the storm had subsided Mr. Whitney argued against the bill on the ground that it would magnify and emphasize the evil. Trading stamps would be legal in one municipality and not in another, which would cause confusion and give rise to abuses.

The Attorney-General said that there was force in the objection that if the trading stamp system was the evil it was asserted to be it should be suppressed outright, instead of being made a matter of local option. The bill did not touch the main question.

Mr. Pattullo said trading stamps were a public nuisance and the consensus of opinion among business men demanded their suppression. An examination of the petitions sent in in favor of trading stamps showed that they were largely signed by children.

After several other members had spoken, a vote was taken and the bill supported by an overwhelming majority. The committee reported the bill, which was ordered to be incorporated with the Government's Municipal Amendment bill.

The Speaker then read the following.

I am directed to acquaint you that the address from the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, expressing their sympathy with His Majesty and the royal family on the occasion of the death of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and declaring their loyalty to His Majesty on the occasion of his accession to the throne, was duly laid before the King. His Majesty was deeply moved by the testimony which the address bears to the love entertained for his lamented and royal mother by his dutiful subjects in Ontario, and His Excellency the Governor-General has received the King's commands to convey, thru you, to the Speaker and members of the Legislative Assembly the expression of his sincere thanks for their kind assurances of sympathy and devotion, which are highly appreciated by His Majesty.

Hon. R. Harcourt moved a resolution granting to the School of Mining and Agriculture at Kingston to aid them in the erection of suitable buildings, etc., the sum of $22,500 annually for five years. The resolution was reported from committee and incorporated in the bill respecting the Kingston School of Mining.

Hon. E. J. Davis moved the ratification of an agreement between the Government and the Keewatin Power Co., Limited, made April 4, 1901, in order to encourage the development of the wood pulp industry. He reviewed the measures taken by the Government to secure the manufacture of pulp in Ontario. Statistics showed that the exportation of pulp wood last season was only 27,867 cords. Though the bill came into operation on May 1 last all the pulp wood cut before that time could be exported, and moreover one company was exempt for a limited time from the operation of the act. The returns for future years might be expected to show a considerably greater falling off in the amount of raw material shipped abroad. He pointed out some of the difficulties which had unexpectedly retarded the development of the domestic pulp industry, but congratulated the House that these were being satisfactorily overcome. In a reasonable time all the enterprises which had received concessions would be in full operation. The company had agreed to spend $1,500,000 in addition to $500,000 already spent and to employ 500 men. The Government in return give them the exclusive right to cut pulpwood in an area surrounding the Lake of the Woods for 21 years on paying the regular dues of 40 cents per cord. The high commercial standing of the company was a guarantee that the sums promised would be expended. The rights of the public had been carefully safeguarded by the agreement.

Col. Matheson said that no more grave or more criminal act had ever been committed than in making this agreement. These concessions were exceedingly valuable and were given away instead of being sold by tender. The monopolists were fastening their tentacles over the whole of Northern Ontario. He concluded a vigorous speech by moving in amendment that the House is of opinion that all grants of pulpwood should be made subject to public competition, and that all dues on Crown timber should be regulated by the House.

Mr. Conmee defended the agreement as calculated to advance the interests of the country. He predicted that the Opposition would change their policy on this question, as they had on that of railway grants, which they had opposed in just as strong language.

Mr. Marter thought that it was in the interests of the country to have as many of these pulpwood concessions as it was possible to give. (Applause.) The great timber resources of this country were worth nothing unless they were utilized. It was absolutely necessary that pulp manufacturers should be assured of an adequate supply of raw material or they would not make the heavy investments necessary to establish the industry. In heartily supporting the Government in this matter, he believed he was acting in the best interests of his constituents and the Province.

Mr. Whitney made a strong personal attack upon Mr. Conmee as the advocate of corporations and monopolies. Mr. Conmee resented the imputation with considerable warmth and denied owning stock in any corporation, challenging Mr. Whitney to make a direct charge of his ever being lobbied for corporations. Mr. Whitney proceeded to denounce the agreement as a sacrifice of the public interests and a bargain made in the dark without a knowledge of the value of the concessions.

Premier Ross enumerated the beneficial effect of some of the steps taken for New Ontario development, which Mr. Whitney had opposed in the past in equally strong language. He had sneered at the Government for posing as champions of progress, but he (Mr. Ross) would sooner occupy that position than that of the champion of reaction. (Applause.)

On the vote being taken, the amendment was defeated, yeas 33, nays 45. Mr. Marter voting with the Government. The resolution was adopted.

A number of bills were read a third time and passed, including the Government measures to improve the public highways; to amend the Registry Act, to amend the Municipal Drainage Act, to amend the Ontario Election Act; the bills granting lands to the Manitoulin and North Shore and the Thunder Bay, Nepigon and St. Joe Railways.

The House went into committee on the bill respecting the Legislative Assembly giving the House power to lengthen its term. Mr. Foy opposed the bill, contending that the House had no power to pass such a measure, and that in any event it was a bad precedent. Premier Ross urged that the public convenience required the extension of the term in order that the supplies might be voted to carry on the Government. The British North American Act authorized the Province at any time to amend its own constitution, so there was no doubt that the House had power to pass the bill. Mr. Whitney suggested an early session. Attorney-General Gibson pointed out that the session might be easily protracted beyond the term of the House.

The bill was reported without amendment.

Mr. Harcourt moved the third reading of the University bill. Mr. Whitney opposed the measure because the provision made for the university was not sufficiently liberal. If funds were not available, the Province should ask for more money from the Dominion. He moved an amendment regretting that the Government had not taken steps to put the finances of the university upon a sound, stable and firm footing. Mr. Harcourt replied, urging the need of economy and contending that the Province had dealt generously with the university.

The division was: Yeas 34, nays 44; Government majority 10.

Premier Ross' bill to extend the life of the next session was vigorously objected to by Mr. Foy. He questioned the power of the House to do such a thing. If the House could extend its existence for 30 days, it could do so for 30 years.

The Premier said that, after the last election the people expected four full terms at intervals of one year, but, owing to the early dissolution in 1898, the Legislature would terminate on March 29, which would be an inconvenient time, as the business of the session could not be concluded by that date. There was no intention for any undue or unreasonable extension of the term of the present House.

The bill passed the committee stage, and comes up later for its third reading.

Mr. Lucas moved in amendment to supply that this House regrets that no steps have been taken for the prosecution of John H. Wildfong, who defaced 16 ballots, and Harry Cumming, who fraudulently miscounted 22 ballots and defaced two.

Hon. J. M. Gibson considered that his assurance given some weeks ago that Wildfong and Cumming would be prosecuted, should have been accepted, and the matter not brought up again. Just so soon as the session is over a special court would be arranged to try them.

On the amendment being put, it was voted down on a straight party vote by a majority of 10.

The House adjourned at 12.45 until 11 o'clock this morning.

ANNAMESE STUDENTS.

Thousands of Them Come Together Every Three Years—How They Live During Examinations.

Every third year the curious sights shown in the illustrations are to be seen at some important city of Annam. It is the camp of the candidates for government positions. The examination, which is very severe, lasts for no less than 30 days. At the last examination, which was held toward the close of 1900, there were 18,000 selected candidates, who had already passed preliminary examinations. From the 18,000 the high mandarins, who were the examiners, selected 360, 90 of whom were placed on the honor list, while the remaining 270 had to be satisfied with the simple degree of bachelor.

THE STUDENTS OF ANNAM.

Those who are chosen spend three years at a college, where they are taught French and civilization according to French ideas. On leaving the college they have to face another examination. The first three or four are made sub-prefects; the five or six following are dubbed master professors, the remainder are assistant professors.

The first examination referred to was held at Nam-Dink, the third city of Tonquin, and commenced on November 22 of last year, therefore, was not completed until well into January of this year. The candidates live in little tents of bamboo, in which they have to crouch.

No great Annamese gathering is complete without dancers and singers, and these do not fail on the occasion of an examination.

But for the weeding examinations held in the province, instead of the 18,000 who present themselves there would have been 50,000.

Humors

come to the surface in the spring as in no other season. It's a pity they don't run themselves all off that way; but in spite of pimples and other eruptions, they mostly remain the system. That's bad.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes them and and cures all the painful and disfiguring troubles they cause. Nothing else cleanses the system and clears the complexion bright and clear.

DISEASES KEPT IN BOTTLES.

A Collection of Human Ills In the Army Medical Museum.

In the Army Medical museum in Washington there is a bottled stock of nearly all the diseases which are apt to be fatal to human life. There are especially on hand germs of consumption, pneumonia, typhoid fever, diphtheria, Asiatic cholera, blood poisoning, erysipelas and carbuncle.

The museum keeps these diseases bottled in tubes constantly ready for immediate use. The curator in charge of the laboratory mentioned that he could give them all to any one in a few moments. He added that he would be able to do this at no serious loss or expense, inasmuch as there was enough consumption, for instance, in the consumption bottle to communicate the disease to many thousands of people, and it was the same with all the other diseases on hand.

In administering pneumonia to a patient, he said, he would select by preference the method of putting a solution of the germs in water in a spraying vessel and have the victim breathe the spray. The subject operated upon would almost immediately contract the affection with absolute certainty every time. He explained that pneumonia is contracted not from a cold or inflammation of the lungs, as people ordinarily suppose, but from the breathing in of pneumonia germs, whose increase and development are aided by an unhealthy condition, such as a cold may give rise to. The mouths of altogether healthy people very commonly have lots of pneumonia bacteria in them.

As for carbuncle, the curator said that he could produce it any time in the most healthy individual by a simple inoculation with a solution of the germs. Once so inoculated you would have about an even chance with death. Spraying the throat with a solution of the proper germs is the method also for conveying diphtheria.

There is no great difficulty in contracting Asiatic cholera if you want to. Take a few of the germs from the appropriate bottles at the museum and drink them in water or beef tea. If your stomach is in a particularly healthy condition, you may not take the disease, but otherwise you are pretty certain to have it. It is said that an assistant in the laboratory of the famous Dr. Koch once swallowed by accident a lot of germs of Asiatic cholera, with which experiments were being made, and developed what Dr. Koch believed a typical case. The assistant recovered by a narrow chance.

The diseases which the government keeps thus bottled in convenient form are all obtained—the germs, that is to say—from actual diseased tissues of patients afflicted with the complaints. To propagate the germs in any quantity from these tissues is easy enough. Vegetable gelatin, from a Japanese plant called agar-agar, is boiled and mixed with beef tea, so as to form a soft, transparent solid. A small quantity of this is put into a tube tightly corked with cotton. The tube is then placed in an oven and heated until all the germs in it, of whatever sort, are killed. Next, the tube is briefly uncorked and a long steel wire that has been heated also to sterilize it is dipped in the germs of the disease which it is desired to cultivate and scraped across the surface of the gelatin. The tube is now recorked and permitted to stand for a few hours, at the end of which the bacteria of the disease, having found the gelatin to their taste for feeding upon, will have multiplied enormously, so as to cover the surface of the gelatin. Then the germs are ready for the purpose for which they are kept at the museum—namely, to enable the physicians to make experiments to determine the proper method of treating the disease and to seek remedies for it.

How a Church Was Saved.

According to a story told in Marseilles the Church of Notre Dame de la Garde, in that city, was miraculously saved from destruction in the closing days of the nineteenth century. The story is as follows:

A gentleman entered the church carrying two candles, which he placed in a chandelier. After lighting them he retired from the main body of the church and called two beggars who were standing at the door. Placing them in a position where they could see the chandelier he gave each of them 10 francs to watch the candles and to relight them if the flame went out. He had made a vow, he said, and it was of great importance to his future hopes that both candles should be entirely consumed.

The man then withdrew and the beggars began their watch. As evening came on they became alarmed and called aloud to a priest whom they saw in a distant part of the church. When he went to them, they declared that they had twice heard a voice commanding them to extinguish the candles. The priest listened, but heard nothing. The beggars appealed to him not to leave them, and to please them he blew out the candles and took them from the chandelier. In handling them he was struck by their weight; when in turning one around in his hands the wax peeled off and revealed a cartridge of dynamite.

By Way of Suggestion.

"The trouble with me," spoke the young man who was on his way home with his best and loveliest from a party at the Kenhurst club, "is that I always feel embarrassed when I am out in company. I never know what to do with my hands."

"Suppose you just hold them up," said a hoarse voice in his ear.

The voice pertained to a large, rough looking man with a mask on his face and a large, rough looking revolver in his hand, and the youth lost no time in complying with the suggestion.

Bicycles are generally considered very modern inventions, but some of the Egyptian obelisks bear figures mounted on two wheeled vehicles resembling the old velocipedes.

THE ORIGINAL KRUPP PLANT.

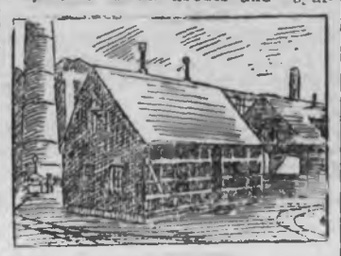
Tiny Building Now Reposing in the Centre of the Great Works.

Right in the midst of the great Krupp works at Essen, the busiest spot in the world, there stands a little building, shown in the accompanying cut, from the Engineering Magazine, which is held as sacred by the members of the great firm and the thousands of workmen there.

On the building is a tablet inscribed as follows:

"Fifty years ago, this dwelling, originally a laborer's, was the refuge of my parents. May all our workmen be spared the care and anxiety which the founding of our establishment cost. For twenty-five years the outcome was in doubt, and only after much effort and perseverance have the labors of the past been so wonderfully rewarded.

"May this example encourage others in affliction; may it increase respect for small abodes and sympathy for the great cares so often felt therein. The end of labor should be the common weal; then labor brings blessing, then is labor a prayer.'"—Alfred Krupp, Essen, 1873.



ORIGINAL BUILDING OF THE GREAT KRUPP PLANT.

Frederick Krupp, the grandfather of the present proprietor, descended from a prominent Essen family, established a small forge there in the year 1810. In 1812, the same year in which his son Alfred was born, he offered to the public some cast steel which he had himself made. The manufacture of this material had up to that time been understood only by the English, particularly by Huntsman, of Sheffield, but they were unable to send their product to Germany on account of the closure of the continental ports by Napoleon's decrees.

With the profits derived from his forge Frederick Krupp was enabled, in 1818, to build a small plant, consisting of eight melting furnaces, with one crucible apiece, on the spot where the great, world-famed establishment now stands. Although the good quality of his product was recognized, he had not attained complete success at the time of his death in 1826.

Joe Manton's Pistols.

Joe Manton, the famous gunmaker, was crossing Hounslow heath when he was stopped by a highwayman. On hearing the summons to "stand and deliver" Manton recognized a pistol of his own make leveled at his head. "Why, confound it, you rascal," cried the indignant gunmaker, "I'm Joe Manton, and that's one of my pistols you've got. How dare you try to rob me!" "Oh, you're Joe Manton, are you?" said the highwayman coolly. "Well, you charged me 10 guineas for this brace of pistols, which I call a confounded swindle, though I admit they're a good pair of barkers. Now I mean to be quits with you. Hand me over 10 guineas, and I'll let you go because you're Joe Manton, though I know you have got £50 at least about you."

Joseph swallowed his wrath and promptly paid the 10 guineas. But he never forgave the highwayman for getting a brace of his best pistols for nix, and he made himself a special double gun with barrels barely two feet long, which he always carried about with him afterward when traveling and christened "The Highwayman's Master." With this weapon I have heard that he subsequently shot a highwayman who stopped his chaise and mortally wounded him.—"Kings of the Rod, Rifle and Guns."

It Was All Arranged.

"How much for a magpie?" he asked as he stepped quietly into a hardware store.

"A magpie? My dear sir, do you take this for a bird store?" was the reply.

"But you haven't any magpies for sale?"

"Of course not. This is a hardware store, as you will see if you cast your eyes around you."

"Yes, I see it is," said the man, after gazing around for a minute. "Being it's a hardware store I suppose I could not buy a magpie here."

"No, sir. You might as well go into a drug store and ask for a ton of coal."

"I see. You keep crowbars, however?"

"We do."

"Well, I'll take one. Being as you don't keep magpies, but do keep crowbars, I'll take along a crowbar to kill a magpie which I'll buy somewhere else."

A Boy's View of the Abbey.

Two little boys who had been abroad were describing to some friends Westminster abbey, which they had visited.

"Why," said Frankie, "it was bigger than 16 market houses, and inside they have it furnished with gravestones. It's awfully old, too—older than mother!"

Westminster abbey, London, the finest and most imposing church in England, where her famous dead are buried, is 1,000 years old.

It Looks Like It.

A little boy who saw a train go through a tunnel for the first time in his life ran home to his mother and said, "Mamma, I have just seen a row of houses going down a rat hole!"

You should not feel tired all the time—healthy people don't—you won't if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla for awhile.

REV. F. J. O'SULLIVAN CANED

By the Members of the T. A. S., Last Night.

Gathered Around the Festive Board—Two Other Presentations.

The T.A.S. rooms were the scene of an unusually happy gathering last night and upwards of one hundred of the young men who constitute this flourishing organization were present. It was a sort of social re-union, a time for congratulations all round on the work of the society, and an evening marked by several presentations to deserving ones. The most important of the presentations was that to Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, the memory of whose work will long remain fresh in the minds of all members of the T.A.S. Rev. Father O'Sullivan was the organizer of the Temperance Society in connection with St. Peter's, which has flourished ever since, has done much to advance the cause of temperance and has acted as a social institution in a manner most cordial and enthusiastic. While Rev. Father O'Sullivan remained in Peterboro he continued to take a deep interest in his society's affairs and when the time came that he was removed to a new field of labour, in Grafton, the members of the T.A.S. could not allow the occasion to go by without expressing to him their heartfelt thanks for his services. He has been away from Peterborough for some time, and left without affording the members of the T.A.S. an opportunity to fittingly demonstrate their regard for him. On the occasion of his visit to Peterborough yesterday, the members of the Society felt that their opportunity had arrived, and last night presented him with a beautiful gold-headed cane and an address. Rev. Father O'Sullivan had to leave on the G.T.R. nine o'clock train, and the presentation therefore had to be made early in the evening. The address was read by Mr. J. A. Sharpe, President of the Society, and Mr. Joseph Mahar made the presentation. The address read as follows:

Rev. Father O'Sullivan:

Rev. and Dear Father,—It is with a glad hand and a throbbing heart that we stand before you this evening to show in our simple way our reverence, respect, admiration and affection, that we bear to the founder of that flourishing and Godly society, the St. Peter's T. A. S., of Peterborough. Sorry were we indeed to part with you, yet not with a chance to express our sorrow, and glad are we now to seize that chance and give some compensation for your many fatigues and labours, trials and tribulations, while you occupied the Chaplain's chair, not so very long ago. We have missed you and your timely advice, it is true, but thankful are we to receive in your place that energetic and untiring worker' Rev. Dr. O'Brien.

Since you have gone your society has flourished wonderfully, as you are no doubt aware, but all honour to the man, who through his energy, zeal and enthusiasm, that noble society was founded. We are sure that although you were away from us in person you were not in spirit, and that the many prayers you have offered for its success have not been in vain. And we assure you that you have never been forgotten by us, and that this happy occasion might have occurred sooner had we only the chance. Still we hope that your energies and labours in other parts of his Lordship's Diocese may be as fruitful as it was here, and that you may be long spared to organise and found many other as flourishing societies as your successful attempt in Peterborough.

And in conclusion, Rev. Father, we ask you to accept this little token as a slight mark of our affection and esteem, and may it be to you an incentive to look back with pride and admiration on the grand society you founded in Peterborough, and with the sublime and happy thought that you have saved more than one soul, and more than one fireside from destruction by that demon drink.

Signed on behalf of the society,

J. A. SHARPE, Pres.
J. O'BRIEN, Sec.
JOS. MAHAR,
JNO. P. SHEVLIN.

In reply to the kind remarks contained in the handsomely gotten up address, Rev. Father O'Sullivan spoke in feeling terms of his past connection with the temperance society of St. Peter's, and he noted with pleasure the splendid progress it had since made, and although he was not with them in person in Peterborough working with the T.A.S., still he is a worker in the cause of temperance elsewhere. In the course of his remarks he referred to the effect of temperance on the development of the mind, and closed by thanking the society for their kindness towards him.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey made a very witty little speech, in which he eulogised Rev. Father Sullivan for his work in the cause of temperance.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, the successor, so to speak, of Rev. Father O'Sullivan in the temperance society's work, also said a few words. And just here it might be said that a more worthy successor could not be desired, for he has striven since entering upon the work of the society to maintain that progressive pace struck by his predecessor, and which has been so much appreciated. He, too, had many kind words to say of Rev. Father O'Sullivan, and spoke of the pride he felt in the work of the society.

Messrs. J. P. Shevlin and J. Hickey made a few remarks.

THE BANQUET.

Another equally pleasing feature of the evening's proceedings was the banquet, which was tendered by the society to those who had laboured so hard in selling tickets for the 17th of March concert and otherwise taking part in the same. The dining-room was most beautifully arranged and a delightful repast was served up by Mr. Potvin. After ample justice had been done to the good things provided a surprise or two were sprung on the meeting. Mr. Fred Derocher, on behalf of the Literary Committee read an address to Mr. D. J. Divine, and at the same time he was presented with a beautiful though rather odd pen.

The address to Mr. Divine was as follows:—

Mr. Daniel J. Devine, Life Saver Heavyweight:

We are glad to be present on such a memorable occasion as this, and especially to have you amongst us. We are also pleased to see that you have recovered from your recent illness, as you look the picture of health again. On behalf of the Literary Committee of the T. A. S. we wish cordially thank you for the manner in which you have performed your duties, and the manner in which you helped all of us with ours.

The attention you paid to us one and all, the Maid of Mount Shannon Company, is worthy of much gratitude on our part, and we hope when the genial Dan takes unto himself a better half, he will always look after her in the same manner. Leaving all jokes aside we all agree that the young lady that captures you will land a prize. We trust that your present business will continue to prosper, and that you will rope in many victims.

We now wish you to accept this little token of our esteem, and hope that it will prove a valuable companion in your business, as you have a lot of penmanship to do. We trust you will take good care of it and in future days you will always remember the happy night you had with the members and followers of the Maid of Mount Shannon Company. Wishing you the best of success, we sign in behalf of all,

ARTHURO SHARPABUS.
JONAHA SULLIVANABUS,
FRANKOE POPABUS.
FREDERICKO DEROCHERABS,
JAMESOA O'BRIENABUS.

Mr. Divine has been one of the most faithful members of the society since he became connected with the same and the reading of the address was followed by the singing of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," the Misses Hurley presiding at the piano.

A like address was read to Mr. J. Hickey by Mr. Jas. O'Brien, and he was presented with a handsome solid steel shamrock. Both Mr. Divine and Mr. Hickey made suitable replies.

Ven. Archdeacon Casey and Rev. D. O'Brien made short speeches congratulating the society upon its progress.

An enjoyable social few hours was then passed in music, dancing and cards, and a delightful evening brought to a close at midnight.

Tennis Meeting.

A meeting is called on Friday evening at 7.15 sharp at the Y.M.C.A. for all members interested in and desiring to play tennis. THE MILK QUESTION.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It is with some doubt, if it should be thought presumtation in me, to fill a space in your valuable paper, now that it has attained such a position, after passing through the fire, and having the appearance of a young man ready to run a race. It is of little use to regret that I am not equal to the task I have taken. Most of your readers know what has been done to bring the question of the milk supply before the inhabitants of this town. Meetings have been held and the views of some on this matter have been made public. Now the question very naturally arises from whence has this arisen? Is it from the people generaly, those who are most interested, and from those most affected? Or is it from those whose aim is only a business transaction and to make it a paying concern? Of course I have no knowledge as to whether the scheme is still in progress and if information is being gathered so as to make the milk as pure as possible. No doubt the minds of very many will have been greatly agitated when they consider that they have been partaking of the present milk supply almost every day, even from their infancy, and have now awakened to the danger to which they have been exposed. Was it a happy ignorance? Sometimes when I read those startling statements of facts contained in some microscopic researches I am astonished. Not long since in France was made known the results upon the microscopic organisms that inhabit cheese. From an examination of a soft variety of cheese, there was obtained the following result: "In each gramme (this I believe to be about 15½ grains Troy) of the cheese when fresh from 90,000 to 140,000 microbes are found. This number increases with time, thus a cheese 71 days old contains 300,000 bacteria per gramme." I could but ask myself the question, "Is it the number of microbes that gives the different flavours to various cheese?" And yet with all these facts before me it does not debar me from the pleasure of eating cheese. If this is true of cheese what can be said of butter? Have we not as much reason to be concerned about it as of milk? I have a very strong objection to the flavour of some butter, but whether to lay the blame on the cream, or on the manufacturer of the article, I am at a loss to know. Some tell us that we must go to the fountain from whence it comes—the milk produced from the cow. If the milk is impure when drawn from the cow, can it made pure by any manufacturing process, and how can it be assured? There can be no doubt but that the milk may be affected by the cows' food, and more especially from the water the cow drinks. It is well known that cows will refuse well water if they can obtain a drink from a lake, stagnant pool of water, which is always contaminated with many microscopic forms, and myriads of germs or spores of this minute vegetation, and drunk by a cow these germs or spores are absorbed along with the water into the blood, and must necessarily affect the milk, which is derived from the blood. We are told when this milk is exposed to the air, these minute organisms grow very rapidly and change the character of the milk. I believe it is the practice of some to boil the milk before its being used, but this requires a heat not less than boiling water. A heat of 120 degrees is said to assist their growth instead of arresting it, which may account for the fact that heated milk sours more rapidly than the cooled milk. It is well known that milk taken direct from the cow may be kept from two to three days perfectly sweet by one person, and in half a dozen other places it will sour within ten to twenty hours. I fear it will remain a vexed question, but if anything can be done, by all means let us have pure food. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that there is much experimenting with young babies, who are deprived of mother's milk and who are weaned early. I have no other purpose of thus writing than to keep it before the public, that it may inspire those who know to adopt some plan. It is but little I can do, but having done that little, I beg to remain,

Most respectfully yours,

J. BABB.

REUNION AT THE "Y."

Members of the Classes Spend a Social Time Together.

The first annual educational class reunion in connection with the local Y.M.C.A. was held last night and proved to be most successful. The idea of having the members of the various evening classes meet together at the end of the season's work has been in the minds of those who have charge of the same for some time, but this is the first occasion that the event has been carried to a successful finish, and there is no doubt but that the annual class re-union will form one of the leading features of the building.

The chair was occupied by Mr. A. E. Dixon, chairman of the Educational Department occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of members.

Mr. Dixon opened the proceedings, and dwelt briefly on the very great advantages of evening educational classes for those who do not attend day schools, and he also expressed the hope that the re-union would be annual affair.

Mr. A. C. McCallum, the popular teacher of Drawing, was amongst those who addressed the gathering, touching upon matters of interest to the members.

Mr. C. F. McGill of the Canadian General Electric Co., and Mr. J. S. Smith gave short but instructive speeches and members of the classes testified to the benefit they had received by attending the classes.

Mr. Gliddon's orchestra furnished excellent music during the evening, and Mr. Mulligan also contributed towards the musical portion of the programme.

Refreshments were served during the evening, and altogether a most enjoyable time was spent.

In addition to the races, an illuminated parade will be held Monday evening, followed by a regulation camp fire at the camp.

TENNIS.

Peterborough can boast of having as early tennis as any town in the country. Yesterday the Y. M. C. A. courts were marked out for the first time this season, and several of the boys had a set or two. The courts being cinder dried out very quickly this spring and they are now in full swing for the season. The annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Tennis Club will be held this evening. Members are asked to be on hand on time and do their utmost to promote the interest in the game.

BRAIN FOOD.

Is of Little Benefit Unless it is Digested.

Nearly everyone will admit that as a nation we eat too much meat and too little of vegetables and the grains.

For business men, office men and clerks, and in fact everyone engaged in sedentary or indoor occupations, grains, milk and vegetables are much more healthful.

Only men engaged in a severe outdoor manuel labor can live on a heavy meat diet and continue in health.

As a general rule, meat once a day is sufficient for all classes of men, women and children, and grains, fruit and vegetables should constitute the bulk of food eaten.

But many of the most nutritious foods are difficult of digestion and it is of no use to advise brain workers to eat largely of grains and vegetables where the digestion is too weak to assimilate them properly.

It is always best to get the best results from our food that some simple and harmless digestive should be taken after meals to assist the relaxed digestive organs, and several years' experience have proven Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets to be a very safe, pleasant and effective digestive and a remedy which may be taken daily with the best results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets can hardly be called a patent medicine, as they do not act on the bowels nor any particular organ but only on the food eaten. They supply what weak stomachs lack, pepsin diastase and by stimulating the gastric glands increase the natural secretion of hydrochloric acid.

People who make a daily practice of taking one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal are sure to have perfect digestion which means perfect health.

There is no danger of forming an injurious habit as the tablets contain absolutely nothing but natural digestives; cocaine, morphine and similar drugs have no place in a stomach medicine and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are certainly the best known and most popular of all stomach remedies.

Ask your druggist for a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and after a week's use note the improvement in health, appetite and nervous energy.

Catarrh,

Called an American disease, is cured by an American medicine, originated and prepared in the most catarrhal of American countries.

That medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It cures radically and permanently, in that it removes the cause, cleansing the blood of scrofulous and all other impurities. It overcomes all the effects of catarrh, too, and builds up the whole system.
